A Queue Story.

Sir F. E. Smith told a queue story while in America. "There are as many queues in England now," he said, "that one is apt to get mixed up. A young American soldier passed four hours in a very long queue the other day. His spirits were superb. He amused everybody with his quips and sallies. But he uttered a low cry of dismay when his turn at last came, and a girl thrust a small greasy packet in his hand, saying: 'No tea to-day, but here's a nice half-ounce of margarine.' 'Well, I'll be jiggered!' said the American. 'Is this or ain't it the gallery entrance to the Frivolity Theatre?'"

Registration To Take Place On Saturday, June 22nd

Provided Organization Can Be Completed—Can Be Done at Places of Work—Employees Are Asked to Have Blanks Filled Out in Their Shops.

TWO POINTS EMPHASIZED

OTTAWA, May 14.—Provided the many and intricate details of organization can be completed in time, Saturday, June 22, will be the day upon which general registration will take place.

In many towns and cities organization is already well under way. Public Schools and teaching staffs have in a large number of instances been placed at the disposal of the registrars.

It is the desire of the Government that registration shall be carried out with the least possible interruption of business and with a minimum inconvenience to employes. Provision has therefore been made to permit large industrial and business concerns to register their employes, an officer of the company, foreman or other employe being sworn as deputy registrar. These registrations can take place several days prior to the date of registration, provided the formalities are complied with.

Two points are emphasized in connection with the registration. First and foremost is the necessity of making the registration complete. In addition to the obvious object to be served by thorough and efficient work it is pointed out that if the war continues it may be necessary to have recourse to the rationing system, in which event the facts obtained through registration will be of great value.

The second point is that information obtained shall be immediately available and made to serve a practical and benefical purpose. With this object in view it is suggested that Provincial and municipal Labor bureaus and all parties desiring labour, should obtain information direct from their local registrars, on the day of registration as to the available labor supply in a particular locality.

DEMOCRACY VS. FINE WRITING

The Latter Is, Beyond All Question, Dependent Upon the Respect of the Former.

I do not agree with the pessimists who think that a democratic civilization is necessarily an enemy to fine writing for the public, Henry Seidel writes in the Century. Such critics underrate the challenge which these millions of minds to be reached and souls to be touched must possess that writers, like actors, are inspired by a crowded house.

But the thought and the labor and the pain that lie behind good writing are doubly difficult in an atmosphere of easy tolerance and good natured condescension on the part of the readers of the completed work.

The novel is the test case for democratic literature. We cannot afford to pay its practitioners with cash merely, for cash discriminates in quantity and little more. Saul and David were judged by the numbers of their thousands slain; but the test was a crude one for them and cruder still in fiction. We cannot afford to patronize these novelists as our ancestors did before us. Not prizes or endowments or coterie worship or, certainly, more advertising is what the American novelist requires, but a greater respect for his craft.

The Elizabethan playwright was frequently despised of the learned world, and, if a favorite, not always a respected one of the vulgar. Strange that learned and vulgar alike should repeat the fallacy in dispraising the pre-eminently popular art of our own times! To Sir Francis Bacon "Hamlet" was presumably only a play actor's play. If the great American story should arrive at last, would we not call it "only a novel"?

The Line in Lorraine.

Lorraine means "Lothair's Kingdom," but certainly its most famous figure was that duke of Lorraine, Godfrey of Bouillon, the hero of many fabled exploits, who was said to have cloven asunder the body of a Moslem emir with one stroke of his good sword, who was leader of the first crusade, who saw the deliverance of Jerusalem and became the ruler of that Holy City wrested from paynim hands. The American soldier might do worse than swear "By Godfrey!" Whether we now hold a mile or five miles will presently be of no importance, for our expeditionary forces have but made a beginning. A look at the map will satisfy any American how much of the front line our men should be defending before many months have passed.

Much of the matter thus received is fragmentary. Some of it is irrelevant, and there is of necessity considerable over-lapping.

It is in the arranging of this panoramic picture of the day's events a newspaper is made or marred.

Each lawful morning the news of the world is presented to Mail and Empire readers in a manner appealing to the eye and to the senses. The detached matter is carefully pieced together—the striking events given their proper prominence—the verbiage cut out—irrelevant items discarded.

It is this careful and experienced editing of a cable and news service without a peer in America—coupled with artistic presentation—ACCURACY—COMPREHENSIVENESS MINUS SENSATIONALISM—that makes The Mail and Empire the acknowledged leading newspaper of Canada.

Hocken Amendment to Civil Service Bill Would Show Up Favouritism—Some Check Needed, Says Col. Currie—"Put a Premium on Lying"

OTTAWA, May 14.—When consideration of the Civil Service bill was resumed by the House in Committee yesterday afternoon Mr. Hocken, with the consent of the committee, withdrew his amendment in regard to requiring the publication of names of relatives in the Civil Service. He then submitted another amendment extending its scope. The new amendment provided for the publication of a report showing names "of any relatives by blood or marriage in the Government service, in the Senate, in the House of Commons, or in the Civil Service," of an appointee to a position in the Civil Service.

Mr. Nicholson remarked that the position taken in the amendment was adopted by certain large corporations some years ago but they found it inadequate and unworthy. In Mr. Nicholson's opinion, the amendment would simply bring an efficient civil servant into contumely simply because he happened to have relative in the public service.

Mr. Henders added that the Civil Service Commission had been appointed to eliminate such evils as those against which the amendment was directed. If the commission were unable to stop the evil, what was the use of the commission?

Need Some Check.

Col. Currie thought it advisable to have some check on the Deputy Ministers so that they could be prevented from putting in their own relatives.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts 243 cars, with 4631 cattle, 706 calves, 1827 hogs and 72 sheep and lambs.

While prices on the whole were practically steady with last week the trading was distinctly slow in comparison. There was a good run of cattle offering and the buyers generally were disposed to be more deliberate in making their selections. At some points it was claimed the buyers had succeeded in getting prices about 15c to 20c lower. The general run of prices actually recorded scarcely bore out the contention. A steer sold by Joe Wilson, of the H. P. Kennedy firm, topped the market at a new record of $16.50. Several part loads sold by different firms up to $15 and $15.50. The general run of good butcher was steady from $13.50 to $14.50.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

COVER SOIL WITH STRAW.

Here is a tip for the gardener who wants extra early and tender radishes, lettuce, mustard and cress. It is a popular practice in France and Gt. Britain but one that is little indulged in on this side of the Atlantic. All the salad crops can be induced to be more sprightly in their growth if the row or patch is covered with straw for three or four days after the seed has been sown. The straw shades the ground, keeps in the moisture, and rapidly draws up the young seedlings. The crop gets a good start if this is done and the tenderest of radishes, lettuce and onions shoot up and are ready for use at least a week earlier than they would otherwise be.

Mother! Give Child "Syrup Of Figs" If Tongue Is Coated

A child simply will not stop playing to empty its bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few whours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Camouflage.

"Talking about camouflage" was a detective in a lecture on wiles. "I heard a good camouflage story the other day. A colonel said to one of his men on the Western front: 'Griffiths, have you had my dugout camouflaged?' 'Yes, sir,' said Griffiths. 'I saw to it myself, sir. We've made it look exactly like a concealed six-inch gun.'"

GRAIN MARKET

Wet, cool weather gave some encouragement to the bull side of the grain markets yesterday. Considerable buying on the part of the shorts, too, who tried to get in on the recent decline, gave strength to the market, and the prices began to advance early in the trading, the advance being maintained until the close. July corn at Chicago closed 1 7-8c above Saturday's close. Oats were strong in sympathy with the boost in corn; May oats closing 2 1-4c up and July oats 1 7-8c up. DRINKS TO KAISER GETS THIRTY YEARS

Unpatriotic U. S. Sergeant to Have Time For Thought.

AYER, Mass., May 14 — Ernest Flentje, of Cambridge, a sergeant of the 30th Infantry at Camp Devens, yesterday was sentenced to thirty years' imprisonment at Fort Jay, New York, for unpatriotic utterances.

He was arrested at the cantonment on March 26 and tried by court martial. Witnesses at the trial testified that Flentje had said President Wilson was incapable of standing the responsibility put upon him by the war; that this country had no business entering the war and that Germany could have won if the United States had kept out. Referring to the 76th Division here, witnesses said he declared that "if the Germans ever saw this bunch they would laugh themselves to death."

Other witnesses told of the sergeant having invited persons to drink with him to the health of the German Emperor. Flentje denied the charges.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

THE WELCOME HOME

CHAPTER LXVI.

I had gone into the dressing room and, tidied my hair, powdered my nose, and made myself look as fresh as possible. As the train slowed into the station, my heart beat faster and I could scarcely wait to get off.

I looked all around for George, but didn't see him. My heart sank, but I still kept looking. He had missed me. There were quite a good many got off at Moreland. But just as I was about to retrace my steps, thinking I might have passed him in the dusk, Martin the chauffeur, came up and, touching his cap, took my bag and said:

"The car is right this way, ma'am."

I followed in silence. Of course George was in the car. He would think it foolish to stand in a crowd and wait when Martin could do it just as well. But there was no one in the car. I opened my lips to ask where Mr. Howard was, but pride came to my rescue, and I said:

"How are you, Martin? And is everything is all right, I think."

"I'm well, thank you, ma'am. And everything is all ight, rI think."

Hot tears rushed to my eyes, but I resolutely forced them back. George would be at home, waiting me, and he mustn't see me with red eyes. I was thankful for Martin's broad back in front of me. No one could read my thoughts.

HOME AT LAST

At last we reached the house. I thought we never should. But, as I rushed up the steps and the door opened in response to the honk of the automobile horn announcing our arrival it was James' face that greeted me, not George's.

"I am glad to see you back, ma'am," he said respectfully. Then Mary, Annie and Celeste all appeared and greeted me.

"The house has been that lonesome I most, went away meself," old Mary said.

"I went immediately upstairs. George's name had not been mentioned. Apparently the servants thought it nothing strange he had not been with me. I tried to keep still, not to ask questions. But after I had taken off my things, and changed my clothes for the late dinner prepared for me, I could not resist saying to Celeste:

"Will Mr. Howard be home for dinner?"

"Oh, no, ma'am. He said if you came and asked for him, to tell you he would be late. He had an engagement."

I don't quite know where it came, or how, but for once my pride kept me from letting Celeste know how hurt I was.

"Oh, yes, I remember he wrote me about it. I will go right down. I am starving," I replied.

My sudden access of pride also helped me to eat a good dinner. Then as it was late and I was tired I told Celeste:

"I shall not sit up for Mr. Howard. If he comes in before James goes to bed, ask him to tell Mr. Howard that I was very tired so did not sit up."

"Oui, madame!" Celeste replied, a peculiar look on her face. I knew she was wondering at my attitude. That she half expected me to weep.

"HOW DO YOU DO" AT BREAKFAST.

I went immediately to sleep. I was really very tired. My long seance at the window the night before—the unaccustomed traveling—had wearied me so that my eyes closed immediately. I did not waken until Celeste called me:

"Mr. Howard says he will be ready for breakfast in a few minutes."

I jumped out of bed, dressed hurriedly, but selected my most becoming breakfast gown, then ran down the stairs and into the dining room just as George was sitting down. He came to me and kissed me.

"Did you have a pleasant visit, my dear?" he asked.

"Oh, wonderful! It was too short, that was all the fault I found with it."

"Are your people well?"

"Yes, very well. They all wished to be remembered to you."

"Thank you."

I was determined to be as cold, as non communitive, as he. So I volunteered no details of my visit. He looked at his paper as usual, but when he spoke his voice was kind, and he smiled. I was grateful for even so much of his attention, the while I resented his coldness.

"I was sorry to be out when you arrived," he said as he rose from the table, "but Mrs. Loring gave a dinner which I had agreed to attend. Better lie down a while today. You aren't accustomed to traveling, and you look a bit fagged."

That was all. What a difference there was in his greeting, and that of the dear folks at home! And he had been with Madge Loring.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Pronse, cattle dealer, Sheho, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

ANCIENT HEAVY ARTILLERY.

Although one is astounded to hear of the immense size of the heavy artillery used by both sides in the present war, it should be borne in mind that projectiles of even large diameter were used long ago.

The first piece of artillery recorded (according to London Answers) was made by Schwartz, a German, soon after the invention of gunpowder in 1320, while the first use of artillery in warfare was probably made by the Moors of Algeciras, Spain, in 1343. The town is situated on the same bay and opposite to Gibraltar. It is interesting to remember that the present Spanish governor's full title is "Governor of Algeciras and Gibraltar, temporarily in the occupation of the British," an example of optimism that surely deserves to become classical.

Edward III. at Crecy in 1356 had four pieces of cannon, and he also used artillery at the siege of Calais in the following year.

In Edinburgh, to which it was transferred from London at the request of Sir Walter Scott, may be seen Mons Meg, a large cannon that is feet long and twenty inches calibre, which is said to have been used by James II. at the siege of Thrieve Castle in 1455. This gun used stone. Five years later the King met his death at Roxburgh by the bursting of a similar cannon, the Lion.

The "Queen Elizabeth's pocket pistal"—a quaint fancy—at Dover Castle, a present from Charles V. to Good King Hal (Henry VIII.), is twenty-four feet long and has given rise to the well known lines:

Load me well and keep me clean,
I'll carry a ball to Calais Green.

The King's Old Chum.

Glorious weather favored the visit of the King and Queen to Reading recently. Their Majesties proceeded to No. 1 War Hospital through densely-packed avenues of people cheering and waving flags. At the hospital the King was particularly interested in the case of Pte. Beesley, who had a finger transplanted from one hand to make a thumb on the other, the operation having been performed by Major Joyce.

Another man to whom the King spoke was newly admitted from a torpedoed hospital ship, but explained that he had not suffered at all, and believed everybody was got off before the ship went down. The King replied: "Oh, but she did not go down. I have seen the reports about her, and you will be glad to know that she was brought safely into port."

Continuing their tour, their Majesties went to the Royal Seed Establishment to inspect the work carried on by Messrs. Sutton in connection with the food supply of the country. Here the King met an old comrade, one Thomas Ryan, who served with him when he was a lieutenant on the Bacchante, where Ryan was captain of a gun crew. The old sailor asked if his Majesty remembered the Australian Bight, and the King replied: "I remember it very well. It was there that we lost our rudder nearly 40 years ago."

Turkey Takes Census.

For the first time in the history of Turkey, says an Amsterdam dispatch, a complete census of the whole empire is to be taken. A German statistician has been appointed to superintend the preliminary formalities. The Turkish newspaper, Sabah, says: "We are the only nation in Europe, not excluding even the Balkan states, which possesses no official statistics of our population." The estimated population of Turkey before the war was roughly 21,000,000, of which 7,000,000 were Turks, 2,000,000 Arabs, 1,500,000 Armenians, 1,500,000 Greeks, 1,500,000 Kurds, and the remainder Druses, Jews and the smaller tribes. The Turkish newspapers have recently shown some anxiety as to the large decrease in population lately caused by the war and the prevalence of disease and have urged the government to take steps to decrease mortality and increase the birth rate.

Greatest in the World.

The New York Connecting Railway bridge, which is better known as the Hell Gate bridge, with its three miles of elevated approaches, constitutes one of the greatest engineering projects in the world, overshadowed only by its importance as a trade route and public utility for passenger and freight traffic.

It is the world's heaviest bridge, a steel arch construction, accommodating four tracks. It is ready to bear the live load of 12 tons per linear foot while sustaining 20 tons of structure per linear foot. It is calculated that this live load may be likened to the weight of 45 of the biggest and heaviest of modern locomotives in motion.

Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus off with fingers.

No humbug! You truly can lift off every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses on bottom of feet without one bit of pain.

A genius in Cincinnati discovered freezone. It is an ether compound and tiny bottles of this magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents.

Apply several drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you lift it off with the fingers. You feel no pain while applying freezone or afterwards.

Just think! No more corns or calluses to torture you and they go without causing one twinge of pain or soreness.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle of freezone on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

CONTROL YOUR OWN KITCHEN

Margaret Deland, the well-known writer, says in the Woman's Home Companion:

"This is a brave world just now, and it shames us to admit, even to ourselves, how we hate to face some domestic guns; we hate to ask about left-over dropped eggs; and still more do we flunk the going back to the good sense of mothers and grandmothers, and do our own ordering! There is, however, one thing that would help us poor housekeepers immensely, namely, 'a community effort.' If groups of women—the women's clubs, the women of a parish, the women of a street—would get together and pledge each other their moral support, the domestic situation would be immensely helped; we would cease to be bullied by our kitchens. Once let Mary realize that not only Mrs. A. is 'mean,' and Mrs. B. 'snoops around in the refrigerator,' and Mrs. C. 'gives ye a calldown about yer potato parings,' but that the whole alphabet of housekeepers will not permit waste, Mary, too, and all her kind, will finally fall into line!

"You know the fable of the old man and his sons and the sticks? The single stick was easily broken. The single housekeeper is easily cowed. The fagot is unbreakable! If we women, all together, insist upon a moral, social, economical course, our kitchens will join us."

Psychological Effect.

"Why do you call your automobile a flivver?"

"We don't always," replied Mrs. Chuggins. "When we speak of it in company we call it a motorcar. But when we take it to a repair shop we call it 'a flivver,' hoping it will influence the man to be easy with the bill."

WARLIKE BABOONS.

If we are to credit the testimony on the subject offered by naturalists, man is not the only animal who carries on his warfare by means of organized bands, and calls in the forces of nature to assist him. There have been witnessed in Africa fights that were conducted in as orderly a manner as if the warriors had been really men, instead of only somewhat like them in form, i.e., baboons.

One naturalist was stoned out of a pass in a very few minutes by these creatures, who sprang upon ledges and stones, looked down for a few moments on the valley, growling, snarling and screaming, and then began to roll down stones with so much vigor and adroitness that the intruders took to flight. The baboons evidently knew the value of co-operation, for the naturalist saw two of them combine their efforts in order to set a particularly heavy stone rolling. One monkey, bent on making the most of his missile, was seen to carry a stone up a tree, that he might hurl it with greater force.

Once, while some baboons were crossing a valley, they were attacked by dogs, and, as is usual during a march, the females and young were in the centre, the males heading the column and bringing up the rear. As the dogs rushed upon them the males turned and faced their enemies, growling, beating the ground with their hands and opening their mouths wide, so as to show their glittering teeth. They looked so fierce and malignant that the dogs—Arab greyhounds, accustomed to fight successfully with hyenas and other beasts of prey—shrank back. By the time they had been encouraged to renew the attack, the whole herd had made their way, covered by rear guards, to the rocks, one six-months-old monkey excepted.

This little monkey sat on a rock surrounded by the dogs; but he was not long left in his perilous position. An old baboon stepped from the cliff near by, advanced toward the dogs, keeping them in check by threatening gestures and sounds, picked up the baby monkey, and carried it to a place of safety on the cliff, while the whole crowd of baboons watched the act of heroism and shouted their battle cry.

The Rubber Tree.

A preliminary inquiry into the possibility of the commercial utilization of the seed of the rubber tree for oil production has been undertaken by the agricultural authorities in the Federated Malay States. From time to time suggestions have been made for the utilization for this purpose of the seeds of the cultivated Para rubber tree, as large quantities of the seed go to waste on the rubber plantations of the middle east. Experiments have proved, according to a British Government report, that not only is the oil extracted from the seed suitable for various purposes, but that the residue can be used for cattle food or as fertilizer.

Septic Tank for Sewage Disposal.

This system consists ordinarily of a two-chamber concrete, water-proof tank equipped with an inlet, overflow and vent pipe, and an automatic siphon for emptying the tank of the liquid sewage from time to time, and a system of tile, called the "absorption bed," consisting of several parallel rows of 3 or 4 in. land tile laid with open joints, almost level, and shallow, and branching off from a main line of sewer pipe which connects it to the tank. For the ordinary-sized home each tank should be about 3 ft. square and 3 ft. deep, and 150 to 200 feet of land tile would be required for the absorption bed. The vitrified sewer tile is best for the main and the number of them will depend upon the distance of the absorption bed from the tank.

"If this system be properly installed it will dispose of sewage in a very satisfactory manner and without endangering the water supply. Complete plans in blue-print form for installing it may be secured for the writing from the Department of Physics, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont.—R. R. Graham, B.S.A., Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ontario.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take one tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Siren

She Proved a Lure In the Right Direction

By F. A. MITCHEL

Indirectly the small salary was the cause of the trouble. It was but $600 a year, and no man could be found to accept it except some recent graduate just beginning his life work. These young men were all bachelors. There was a girl in the congregation, Miss Beatrix Severance, daughter of the managing deacon, who as soon as a young man fresh from a theological seminary took up the duties of pastor began to weave about him a spell. He would gradually become devoted, then on one pretext or another would hand in his resignation and leave for another field.

A few of the parishioners who were in the secret advocated securing a married man for pastor. Acting on the suggestion, they "called" a man with a wife and six children. But the salary was so small that the more prosperous members of the congregation were continually compelled to put their hands in their pockets to help the family out. Fairs and donation parties were resorted to till at last the congregation became weary of the business. The pastor secured a call with a higher salary, and the First church returned to the old system of having a bachelor to fill the pulpit.

When the Rev. Thomas Ridgely, unmarried, stepped into the pulpit vacated by the pastor with a family, none of the congregation except a committee who had been sent to hear him preach had seen him. As he stepped forward to begin the service a few of those who understood the cause of the frequent resignations of the church's pastors looked at one another meaningly. He had fiery red hair and enormous joints, while his complexion was a freckled brown. If these persons had spoken their thoughts they would have said, "At last we have a man whom Trix Severance will let alone."

Beatrix, who was in her accustomed seat in her father's pew looking up at the minister, was of the same opinion. However, when he sent his first word rolling over the congregation it was like the lower notes of the organ. There was scarcely a member of the congregation but admitted that Mr. Ridgely possessed a resonant voice. It seemed not to make any difference whether he raised it or lowered it, the effect was the same. When he spoke in those tones that are intended to be impressive, but are usually inaudible, his most subdued note could be distinctly heard in every part of the house.

But when Mr. Ridgely began his sermon it was evident that his voice was not his principal attraction. There was a depth as well as a fervor in everything he said that went both to the understanding and the heart. For the first time in years the congregation of the First church realized that they were under a powerful influence. They listened, every eye and ear intent upon him, till he had finished; then a murmur of satisfaction broke the stillness.

When the sermon was over and the congregation were passing out of the church the hum of conversation was entirely about the new pastor. "Where did the committee pick him up?" "What does it mean that such a man will accept our little salary?" "He'll be called somewhere else within a few months." These were some of the comments made, and all were encomiums on Mr. Ridgely. But there were a few, a select few, who looked at the matter from a different point of view. With them the question was, How would Beatrix Severance stand in the matter, or would the clergyman be driven away by her as the other bachelors had been?

What were Miss Severance's thoughts or intentions no one knew, for she kept them to her own sweet self. Every Sunday she attended service, at least once, and sat listening to the clergyman's words without betraying by her expression an interest in him personally. Nevertheless the congregations soon noticed that she was weaving the same spell over him she had thrown about the others.

Then a low murmuring began to be heard against the girl, who, it was to be inferred, would drive out this gifted man. They had failed to find fault with her in the other cases, for the men were not talented and could easily be replaced. But here was a wonder who, when they lost him, could not be replaced. Indeed, there was not a member of the congregation but feared that at any moment he would receive a call elsewhere at a far higher salary than they were paying or could afford to pay him. Should Trixie Severance be allowed to deprive them of their prize?

An informal meeting of those who understood the matter was held at the house of Mrs. Deacon Stoneman, wherein it was discussed, and the result of the conference was that the deaconess should request her husband to go to Deacon Severance and ask him to warn his daughter to keep hands off the new minister. Deacon Stoneman called on Deacon Severance, and the two were closeted together for the space of half an hour. Then the visitor withdrew, and Deacon Stoneman called Beatrix into the room, closed the door and informed her of the subject of the recent interview.

"Papa," said Trixie, "what do you wish me to do?"

"Nothing so far as Mr. Ridgely is concerned."

"What does the congregation wish me to do? Have they mentioned any especial act I have committed with reference to Mr. Ridgely that they object to?"

"I don't know that they have."

"Well, you may tell them for me that Mr. Ridgely had best be let alone with reference to his treatment of me and I had best be let alone with reference to my treatment of him."

This ended the conference between father and daughter. What report he made to those who had taken it upon themselves to admonish Beatrix through him was not known, but it was probably not very satisfactory, for the feeling against the siren increased, and it was not long before she began to get the cold shoulder from certain members of the congregation. One thing was noticeable—the relations, so far as they appeared between her and Mr. Ridgely, were by no means changed by the fact of her admonition.

One day Mrs. Harkness met Mrs. Gooding on the street, and the two ladies stopped for a chat.

"Have you heard the news about our pastor?" asked the former.

"No. What is it?"

"He's had a call."

"I knew it! It's all that minx Trixie Severance's fault. She's driven him out as she has driven out the others."

"He hasn't accepted it yet."

"But he will. Do you know what salary goes with it?"

"They say it is double what we are paying."

"Then he's sure to go."

The news spread that the church's idol had received a call, and it was generally conceded that it was preliminary to his leaving the place on account of having received a refusal from Beatrix Severance. Then it began to be known that in his new field he would receive double the salary he was paid by the First church. Meanwhile the feeling of antagonism toward Trixie was growing like a rolling snowball. Some even suggested that in the event of their losing their pastor she be brought up before the church and tried for unseemly conduct. But the absurdity of such a course was apparent when some one asked in what form the charges would be made.

One Sunday, after reading the usual notices, Mr. Ridgely said that since it had become generally known that he had received a call he would say that he had declined it and would remain with the First church.

Great was the astonishment at this announcement. What did it mean? Was the man crazy to refuse a salary of $1,200 when he was getting only $600? Those who understood Miss Severance's part, or her supposed part, in these pastoral affairs looked at her inquiringly. Her face was as passive, as unintelligible as usual.

The only person in the congregation who could give a satisfactory explanation of the matter was Mrs. Gooding, who said it was so plain she couldn't understand why everybody couldn't see it. Trixie had so bewitched the pastor that rather than leave her he had given up an additional $600 a year. This view commended itself to others, and the impression gained ground that the minister's departure was only deferred. Miss Severance was playing him as a cat would play a mouse. Before long he would depart, call or no call.

Meanwhile the power of the young clergyman for good was becoming known elsewhere, and calls began to pour in thick and fast. Mr. Ridgely did not speak of them himself; they leaked out through those who gave them. He declined them all.

Then the congregation of the First church began to think that it was his love for them that kept him. After all the First church was composed of an exceptional class of people. Quite likely Mr. Ridgely appreciated the social advantages of such a church. This view was poohpoohed by a few, but gained ground generally.

Finally an announcement was made by Mrs. Deacon Severance that was like a bomb dropped among the congregation. Her daughter, Beatrix, was engaged to Mr. Ridgely. All were made happy by the news. Their beloved pastor would now be a fixture in the First church. From being the most unpopular member of the congregation Trixie became the most popular. All flocked about her with congratulations, saying that they were "so glad," that doubtless it had been through her influence that Mr. Ridgely had declined the calls he had received and now they would have him always.

Miss Severance received their congratulations with the same imperturbability that she had borne their reproaches. In due time the wedding was celebrated, and all were settling down with a feeling that they were to retain a minister who had been offered several thousand dollars a year in place of the paltry sum of $600 when the tranquil waters were again disturbed. The minister announced from his pulpit that he had determined to give up all regular pastoral work and preach the gospel to the poor wherever and whenever he found an opportunity. He further stated that he was happy in having gained a wife who sympathized with him in this course and who would assist him in his efforts to ameliorate the spiritual and physical condition of those who most needed him.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say the medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion, or they can eat as they please in reason, and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid, and prevent the formation of gas, sourness, or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia, and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestant. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully with out the need of pepsin pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate, and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you have ever had on "What to eat."

Under normal conditions human beings perspire about twice as much when asleep as when awake.

SCIENTISTS AIDING IN WAR

Experts Have Found a New Work in Which They Are Materially Assisting the Government.

Secretary of the Interior Lane, in his recent annual report, portrays the transition of a peaceful democracy into a nation organized for war. Possession of resources alone, he warns the country, does not win wars, and recounting the enormous progress made on every hand, declares the physical resources of the United States are almost completely at the command of the world's needs.

"'What can you do to serve me?'" quotes the secretary, replying: "The answer of this department is that it has put every agency and activity which it has at the service of those departments more directly concerned with war-making.

"The patent office has been searched for new devices that could be brought into use to kill the submarine or limit its destructiveness, for the plans of heretofore unused lethal weapons and for the formulae of improved or unknown sources of power.

"The scientific bureau of the government found themselves converted overnight into adjuncts and auxiliaries in the great international contest. Men who had regarded themselves as modestly useful only in the discovering and revealing of new sources of material strength found that their years of experience in the mountains and on the desert, in laboratories and in mines, called them at once into the thick of the European struggle."

Poet and Politician.

Recently elected a director of the Northeastern Railway Co., England, Viscount Grey of Fallodon is a man of great personal charm. He has swank and often displays an amiability which can even tolerate a bore. He is said to be the most cordial host that ever welcomed a guest. A mystic and a poet at heart—he has been accused of writing clever verse under a nom de plume—he is a politician by command and duty, for it was the late Mr. Gladstone who insisted that with such brains he owed it to his country to busy himself with affairs of state. Formerly he indulged in championship form at lawn tennis; now he is the leading exponent of fly-fishing in England.

TAKE BITRO-PHOSPHATE TO INCREASE STRENGTH, VIGOR AND NERVE FORCE

Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who"

Women Need it to Bring Back Pink Glow of Health to Pale Cheeks and Forestall Tell-Tale Lines of Age. Men Need It to Make Strong, Vigorous Bodies and Steady Nerves.

People who are irritable restless, nervous; those who tire easily or lack vim and energy; men and women who have faulty memory, sleepless nights, fits of depression or the "blues" should take Bitro-Phosphate three times daily after meals.

Frederick Kolle, M. D., Editor-in-Chief of "Physicians' Who's Who," New York, says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Good, sound advice this; moreover the genuine, standard Bitro-Phosphate is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury and most all good druggists under a binding guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Test your strength by seeing how far you can walk without tiring before beginning to take it and then after two weeks or so see for yourself how your strength has increased. Note, too, if you do not feel more buoyant, have better colour, a better appetite, stronger nerves and increased vigour and energy.

"Go to Jericho."

Now that the British troops have reached Jericho, curiosity is aroused as to the origin of that expression, "Go to Jericho," in its popular sense, remarks the Christian Science Monitor. It is said to have been used in Henry VIII.'s time to convey the information that that monarch had retired from the cares of state to his manor house of Blackmore, near Chelmsford, which was called Jericho. But it seems a good deal more likely that "Go to Jericho" meant at first what it means now, "Get out of the way, and the further the better." Jericho being popularly regarded as at the antipodes. It was used in that sense in the seventeenth century at any rate for in the royalist paper Mercurius Aulicus of March 23-30 of the year 1648 appeared these lines:

If the Upper House and the Lower House
Were in a ship together
And all the base Committees
They were in another;
And both the ships were bottomless
And ne'er be seen again,
Let them sail goe to Jericho,
And sayling on the Mayne.

Quaint Prejudice.

When postage-stamps first came into use in England some persons declared that the effigy of majesty was too sacred to serve as a label for letters.

"Have you seen the stamps yet?" wrote one ardent loyalist in 1840. "This is the greatest insult the present Ministry could have offered the Queen."

King Ferdinand of Sicily took the matter so seriously that he had a special post-mark made in the shape of a frame so that the officials could cancel the stamps without striking his portrait.

COUNTRY'S DEBT TO CRIMINAL

Notorious French Swindler Responsible for Development of Most Famous Fighting Airplane.

The most successful fighting airplane in the world today is without question the Spad. It was, of course, the mount of the late Captain Guynemer, who, it will be remembered, accounted for 53 machines before being shot down last September just behind the German front line. The most proficient pilots in the Lafayette escadrille also use this machine.

The history of the Spad is curious. It owes its origin to Armand Deperdussin, a former silk Merchant of Lyons, who amassed a large fortune by a series of swindling operations. In 1910 he proceeded to sink most of his gains into aviation, establishing a huge flying field and factory near Reims and engaging a brilliant young engineer named Bechereau. The result was that the Deperdussin monoplanes acquired an international fame, winning the Gordon Bennett cup at Chicago in 1912 and at Reims in 1913—the latter event at the rate of 124.5 miles an hour. This speed was made possible largely by the monocoque construction of the fuselage, greatly superior to the rectangular body section then in vogue on other machines.

After the arrest of Deperdussin some time before the war the directors of the firm retained Bechereau as designer and changed the name to Spad (Societe pour Aeroplanes Deperdussin). This was again changed quite recently to "Societe pour l'Aviation et ses Derives," keeping the same initials as before. Deperdussin's trial finally took place a few months back and a merely nominal sentence was imposed on account of the great services to the cause of French aviation rendered by the defendant.

Puts Cost Increase at 50 P.C.

Lord Rhondda said recently that he wanted to correct the misapprehension as to the rise in the cost of living. The Board of Trade's figures, showing a rise of 10% per cent., were altogether misleading, for the cost had not gone up by very much more than 50 per cent. He had gone into the question with some of the leading experts of the country. In the last few months prices had decreased by 10 per cent. People had had to alter their method of living, and that had not altogether been taken into account.

SLUGGISH LIVER CAUSES LOTS OF TROUBLE

When the liver becomes sluggish it is an indication that the bowels are not working properly, and if they do not move regularly many complications are liable to set in.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a specific for all disease or disorders arising from a slow, sluggish, lazy or torpid liver, and they have been universally used throughout Canada for over 20 years with the greatest success.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 7 Poplar Grove, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but after using a couple of vials of your pills, I have not been bothered any more."

MISS' OR SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

Just the way that the chic little black tie slips through slashes and ties in a loose knot is a sure sign that the origin of this little frock is Paris. The merest suggestion of a roll collar finishes the neck, and the vest, in an unusual shape, is of the same material. The long, close fitting sleeves are rolled for turnovers at the wrists and faced to correspond. The shorter sleeves may be used if preferred. The two gored skirt is gathered all around to the slightly raised waistline. The odd peplum starts at each side of the vest and curves away at the sides to well below hip length at the back. A narrow leather belt is worn with this dress.

The miss' or small woman's dress pattern No. 8765 is cut in three sizes—16, 18 and 20 years. Width at lower edge of skirt is 1¾ yards. The 16-year size requires 4¼ yards 36 inch or 2¾ yards 54 inch material, with ⅝ yard 36 inch silk. Price

SEPTIC TANK FOR THE FARM

Potatoes Should Be Treated This Year to Control Scab, as the Success of This Crop Is of the Utmost Importance In the Greater Production Campaign.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE soils in many parts of the province are so depleted of their lime that they are becoming sour or acid. This is an important fact as few, if any of our farm crops can make their best growth on a soil carrying an insufficient supply of lime. This is especially true of leguminous plants and it is probable that the frequent "killing out" of clover during the first winter is due to lack of sufficient lime.

Lime acts in several ways. It neutralizes the acids formed in the soil through the decay of organic matter; it overcomes the tenacity of clay soils, binds sands together and thus improves the physical condition of both types of soil. Lime is not only an essential constituent of the food of plants, but it also tends to liberate plant food, especially potash, from the insoluble forms in the soil, bringing them into an available state. The micro-organisms that live on the roots of the nitrogen-gathering plants cannot work in an acid soil, nor can some other forms of organisms whose function it is to gather nitrogen.

It requires about two tons of ground limestone rock to be equal to one ton of quick lime, and the prices charged for them are in about the same proportion. Furthermore two tons of the former to one ton of the latter are about the right quantities to apply.

The ground limestone rock is safe on any land in almost any quantity, and may be applied at any time of the year. On heavy clay soils quick lime, slaked before [illegible] may give quicker results; but it should not be applied to light sandy soils. Few materials or fertilizers can have so many good things said about them as lime and none of them cost so little money. Try out a little yourself this year.—Prof. R. Harcourt, Ontario Agricultural College.

To Prevent Potato Scab.

For seed select smooth, sound potatoes, as free as possible from scab, and disinfect by soaking them before they are cut for two hours in a solution made by adding half a pint of commercial formalin to 15 gallons of water. A couple of barrels with plugs in the sides near the bottom can be used to advantage in treating the seed. The potatoes can be placed directly in the solution or first put in crates or coarse sacks and then immersed.

After treatment spread the potatoes out on a clean floor or on the grass to dry. Wash all crates, bags, etc., which are used in handling the potatoes with the formalin solution. The same formalin solution can be used to treat successive lots of potatoes. Fifteen gallons is sufficient to treat from 20 to 25 bushels if ordinary precautions are taken not to waste too much of the fluid as each lot of tubers is dipped. If the potatoes are not all treated the same day it is advisable to make up fresh formalin for each day's work.

Corrosive sublimate (mercuric chloride) can also be used to treat potatoes to prevent scab. Soak the uncut tubers for three hours in a solution of 2 ounces of corrosive sublimate to 25 gallons of water. Corrosive sublimate is a deadly poison, and potatoes treated with it are rendered unfit for food for man or beast.

Formalin is a clear liquid disinfectant. It is a 40 p.c. solution of formaldehyde gas and water. It can be purchased from almost any druggist. It is sold under the names of formalin and formaldehyde. It is important that the purchaser, whatever name he buys it under, secured a guaranteed solution of 40 p.c. formaldehyde.

If possible plant the treated seed potatoes on clean soil, that is soil that has not produced a crop of scaby potatoes. Practice a rotation of crops. If scab is very bad it is not advisable to plant potatoes on the same land oftener than once in five years. Heavy applications of barnyard manure should not be made to the potato crop, but if necessary given at some other point in the rotation. Plant potatoes after clover sod if possible. Avoid alkali fertilizers such as lime and wood ashes.—Prof. J. E. Howitt, Ontario Agricultural College.

Prodded With Bayonets.

A further report of the revolting treatment of prisoners by the Huns is being compiled by the Prisoners of War Treatment by the Enemy Committee from the carefully sifted evidence of returned prisoners.

A wounded captain of the Royal Warwicks says: "At some stations German doctors told us that those too badly wounded to travel farther were to get out. We had many, but not one was passed as such by the German doctor. One English doctor called the attention of a German doctor to a man in my carriage with a grazed artery of the thigh, which had to be kept in a position by an instrument all the time owing to the jolting, which caused the man great suffering. The German doctor was very rude at being asked about the case, and refused to allow the man to be taken out. This man died a few days later of hemorrhage. He would most certainly have recovered if he had been taken out and kept quiet, as the graze was not severe."

A captain of the Munster Fusiliers, who had travelled for five days and four nights on the bare boards of a cattle truck severely wounded and with a tube inserted in his throat, tells of the arrival at Torgau. "We were made to march in fours to the camp a mile off," he states. "Although I was gasping for breath and so weak that I could hardly stand, I was prodded along by German soldiers with bayonets, followed by a hissing and jeering mob."

The Danish Stage.

While the lighter forms of dramatic art in Denmark are dominated by the Viennese ideals of modern music, while Wagner is sung every year at the Royal Opera, with the great tenor, Cornelius, in the heroic roles, a Danish singer who should attempt to sing in German on the stage of any theatre of Copenhagen would be hissed from the stage. The most popular operas of the last three years have been "Eugene Onegin" and "Faust," of which the Danes never tire. No year passes without the revival of the most important comedies of their great dramatic author, Holberg, whose traditions are very scrupulously maintained at the Royal Theatre. Their favorite buffo, Olaf Poulsen, was the ideal actor of certain of Holberg's heroes, and certainly one of the best of Falstaffs. As to modern plays, very few are imported from Germany. Of late, since the French dramatists have ceased to produce, the Danish stage has turned to the United States and England. "Milestones," for instance, was an enormous success, and "Romance" held interested audiences for weeks. The attitude of the Dane towards literature, art, and science shows that in these vital things he is Danish to the core, and is no way under the spell of the dominating mentality of his southern neighbor.

To Remodel Japanese Army.

The return of distinguished Japanese officers who have been in Europe studying the latest military tactics on the battlefronts will be followed by army reorganization, reports the Tokyo Jiji. Under the new system one division will consist of three regiments instead of four, as now, and a force composed of two reorganized divisions will become the fighting unit of the Japanese army. Increase in the number of regiments is not contemplated, but the number of divisions will be necessarily augmented. Whether or not the new formation will be seen in the forthcoming annual maneuvers is unannounced. The military arsenal at Tokyo is preparing to build airplanes for army use, and an appropriation of $8,750,000 will be asked from the diet. The exact type of airship has not been decided.

SCHOOL LIFE IN CHINA.

At six years of age Chinese boys are supposed to attend school and prepare for their lifelong bondage to Confucius by beginning their dreary struggle to master the characters which take the place of our alphabet, multiplied a thousand fold. They are taught to write each character separately on small squares of red paper, and by slow degrees they learn to pronounce each, while the little fingers learn to fashion the elaborate crabbed strokes. Though these small students are just as merry and full of life as our own schoolboys, they seem to take very kindly to the studies which they see their elders value so highly. Nevertheless the cane is a fully-recognized institution in every school, and is applied unsparingly, without respect of sex. As one passes outside of such a school—which is probably held within the precincts of some merchants' guild one hears the hum of many voices, all repeating lessons aloud; and, if one looks in, one sees a troop of quaint little shaven-headed chaps, with their long black plaits and blue clothes, sitting at small ornamental tables, very different from our school desks and benches, and suggesting a remarkable absence of the destructive element in these small Chinamen. Of course a conspicuous figure in the school is the shrine of the tablet bearing the name of Confucius, to which each scholar must do daily homage.—Family Journal.

New Republic of Finland.

"The press has spread the news that two envoys are being sent by the Finnish Government to ask for official American acknowledgment of the Republic of Finland. One of them, Dr. K. Ignatius, is already in Washington, and the other, Prof. J. Reuter, is on his way to America. Finland has reached an agreement with the Russian Government; Sweden, Denmark, France and Germany have already acknowledged the new republic, and the other European countries are soon expected to act accordingly. The task for the Finns in Washington does not, therefore, seem a hopeless one.

"The Finns are a wide-awake people, though they are among the youngest in civilization. Only a hundred years ago they were a handful of unlettered folk without schools or native literature. To-day they are a highly educated nation, with no illiteracy, with an excellent educational system, with art, literature and music standing on a high plane of development. Fate was kind to Finland, creating the necessary circumstances for this rapid development; a change in the political status of a country, a powerful national awakening all over Europe, the discovery of the Finnish national epic, 'The Kalevala,' and finally enough political oppression to make the nation exert all its economic and intellectual power in the fight for national existence.

"The Finns have shown clearly during the hundred years of their conscious national life that they are capable of development and can add new values to the intellectual and artistic treasury of mankind. They are a law-abiding and peace-loving nation, and they have made their country one of the leaders of progress in Europe. They now ask for independence not as a gift of charity, but as their right."—Aino Malmberg, in Century.

When Nobel Cut His Finger.

The great war might be traced back to Nobel's cut finger, E. E. Slosson writes in the New York Independent. Alfred Nobel was a Swedish chemist—and a pacifist. One day while working in the laboratory he cut his finger, as chemists are apt to do, and again as chemists are apt to do, he dissolved some guncotton in ether alcohol and swabbed it on the wound. At this point, however, his conduct diverges from the ordinary, for instead of standing idle, impatiently waving his hand in the air to dry the film as most people, including chemists, are apt to do, he put his mind on it and it occurred to him that this sticky stuff, slowly hardening to an elastic mass, might be just the thing he was hunting as an absorbent and solidifier of nitroglycerin. So instead of throwing away the extra collodion that he had made he mixed it with nitroglycerin and found that it set to a jelly. The "blasting gelatin" thus discovered proved to be so insensitive to shock that it could be safely transported or fired from a cannon. This was the first of the high explosives that have been the chief factor in the great war.

Aching Head, Pains In Back

Heart Action Was Weak and Nerves Greatly Exhausted—Now in Extra Good Health.

TWEED, Ont., March 28.—This is a cheering letter from Mrs. Wagar, because it describes the condition in which many women find themselves and tells how cure was effected.

Once the food cure was resorted to the system was gradually and certainly built up and reconstructed. The old symptoms disappeared, because the reason for their existence had been overcome. It is well worth while to give Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a trial when such results are obtained.

Mrs. H. E. Wagar, Tweed, Ont., writes: "My system was in a run-down condition. I could not sleep well, and was very nervous. I had frequent headaches and pains through my back, and my nerves used to twitch. I took weak spells, was short of breath and my heart action seemed weak. I was in very poor health generally. I went to a doctor and he advised me to take a rest, and gave me medicine, but it did not help me. My husband got me some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food one day, and this treatment gave me such relief that I took many boxes—I cannot tell just how many, but enough to build up my system and rid me of the old symptoms. I gradually began to get stronger, until I could get around and do my own house work. I am not bothered now with sick headaches, and am enjoying extra good health. I would recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all suffering from nervousness of any kind."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, a full treatment of six boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

THE FULTON-WILLARD BOUT DECLARED OFF

Col. J. C. Miller at Last Bows to Public Opinion—Willard Contented.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Col. J. C. Miller announced that the proposed Willard-Fulton heavyweight match for the championship of the world, arranged to take place on July 4th, Independence Day, has been indefinitely postponed.

Both Willard and Fulton have been notified of his decision. Willard declares that he will abide by Miller's decision. Fulton, who is in California, was notified by telegraph.

"Finding public sentiment in opposition to the proposed world's heavyweight championship bout between Champion Jess Willard and Fred Fulton on July 4th," Colonel Miller said in his statement, "I have called off the bout."

Willard said that he only consented to fight because he thought that the public demanded that he defend the title. Now his mind has been disabused of any such idea.

SPORTING COMMENT

Bannockburn, Barney Schreiber's good old stalion, is dead. Bannockburn was foaled in 1895, and was twenty-three years old. He was the sire of many good runners.

Just when Col. Miller thinks he has found a nice spot to stage his Willard-Fulton bout, the Governor of the State steps in and puts the "kibosh" on everything. Truly it is great to be a boxing promoter.

A crowd of 150,000 saw the running of the Melbourne Cup, horse race in Australia. The race, run over a two-mile course, was won by Westcourt, a five-year-old gelding. The all the race was worth $40,000.

The Kentucky Thoroughbred Association, whose spring meeting at Lexington opens the horse racing seasons in the Blue Grass region, was formed in 1926 and held its fist meeting ninety years ago on the track where the races are now run.

It has been definitely decided that H. P. Whitney's Rosy O'Grady, the only filly that was thought to have a chance to capture the Kentucky Derby, will not start in the Churchill Downs classic, which will be run on Saturday. This crack filly and several other Whitney horses have been shipped to Pimlico. Rosy O'Grady will start in the rich Preakness, which is a shorter race than the Derby, but of equal value.

Tommy's Curious Callings.

The British Tommy has always been famous for the brilliance of his powers of romance. If asked questions he did not want to answer by people who had no right to know. The latest illustration is afforded by a repatriated soldier of a Welsh regiment. He had been a prisoner in the camp at Gutrow, where the German authorities, with a view to securing skilled labor, were anxious to learn the occupation of the prisoners. But surely never before were there such callings—a treacle bender, watchmakers' striker, a milestone inspector. The Germans gave it up.

Reeds for Paper-making.

To meet the war-time paper shortage in Great Britain paper manufacturers are experimenting with the river reeds found along the banks of the Tay near Dundee, Scotland. Information received by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is to the effect that paper, at least that of rough fiber, can be manufactured from this material, the only difficulties encountered being the brittleness of the grass and its tendency to break into short pieces after it is dried. It is thought, however, that a "steeping" process may be adopted that will overcome these drawbacks and render the grass capable of being converted into good salable paper and that in the course of a few months a new and fairly important industry may be established on the banks of the Tay.

A Generous Father.

Everywhere men who suddenly attain prosperity spend money foolishly. A story is told in Commerce and Finance illustrating the point in the case of a southern darky who had made money as a result of the high price of cotton. He went to buy a phonograph. "How many children have you?" asked the phonograph man during the transaction. "I has eight," was the answer. "One phonograph for eight children!" exclaimed the salesman. "that will never do! You need two." And he sold them to his credulous customer.

ANOTHER SAD SIDE OF WAR

Many Men Who Have Won Honors Have Lost Comrades and Feel Lack of Companionship.

An American was sitting in Simpson's restaurant recently having dinner when a hardy man in Canadian uniform started to converse with him. The Canadian was working in a large automobile factory in Windsor when the war started, but enlisted in a Canadian regiment and has been in five of the worst battles of the war. Hardly a handful of the men who started with him are still on the roster. This particular soldier was about to leave for the trenches again after completing his leave. There was nothing remarkable in that, but this is his story:

Inside his coat he wore the Victoria Cross. He got it at Ypres, where he carried a captain three hundred feet through No Man's Land with bullets flying all about him. He has no acquaintances in England. He hasn't a relative in the world. He was just hungering for some one to talk to when he saw the American. He reluctantly showed his decoration, and said it would give him great happiness if he had some one somewhere in the world who was close enough to him to slap him on the back and say, "Good, old chap!"

Still he wasn't maudlin about it. He was just one of thousands who are carrying honors around with them and have no relative or intimate friend to congratulate them. It's war.

"If I ever get through I'm going back to the States, but the odds are against me. We can't always beat this fighting game. It's like roulette. It gets you in the long run. There is only one man of my original company left besides myself."—London Mail.

TO RESTORE PERSIA'S STATUS

Russian Bolshevik Authorities Announce Intention of Giving It Its Former Independence.

A little more than ten years ago, in 1907, Persia, ceased to be a sovereign nation in anything but name and was resolved into twin "spheres of influence." The northern half was a Russian sphere, the southern half British. The pressure from north and south grew until it forced out the American, Morgan Shuster, who had come to put Persia on its financial feet.

That was an incident of imperialism. It was a British-Russian alliance to block off Germany from getting into Persia from the west by way of Turkey and the Berlin-Bagdad line. Under the Queensberry rules of imperialism it was a fair stroke, with plenty of historical precedent, says the Boston Globe.

Now the foreign minister of a Russian government that has no regard for imperialism and its rules has sent word to Persia that the 1907 agreement is all off, null and void, and that Russia will now try to relieve her of Turkish and British troops, too.

In announcing this doctrine of Persia for the Persians, and putting it into practice, the Russian bolshevik government immeasurably strengthened the position it took at Brest-Litovsk and at Petrograd in demanding liberation for all subject nationalities.

It is fair to say that the British ministry to-day would be slow to apply the mailed fist of imperialism as in Persia in 1907. Much water has flowed under the bridges since, and the imperialistic tide is ebbing fast.

British Geological Photos.

A committee of the British Association for the Advancement of Science has been engaged for many years in forming a national collection of photographs illustrating the geology of the British isles. According to the last report the collection now includes upward of 5,000 pictures. More than a thousand of these were taken in Yorkshire. A collection of the same character has been made by the geological survey of Great Britain, which has recently published a list of its Scottish pictures. Both the B. A. committee and the geological survey offer prints and lantern slides for sale. The Tunbridge Wells Natural History society offers prizes for photographs of scenery illustrating geological features.—Scientific American.

Teeth Frozen.

This all happened when zero weather prevailed and the victim was Clifford Allhands, county recorder of Clark county. When he woke up one of those cold mornings his teeth were certainly not chattering with cold he says, for they were frozen tight and he could not move them until they had been thawed out. You see he placed them in a glass of water and the water was a solid cake of ice.—Indianapolis News.

MOVIE OF MODERN BOOKWORM

Student Would Not Be Influenced by Any Pleasures the World Could Offer Him.

Now behold the student coming up the street! He is clad in rubber and shining black. He is thin of shank as becomes a scholar. He sags with knowledge. He hungers for wisdom. He comes opposite the book shop. It is but coquetry that his eyes seek the window of the tobacconist. His heart, you may be sure, looks through the buttons at his back.

At last he turns, Charles S. Brooks writes in Yale Review. He pauses on the curb. Now desire has clutched him. He jingles his trousered shillings. He treads the gutter. He squints upon the rack. He lights upon a treasure. He plucks it forth. He is unresolved whether to buy it or to spend the extra shilling on his dinner. Now all you cooks together, to save your business rattle your pans to rouse him! If within these ancient buildings there are onions ready peeled—quick!—throw them in the skillet that the whiff may come beneath his nose! Chance trembles and casts its vote—eenie meenie—down goes the shilling—he has bought the book. Tonight he will spread it beneath his candle. Feat may beat a snare of pleasure on the pavement, glad cries may pipe across the darkness, a fiddle may scratch its invitation—all the rumbling notes of midnight traffic will tap in vain their summons upon his window.

18-Cylinder Engine.

By leaps and bounds the stationary type airplane engines are increasing in power rating in the stern competition betweeen the central powers and the allied nations. In England Louis Coatalen has been doing commendable work along these lines, and among his latest products is the 18-cylinder Sunbeam-Catalen engine, which develops 475-brake horse power, and has no fewer than half a dozen magnetos and an equal number of carburetors, says the Scientific American. The arrangement of the cylinders is interesting: Twelve of the cylinders are arranged as in the usual twin-six practice, while the remaining six are arranged in the upper center, forming what is styled the "broad arrow" type.

Truth Will Out.

In the schoolroom the teacher was trying to illustrate a phrase found in the reading lesson, "a debt of gratitude."

"Jimmie, think of the care your parents have given you and all that they have done for you. Don't you think you owe them something?"

"Well," said honest Jimmie, "I don't knew about that, but I do know that my dad owes me 50 cents."

UNDERWRITERS HELD MEETING SATURDAY

The Life Underwriters held their bi-weekly meeting Saturday evening, preceded by a banquet held at the Empress at 6 o'clock. After the regular routine of business two canvasses were put on, one by Mr. Fallon and Mr. Johnson of the Monarch Insurance Co., for Industrial Insurance, the other was by Mr. Fergusson of the Dominion Life, who canvassed Mr. Widdess, District representative of the Canada Life, as instruction to the members present. It was very educative and profitable to those present, and the thanks of the underwriters was voiced. It elicited a good deal of discussion afterwards. The executive are arranging for a joint meeting and outing to be held at South Beach.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

FLORENTINE ST. CLAIR, the American Galli-Curci.

"One of the most beautiful coloratura voices heard in the English language" that is the opinion of critics concerning Florentine St. Clair, the talented primas donna of the Boston English Opera Company, which comes to the Grand Monday, May 20.

Miss St. Clair is one of these rare occurrences in the vocal habitat which is discovered once in a decade. Truly a voice of extreme flexibility which retains its softness and purity of tone in its entire register whether she is singing a high E flat above the scale or whether it is in the more dramatic passages of the heavier opera scores one marvels at the ease and fullness of her voice.

During the season of the Boston Opera Company in Chicago Miss St. Clair by sheer merit won for herself the right to be ranked among the few truly great coloratura sopranos of the day. She will be heard in the leading soprano roles during the engagement of the Boston English Opera Company at the Grand.

THE WOMEN OF FRANCE

(By CAPTAIN C. R. WIDDIFIELD, of Peterborough)

Never before in the history of the world have the women taken such an active interest in the game of war. Perhaps none have or will gain such fame as Florence Nightingale or Joan d'Arc, and it will be only in the future when their present worth in this great struggle is fully appreciated. Certainly the name of Nurse Cavell and many others stand out predominate today as a symbol of patriotic sacrifice, but at the same time no one woman can claim all the honours as in bygone days. While I was in Canada in the early days of the war, I was very much struck with the great industry of the Canadian women in regards to war work, and at the same time I realized much to my astonishment, that even if the United States at that time was not in the war, its woman were doing their duty in a similar manner. This same state of affairs is maintained in England, and everywhere throughout the country, one sees the women of all classes "doing their bit," some by opening their homes to soldiers, while others work in canteens, and at buffets in the stations.

Worked in a Mine.

This state of affairs is especially true concerning the women of France, of whom I have seen many, and have learned to regard with a high sense of humour. For some time in France I was billeted with a French family, which consisted of an old man who was a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war, his wife and their married daughter whose husband was a prisoner in Germany. The married daughter each day worked for twelve hours in a coal mine breaking stone or slag for the upkeep of the roads, in order that the motor lorries, etc., could carry their loads to the front line, and for such work received two francs or forty cents per day. However, perhaps the most remarkable instance of the hardship of the French women during this awful struggle, is the sacrifice of their division. The French schools even near the front line are not entirely closed, but the children who attend the same are very young, the majority of them being well under age of ten years, as all the children who are able to do so are employed in some kind of war work, whether working on the roads, in mines, or around the stations. One day while walking along the main street of a small French village, in the neighbourhood of Lens, I saw approaching some Canadian Tommies, who were regaled in German helmets, etc., and at the same time I saw coming in the opposite direction, a French woman with her two small children who as soon as they saw the soldiers gathered around their mother and refused to leave her till the soldiers were well out of sight. The ordinary peasant woman of France is of a very happy disposition, and bears all her hardships and sufferings with a great deal of reserve, and at all times is always ready to do a favour for a soldier, especially if that soldier happens to be a Canadian. When out of the line either for a rest or in reserve, both the officer and the private soldier have a very good opportunity to study the Frenchman, as they are always billeted in a small town or village, and no matter how near the front [illegible] place may be, if it is at all [illegible] one sees the French people [illegible] on their daily work, regardless of war, and if by chance a shell falls in their home, they take it as a matter of course and regard it as one of the fortunes of war.

Source of Employment.

Perhaps the two greatest sources of employment for the French people at the present time, are the washing for the soldiers and the running of Estaminets, Cestaurants, etc. Nearly every private home has something for sale, and in every case the articles for sale include light wines and champagnes, regardless of the character of the rest of the stock. Without a doubt the people who live in the towns in the neighbourhood of the battle front are making a fairly good living, but at the same time no one begrudges this to them, as it in no way compensates them for the many sacrifices which they are called upon to make every day.

"Shortage of Food Kept 2,000,000 Italian Soldiers Out of Battle Line While Many British People Ate Horse Flesh" Says Mr. Hall

The Canadian Food Bulletin No. 14, issued by the Dominion Government under date of April 13th, 1918, says:

"Desperate Need of Food."

"Available Supplies Not Sufficient to Maintain Entire Italian Army."

"Information reaching the Italian Embassy in Washington indicates that the Italian army and civilians are in desperate need of food. It is said that only one-third of the Italian army of 3,000,000 men is now being maintained on the battle lines, the official explanation being that there is not sufficient food to feed more and that there is also shortage of other supplies. On the other hand, the strong Austrian army facing the Italians is said to have received recently large supplies from Russia.

"In order to maintain the morale of the Italians, as well as that of the other allied nations, there is an ever-increasing responsibility upon this continent to send greater quantities of essential foods. This can be done only by the most rigorous economies with wheat products, meats and fats."

Not enough food in Italy to feed two-thirds of her army in the battle lines; Think of it;

Not enough food in Italy to feed an army of 2,000,000 trained soldiers in the battle line! Think of it!

The minimum wants of the Allies from Canada and the United States are 800,000 tons of food stuffs per month—enough to feed 45,000,000 people—enough to feed the whole population of Great Britain.

Owing to the United States Railway breakdown last February the Allies went short 100,000 tons in food stuffs. Result? In one district alone in England 7,000 horses were slain and tens of thousands of British people sank their teeth into horse flesh for the first time in over 100 years.

And still we find our Dominion Government advising us to save, which is wise, and cackling like geese to produce—produce—and doing nothing to really organize this nation to increase food production.

It is nothing short of a crime against humanity that our fertile millions of acres in the Northwest, that should now be growing grain, are still growing weeds and grass.

Moreover the Dominion Government know our Allies want wheat, and they keep in force regulations that make it more profitable to grow coarse grains instead of wheat.

Could the enemy of old, who sowed tares in his neighbour's wheat field, do a more malicious work against our Allies.

Our Allies know that for the want of food 2,000,000 soldiers are kept out of the battle lines.

Our Allies know our vast resources, and the lothful use of Borden Government — the Union Government have made and are making of them.

But what can you expect from false or self-seeking leaders who violate their pledges and build up their own political fortunes by base appeals to passion, prejudice and interest and by instilling into the minds of Canadians, doubt and fear and hatred of each other.

Under the leadership of Sir Robert Borden we are showing to our Allies and to the World, in a most unenviable way, that we are unworthy of the rich and fertile fields that have been handed down to us, and that we are using our vast producing resources with as little sense and prudence as the Bolsheviki of Russia whom we now look proudly down upon.

The Canadian people must struggle to overcome the mistakes of these foolish leaders. Every hour wasted in not producing food will bring hunger and despair to homes.

It is the highest duty of each and all not only to save but to produce "cereals, meats and fats," for the constant supply of food to our Allies is so vital to victory that generations yet unborn may rue the wasting of these days.

Book of Artemas—Anonymous.

Comment has often been made that the public are left very much in the dark in regard to the nature of the books received at the Public Library. Some seem to feel that the mere publishing of the authors and titles of books in the papers is not enough to acquaint people with the quality of the literature placed on the shelves. It is of course impossible to enter into a full and complete description of the contents of every book, but in order to satisfy such as feel that a more extended account is advisable, an effort will be made in the future to give a epitome of books whose titles are likely to mislead prospective readers. In the list just given there are very few books whose titles do not clearly set forth the quality of the work between their covers.

The Beginnings of English Overseas Enterprise deals entirely with the history of the early days of the merchant adventurers, and gives interesting details of the growth of the merchant service from 300 B.C., to the close of the 17th Century. To the enterprise of our mercantile marine we really owe the spread of our great Empire, and to anyone who has love of country and Empire at heart this little volume will commend itself.

Sound and Sense, Figures of Speech, etc. It will be of interest to teachers as it is the outcome of a headmaster's experience as a teacher and student of literature.

The Book of Artemas is a small and cleverly written satire, which has for its subject the present war. The Kaiser and the Crown Prince are chiefly aimed at in this book, and not at all offensive even to those who object to parodies of the Scriptures.

Collapse of Superman almost explains itself. It is a reprint of an article that appeared some time ago in the Saturday Evening Post, and sets forth the failure of Germany to make good its arrogant claim of superiority over the rest of humanity.

The first conductorette on the Brooklyn trolleys has been promoted to be an inspector.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

SOIL MUST BE FIRM.

Very few amateur gardeners have yet discovered the secret of securing the proper germination of seed. When things turn out wrong they are apt to blame the quality of the seed, when as a matter of fact it is more likely to be their own lack of experience that accounts for it.

Before the seed is put in the soil should be loose and friable. After the seed has been sown in the trenches it is always desirable to make the soil firm. Experienced gardeners walk along the rows, treading it down inch by inch. If this is not done the seed will dry up quickly and, therefore, will not germinate properly. On the other hand, if packed down as it should be, the earth is brought in close contact with the seed and the water has a chance to soak up from the lower layers of the soil. This serves to keep the seed continually moist.

After the soil has been thoroughly pressed down it is a good thing to rake a little loose earth lightly over the row. This serves as a mulch from the sun and helps to conserve the moisture in the soil.

An overhead monorail system has been installed at a Texas port for carrying cotton bales a mile from a compress to the docks at the rate of 600 an hour.

A Fine Directory of Canadian Publishers

More Publications Than a Year Ago Directory is a Vast Fund of Valuable Information

That the press of Canada is in a particularly healthy condition is shown by the 1918 Edition of the Canadian Newspaper Directory, just issued by A. McKim, Limited, Advertising Agency, of Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and London, Eng.

There are 1,490 publications of all kinds now being issued in Canada, as against 1,381 in 1917—an increase of 109. This number is made up of 135 dailies, 5 tri-weeklies, 41 semi-weeklies, 1918 weeklies, 8 bi-weeklies, 32 semi-monthlies, 228 monthlies, 1 bi-monthly, 20 quarterlies and 2 miscellaneous.

Since the firm of A. McKim, Ltd. Canada's oldest Advertising Agency issued its first Canadian Newspaper Directory, 27 years ago, they have seen the birth of most of the publications listed therein, and are in a position to have accurate knowledge of the field in which they and the Canadian press have grown up. The present day condition of the publishing business of Canada enables the Dominion to boast the largest reading public in the world in proportion to population.

Besides giving full details in regard to every newspaper and other publication issued in Canada, the McKim Directory shows in concise form the business possibilities of any section of the Dominion. Its Gazetteer contains a wealth of general information regarding every town and city where a publication is issued, giving populations, county seats, railroads and waterways touching each place, telegraph, express and banking facilities. With the aid of its supplementary maps, it locates every newspaper town in Canada, and the descriptions are so written that these towns may readily be visualised by the reader in relation to the territory in which they are situated and the entire Dominion.

Never before was the need and value of up-to-date information about the Canadian market so essential, and the 1918 Edition of the Canadian Newspaper Directory comes to us at a time when such facts as it contains are in great demand by the far-sighted business men of the Country. The book itself is well bound durable and neat—it is indispensable to the advertisers of Canada, and is well suited to every office desk and business library in the Dominion.

DEBENTURES SOLD.

And Salary of Police Magistrate Reduced.

A special meeting of the Cobourg Council was held on Wednesday evening.

A tender for the $38,101 public school debentures was received from R. W. Hargraft, offering par for the debentures, which bear interest at 6½ per cent. per annum. The council accepted the offer, and thanked Mr. Hargraft for his assistance in disposing of the issue thus saving the town considerable expense.

A by-law was passed reducing the salary of the police magistrate from $800 to $600 per annum. When the salary was first fixed at $800 the town had a population of over 5,000 and the $800 to $600 per annum. When the the population under 5,000 and police court revenue fallen off considerably since the advent of the Ontario Temperance Act, it was decided to fix the salary at $600.

Special Services At St. John's Church

Efficacy of Prayer Subject of Inspiring Address

Captain (Revd.) Harold McCausland, the special preacher at St. John's church, was heard by very large congregations at both services yesterday.

In the morning, Capt. McCausland spoke on the efficacy of prayer. In his sermon he dealt upon the great need, not only of the prayers of the righteous which we are told, avail much, but for the prayers of all for the soldiers at the front.

PRAISE FOR Y. M. C. A.

In the evening in his address on chaplain's work at the front, he compared the work of today and those of the days of Wellington when only one chaplain was sent with an army and God fearing men led in prayers. He especially eulogized the work of the Y. M. C. A. at the front saying he did not know what the army would have done without the work of this institution. He deprecated the paragraph which appeared in a daily paper lately stating that the chaplains and the "Y" were at Loggerheard and said that quite contrary to this they work in harmony.

Austrians Prepare To Attack On Italian Front

Registration To Take Place On Saturday, June 22nd

Provided Organization Can Be Completed—Can Be Done at Places of Work—Employees Are Asked to Have Blanks Filled Out in Their Shops.

TWO POINTS EMPHASIZED

OTTAWA, May 14.—Provided the many and intricate details of organization can be completed in time, Saturday, June 22, will be the day upon which general registration will take place.

In many towns and cities organization is already well under way Public Schools and teaching staffs have in a large number of instances been placed at the disposal of the registrars.

It is the desire of the Government that registration shall be carried out with the least possible interruption of business and with a minimum inconvenience to employes. Provision has therefore been made to permit large industrial and business concerns to register their employes, an officer of the company, foreman or other employe being sworn as deputy registrar. These registrations can take place several days prior to the date of registration, provided the formalities are complied with.

Two points are emphasized in connection with the registration. First and foremost is the necessity of making the registration complete. In addition to the obvious object to be served by thorough and efficient work it is pointed out that if the war continues it may be necessary to have recourse to the rationing system, in which event the facts obtained through registration will be of great value.

The second point is that information obtained shall be immediately available and made to serve a practical and benefical purpose. With this object in view it is suggested that Provincial and municipal Labor bureaus and all parties desiring labour, should obtain information direct from their local registrars, on the day of registration as to the available labor supply in a particular locality.

Hocken Amendment to Civil Service Bill Would Show Up Favouritism —Some Check Needed, Says Col. Currie—"Put a Premium on Lying"

OTTAWA, May 14.—When consideration of the Civil Service bill was resumed by the House in Committee yesterday afternoon Mr. Hocken, with the consent of the committee, withdrew his amendment in regard to requiring the publication of names of relatives in the Civil Service. He then submitted another amendment extending its scope. The new amendment provided for the publication of a report showing names "of any relatives by blood or marriage in the Government service, in the Senate, in the House of Commons, or in the Civil Service," of an appointee to a position in the Civil Service.

Mr. Nicholson remarked that the position taken in the amendment was adopted by certain large corporations some years ago but they found it inadequate and unworthy. In Mr. Nicholson's opinion, the amendment would simply bring an efficient civil servant into contumely simply because he happened to have relative in the public service.

Mr. Henders added that the Civil Service Commission had been appointed to eliminate such evils as those against which the amendment was directed. If the commission were unable to stop the evil, what was the use of the commission?

Need Some Check.

Col. Currie thought it advisable to have some check on the Deputy Ministers so that they could be prevented from putting in their own relatives.

NOTICE—All persons, in ordering their food, ought to consider the need of Great Britain and her Allies, and their armies, for wheat, beef, bacon and fats, and that the Canada Food Board desires the public to do everything in their power to make these commodities available for export by eating as little as possible of them and by making use of substitutes and avoiding waste.

A Queue Story.

Sir F. E. Smith told a queue story while in America. "There are so many queues in England now," he said, "that one is apt to get mixed up. A young American soldier passed four hours in a very long queue the other day. His spirits were superb. He amused everybody with his quips and sallies. But he uttered a low cry of dismay when his turn at last came, and a girl thrust a small greasy packet in his hand, saying: 'No tea to-day, but here's a nice half-ounce of margarine.' 'Well, I'll be jiggered!' said the American. 'Is this or ain't it the gallery entrance to the Frivolity Theatre?'"

DEMOCRACY VS. FINE WRITING

The Latter Is, Beyond All Question, Dependent Upon the Respect of the Former.

I do not agree with the pessimists who think that a democratic civilization is necessarily an enemy to fine writing for the public, Henry Seidel writes in the Century. Such critics underrate the challenge which these millions of minds to be reached and souls to be touched must possess that writers, like actors, are inspired by a crowded house.

But the thought and the labor and the pain that lie behind good writing are doubly difficult in an atmosphere of easy tolerance and good natured condescension on the part of the readers of the completed work.

The novel is the test case for democratic literature. We cannot afford to pay its practitioners with cash merely, for cash discriminates in quantity and little more. Saul and David were judged by the numbers of their thousands slain; but the test was a crude one for them and cruder still in fiction. We cannot afford to patronize these novelists as our ancestors did before us. Not prizes or endowments or coterie worship or, certainly, more advertising is what the American novelist requires, but a greater respect for his craft.

The Elizabethan playwright was frequently despised of the learned world, and, if a favorite, not always a respected one of the vulgar. Strange that learned and vulgar alike should repeat the fallacy in dispraising the pre-eminently popular art of our own times! To Sir Francis Bacon "Hamlet" was presumably only a play actor's play. If the great American story should appear at last, would we get call it "only a novel"?

The Line in Lorraine.

Lorraine means "Lothair's Kingdom," but certainly its most famous figure was that duke of Lorraine, Godfrey of Bouillon, the hero of many fabled exploits, who was said to have cloven asunder the body of a Moslem emir with one stroke of his good sword, who was leader of the first crusade, who saw the deliverance of Jerusalem and became the ruler of that Holy City wrested from paynim hands. The American soldier might do worse than swear "By Godfrey!" Whether we now hold a mile or five miles will presently be of no importance, for our expeditionary forces have but made a beginning. A look at the map will satisfy any American how much of the front line our men should be defending before many months have passed.

It is, in the arranging of this panoramic picture of the day's events a newspaper, is made or marred.

Each lawful morning the news of the world is presented to Mail and Empire readers in a manner appealing to the eye and to the senses. The detached matter is carefully pieced together—the striking events given their proper prominence—the verbiage cut out—irrelevant items discarded.

White prices on the whole were practically steady with last week the trading was distinctly slow in comparison. There was a good run of cattle offering and the buyers generally were disposed to be more deliberate in making their selections. At some points it was claimed the buyers had succeeded in getting prices about 15c to 20c lower. The general run of prices actually recorded scarcely bore out the contention. A steer sold by Joe Wilson, of the H. P. (Kennedy firm, topped the market at a new record of $16.50. Several part loads sold by different firms up to $15 and $15.50. The general run of good butcher was steady from $13.50 to $14.50.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

COVER SOIL WITH STRAW.

Here is a tip for the gardener who wants extra early and tender radishes, lettuce, mustard and cress. It is a popular practice in France and Gt. Britain but one that is little indulged in on this side of the Atlantic. All the salad crops can be induced to be more sprightly in their growth if the row or patch is covered with straw for three or four days after the seed has been sown. The straw shades the ground, keeps in the moisture, and rapidly draws up the young seedlings. The crop gets a good start if this is done and the tenderest of radishes, lettuce and onions shoot up and are ready for use at least a week earlier than they would otherwise.

Mother! Give Child "Syrup Of Figs" If Tongue Is Coated

A child simply will not stop playing to empty its bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few whours all the constipated waste sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Camouflage.

"Talking about camouflage," a detective in a lecture on crime, "I heard a good camouflage story the other day. A colonel said to one his men on the Western front: 'Griffiths, have you had my dug-out camouflaged?' 'Yes, sir,' said Griffiths. 'I saw to it myself, sir. We've made it look exactly like a colossal six-inch gun.'"

Fuel In Paris.

In Paris fuel is so scarce the people are buying wood by the pound, there being no coal to be had.

GRAIN MARKET

Wet cool weather gave some encouragement to the bull side of the grain markets yesterday. Considerable buying on the part of the shorts, too, who tried to get in on the recent decline, gave strength to the market, and the prices began to advance early in the trading, the advance being maintained until the close. July corn at Chicago closed 1 7-8c above Saturday's close. Oats were strong in sympathy with the boost in corn; May oats closing 2 1-4c up and July oats 1 7-8c up. Winnipeg also closed strong on oats, the May opion closing 2 3-8 cents up, and July 1 1-2c up. Cash oats at Fort William in store are quoted 2 5-8c higher. Ontario oats steady but weak; there being very little doing in the local market.

NO CHANCE FOR THE GERMS.

Disease germs cannot live in rich, red blood. It is people in low vitality that fall victims to germ diseases. By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you enrich the blood, increase vitality and prevent disease germs from finding lodgment in your body. There's wisdom in prevention. DRINKS TO KAISER GETS THIRTY YEARS

Unpatriotic U. S. Sergeant to Have Time For Thought.

AYER, Mass., May 14. — Ernst Flentje, of Cambridge, a sergeant in the 301st Infantry at Camp Devens, yesterday was sentenced to thirty years' imprisonment at Fort Jay, New York, for unpatriotic utterances.

He was arrested at the cantonment on March 26 and tried by court martial. Witnesses at the trial testified that Flentje had said President Wilson was incapable of standing the responsibility put upon him by the war; that this country had no business entering the war and that Germany could have won if the United States had kept out. Referring to the 76th Division here, witnesses said he declared that "if the German army ever saw this bunch they would laugh themselves to death."

Other witnesses told of the sergeant having invited persons to drink with him to the health of the German Emperor. Flentje denied the charges.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Mrs. Arthur Appleyard, Novar, Ont., writes: "This past winter my children and I had awful colds and coughs which we got by being in drafts. It gave relief to the tickling in the throat, and stopped the cough, and with a few bottles we were all cured."

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

THE WELCOME HOME

CHAPTER LXVI.

I had gone into the dressing room and tidied my hair, powdered my nose, and made myself look as fresh as possible. As the train slowed into the station, my heart beat faster and I could scarcely wait to get off.

I looked all around for George, but didn't see him. My heart sank, but I still kept looking. He had missed me. There were quite a good many got off at Moreland. But just as I was about to retrace my steps, thinking I might have passed him in the dusk, Martin the chauffeur, came up and, touching his cap, took my bag and said:

"The car is right this way, ma'am."

I followed in silence. Of course George was in the car. He would think it foolish to stand in a crowd and wait when Martin could do it just as well. But there was no one in the car. I opened my lips to ask where Mr. Howard was, but pride came to my rescue, and I said:

"I'm well, thank you, ma'am. And everything is all right, I think."

Hot tears rushed to my eyes, but I resolutely forced them back. George would be at home, waiting me, and he mustn't see me with red eyes. I was thankful for Martin's broad back in front of me. No one could read my thoughts.

HOME AT LAST

At last we reached the house. I thought we never should. But, as I rushed up the steps and the door opened in response to the honk of the automobile horn announcing our arrival it was James' face that greeted me, not George's.

"I am glad to see you back, ma'am," he said respectfully. Then Mary, Annie and Celeste all appeared and greeted me.

"The house has been that lonesome I most went away mesself," old Mary said.

"I went immediately upstairs. George's name had not been mentioned. Apparently the servants thought it nothing strange he had not been with me. I tried to keep still, not to ask questions. But after I had taken off my things, and changed my clothes for the late dinner prepared for me, I could not resist saying to Celeste:

"Will Mr. Howard be home for dinner?"

"Oh, no, ma'am. He said if you came and asked for him, to tell you he would be late. He had an engagement."

I don't quite know where it came, or how, but for once my pride kept me from letting Celeste know how hurt I was.

"Oh, yes, I remember he wrote me about it. I will go right down. I am starving," I replied.

My sudden access of pride also helped me to eat a good dinner. Then as it was late and I was tired I told Celeste:

"I shall not sit up for Mr. Howard. If he comes in before James goes to bed, ask him to tell Mr. Howard that I was very tired so did not sit up."

"Oui, madame!" Celeste replied, a peculiar look on her face. I knew she was wondering at my attitude. That she half expected me to weep.

"HOW DO YOU DO" AT BREAKFAST.

I went immediately to sleep. I was really very tired. My long seance at the window the night before—the unaccustomed traveling,—had wearied me so that my eyes closed immediately. I did not waken until Celeste called me:

"Mr. Howard says he will be ready for breakfast in a few minutes."

I jumped out of bed, dressed hurriedly, but selected my most becoming breakfast gown, then ran down the stairs and into the dining room just as George was sitting down.

He came to me and kissed me.

"Did you have a pleasant visit, my dear?" he asked.

"Oh, wonderful! It was too short, that was all the fault I found with it."

"Are your people well?"

"Yes, very well. They all wished to be remembered to you."

"Thank you."

I was determined to be as cold, as non communitive, as he. So I volunteered no details of my visit. He looked at his paper as usual, but when he spoke his voice was kind, and he smiled. I was grateful for even so much of his attention, the while I resented his coldness.

"I was sorry to be out when you arrived," he said as he rose from the table, "but Mrs. Loring gave a dinner which I had agreed to attend. Better lie down a while today. You aren't accustomed to traveling, and you look a bit fagged.

That was all. What a difference there was in his greeting, and that of the dear folks at home! And he had been with Madge Loring.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Prouse, cattle dealer, Sheho, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

ANCIENT HEAVY ARTILLERY.

Although one is astounded to hear of the immense size of the heavy artillery used by both sides in the present war, it should be borne in mind that projectiles of even large diameter were used long ago.

The first piece of artillery recorded (according to London Answers) was made by Schwartz, a German, soon after the invention of gunpowder in 1330, while the first use of artillery in warfare was probably made by the Moors of Algeciras, Spain, in 1343. The town is situated on the same bay and opposite to Gibraltar. It is interesting to remember that the present Spanish governor's full title is "Governor of Algeciras and Gibraltar, temporarily in the occupation of the British," an example of optimism that surely deserves to become classical.

Edward III. at Crecy in 1356 had four pieces of cannon, and he also used artillery at the siege of Calais in the following year.

In Edinburgh, to which it was transferred from London at the request of Sir Walter Scott, may be seen Mons Meg, a large cannon thirteen feet long and twenty inches calibre, which is said to have been used by James II. at the siege of Thrieve Castle in 1455. This gun used stone. Five years later the King met his death at Roxburgh by the bursting of a similar cannon, the Lion.

The "Queen Elizabeth's pocket pistol"—a quaint fancy—at Dover Castle, a present from Charles V. to Good King Hal (Henry VIII.), is twenty-four feet long and has given rise to the well known lines:

Load me well and keep me clean,
I'll carry a ball to Calais Green.

The King's Old Chum.

Glorious weather favored the visit of the King and Queen to Reading recently. Their Majesties proceeded to No. 1 War Hospital through densely-packed avenues of people cheering and waving flags. At the hospital the King was particularly interested in the case of Pte. Beesley, who had a finger transplanted from one hand to make a thumb on the other, the operation having been performed by Major Joyce.

Another man to whom the King spoke was newly admitted from a torpedoed hospital ship, but explained that he had not suffered at all, and believed everybody was got off before the ship went down. The King replied: "Oh, but she did not go down. I have seen the reports about her, and you will be glad to know that she was brought safely into port."

Continuing their tour, their Majesties went to the Royal Seed Establishment to inspect the work carried on by Messrs. Sutton in connection with the food supply of the country. Here the King met an old comrade, one Thomas Ryan, who served with him when he was a lieutenant on the Bacchante, where Ryan was captain of a gun crew. The old sailor asked if his Majesty remembered the Australian flight, and the King replied: "I remember it very well. It was there that we lost our rudder nearly 40 years ago."

Turkey Takes Census.

For the first time in the history of Turkey, says an Amsterdam dispatch, a complete census of the whole empire is to be taken. A German statistician has been appointed to superintend the preliminary formalities. The Turkish newspaper, Sabah, says: "We are the only nation in Europe, not excluding even the Balkan states, which possesses no official statistics of our population." The estimated population of Turkey before the war was roughly 21,000,000, of which 7,000,000 were Turks, 9,000,000 Arabs, 1,500,000 Armenians, 1,500,000 Greeks, 1,500,000 Kurds, and the remainder Druses, Jews and the smaller tribes. The Turkish newspapers have recently shown some anxiety as to the large decrease in population likely caused by the war and the prevalence of disease and have urged the government to take steps to decrease mortality and increase the birth rate.

The New York Connecting Railroad bridge, which is better known as the Hell Gate bridge, with its three miles of elevated approaches, constitutes one of the greatest engineering projects of the world, overshadowed only by its importance as a trade route and public utility for passenger and freight traffic.

It is the world's heaviest bridge of steel arch construction, accommodating four tracks. It is ready to bear the live load of 12 tons per linear foot while sustaining 26 tons of structure per linear foot. It is calculated that this live load may be likened to the weight of 45 of the biggest and heaviest of modern locomotives in motion

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus off with fingers.

No humbug! You truly can lift of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses on bottom of feet without one bit of pain.

A genius in Cincinnati discovered freezone. It is an ether compound and tiny bottles of this magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents.

Apply several drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you lift it off with the fingers. You feel no pain while applying freezone or afterwards.

Just think! No more corns or calluses to torture you and they go without causing one twinge of pain or soreness.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle of freezone on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

CONTROL YOUR OWN KITCHEN

Margaref Deland, the well-known writer, says in the Woman's Home Companion:

"This is a brave world just now, and it shames us to admit, even to ourselves, how we hate to face some domestic guns; we hate to ask about left-over dropped eggs; and still more do we flunk the going back to the good sense of mothers and grandmothers, and do our own ordering! There is, however, one thing that would help us poor housekeepers immensely, namely, 'a community effort.' If groups of women—the women's clubs, the women of a parish, the women of a street—would get together, and pledge each other their moral support, the domestic situation would be immensely helped; we would cease to be bullied by our kitchens. Once let Mary realize that not only Mrs. A. is 'mean,' and Mrs. B. 'snoops around in the refrigerator,' and Mrs. C. 'gives ye a calldown about yer potato parlogs,' but that the whole alphabet of housekeepers will not permit waste, Mary, too, and all her kind, will finally fall into line!

"You know the fable of the old man and his sons and the sticks? The single stick was easily broken. The single housekeeper is easily cowed. The fagot is unbreakable! If we women, all together, insist upon a moral, social, economical course, our kitchens will join us."

Psychological Effect.

"Why do you call your automobile a flivver?"

"We don't always," replied Mrs. Chuggins. "When we speak of it in company we call it a motorcar. But when we take it to a repair shop we call it 'a flivver,' hoping it will influence the man to be easy with the bill."

WARLIKE BABOONS.

If we are to credit the testimony on the subject offered by naturalists, man is not the only animal who carries on his warfare by means of organized bands, and calls in the forces of nature to assist him. There have been witnessed in Africa fights that were conducted in as orderly a manner as if the warriors had been really men, instead of only somewhat like them in form, i.e., baboons.

One naturalist was stoned out of a pass in a very few minutes by these creatures, who sprang upon ledges and stones, looked down for a few moments on the valley, growling, snarling and screaming, and then began to roll down stones with so much vigor and adroitness that the intruders took to flight. The baboons evidently knew the value of co-operation, for the naturalist saw two of them combine their efforts in order to set a particularly heavy stone rolling. One monkey, bent on making the most of his missile, was seen to carry a stone up a tree, that he might hurl it with greater force.

Once, while some baboons were crossing a valley, they were attacked by dogs, and, as is usual during a march, the females and young were in the centre, the males heading the column and bringing up the rear. As the dogs rushed upon them the males turned and faced their enemies, growling, beating the ground with their hands and opening their mouths wide, so as to show their glittering teeth. They looked so fierce and malignant that the dogs—Arab greyhounds, accustomed to fight successfully with hyenas and other beasts of prey—shrank back. By the time they had been encouraged to renew the attack, the whole herd had made their way, covered by rear guards, to the rocks, one six-months-old monkey excepted.

This little monkey sat on a rock surrounded by the dogs; but he was not long left in his perilous position. An old baboon stepped from the cliff near by, advanced toward the dogs, keeping them in check by threatening gestures and sounds, picked up the baby monkey, and carried it to a place of safety on the cliff, while the whole crowd of baboons watched the act of heroism and shouted their battle cry.

The Rubber Tree.

A preliminary inquiry into the possibility of the commercial utilization of the seed of the rubber tree for oil production has been undertaken by the agricultural authorities in the Federated Malay States. From time to time suggestions have been made for the utilization for this purpose of the seeds of the cultivated Para rubber tree, as large quantities of the seed go to waste on the rubber plantations of the middle east. Experiments have proved, according to a British Government report, that not only is the oil extracted from the seed suitable for various purposes, but that the residue can be used for cattle food or as fertilizer.

Septic Tank for Sewage Disposal.

This system consists ordinarily of a two-chamber concrete, water-proof tank equipped with an inlet, overflow and vent pipe, and an automatic siphon for emptying the tank of the liquid sewage from time to time, and a system of tile, called the "absorption bed," consisting of several parallel rows of 3 or 4 in. land tile laid with open joints, almost level, and shallow, and [illegible]ing off from a main line of sewer pipe which connects it to the tank. For the ordinary-sized home each tank should be about 3 ft. square and 3 ft. deep, and 150 to 200 feet of land tile would be required for the absorption bed. The vitrified sewer tile is best for the main and the number of them will depend upon the distance of the absorption bed from the tank.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take one tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Siren

She Proved a Lure In the Right Direction

By F. A. MITCHEL

Indirectly the small salary was the cause of the trouble. It was but $600 a year, and no man could be found to accept it except some recent graduate just beginning his life work. These young men were all bachelors. There was a girl in the congregation, Miss Beatrix Severance, daughter of the managing deacon, who as soon as a young man fresh from a theological seminary took up the duties of pastor began to weave about him a spell. He would gradually become devoted, then on one pretext or another would hand in his resignation and leave for another field.

A few of the parishioners who were in the secret advocated securing a married man for pastor. Acting on the suggestion, they "called" a man with a wife and six children. But the salary was so small that the more prosperous members of the congregation were continually compelled to put their hands in their pockets to help the family out. Fairs and donation parties were resorted to till at last the congregation became weary of the business. The pastor secured a call with a higher salary, and the First church returned to the old system of having a bachelor to fill the pulpit.

When the Rev. Thomas Ridgely, unmarried, stepped into the pulpit vacated by the pastor with a family, none of the congregation except a committee who had been sent to hear him preach had seen him. As he stepped forward to begin the service a few of those who understood the cause of the frequent resignations of the church's pastors looked at one another meaningly. He had fiery red hair and enormous joints, while his complexion was a freckled brown. If these persons had spoken their thoughts they would have said, "At last we have a man whom Trix Severance will let alone."

Beatrix, who was in her accustomed seat in her father's pew looking up at the minister, was of the same opinion. However, when he sent his first word rolling over the congregation it was like the lower notes of the organ. There was scarcely a member of the congregation but admitted that Mr. Ridgely possessed a resonant voice. It seemed not to make any difference whether he raised it or lowered it, the effect was the same. When he spoke in those tones that are intended to be impressive, but are usually inaudible, his most subdued note could be distinctly heard in every part of the house.

But when Mr. Ridgely began his sermon it was evident that his voice was not his principal attraction. There was a depth as well as a fervor in everything he said that went both to the understanding and the heart. For the first time in years the congregation of the First church realized that they were under a powerful influence. They listened, every eye and ear intent upon him, till he had finished; then a murmur of satisfaction broke the stillness.

When the sermon was over and the congregation were passing out of the church the hum of conversation was entirely about the new pastor. "Where did the committee pick him up?" "What does it mean that such a man will accept our little salary?" "He'll be called somewhere else within a few months." These were some of the comments made, and all were encomiums on Mr. Ridgely. But there were a few, a select few, who looked at the matter from a different point of view. With them the question was, How would Beatrix Severance stand in the matter, or would the clergyman be driven away by her as the other bachelors had been?

What were Miss Severance's thoughts or intentions no one knew, for she kept them to her own sweet self. Every Sunday she attended service, at least once, and sat listening to the clergyman's words without betraying by her expression an interest in him personally. Nevertheless the congregations soon noticed that she was weaving the same spell over him she had thrown about the others.

Then a low murmuring began to be heard against the girl, who, it was to be inferred, would drive out this gifted man. They had failed to find fault with her in the other cases, for the men were not talented and could easily be replaced. But here was a wonder who, when they lost him, could not be replaced. Indeed, there was not a member of the congregation but feared that at any moment he would receive a call elsewhere at a far higher salary than they were paying or could afford to pay him. Should Trixie Severance be allowed to deprive them of their prize?

An informal meeting of those who understood the matter was held at the house of Mrs. Deacon Stoneman, wherein it was discussed, and the result of the conference was that the deaconess should request her husband to go to Deacon Severance and ask him to warn his daughter to keep hands off the new minister. Deacon Stoneman called on Deacon Severance, and the two were closeted together for the space of half an hour. Then the visitor withdrew, and Deacon Stoneman called Beatrix into the room, closed the door and informed her of the subject of the recent interview.

"Papa," said Trixie, "what do you wish me to do?"

"Nothing so far as Mr. Ridgely is concerned."

"What does the congregation wish me to do? Have they mentioned any especial act I have committed with reference to Mr. Ridgely that they object to?"

"I don't know that they have."

"Well, you may tell them for me that Mr. Ridgely had best be let alone with reference to his treatment of me and I had best be let alone with reference to my treatment of him."

This ended the conference between father and daughter. What report he made to those who had taken it upon themselves to admonish Beatrix through him was not known, but it was probably not very satisfactory, for the feeling against the siren increased, and it was not long before she began to get the cold shoulder from certain members of the congregation. One thing was noticeable—the relations, so far as they appeared between her and Mr. Ridgely, were by no means changed by the fact of her admonition.

One day Mrs. Harkness met Mrs. Gooding on the street, and the two ladies stopped for a chat.

"Have you heard the news about our pastor?" asked the former.

"No. What is it?"

"He's had a call."

"I knew it! It's all that minx Trixie Severance's fault. She's driven him out as she has driven out the others."

"He hasn't accepted it yet."

"But he will. Do you know what salary goes with it?"

"They say it is double what we are paying."

"Then he's sure to go."

The news spread that the church's idol had received a call, and it was generally conceded that it was preliminary to his leaving the place on account of having received a refusal from Beatrix Severance. Then it began to be known that in his new field he would receive double the salary he was paid by the First church. Meanwhile the feeling of antagonism toward Trixie was growing like a rolling snowball. Some even suggested that in the event of their losing their pastor she be brought up before the church and tried for unseemly conduct. But the absurdity of such a course was apparent when some one asked in what form the charges would be made.

One Sunday, after reading the usual notices, Mr. Ridgely said that since it had become generally known that he had received a call he would say that he had declined it and would remain with the First church.

Great was the astonishment at this announcement. What did it mean? Was the man crazy to refuse a salary of $1,200 when he was getting only $600? Those who understood Miss Severance's part, or her supposed part, in these pastoral affairs looked at her inquiringly. Her face was as passive, as unintelligible as usual.

The only person in the congregation who could give a satisfactory explanation of the matter was Mrs. Gooding, who said it was so plain she couldn't understand why everybody couldn't see it. Trixie had so bewitched the pastor that rather than leave her he had given up an additional $600 a year. This view commended itself to others, and the impression gained ground that the minister's departure was only deferred. Miss Severance was playing him as a cat would play a mouse. Before long he would depart, call or no call.

Meanwhile the power of the young clergyman for good was becoming known elsewhere, and calls began to pour in thick and fast. Mr. Ridgely did not speak of them himself; they leaked out through those who gave them. He declined them all.

Then the congregation of the First church began to think that it was his love for them that kept him. After all the First church was composed of an exceptional class of people. Quite likely Mr. Ridgely appreciated the social advantages of such a church. This view was poohpoohed by a few, but gained ground generally.

Finally an announcement was made by Mrs. Deacon Severance that was like a bomb dropped among the congregation. Her daughter, Beatrix, was engaged to Mr. Ridgely. All were made happy by the news. Their beloved pastor would now be a fixture in the First church. From being the most unpopular member of the congregation Trixie became the most popular. All flocked about her with congratulations, saying that they were "so glad;" that doubtless it had been through her influence that Mr. Ridgely had declined the calls he had received and now they would have him always.

Miss Severance received their congratulations with the same imperturbability that she had borne their reproaches. In due time the wedding was celebrated, and all were settling down with a feeling that they were to retain a minister who had been offered several thousand dollars a year in place of the paltry sum of $600 when the tranquil waters were again disturbed. The minister announced from his pulpit that he had determined to give up all regular pastoral work and preach the gospel to the poor wherever and whenever he found an opportunity. He further stated that he was happy in having gained a wife who sympathized with him in this course and who would assist him in his efforts to ameliorate the spiritual and physical condition of those who most needed him.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say the medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion, or they can eat as they please in reason, and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid, and prevent the formation of gas, sourness, or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia, and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestant. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully with out the need of pepsin pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate, and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you have ever had on "What to eat."

Under normal conditions human beings perspire about twice as much when asleep as when awake.

SCIENTISTS AIDING IN WAR

Experts Have Found a New Work in Which They Are Materially Assisting the Government.

Secretary of the Interior Lane, in his recent annual report, portrays the transition of a peaceful democracy into a nation organized for war. Possession of resources alone, he warns the country, does not win wars, and recounting the enormous progress made on every hand, declares the physical resources of the United States are almost completely at the command of the world's needs.

"What can you do to serve me?" quotes the secretary, replying: "The answer of this department is that it has put every agency and activity which it has at the service of those departments more directly concerned with war-making.

"The patent office has been searched for new devices that could be brought into use to kill the submarine or limit its destructiveness, for the plans of heretofore unused lethal weapons and for the formulae of improved or unknown sources of power.

"The scientific bureau of the government found themselves converted overnight into adjuncts and auxiliaries in the great international contest. Men who had regarded themselves as modestly useful only in the discovering and revealing of new sources of material strength found that their years of experience in the mountains and on the desert, in laboratories and in mines, called them at once into the thick of the European struggle."

Poet and Politician.

Recently elected a director of the Northeastern Railway Co., England, Viscount Grey of Fallodon is a man of great personal charm. He hat-swank and often displays an amiability which can even tolerate a bore. He is said to be the most cordial host that ever welcomed a guest. A mystic and a poet at heart—he has been accused of writing clever verse under a nom de plume—he is a politician by command and duty, for it was the late Mr. Gladstone who insisted that with such brains he owed it to his country to busy himself with affairs of state. Formerly he indulged in championship form at lawn tennis; now he is the leading exponent of fly-fishing in England.

Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who"

Women Need It to Bring Back Pink Glow of Health to Pale Cheeks and Forestall Tell-Tale Lines of Age. Men Need It to Make Strong, Vigorous Bodies and Steady Nerves.

People who are irritable restless, nervous; those who tire easily or lack vim and energy; men and women who have faulty memory, sleepless nights, fits of depression or the "blues," should take Bitro-Phosphate three times daily after meals.

Frederick Kolle, M. D., Editor-in-Chief of "Physicians' Who's Who," New York, says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Good, sound advice this; moreover the genuine, standard Bitro-Phosphate is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury and most all good druggists under a binding guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Test your strength by seeing how far you can walk without tiring before beginning to take it and then after two weeks or so see for yourself how your strength has increased. Note, too, if you do not feel more buoyant, have better colour, a better appetite, stronger nerves and increased vigour and energy.

"Go to Jericho."

Now that the British troops have reached Jericho, curiosity is aroused as to the origin of that expression, "Go to Jericho," in its popular sense, remarks the Christian Science Monitor. It is said to have been used in Henry VIII.'s time to convey the information that that monarch had retired from the cares of state to his manor house of Blackmore, near Chelmsford, which was called Jericho. But it seems a good deal more likely that "Go to Jericho" meant at first what it means now, "Get out of the way, and the further the better." Jericho being popularly regarded as at the antipodes. It was used in that sense in the seventeenth century at any rate for in the royalist paper Mercurius Aulicus of March 23-30 of the year 1648 appeared these lines:

If the Upper House and the Lower House
Were in a ship together
And all the base Committees
They were in another;
And both the ships were bottomless
And ne'er be seen again,
Lo! them all goe to Jericho,
And sayling on the Mayne.

Quaint Prejudice.

When postage-stamps first came into use in England some persons declared that the effigy of majesty was too sacred to serve as a label for letters.

"Have you seen the stamps yet?" wrote one ardent loyalist in 1840. "This is the greatest insult the present Ministry could have offered the Queen."

King Ferdinand of Sicily took the matter so seriously that he had a special post-mark made to the shape of a frame so that the officials could cancel the stamps without striking his portrait.

COUNTRY'S DEBT TO CRIMINAL

Notorious French Swindler Responsible for Development of Most Famous Fighting Airplane.

The most successful fighting airplane in the world today is without question the Spad. It was, of course, the mount of the late Captain Guynemer, who, it will be remembered, accounted for 53 machines before being shot down last September just behind the German front line. The most proficient pilots in the Lafayette escadrille also use this machine.

The history of the Spad is curious. It owes its origin to Armand Deperdussin, a former silk Merchant of Lyons, who amassed a large fortune by a series of swindling operations. In 1910 he proceeded to sink most of his gains into aviation, establishing a huge flying field and factory near Reims and engaging a brilliant young engineer named Becherean. The result was that the Deperdussin monoplanes acquired an international fame, winning the Gordon Bennett cup at Chicago in 1912 and at Reims in 1913—the latter event at the rate of 124.5 miles an hour. This speed was made possible largely by the monocoque construction of the fuselage, greatly superior to the rectangular body section then in vogue on other machines.

After the arrest of Deperdussin some time before the war the directors of the firm retained Becherean as designer and changed the name to Spad (Societe pour Aeroplanes Deperdussin). This was again changed quite recently to "Societe pour l'Aviation et ses Derives," keeping the same initials as before. Deperdussin's trial finally took place a few months back and a merely nominal sentence was imposed on account of the great services to the cause of French aviation rendered by the defendant.

Puts Cost Increase at 50 P.C.

Lord Rhondda said recently that he wanted to correct the misapprehension as to the rise in the cost of living. The Board of Trade's figures, showing a rise of 105 per cent., were altogether misleading, for the cost had not gone up by very much more than 50 per cent. He had gone into the question with some of the leading experts of the country, for the last few months prices had decreased by 10 per cent. People had had to alter their method of living, and that had not altogether been taken into account.

SLUGGISH LIVER CAUSES LOTS OF TROUBLE

When the liver becomes sluggish it is an indication that the bowels are not working properly, and if they do not move regularly many complications are liable to set in.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a specific for all disease or disorders arising from a slow, sluggish, lazy or torpid liver, and they have been universally used throughout Canada for over 20 years with the greatest success.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 7 Poplar Grove, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but after using a couple of vials of your pills, I have not been bothered any more."

MISS' OR SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

Just the way that the chic little black tie slips through slashes and ties in a loose knot is a sure sign that the origin of this little frock is Paris. The merest suggestion of a roll collar finishes the neck, and the vest, in an unusual shape, is of the same material. The long, close fitting sleeves are rolled for turnovers at the wrists and faced to correspond. The shorter sleeves may be used if preferred. The two gored skirt is gathered all around to the slightly raised waistline. The odd peplum starts at each side of the vest and curves away at the sides to well below hip length at the back. A narrow leather belt is worn with this dress.

The miss' or small woman's dress pattern No. 8765 is cut in three sizes—16, 18 and 20 years. Width at lower edge of skirt is 1¾ yards. The 16-year size requires 4¼ yards 36 inch or 2¾ yards 54 inch material, with ⅝ yard 36 inch silk. Price

Quicklime for Heavy Soils, Ground Limestone for Light Soils.

SEPTIC TANK FOR THE FARM

Potatoes Should Be Treated This Year to Control Scab, as the Success of This Crop Is of the Utmost Importance In the Greater Production Campaign.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE soils in many parts of the province are so depleted of their lime that they are becoming sour or acid. This is an important fact as few, if any of our farm crops can make their best growth on a soil carrying an insufficient supply of lime. This is especially true of leguminous plants and it is probable that the frequent "killing out" of clover during the first winter is due to lack of sufficient lime.

Lime acts in several ways. It neutralizes the acids formed in the soil through the decay of organic matter; it overcomes the tenacity of clay soils, binds sands together and thus improves the physical condition of both types of soil. Lime is not only an essential constituent of the food of plants, but it also tends to liberate plant food, especially potash, from the insoluble forms in the soil, bringing them into an available state. The micro-organisms that live on the roots of the nitrogen-gathering plants cannot work in an acid soil, nor can some other forms of organisms whose function it is to gather nitrogen.

It requires about two tons of ground limestone rock to be equal to one ton of quick lime, and the prices charged for them are in about the same proportion. Furthermore two tons of the former to one ton of the latter are about the right quantities to apply.

The ground limestone rock is safe on any land in almost any quantity, and may be applied at any time of the year. On heavy clay soils quick lime, slaked before applying, may give quicker results; but it should not be applied to light sandy soils. Few materials or fertilizers can have so many good things said about them as lime and none of them cost so little money. Try out a little yourself this year.—Prof. R. Harcourt, Ontario Agricultural College.

For seed select smooth, sound potatoes, as free as possible from scab, and disinfect by soaking them before they are cut for two hours in a solution made by adding half a pint of commercial formalin to 15 gallons of water. A couple of barrels with plugs in the sides near the bottom can be used to advantage in treating the seed. The potatoes can be placed directly in the solution or first put in crates or coarse sacks and then immersed.

After treatment spread the potatoes out on a clean floor or on the grass to dry. Wash all crates, bags, etc., which are used in handling the potatoes with the formalin solution. The same formalin solution can be used to treat successive lots of potatoes. Fifteen gallons is sufficient to treat from 20 to 25 bushels if ordinary precautions are taken not to waste too much of the fluid as each lot of tubers is dipped. If the potatoes are not all treated the same day it is advisable to make up fresh formalin for each day's work.

Corrosive sublimate (mercuric chloride) can also be used to treat potatoes to prevent scab. Soak the uncut tubers for three hours in a solution of 2 ounces of corrosive sublimate to 25 gallons of water. Corrosive sublimate is a deadly poison, and potatoes treated with it are rendered unfit for food for man or beast.

Formalin is a clear liquid disinfectant. It is a 40 p.c. solution of formaldehyde gas and water. It can be purchased from almost any druggist. It is sold under the names of formalin and formaldehyde. It is important that the purchaser, whatever name he buys it under, secured a guaranteed solution of 40 p.c. formaldehyde.

If possible plant the treated seed potatoes on clean soil, that is soil that has not produced a crop of scabby potatoes. Practice a rotation of crops. If scab is very bad it is not advisable to plant potatoes on the same land oftener than once in five years. Heavy applications of barnyard manure should not be made to the potato crop, but if necessary given at some other point in the rotation. Plant potatoes after clover sod if possible. Avoid alkali fertilizers such as lime and wood ashes.—Prof. J. E. Howitt, Ontario Agricultural College.

Prodded With Bayonets.

A further report of the revolting treatment of prisoners by the Huns is being compiled by the Prisoners of War Treatment by the Enemy Committee from the carefully sifted evidence of returned prisoners.

A wounded captain of the Royal Warwicks says: "At some stations German doctors told us that those too badly wounded to travel farther were to get out. We had many, but not one was passed as such by the German doctor. One English doctor called the attention of a German doctor to a man in my carriage with a grazed artery of the thigh, which had to be kept in a position by an instrument all the time owing to the jolting, which caused the man great suffering. The German doctor was very rude at being asked about the case, and refused to allow the man to be taken out. This man died a few days later of hemorrhage. He would most certainly have recovered if he had been taken out and kept quiet, as the graze was not severe."

A captain of the Munster Fusiliers, who had travelled for five days and four nights on the bare boards of a cattle truck severely wounded and with a tube inserted in his throat, tells of the arrival at Torgau. "We were made to march in fours to the camp a mile off," he states. "Although I was gasping for breath and so weak that I could hardly stand, I was prodded along by German soldiers with bayonets, followed by a hissing and jeering mob."

The Danish Stage.

While the lighter forms of dramatic art in Denmark are dominated by the Viennese ideals of modern music, while Wagner is sung every year at the Royal Opera, with the great tenor, Cornelius, in the heroic roles, a Danish singer who should attempt to sing in German on the stage of any theatre of Copenhagen would be hissed from the stage. The most popular operas of the last three years have been "Eugene Onegin" and "Faust," of which the Danes never tire. No year passes without the revival of the most important comedies of their great dramatic author, Holberg, whose traditions are very scrupulously maintained at the Royal Theatre. Their favorite buffo, Olaf Poulsen, was the ideal actor of certain of Holberg's heroes, and certainly one of the best of Falstaffs. As to modern plays, very few are imported from Germany. Of late, since the French dramatists have ceased to produce, the Danish stage has turned to the United States and England. "Milestones," for instance, was an enormous success, and "Romance" held interested audiences for weeks. The attitude of the Dane towards literature, art, and science shows that in these vital things he is Danish to the core, and in no way under the spell of the dominating mentality of his southern neighbor.

To Remodel Japanese Army.

The return of distinguished Japanese officers who have been in Europe studying the latest military science on the battlefronts will be followed by army reorganization, reports the Tokyo Jiji. Under the new system one division will consist of three regiments instead of four, as now, and a force composed of two reorganized divisions will become the fighting unit of the Japanese army. Increase in the number of regiments is not contemplated, but the number of divisions will be necessarily augmented. Whether or not the new formation will be seen in the forthcoming annual maneuvers is unannounced. The military arsenal at Tokyo is preparing to build airplanes for army use, and an appropriation of $3,750,000 will be asked from the diet. The exact type of airship has not been decided.

SCHOOL LIFE IN CHINA.

At six years of age Chinese boys are supposed to attend school and prepare for their lifelong bondage to Confucius by beginning their dreary struggle to master the characters which take the place of our alphabet multiplied a thousand fold. They are taught to write each character separately on small squares of red paper; and by slow degrees they learn to pronounce each, while the little fingers learn to fashion the elaborate crabbed strokes. Though these small students are just as merry and full of life as our own schoolboys, they seem to take very kindly to the studies which they see their elders value so highly. Nevertheless the cane is a fully-recognized institution in every school, and is applied unsparingly, without respect of sex. As one passes outside of such a school—which is probably held within the precincts of some merchants' guild one hears the hum of many voices, all repeating lessons aloud; and, if one looks in, one sees a troop of quaint little shaven-headed chaps, with their long black plaits and blue clothes, sitting at small ornamental tables, very different from our school desks and benches, and suggesting a remarkable absence of the destructive element in these small Chinamen. Of course a conspicuous figure in the school is the shrine of the tablet bearing the name of Confucius, to which each scholar must do daily homage.—Family Journal.

New Republic of Finland.

"The press has spread the news that two envoys are being sent by the Finnish Government to ask for official American acknowledgment of the Republic of Finland. One of them, Dr. K. Ignatius, is already in Washington, and the other, Prof. J. Reuter, is on his way to America. Finland has reached an agreement with the Russian Government; Sweden, Denmark, France and Germany have already acknowledged the new republic, and the other European countries are soon expected to act accordingly. The task for the Finns in Washington does not, therefore, seem a hopeless one.

"The Finns are a wide-awake people, though they are among the youngest in civilization. Only a hundred years ago they were a handful of unlettered folk without schools or native literature. To-day they are a highly educated nation, with no illiteracy, with an excellent educational system, with art, literature and music standing on a high plane of development. Fate was kind to Finland, creating the necessary circumstances for this rapid development; a change in the political status of a country, a powerful national awakening all over Europe, the discovery of the Finnish national epic, 'The Kalevala,' and finally enough political oppression to make the nation exert all its economic and intellectual power in the fight for national existence.

"The Finns have shown clearly during the hundred years of their conscious national life that they are capable of development and can add new values to the intellectual and artistic treasury of mankind. They are a law-abiding and peace-loving nation, and they have made their country one of the leaders of progress in Europe. They now ask for independence not as a gift of charity, but as their right."—Aino Malmberg, in Century.

When Nobel Cut His Finger.

The great war might be traced back to Nobel's cut finger, E. E. Slosson writes in the New York Independent. Alfred Nobel was a Swedish chemist—and a pacifist. One day while working in the laboratory he cut his finger, as chemists are apt to do, and again as chemists are apt to do, he dissolved some guncotton in ether alcohol and swabbed it on the wound. At this point, however, his conduct diverges from the ordinary, for instead of standing idle, impatiently waving his hand in the air to dry the film as most people, including chemists, are apt to do, he put his mind on it and it occurred to him that this sticky stuff, slowly hardening to an elastic mass, might be just the thing he was hunting as an absorbent and solidifier of nitroglycerin. So instead of throwing away the extra collodion that he had made he mixed it with nitroglycerin and found that it set to a jelly. The "blasting gelatin" thus discovered proved to be so insensitive to shock that it could be safely transported or fired from a cannon. This was the first of the high explosives that have been the chief factor in the great war.

Aching Head, Pains In Back

Heart Action Was Weak and Nerves Greatly Exhausted—Now in Extra Good Health.

TWEED, Ont., March 28.—This is a cheering letter from Mrs. Wagar, because it describes the condition in which many women find themselves and tells how cure was effected.

Once the food cure was resorted to the system was gradually and certainly built up and reconstructed. The old symptoms disappeared, because the reason for their existence had been overcome. It is well worth while to give Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a trial when such results are obtained.

Mrs. H. E. Wagar, Tweed, Ont., writes: "My system was in a run-down condition. I could not sleep well, and was very nervous. I had frequent headaches and pains through my back, and my nerves used to twitch. I took weak spells, was short of breath and my heart action seemed weak. I was in very poor health generally. I went to a doctor and he advised me to take a rest, and gave me medicine, but it did not help me. My husband got me some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food one day, and this treatment gave me such relief that I took many boxes—I cannot tell just how many, but enough to build up my system and rid me of the old symptoms. I gradually began to get stronger, until I could get around and do my own house work. I am not bothered now with sick headaches and am enjoying extra good health. I would recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all suffering from nervousness of any kind."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, a full treatment of six boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

VERY HEAVY FIGHTING ON THE ITALIAN FRONT

HUGE FARMERS' DEPUTATION WAITS ON THE GOVERNMENT

THE PETITION

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, May 14.—Farmers by the thousands from Ontario, Quebec and from the Maritime Provinces, and from the big wheat grounds beyond the great lakes, crowded into Canada's capital today to give weight to their demand that the exemption of farmers and farm help from military service should be continued, notwithstanding the demand for men to fight overseas.

Their petition presented to the Government reviewed the drastic measures being taken all over the world to meet the emergencies of food production, and also all the pledges made by the Government to increase the supplies for the Allies. "Therefore," concluded the petition, "as farmers and loyal citizens of Canada, we hereby enter our most solemn protest against the great breach of faith by the breaking of these sacred covenants and taking from our farms the very labour which will enable us to produce, and in the absence of which, more particularly on Ontario live stock farms, will paralize the production effort, and we exhort your Government to stay the hand in these proceedings, by instructing the military authorities to still grant continuous leave of absence to all bona fide young farmers."

HOUSE WAS CROWDED.

The Ontario delegation crowded the Russell Theatre from the floor to the roof. The aisles and the galleries were jammed at the same time. The farmers of Quebec met in the Francais Theatre.

Amid great enthusiasm the Toronto men reaffirmed their support of the resolution adopted in Toronto by the United Farmers of Ontario.

It was 11.30 when the members of the Government reached the theatre. There were present Sir Robert Borden, Major-General Mewburn, Hon. T. A. Crearer, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, and Hon. N. W. Rowell.

They took their seats on the platform without applause from the delegation. The proceedings were opened by Manning Doherty. The delegation of farmers from all parts of the Dominion, he said, was assembled in no spirit of rebellious protest, but rather to strengthen the hand of the Government. There was, however, a dread that the Government might be led to draw the man power from an essential industry to such an extent that the farmers would not be able to supply food to the Allies. "We humbly submit," he added, "that our judgment in the matter of production of food should meet with serious consideration."

ELECTION PROMISES.

Mr. Doherty outlined the drain on farmers since the outbreak of the war. Men who had joined the army and men who had gone into munition work. Previous to the outbreak of the war, there had been a draft of man power from the rural districts to the cities.

We had, last November, said Mr. Doherty, the Hon. Minister of Militia in Dundas saying that the necessity for food was so great that he would see that farmers were exempted. (Cheers). The farmers believed these assurances, and hundreds of thousands broke new land and bought implements, which they would not otherwise have done. Hundreds of young men, working on farmers, who believed they were not to be drafted, got married.

MUST HOLD THE LINE.

In his reply, the Premier emphasized the necessity of holding the line on the Western front. "I know whereof I am speaking when I tell you," he declared, "that if the Channel ports should be reached through the breaking of that line, it would be, to say the least, extremely problematical whether any of that production of which you speak could be made of service to the Allied nations overseas, to our men who are holding that line. I regard is as the supreme duty of this Government to see that these men, some of whom have been fighting for three years, are sustained by reinforcements as will enable them to hold the line.

FIVE HUNDRED RUSSIAN SOLDIERS SHOT BY THE HUN

SIX WEEKS HAVE PASSED SINCE HUNS WERE CHECKED

Little Ground Has Been Won by the Enemy in the Past Four Weeks --Hindenburg is Re-arranging His Plans

ARTILLERY ACTIVE

(United Press Service.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 14— (10 O'clock Despatch.) — While the German High Command is completing preparations for the third—and perhaps the biggest — thrust of all, a sinister silence spreads along the battle lines.

Six weeks have passed since the combined drive of the German and Bavarian Crown Prince were checked on both sides of the Somme, and comparatively little ground has been won by Von Armin and Von Quast on the Lys during the past four weeks. Yet to-day more than one hundred and fifty German divisions (1,800,000 men) have been used on these two battle fronts, and Von Hindenburg's promise to Germany of a quick decision has gone by the board.

Plans Scrapped.

The Allies, fighting as one army, and under a single commander, not only have frustrated the enemy's plans, but have forced an almost complete overhauling of his entire army and have necessitated a brand new start. Hindenburg, obviously forced to scrap his original plans and build others, has brought new leaders to the west front, including Mackensen, and according to reports, is concentrating the German empires' total output of brain, muscle and materials.

Raining To-day.

Meantime the lines are curiously inactive although the battle field has been unusually dry. To-day, however, a cold, autumnal drizzle was drenching the area. Airmen scarcely left their perches. Frequently artillery on one side or the other cuts loose in a spasm of shelling, but soon quiets down. The principal feature of German activity is the bombardment with gas shells of back areas. Even villages a considerable distance to the rear are dashed with a heavy fire. British gunners are better at this game than the enemy, plastering German communications so that many have been abandoned as impracticable.

EMPEROR WILLIAM HOPES LITHUNIA WILL PARTICIPATE

Canadian Press:

AMSTERDAM, May 14.—Emperor William has issued a proclamation concerning Lithuanis in which he says it is assumed that Lithuania will participate in the war burdens of Germany.

AMSTERDAM, May 14.—In the proclamation the "independence" of Lithuanis, allied with the German Empire, is recognized.

The proclamation says further that it will take the interests of the German Empire into account equally with those of Lituania and that Lithuania will participate in war burdens of Germany, which secured her liberation.

The Vorwaerts of Berlin, said recently that strong opposition was developed among Lithuanians to transforming their country into a German semi-Federal State.

Cabinet Ministers Are In Favour Of A New Form Of Parliament For Ireland, Wales, Scotland and England

(Special to Examiner)

LONDON, May 14.—C. T. Barnes in his speech on Sunday advocating parliaments for Ireland, Wales, Scotland and England modeled on America's state legislations is viewed in some quarters today as a government "Kite to test public opinion.

"The cabinet is divided but is tending to the view that the only chance to win is the federal scheme," the daily News said today.

The "Express" said it understands Barnes' idea was also that of most of the cabinet members including Premier Llyod George.

Austrian Attack Was Repulsed

Enemy Attempted to Gain Important Height Which Commands Approaches to Valley

INCREASING ACTIVITY

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Italy, Monday.—(By Associated Press.)—Italian troops repulsed with heavy loss a desperate enemy attempt last night to redeem the loss of Monte Corno. It is believed that this was only the first of a series of efforts to regain lost ground owing to the value of the height which commands the approaches to the valley leading from the Trent to Rovereto. The fight last night was in the darkness and was a bloody hand to hand struggle over the rocky slopes of the mountain. Italian positions however were maintained intact. Thus far the fighting around Monte Corno has been of a local character and not a part of any general offensive, although outposts show increasing activity all along the mountain front.

Lowering the Prices of New Footwear

Lowering the price of footwear at the beginning of the season must incur a considerable loss in profits to the shoe man, but a gain to the customer. The May sale at the Walk-Easy Shoe Store, 331 George Street, is creating quite a stir in the city, and many people have been unable to be served, owing to the crowds at different times in the store. To-morrow the bargains will be equally as good, as will be seen by the advt. elsewhere.

J. G. Bennett Died This Morning

Was a Commanding Figure in American Journalism—Long Distance Editing

LIVED IN PARIS

Canadian Press:

BEAULIEU, France, May 14. — James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of the New York Herald died at 5.30 o'clock this morning after having been unconscious for two days.

Several thousand miles away from his main newspaper office, James Gordon Bennett directed in minute detail the affairs of the New York Herald and maintained for himself one of the most commanding positions in American journalism. For more than a quarter of a century he lived in Paris and worked simultaneously there and in New York. No man before him or since has attempted such long distance editing. The editors in immediate control of the New York Herald kept a chair at their conference table always vacant for the absent editor, which was one of his own ideas to keep his men engendered with the spirit that he was "boss," although 3,000 miles away.

Bonner-Worth Co. Machinery Held Up By The War

The special machinery for the French spun worsted yarn manufacturing department of the Bonner-Worth Company, was ordered in May, 1916, and Ald. Worth stated last night that not only had it not arrived, but there was no hope of getting it within a year and a half or two years. If the war ended early, the machinery might be made and shipped here comparatively early. Because of this difficulty the new building the company agreed to erect is indefinitely postponed. By the terms of the agreement the company was committed to the purchase of the site if the factory was not built by May 1, 1918, but the council last night extended the time until May 1, 1920, in view of the difficulties the company could not foresee or avoid.

Ald. Worth thanked the council and stated that the company had 75 hands more than they had agreed to engage at this time. They are now spending $20,000 on a shipping and reeling room and extensions to the dye house. It was expected that 20 more employees would be taken on as a result of these additions.

WILLING TO GO.

Chas. Moffie Said He Had Never Been Ordered to Report for Service.

Chas. Moffie, who appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning, charged with not reporting for military service, maintained that he had not tried to run away. He said he had never been ordered to report. He claims Sturgeon Falls as his home. Mofftie is 34 years old, and looks it. He filed an application for exemption, but apparently never appeared before a tribunal. He was arrested by John Eva, of the Dominion Police, at the Quaker Oats building, and was taken to Kingston this afternoon by Sergt. J. Bethune, of the Assistant Provost Marshal's Office.

"I am ready and willing to go," said Mofftie, who is a big strapping fellow, and will need one of the large sized khaki suits if the doctors accept him.

BRITISH CASUALTIES

Total Losses Are 41,612 — Heaviest of Any Week of the War.

THE FIGURES

LONDON, May 14.—Total of British casualties received during the week ending to-day is 41,612, divided as follows:

Killed or died of wounds, 5,566; wounded or missing, 36,046.

The large total fotr last week evidently represents losses suffered when fighting in Flanders and Picardy was at its height.

But it is probable that the casualties received in the last week are the heaviest British losses of any week of the war.

Magistrate Tried To Make Peace In A Divided Home

Magistrate Dumble tried this morning to ease the conjugal yoke that has chafed a husband and wife for nearly seven years, but his efforts promised little success. After hearing their versions of the differences that culminated on Sunday night in the husband assaulting the wife, His Worship advised them to bury the past and to overlook the little irritations that have caused friction and driven peace and goodwill from their home.

The woman held up a handbag which she said was empty, and she must have money for fuel at once. The man promised to provide for his family, but he did not think he would return home.

"We have tried so many times to get along," he said, "that there is no use going over it again."

At Chief Thompson's suggestion the case was adjourned for a month in the hope that the couple would re-establish the relations of their first married days. Magistrate Dumble warned the husband that in any event he must adequately provide for his family, and the best way was to go home and live in peace which could be restored through forbearance, consideration and love.

The Sunday night rumpus began to gather on Thursday night, but back of that were disagreements. The husband went to a neighbouring house "where there was music," and the wife followed him and wanted him to return home. He refused, and when he did arrive later both parties were ripe for trouble, and it was not long delayed. The wife alleged that her husband choked her. He denied this, but admitted pushing her out of the bedroom he had gone into when she ordered him from their common room. The next morning he struck her on the shoulder leaving a bruise which she showed the Magistrate. It was not the first blow she had received.

"One can stand being kicked and knocked, but not being choked," she said in tears.

The husband admitted striking his wife, but said that she had hit him with a cake.

"Sure I've struck her whenever she struck me," he said. "I'd strike anyone that struck me."

"Even the mother of your child?" asked the Chief.

"Yes, or anyone else."

"That's the kind of man I thought you were," remarked the Chief.

"You're a cowardly man," said His Worship contemptuously.

It was a patchy and pathetic story in the stray incidents that were recalled. The wife said her husband would not take her out with him, and had even declared that he would not be seen on the street with her.

To the Magistrate he admitted that she was a good woman and a good housekeeper, but he could not stand her wrangling.

Magistrate Dumble told him he was the more to blame. "I can remake you two, you must change yourselves, if you are to live in harmony and happiness."

OFFICIAL REPORTS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 14.—German artillery fire was violent last night in the Somme and Ancre sectors, says the official statement from Field Marshal Haig to-day.

We carried out a successful raid last night north-east of Robecq, Flanders and captured a few prisoners without casualties to ourselves. A party of enemy which attacked one of our posts west of Merville, was repulsed with loss.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, May 14.— Heavy artillery fighting in the Champaign is reported in to-day's official statement. Only patrol actions occurred on the main battle front in Picardy. The announcement follows:

French patrols carried out operations north of Hangard en the front before Amiens, near Courcy and west of the Meuse, bringing back prisoners. We easily repulsed a German raid on small French posts north-west of Villers Sorel. The artillery fighting was rather spirited in the Champagne, near Butte Du Mesnil and in the Vosges. A German local attack north of Lafecht was repulsed by our fire. There is nothing to report elsewhere.

Interesting Address

"How to classify birds camparing the British and American system," was the subject of an interesting and well attended lecture given by Mr. E. Elcombe to the Epworth League, in the Reid Street Sunday School of Trinity Church hall last night. Mr. Elcombe illustrated his lecture by black board sketches and had a number of specimens of birds. The audience which was comprised largely of students and teachers gained some very helpful hints in natural history.

REDUCE CONSUMPTION ONE-HALF

"Today our investigation shows that if we are to ship to the Allies the amount that is necessary to carry over even the minimum of the bread supply to their people, we must cut our own consumption by one-half.

BRAVO, THE MOUNTED.

...Canadians have always been proud ...the Royal Northwest Mounted Po... Their fame has been sung in ...ny a thrilling story and in recent ...rs the life of these gallant riders ...the plains has been featured in ...ving picture films shown the world ...er, so that the glory of the Mount... has travelled everywhere. The news ...n Regina that no fewer than 755 ...mbers of the force have enlisted ...overseas service in the past few ...s will only confirm the golden op... that the people of Canada have ...d of the picturesque men that have ...e been a feature of western life, ...ce the first days of the war the ...unted have been clamouring for a ...nce to show their mettle against ...e Hun. Request after request has ...en refused and much to the disap...intment of the entire force, only the ...mbers who were reservists of the ...itish army were allowed to go. Am... them was Sergt. Michael O'Leary, ...o won the Victoria Cross and im...ishable glory early in the war. ...Mounted were told that they ...re needed in Canada and that set... the matter, for being on practical... a military basis, there was no chance ...resign.

...Since the Canadian cavalry got into ...ion in France, however, and it was ...n that the Mounted soldier still ...d a place in modern war fare, the ...thorities decided to give the North... THE OUTSTANDING FEATURE.

...learly outlined in the midst of all ...agitation over the case of Col. ...H. Labatt stands the necessity of ...evision of the method of administer... Canada's pension system. If it is ...e that Col. Labatt's pension of 100 ...r cent., based on his disability as ...appeared before the Medical Board, ...d with no consideration as to his ...te of health before he went on ac... service, is held to be fair and ...rect, then it is clear that many of ...e pensions granted to Canadian sol...rs must be revised and dealt with ...the light of the precedent created in ...e case of the London colonel. Right ...re in Peterborough we have soldiers ...o have seen longer and more ard...us service than Col. Labatt, who ...e suffering from heart troubles, and ...ose disability has been based by the ...edical Boards on the contention that ...eir ailment existed prior to enlist...nt and has only been aggravated by ...rvice. If the special committee of ...nsions decide that Col. Labatt is ...titled to full pension in view of the ...ts as they have been revealed be...e them, then it is hard to see how ...y other conclusion can be arrived ... that other pensions of the same ...d must be adjusted in accordance ...h the system used in the particu... case under discussion.

...There are thousands of Canadians ...o do not believe that there should ...any distinction in the scale of pen...ns as between an officer and a pri...e; there are surely no Canadians ...o are in favour of a system that ...ards the officer a pension on his ...ability as revealed by the examina... he is given by the Pensions ...edical Board and that seeks to find in the case of the enlisted private evi...dences that his condition is only part...ly due to service.

It is all very well to announce that Canada's pensions are the highest in the world, but when a colonel can get over $2,000 a year pension and a $5,000 a year job, while the private, with longer service and perhaps the same ailment gets $10 a month, it is apparent that there is something wrong and so the Veterans are hopeful that the committee which is investigating the pensions system will recommend changes that will make such a condition of affairs impossible.

INFORMATION WANTED.

In view of the shortage of labour throughout the country the policy of the military authorities in holding men in the service who are medically unfit for overseas is hard to understand. At Fort Henry, Kingston, ther are many soldiers who have been returned from England or France as being of no military value there, and who are members of what was formerly the special service battalion and now known as the garrison battalion. These men are for the most part in C category, and as far as service overseas is concerned are of no further use. Many of them have positions to which they could go, but they are not being discharged, the authorities preferring to keep them loafing around the fort.

A recent order-in-council enacts that only men whose medical category is "C" can be discharged and returned to civil life, and the result is that the number of soldiers who are being kept in uniform and who will never be of any use as part of Canada's expeditionary force is steadily growing. In addition men who have been called out under the Military Service Act and whose category has been lowered by the medical boards from A or B to C are also being retained for the service, so that there will soon be a formidable army of men only fit for home service, each one costing the country as much as a man who is fit, and the policy adding considerably to the labour crisis.

A fuller explanation to the public on points such as these would seem to be advisable. There may be some good reason for holding men who apparently would be of more value in civilian life, and the Canadian people should be given the necessary information. At the same time an explanation of the necessity for the call to "B" men would be helpful in allaying some of the complaints. Men of this category are unfit for fighting units and are used largely in forestry and construction battalions, where the casualties are not so severe or the wastage so great, and for which the demand for men would not appear to be so urgent. In spite of the fact that the chief need of the hour is stated to be infantry reinforcements, the call for B category men seems to be more vigorously pushed than in the case of A men. In fact from the reports of the proceedings of tribunals, B men have had more trouble in securing exemption than had their fellow citizens who were pronounced fit for the firing line.

The need for men in this category may be great, but the rulers at Ottawa have not said so. They have reiterated the importance of supplying infantry men as reserves for the fighting forces in France, but nothing has been given out officially that reveals a similar demand for non-combatants.

CHECKING THE SUBS.

One of the most encouraging features of the war news during the past few days has been the evidence coming from different quarters that the effectiveness of the German submarine campaign is steadily declining. The measures taken by the British navy at Zeebrugge and Ostend have already had an effect, and Admiral Jellicoe's prediction that August would see the enemy's efforts effectively checked, seems likely to be confirmed. It is reassuring to hear from the French Minister of Marine that the situation is most favorable, and that the sinkings of submarines during the first three months of the present year, were far greater than the number built by the enemy. This result, M. Leygues accredits to the methodical character of the war against the under-sea boats; to the courage and spirit of the officers and men of the allied navies, and aerial forces, and to the intensification of the use of old methods and the employment of new ones.

"The sea front has no communique," says the French Minister of Marine. "The country does not know the terrible life there, when great events occur. Yet it is there that there is being played one of the parts which has the greatest influence on the duration and issue of the war. The country knows that mastery of the sea is the certain gauge of victory. It should also know that the mastery belongs to the allies, who have won it, and who will keep it, thanks to the heroism of the sailors, who are worthy of their soldier brothers."

From German sources also comes an indication that the unrestricted submarining is not having the results expected. In this connection the declaration of Herr Vogthier, in the Reichstag that "after fifteen months submarine warfare has not brought peace any nearer," is worthy of note.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Drinking the health of the Kaiser, will not be a popular amusement in the United States, since the sentencing of an American army sergeant to thirty years imprisonment for that unpatriotic action.

The authorities should investigate the report from New York that hundreds of Canadians are evading military service by hiding in the Maine forests. If it is true the men should be brought back, and if there is nothing in the story the libel on Canada's name should be wiped out.

Good old Ontario, always to the front in patriotic giving, has again shown the way in the Red Triangle campaign, contributing almost half of the Dominion's total. This province was responsible for nearly $1,500,000.

It is time a muzzle was purchased for Col. J. A. Currie. Since the Toronto Telegram started to boom him as the leader of the "ginger group," he has tried to live up to the title, and the result is that he bursts into a speech at the slightest provocation.

The farmers of South Dorchester, East Elgin constituency, do not believe in half-way measures. They have asked David Marshall, the member for the riding, either to protest against the changes in the Military Service Act or else resign.

MUSIC AS RECREATION

Recreation is essential for the health and well-being of the family, and music is essential for a recreation that is totally relaxing and instructive.

Are you doing without music in the home because no one plays? In these days of marvelous inventions, that is no excuse for the lack of music.

There are people who have been wise enough to purchase player-pianos, organs and phonographs, slightly used, therefore cheaper, by securing them through Heintzman Hall, Peterborough, Royal Bank Buildings, Hunter Street.—B. H. Britton, Manager. 'Phone 258.

FROM MY WINDOW

BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS

A window apart from its functions—supplying light and air—is usually made from the point of view of the best natural outlook.

From this last aspect, this window should never have existed, for it looks out on the brown side of a hut, with the dry sward lying between. Nevertheless this window does look beyond. It opens into a changed and changeable world. Faces and figures and people are familiar, the same as before, but they are doing different things, wearing different clothes, and keeping strange hours, and with this fundamental change—they wear a different look. It is detachment. The future holds war, the past is gone and they live from day to day, detached and isolated.

For a year I have looked out of this window and watched a world with its changes of incredible swiftness.

Internally I have seen the progression of our own work, and externally watched that which is our "reason d'etre," and the changeableness of this outside world has made certainty, fickle.

A year ago to-day twenty-five girls came to this convoy to take it over from the men. They were not welcome—for it meant the line for the majority of the men, and consequently difficulties which spring from a mental attitude such as that had to be overcome.

Looking back upon the first two weeks is like looking at a city through a mist—they were gloomy enough, but through the distant space of time they remain a pleasant memory. The weather was bad—cold, wet, dull; the ground muddy, and everything filthy and untidy. Fortunately, our interest, enthusiasm and desire to avoid failure—for it is that, and not success, for which one strives here—were so great that this drab side was forgotten.

At first all was strange and new. We saw ourselves, perhaps for the first time, from quite a different point of view. We soon realized that in this work, individuals do not exist, except in so far as they add to the power of the whole.

Soon more girls arrived and the day came when the men left and the "new convoy" began to move. We were given a great opportunity of showing that we could fill an empty shell with life and strength, and do a work that was worth doing well with little apparent effort.

From a poor organization we evolved a convoy—the best in points of work, discipline and appearance.

The work was (and is) strenuous, and very early we came in for long hours, for soon after we arrived we had the Vimy Ridge and Arras push. This meant day and night on end, and no one who was through it, will ever forget, or regret it.

Our plan of working is very satisfactory. We are in four sections of twenty-five each; two work at night, and two during the day, with hours from eight to eight. Thus a section is always on twelve hours and off twelve hours, except during a push.

The day shifts and the night shifts change every two weeks; consequently there is less monotony, and a fairer division is made in the work. At night nearly all the trains come in, and the evacuations take place. During the day, the day sections have calls and the cars to keep, with an occasional train or evacuation.

The cars are well kept; clean and in good running order. This last—the running repairs—is a fair work in itself, apart from the cleaning, as the cars are shared by the night and day sections, and are used the twenty-four hours.

The work is so regular and mechanical that changes are not noticed at the moment but after a year they can be fully appreciated—such changes as the efficiency of the work and the appearance of the convoy.

The sand has been made more compact with chalk and cinders, which have been well rolled in; the ground is now free from rags, papers, blankets, petrol tins, odd tools, etc. Instead of filth and mud, it is now comparatively dry under foot, even after a rain. The cars are kept in regular and straight lines; nothing is left lying about, and wherever it is possible flower beds have sprung up, and now it is a model in cleanliness and neatness, and the work has reached a high standard. So much for the internal view from my window.

The external view reveals changes which are on a greater scale, and changes with which the individual has nothing to do. When we arrived, we found we were in the centre of a large hospital area, a big military base and the largest training camp over here. The very centre of activities where work never stops.

Throughout the night ambulances come and go, quietly accomplishing their work. The hospitals are busy receiving and evacuating patients. Along the road is heard the foot tramp of thousands of men marching to and from the training grounds. Early in the morning as the day breaks, the reveille is heard from the hospitals and the camps—now far, now near.

Gradually the hollowness of the night passes. Sounds are not so sharp—instead, there is the steady dull buzz of a world awake.

Troops appear everywhere, marching in hundreds; traffic police take up their solitary position at each intersection of the roads; the ration lorries begin their daily routes; motor cycles rip past; aeroplanes hum high in the heavens, the life of the day has begun, the mystic strange life of the night passed away at dawn.

Later a new people appeared. American hospitals had come, and the United States' uniforms formed one with those of sisters' "V.A.D.'s," "W.A.A.C's," the English Tommy, and the Canadian, the Australian, the New Zealander, the French and the Portuguese. Hospitals grew silently; hut after hut appeared, and no one seemed to realize.

Later there was a greater change, but even it was not apparent at the time—the training camp was moved; the base and training schools alone remained. No longer did the roads swarm with thousands of men, marching to and from their training.

This vast area of sand trampled by millions of men learning the art of modern warfare, is now a peaceful potato patch, thereby gaining in beauty what it has lost in interest. Vast numbers of Kaffirs, the big labour battalion which lays the rails, digs the drains, etc., suddenly disappeared from our scene.

They melted away so quietly their absence was not noticed until the strangely picturesque Chinese appeared, and then we realized our black man had gone.

Now, this loosely-clad yellow race is everywhere, working, chattering and chanting their peculiar songs, and so it goes on, an everlasting pageant, picturesque and interesting; changeable and uncertain; pathetic and sad.

Canadian Overseas.

March 7th, 1917, to March 7th, 1918.

And two weeks later—

Change is the one certainty in our present existence. The last great battle extended even to these outskirts.

Once more the road and camp were filled with thousands of men—men dazed and weary from the recent struggle—men who had lost their units in the great retreat, and had nowhere to go.

Waggons, lorries and horses by the hundreds trailed slowly past for days bringing what supplies they could from the hospitals in the zone of this terrible destruction.

Refugees with little but their lives; men and women who had valiantly returned to their old homes and had begun once more to make a home and till their soil.

Once again they were cast upon the highway, brought down with the tide from the great avalanche of destruction.

Day and night unceasingly ambulances worked filling the hospitals with the wounded and the dying.

Men with one cry, "It is not war; it is murder!"

Canadian Overseas.

Lieut. Gordon Matthews Gave An Interesting Address Last Night At Murray Street Baptist Church

A VIMY RIDGE

A large audience attended the meeting of the Baptist Young People's Union last night in Murray street Baptist church when a very pleasant and profitable evening was spent. Solos were rendered by Miss Ida Sanderson and Mr. Douglas Carlisle. The speaker of the evening was Lieutenant Gordon Matthews, who was introduced to those present by Miss Florence Scott, the chairlady for the evening. Lieutenant Matthews, who has recently arrived from the front, took for his subject, "At the Front in France."

A very short time elapses now for a soldier to arrive at the front line trenches, said Lieut. Matthews. He is given a short training in Canada and then embarked on a transport for England. He wears a life-belt all the way across and is carefully instructed in life-boat drill. This is the time when the recruit experiences his first fear just as he nears the danger zone, with the cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers on both sides, criss-crossing before and aft. In England he receives a very short training and is again put on a transport for France.

On French troops trains you may arrive at the front in one day or perhaps six, you never can tell. If you were extremely fortunate you would get a passenger car with a baggage car for the kits. But if you received the same treatment as me you would be shoved in a car with no windows and with all the kits piled around you you would be hardly to move your knee. When you first arrive you don't really know anything about fighting. But you don't say anything as you don't want to show your ignorance.

Motor Batteries.

While "over there" I was attached to a Trench Mortar Battery, said the speaker. There are three types of mortars; ther are the light mortars, which are operated by the infantry, the "medium," which I was attached to, operated by the artillery, and the heavy mortars which make a shell crater 20 feet deep and 25 feet across. The "mediums" have a range of about only 500 yards and the projectile is visible throughout the whole of its flight. Because of this it is very important to conceal the battery. The Germans find out the line of fire and would immediately bomb us. The best way is to bury the gun, but you should always leave two entrances, one to escape if they do get the right range. But we usually put them in the front line trenches. After making two emplacements we fire from the front emplacement say ten rounds, then move back to the second emplacement while the Germans gleefully bombard the first emplacement. The German mortars are not as good as ours. Their light ones are called "pineapples" ad their medium ones "oilcans." We usually use the shell that explodes when hitting the ground, but the Germans use the time fuse only.

The Canadians were the originators of trench raids on the western front, and we have always held the superiority both over the Germans, and the French "poilu" and the British Tommy.

The Barrage Fire.

In the barrage fire the infantry cooperate most closely with the artillery. At a certain time each gun bombards its alloted area of German trench and just as suddenly they stop and you can see the infantry cover the top into No Man's Land and into the German trenches before they have recovered from the gruelling which they received from the barrage, which just as suddenly has started on the German second line trenches. In this way they are overpowered before they can use their machine guns. In this operation we usually sustain a 5 p.c. loss of our effectives from our own guns, but if the Germans were allowed to use their machine guns our loss would be easily 40 p.c.

In winter the troops are supplied with a small amount of rum. Many people are mistaken about this rum. It is not given to instil false courage. It is given after a hard days' work when tired and hungry. In the ordinary dug out the soldier could not sleep, but a small amount of rum he gets the rest which he certainly needs.

Fireworks Display.

There is a wonderful display of fireworks when the artillery opens up. The Germans have flares which in their excitement they let off in thousands in variegated colours. The white flare is used to see. But the others are used as signals. These flares are fired from pistols like an old cavalry revolver. At the front they don't use flags to signal. The telephone is everywhere. From the front line trenches to battalian headquarters back to divisional headquarters. The Germans have sound instruments in the ground so that is is necessary to use care near the front lines.

The British soldier is the best-fed soldier in the world. Bread is cooked at the base, sent on trains the same day, and arrives in the trenches the same day. You could see a whole train of bread, one of meat and then one perhaps of forage. The trains are met by horse transports who, in turn, are met by ration parties, who take supplies right to front line trenches.

Front Lines.

The present the front lines are very tightly held. At first we had 10 men to the German's one. But this was too dangerous. If a shell fell we might have ten casualties to the enemy's one. Most of the men are back of the lines and are brought up if a battle is impending.

For the battle of Vimy we commenced preparations in January, and the engineers and sappers a year before us, although the battle did not commence until the ninth of April. At night the infantry collected in specially prepared tunnels and then the barrage began.

In the front line trenches between 5 o'clock and dusk you can see the aeroplanes cavorting in all directions. It is most thrilling to see a battle in the air.

A soldier stays in the front line trenches six days, six days in support and six days in rest camps. The trenches are 500 yards apart, linked together by communication trenches.

War Trophies.

Lieutenant Matthews had a large collection of war trophies which he and a fellow officer had obtained from the front. They were very interesting. He showed a German gas mask, British gas mask German forage cap, German officers' helmet, officer's revolver, flare pistol, German belt buckle with "Gott Mit Uns" inscribed on it, German field glasses, German long bayonet, German rifle grenade, sight of a German machine gun, French pom-poms, small German automatic pistol and the sight of a sniper's rifle.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. J. Wearing and seconded by Miss Sage, which was heartily approved by those present.

Applying This Paste Actually Removes Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Merely applying an inexpensive paste to a hairy surface, say beauty specialists, will dissolve the hairs. This paste is made by mixing a little water with some powdered delatone; after about 2 minutes it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple method not only removes every trace of hair, but leaves the skin free from blemish. To insure success with this treatment, be careful to get real delatone.

MEAT GOING HIGHER EAT MORE FISH

The only flesh substitute for meat in large quantities is FISH. The Allies must have more Meat. Patriotism calls for the use of more FISH, which is cheaper than Meats and Eggs. Obey the call.

We can supply you with any quantity of many kinds of FISH in good condition, either by the pound or the whole fish.

Joseph F. Sheehan Discovers His Own Rival

It is not customary for a grand opera star to make a rival for himself, but Joseph F. Sheehan is as unusual as a man as he is as a singer, so when, three years ago, a young tenor, John W. Warren, came to him for advice he heard him sing and since then has given to the American public another tenor voice which will make operatic history in America.

John W. Warren is still a young man, but his success has only begun, as Mr. Sheehan wanted his protege to be ready before he introduced him to the public as his alternate. That he is ready is evident by the praise which he has won from critical musicians during the past years, and Peterborough will have the unique pleasure of hearing America's foremost star and his own rival in the principal tenor role during the engagement of the Boston English Opera Company, at the Grand Monday, May 20th.

Council Wants Street Railway To Haul Freight In Peterboro'

Following Ald. Worth's Representation of Local Needs, Deputation Will Interview Hydro-Power Commission in Toronto —Would Be a Boon to Railways and Factories.

The hauling of freight by the Street Railway was advocated by Ald. Worth at the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council. He was confident that the facility would greatly benefit the the railways and local manufacturers, and that it should prove a business asset to the local Street Railway. The Bonner-Worth Company had recently paid $350 demurrage charges which had piled up through inability quickly to unload many cars of coal, wood and other supplies. They had all arrived at the same time, the company had hired all the available teamsters, but despite their effort the company had been unable to escape a big demurrage bill.

"We are up against it for a siding," Ald. Worth said. "In other cities the street cars haul freight and we should urge the Hydro-Electric Power Commission to take up this work. It would relieve the railways and would greatly help the manufacturers."

Ald. Worth added that to run a siding to the Bonner-Worth factory from the G.T.R., a bridge would have to be built over the creek. The work would entail great expense and was practically prohibitive.

City Clerk Armstrong remarked that if the Street Railway would haul freight cars many factory sites that are at present inaccessible from the railways would become available for manufacturing purposes.

Ald. Worth moved, seconded by Ald. Jones that the Council interview the Hydro Commission, requesting them to haul freight over the Street Railway lines. It is likely that a strong deputation will carry this petition to Toronto in the near future.

PRESENTATION TO A SMITH TOWNSHIP BOY

Lieut. Lorne Cann Was Presented With a Wrist Watch

An address, accompanied by a wrist watch was presented to Lieut. Lorne Cann, of Smith Township, who is about to leave for overseas. The presentation was made on behalf on the Lily Lake Sunday school.

The Address.

Lieut. Lorne Cann, C.E.F.,
Smith Township.

Dear Friend,—It has been intimated to us that you are now home on your last leave before going overseas in the service of our King and country. Although during the last few years you were absent in the pursuit of your duties, we feel that you are still one of us, and as you go to perform your duty, we are losing one of "our boys."

In remembrance of your school days we ask you to accept this token of our esteem and good will and we earnestly hope that you and your comrades may meet with every success in the defeat of our enemies; that you may enjoy continued good health and a safe and speedy return, when peace, so long hoped for and so dearly bought, will reign once more throughout the civilized world.

A. W. Ackison,
J. C. Swinton.

11th May, 1918.

Miss Sadie Edmison read the address and Mr. Archie Ackison made the presentation.

"The Heart Of A Friend"

"The Heart of a Friend" a clever little play presented last night by St. Peter's Dramatic Society at St. Alphonsus Lyceum, was warmly received by a fair audience. The whole entertainment was carried out most satisfactory by the talented members of the cast and afforded a delightfully amusing evening for all who were fortunate enough to see it. The cast quite upheld the splendid record made by previous theatrical ventures.

The Play

The play centres about a deep rooted plot of the misguided son of a rich father Oliver Irving (Mr. Ted Hanrahan) to throw the blame of a theft upon the shoulders of an innocent victim Verne Gale (Wm. B. Casey). Everything works out satisfactorily and the mystery clears up by the father forgiving his son.

The Effects.

The scenery was very cleverly arranged, especially good was the fire scene in which a realistic touch has lent by clever manoeuvering of electrical effects as the hero Verne Gale dashes in to save his employer from death. Most effective was the vision and song "Don't Leave Your Mother," when as the hero muses over his fate, the window curtains open and in a dim light a family group tableau of three, sang the song.

Mr. Edward Hanrahan's solo "Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight" was as customarily received with great applause.

THE CAUSE OF BACKACHES

Every muscle in the body needs a supply of rich, red blood in proportion to the work it does. The muscles of the back are under a heavy strain and have but little rest. When the blood is thin they lack nourishment and rebel. The result is a sensation of pain in these muscles.

Many people are frightened into believing that backaches are due to kidney trouble, but the best medical authorities agree that backache is very seldom due to kidney trouble. In fact not more than one backache in a hundred has anything to do with the kidneys. The whole trouble is due to thin or impure blood, and those who are troubled with pains in the back or loins, either frequent or occasional should look to the condition of the blood. It will be found in most cases that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills by building up the blood and feeding the starved nerve and muscles will banish the pains and make you feel better in every other way. How much better it is to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for your blood than to give way to unreasonable alarm about your kidneys. If you really suspect your kidneys any doctor can make tests in ten minutes, that will set your fears at rest, or tell you the worst.

All dealers in medicine sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TO HELP FARMER'S WIFE

Mr. T. M. Molley, Labour Commissioner of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture, speaking recently, stated: "Many of our town and city women desire to go to the farms and engage in the more spectacular work of driving teams or running tractors. The place where our women are needed today is in the kitchen of our farms, helping the farmer's wife. I am sure that the women of our cities and towns only need to know the extreme seriousness of the situation and they would volunteer for the kitchen work as our men are volunteering for land and trench work."

MAYOR GOES TO OTTAWA TO URGE THE EARLY OPENING OF CANAL

Quaker Oats Company Interested and Will Co-operate With the City—Campbellford Also Wishes to Participate in the Event.

Mayor Duncan and City Clerk Armstrong went to Ottawa last night to urge upon Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways and Canals, an early, formal opening of the canal from Lake Ontario to Peterborough.

At the Committee of the Whole meeting last night, the Mayor told the Council that Mr. Robert Stuart of the Quaker Oats Company had expressed the hope that the city would not cease its efforts to arrange a formal opening in the near future. Mr. J. H. Burnham has frequently written the Council pointing out the significance of a public ceremony for the opening, and its importance to Peterborough.

The Quaker Oats Company propose to use their own barges for transporting grain, but also indicate the city's interest and are ready to co-operate in order that the event may reflect the advantages which the canal brings to Peterborough. Mr. W. H. Denham arranged last night to accompany the Council's representatives to Ottawa, and it was hoped that Hon. Dr. Reid would consent to participating in the proposed ceremony. It has been suggested that the Minister and other officials would sail from Lake Ontario up the canal, arriving here for the opening. Campbellford has expressed a desire to take part in the event, and other communities on the Trent Waterway are expected to fall in line.

Ugh! Acid Stomach, Sourness, Heartburn, Gas Or Indigestion

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into acids and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin helps neutralize the excessive acids in the stomach so your food won't sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is upset you usually get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it helps to regulate your stomach so you can eat your favourite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Pape's Diapepsin" is positive in neutralizing the acidity, so the misery ... You'll realize how quickly ... You feel different as soon as Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cents case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder, due to acid fermentation.

93rd Instruments Go To Veterans

Council Decided Last Night to Transfer Them—A Harmonious Conference

The City Council in Committee of the Whole last night decided to transfer the 93rd Battalion band instruments to the Great War Veterans' Association, after a brief and harmonious conference with the following committee representing the Veterans and the Societies that largely contributed to the band instrument fund: Colonel Johnston, Walter Hughes, Sidney Whatley, Adjutant McElhiney, R. Devey, J. H. Renwick, J. W. Worth and Captain Morrison.

The agreement submitted by the Veterans under which they would accept the instruments, presented only two clauses that were different from the city's agreement which the Veterans had refused. Last night both of them were accepted with a show of good feeling that effectively breached whatever gap had developed between the "parties of the first and second parts."

Secretary Whatley said that the Veterans were willing to pay the insurance on the instruments, the policy to be payable to the city. An understanding was arrived at on the question of the Veterans' band responding to calls from the city. On all public occasions or demonstrations the Veterans will play at the call of the mayor, providing the Veterans have not a prior engagement of their own; that is, if they themselves are not celebrating. Mr Whatley stated that there might be a convention of Veterans here on a holiday. Naturally, they would need the band for such affairs.

Mayor Duncan—We would not think of calling the men out on days that were not holidays. They might some time be called out in the evening.

The Mayor said he had been told the Veterans intended to ignore Mayor the Council.

Mr. Whatley—Don't pay attention to everything you hear.

Mayor Duncan—We have the interests of the Veterans at heart as much as anyone else in the city.

Mr. Whatley—We are very glad to hear it, sir.

Mr. Hughes explained that the Veterans had lost six bandsmen recently and that the council should not call the men out for at least six months by which time it was expected other men would be here.

IF DARCY WAS A SLACKER WHAT ARE WILLARD AND FULTON?

Readers will recall, says the Vancouver World, with what contempt Leslie Darcy, the Australian boxer, was hounded through the United States as a "slacker." During his ill-starred tour of the Republic, whither he had come from under the Southern Cross in search of a fortune with which he could endow the declining years of his aged mother, he was target for scornful epithets and cold-shouldered reflections. Finally he went to a hospital and, with a plea on his lips that he had intended to join the army after he had secured one big American purse, he died. Then came the sob-squad that had previously condemned him, and told everyone, as is the trick of human nature after a man is beyond the stabs of the dagger tongues, what a fine fellow Darcy was at heart. Everyone was sorry. Obituary notices should speak no ill.

Having the fate of Darcy in mind, it is not out of place to call attention to the negotiations which are under way for the Willard-Fulton bout. Here are two giants who have both gained fortunes in the prize ring. They could earn (?) enough money to live for the rest of their lives by a few months in vaudeville. But for months past they have been endeavouring to work up interest in a heavyweight battle, and finally they have signed articles. So far the location of the arena has not yet been decided. Several state governors have forbidden the exhibition, but from other states offers have come. There has been no outcry over the bout in the American press. The two big bruisers, who might well take Canadian Jack Munroe as an example, have not been called slackers, as was Darcy.

SPORTING COMMENT

At Binghamton on Sunday the crowd was so large that ground rules had to be made.

A pitching duel on Sunday between Inzman, of Cleveland, formerly of Newark, and Williams, the Chicago White Sox, won when Tris Speaker made a poor play on Gandil's single.

"Joe" Jackson, of the Chicago White Sox, has been examined by the military authorities and has been pronounced as 100 per cent. sound.

Fred Fulton, claimant of the heavyweight championship of the world, has received no word that his proposed match with Jess Willard has been called off.

WET CLOTHES CAUSED FIRE ON DONEGAL STREET.

As a result of some wet clothes being left in a box a fire started at the home of Samuel Baushain, 540 Donegal Street. Spontaneous combustion resulted, and the whole box burst into flames. It was about 2.30 yesterday afternoon, and the father was at work at the Quaker Oats. The mother had left her three children, aged 5, 4, and 1 years old, alone in the house. The fire was speedily extinguished by the Fire Brigade, and the damage was slight.

Petitions Do Not Carry Much Weight With Review Tribunal

"I Venture to Say Hundreds Would Sign a Petition to Hang Me" Said His Honour Judge Huycke.

LIST OF CASES

Petitions avail little with the review tribunal and when Mr. Bullock of Cavan suggested such this morning, his Honour Judge Huycke told him petitions were useless and easy to get. "I venture to say hundreds would sign one to hang me" he said, greatly to the amusement of the court.

The first case of plenty of available men for the farm was told of by Mr. Nesbitt, who could have hired several, who applied asking $30 and $35 a month this spring.

Thrasher and Farmer

Gordon Bullock, Baileybow, age 24, asked exemption because of his services as a farmer and thrasher on t 100 acre farm 80 acres broken. He and his father run 2 threshing machines. His father appeared for him and reported that the country can't do without him. "That's what General Currie says" said his Honour He will probably go.

One Will go.

Herbert Lord, Baileybow, age 21, supports a crippled brother mother and sister. He showed considerable industry as a farmer working a 200 acre farm and raising a number of cattle. The boy is willing to go, but for his domestic ties. Either Herbert or his young brother Walter will have to go probably, both cannot be taken.

John McCorkey, Lakefield, age 28, had slight deaf trouble. He works a 100 acre farm with his father and has one brother drafted, which left his farm to be attended to also. He will probably be given until July 1st to see the government inspector. His father who appeared made a strong plea through proof of extensive farming operation.

A Difficult Case

James Trotter, Clydesdale, age 28, wanted exemption to pursue his farming operations on a 100 acre farm, he rented in September. He was married in March, has two brothers are "E" another an invalid.

Decision deferred.

Joseph Maloney, Lakefield, sought exemption on grounds of domestic as well as farming grounds. He works 150 acres owned by his father The case is to be considered.

George O'Brien, age 22, was represented by his employer, R. H. Nesbitt. George was detained on the farm to finish ploughing. Mr. Nesbitt could have hired countless men at $30 a month.—Decision is deferred.

Sergeant Norman Saxby Was Hit In Leg By Machine Gun Bullet

In a Letter Home He Describes the Circumstances That Placed Him on the Casualty List.

NOW IN HOSPITAL

Mr. William Saxby, 352 Smith street, has received the following interesting letter from his son, Sergeant Norman Saxby, who a short time ago was reported wounded the second time.

The Letter.

The letter follows:

My Dear Dad,—This is perhaps the first opportunity which I have had since I have been wounded, of writing you, giving you details.

I was in the front line when I got wounded. To be more exact, I was out on patrol in front of our wire in No Man's Land when 'Fritizie' suddenly opened on us, and I got a machine bullet through the lower part of the right leg. As my leg was absolutely useless I had some time in crawling back to our line through our wire. When I got there the stretcher bearer fixed me up, and four husky chums of mine soon had me on a stretcher and carried me to a dressing station, where I got in a "Blighty waggon," which took me on to a big dressing station, where I was ticketed for Rouen. But I had an operation before I went. Awfully nasty!

I was in an American hospital at Rouen. Some speed to them. They used me fine and soon marked me for Blighty. Bless 'em.

So after a rather tedious journey on train and boat I landed in this hospital, which seems to be thoroughly Canadian in every respect, including the staff. I have written uncle and told him all about it, so I may get a visit from him some day soon.

I do not feel very much inclined to write. I seem to be tired and want to sleep all the time. Perhaps you have gathered from the papers what kind of a time we are having? It has been hell for a time and I need a rest. Must close for now. Love to all.

Both Arthur and Willie Are Beaten by Australian Rider.

NEWARK, N. J., May 14.— Arthur Spencer, the National champion, was beaten here in a mile match race by Bob Spears, the lady Australian. It was Spencer's first match of the season, and after winning the first heat he went down to defeat in the next two, due to the wonderful sprinting ability of the Australian rider.

Spears then surprised the fans by coming out and winning the five-mile open race, in which he defeated the other half of the Spencer family, Willie. Spears went into the lead on the last lap, and was never headed, although Willie made a game effort to catch him, and finished a close second. John Bedell was third, Willie Hanley fourth, and Jake Magin fifth.

IN MEMORIAM.

SCOTT.—In Loving Memory of Pte. Nicholas Scott, who fell at Vimy Ridge, May 8th, 1917

Farewell, dear Nephew, kind and true,
Here lonely hearts still mourns for you;
In sunny France, in a distant grave,
You are numbered with the true and brave.

To a loving mother and father too,
When your country called you bid adieu,
To cross the seas to a distant land
For King and Country, so great and grand.

Your little brothers and sisters too,
With loving hearts, still pray for you,
That in heaven, we'll meet among the blest,
God grant your soul in peace may rest.

Brazil Plans To Take An Active Part In The War

Sir John Aird, En Route From Trip in South, Says Preparations Are Made—Opinion in Southern Country Is That Country Will Be in Fight Early.

NAVY GUARDS THE COAST

AN ATLANTIC PORT, May 15.—Brazil is planning to take an active part in the war against Germany within a short time, possibly by the end of this summer, declared Sir John Aird, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, of Toronto, who arrived here with Lady Aird on a steamer from South America.

Sir John has been in South America for several months. He went to Rio de Janeiro and crossed by rail to Montevideo. He declared there is a great improvement in conditions in South America.

"Finances are 100 per cent. better than they were a year ago," he reclared. "The people of Brazil are strongly pro-ally," he said.

"They realize there are thousands of young men in the country who could fight. They are asking, in an increased clamor, 'why, if we have declared war on Germany, don't we go over and do something?' Throughout Brazil the opinion prevails that before the summer is over the country will certainly take some active part in the war.

"At present ships of the Brazilian navy, including submarines, are guarding a great deal of the South American coast."

Plan Pan-American Federation.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has appointed a commission to go to Mexico to establish friendly relations between organized labor in Mexico and the United States. This is one of the first steps planned in the formation of a pan-American Federation, including all South American countries.

Charges Repington Inspired Maurice's Attack On Lloyd George

London, May 14. — "The French are following the development of the Maurice controversy with natural interest and some anxiety," wires the Paris correspondent of the Times in the Echo de Paris finds:

"Pertinax," the well known writer "The powerful spring moving the whole affair is the personal, implacable, irremediable hatred borne by Col. Repington to the new Chief of the Imperial General Staff, General Wilson."

"Pertinax says proof that Col. Repington is the real inspirator of the Maurice letter is in the venomous articles published under his name since January. He continues: 'If there is a man who has not the right to attack Gen. Wilson it is Col. Repington. A quarrel separated them in the past, when both were serving together in the same regiment. The military writer is truly ill-advised in subordinating to it his whole public activity. At such an hour his spirit of revenge is inexcusable.'

"Pertinax concludes: 'We have no desire to express an opinion as to the solution of these questions of persons, but we have the right to express aloud our hope that at the Commons sitting no leader or party will be found to reopen the question of unity of command, or of military measures taken since March 21. The splitting up of command is the direct cause of what happened to France at the end of March. On those who willed it, whatever their motive, falls the responsibility for the reverse sustained." ed.'"

PLANT LICE.

Plant lice are the enemies of almost all kinds of plants. They are known as "Aphis" and "Green Fly." They attack and destroy vegetables at an appalling rate, living solely on the juice which they suck from the plants. They multiply rapidly and should be controlled before they cause the leaves to curl or the stems to wither.

Vegetable plants cannot produce crops of value if they are allowed to become weakened as a result of the attack of plant lice. They make their appearance early in the season and as soon as they are noticed the plants should be sprayed either with whale-oil soap (one pound dissolved in six gallons of warm water) or commercial nicotine sulphate (40 per cent.) as sold by seedsmen and as recommended on the cans. Half a pound of laundry soap should be dissolved in every ten gallons of water.

ROOT MAGGOTS.

If you are planting out cabbage and cauliflowers this week they should be protected from root maggot attack by placing around the stems a disc made of one-ply tarred felt paper. For small gardens, square discs may be cut with a sharp knife. These should be 2 1-2 inches by 2 1-2 inches, with a slit running from one side to about a quarter of an inch beyond the centre and a cross cut made at the centre extending one-quarter of an inch in either side. The discs should be placed around the stems immediately the plants are set out. In placing the disc one side is raised sufficiently to allow the parts of the star at the end of the slit to point upwards and thus fit close to the stem.

The whole disc is then pressed down firmly so that it will rest evenly on the ground and prevent the adult flies reaching the stem near the earth to lay their eggs from which the maggots develop.

HEART WAS BAD NERVES ALL GONE

Very important it is in this age to have a clear cool head, a strong heart and steady nerves.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry, fall to the lot of women attending to their household duties and social obligations. The constant strain under which they continue day in and day out will soon shatter the strongest system. Before long the heart gets weak, flutters and palpitates, the nerves become unstrung, you start at the least sound, the pulse becomes weak and irregular, then finally comes physical breakdown or nervous prostration.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the remedy you require to strengthen your heart and steady your nerves.

Mrs. Jackson, 457 Bolivar St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Fifteen years ago I was so bad with my heart I could not walk across the house, my nerves were literally all gone, and I was frightened at my shadow. I commenced to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and was soon able to do my own work. I have told dozens of people about them, some as bad as I was, and to-day they are also doing their own work. If more people would take them there would not be so many weak hearts."

Volunteers Wanted

To Aid in the Work of Registration of the Men and Women Power of the Dominion of Canada

The Government has ordered a registration with the above object of the whole population of the Dominion of the age of sixteen years and over. And to be completed on Saturday, June 22nd, next. Persons will be required to fill in papers and afterwards to receive a card, or certificate of registration to be kept and carried on the person for reference when required.

The work involved is much more extensive than that of a Dominion election, for instance. Instead of from fifty to seventy voting places in the West Riding, (which includes the city) over 250 will be required. And the Government asks loyal men and women to come forward and make the registration a voluntary work for the good of the Commonwealth.

Volunteers are required, indeed imperatively needed. It is not a call for money but for service. Service that can be given at little personal deprivation to those who participate. There are thousands of people who can assist. Why not volunteer? Men and Women.

You are asked to pledge that you will give your time on Registration Day and, where it can be made use of, on as many as from two to five evenings during the week, that is the week beginning with June 17th. Say on the days of the week from 4 to 6 o'clock. In others from 4 to 6 on to 9 o'clock. As the work will be planned and apportioned.

The pledge is a written evidence of your willingness to serve, and will be so recognized by the Central Board. The card is an individual statement for service, instead of a signature on a sheet of paper with other signatures. Will you be one?

City Hall.	Kent's Drug Store.
Madill's Drug Store.	St. Peter's T. A. S.
Post Office.	Sullivan's Drug Store, E. City.
Y. M. C. A.	The City Post Office.
J. J. Turner & Sons.	The Public Library.
J. T. Bramd.	Lynch's Drug Store.
McDermid & Jury's Drug Store.	Moncur's Drug Store.
Nugent's Drug Store.	E. L. Payne's Drug Store.
Weber's Drug Store.	The Warne Drug Co.

Following is the form of Pledge Card:

Volunteer's Pledge Card

1—Will you act as Dep. Registrar, or Asst. Dep. Registrar, without pay, on Registration Day .....

2—Registration Day is to be divided into three shifts, of 5 hours each. Will you serve for two of these shifts ..... If not for two, will you serve for one ..... And which .....

3—What evenings in the week previous to Registration Day, (17th and to 21st June) will you serve .....

4—Will you serve for any part of the days previous to Registration Day ..... If so, what part, and on what days .....

Name ..... Phone, (if any) .....

Address, (home) .....

It may be explained that "Shifts" mean that the hours of registration have been arranged as follows, in order that the taking of the record may be continuous during all of 15 hours of Registration Day.

From 7 a.m. to 12 noon, 12 noon to 5 p.m. 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. So that each place will have to be equipped with sufficient number of persons to relieve one another and let the work go forward continuously.

All cards must be turned in from all places by May 20th.

Full and further instructions will be given so on as the Volunteer's Roll is completed.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

THE OUTSTRETCHED HAND

CHAPTER LXVII.

I spent the morning with Celeste, unpacking and putting my things away. I had not become accustomed to a personal maid, and I did many things myself which really were a part of her duties. All the time we were working the thought of my home-coming was with me. The longer I thought of it the more cruel it seemed that George would even think of making an engagement when he had made me promise to be at home on that certain day.

In the afternoon a cold drizzle set in, making me even more unhappy. Just as I conceived the idea of putting on a rain coat and starting out for a walk the bell rang and James announced Merton Gray.

I hurried down to the drawing room and as I entered, Merton advanced, his hand outstretched and a light of welcome on his face.

"It is good to have you back. We have missed you," he said still retaining my hand.

"It is nice to be missed and welcomed," I said, suddenly cheered by the thought that someone was glad to see me.

"I was not sure that you would be at home. Mr. Howard said last night that you had not yet arrived."

"No. He had gone to the dinner before I got here. Were you there?"

A STUPID DINNER PARTY.

"Yes; I wished several times I had not gone. It was an awfully stupid affair. Madge Loring's dinners are usually very gay; but she had a British lion and he did nothing but roar. He was as stupid and uninteresting as it is possible for a person to be. But he is some great scientific explorer and Madge Loring always tries to catch any notables before the other women get a chance."

I wondered why George did not talk to me of the things that happened. He had not said a word about any famous person being at the dinner. It was nice to have Merton Gray tell me things. George had had nothing to say to me except "How do you do?" and I had been gone for almost two weeks.

It seemed to me that Merton Gray was the most thoughtful, the most interesting man I ever had met. He could do almost anything and do it well. Or so it seemed to me. Among other accomplishments he possessed was a wonderful baritone voice. He sang so well that people said that had he not been an artist he would have been in grand opera.

I spoke of my good times at home; of the boys, our pleasures—simple though they were. Then seeing him interested I rambled on. I told him of racing David to the top of Brundel's hill, and how badly I was beaten. Of the church social where everyone seemed so glad to see me — although I imagined he never had known anything about what a social in a small country place was like. He asked so many questions.

James brought us tea and lighted the candles after a while. Then he left me. He had spoken of some new songs, and asked if he might bring them, next time that he came, adding that we might practice them together.

A TASTE IN COMMON.

Musicians always have a delightful means of whiling away the time, when together. I was only too delighted to give Merton permission to bring the songs. I read very quickly, and had always been called a good accompanist. I saw many pleasant times ahead for me because of this.

My ennui, my unhappiness, was all gone. I ran up stairs to dress for dinner, singing as I went. The hour Merton had spent with me dispersed all my hurt, even that caused by George's neglect. So I dressed becomingly and hurried down to meet him as I heard his key in the door.

"How bright and well you look," he said as he kissed me. "Took my advice and rested a while, didn't you?"

"I didn't lie down, but I rested. Mr. Gray came in about four o'clock. He said that you had a British lion at Mrs. Loring's dinner party and that he roared all the time."

"He did."

"Were you interested?"

"Not much. Was Gray?"

"No; not at all. He said it was stupid."

"He was not far out of the way."

"And George, you know how wonderfully Mr. Gray sings! He said if we would like him to he would bring some new songs and I could accompany him. I told him of course to bring them. I hope that you will be at home when he does. You are such a judge of music I am always a little frightened to play before you; but I know that you would enjoy his singing. He's perfectly wonderful."

"You are very enthusiastic," George replied, then changed the subject. I hoped that he wasn't displeased because of Merton.

To-morrow: An Evening of Self-Pity."

FOUGHT IN SERBIAN RANKS

Bravery of Irish Woman Rewarded by Highest Decoration Crown Prince Could Bestow.

Sergt. Maj. Flora Sandes, an Irish woman who for two years has been serving with the gallant Serbian army, is now in London on leave of absence for a few weeks.

"In August, 1914, I went to Serbia as a nurse," she said, when asked to tell something of her war experiences. "After the terrible retreat in which I took part I joined the regimental ambulance. When cut off from that I obtained permission to join the Serbian army as a private. For two years I was in the thick of most of the fighting. At the taking of Hill 1212 (Macedonian front) a hand grenade exploded near me and I fell badly wounded. My company, which was in advance of our main body, was outnumbered by the Bulgarians, but they refused to fall back when ordered to do so, declaring they would not leave me to the mercy of the enemy.

"When I was being dragged off to safety through the snow they remained behind, fighting a rear-guard action. The next day our troops attacked again and drove the Bulgarians out of their trenches. In them they found the bodies of a number of our men, each one with his throat cut. That is the favorite method of disposing of prisoners." It was after the capture of Hill 1212 that the Irish Amazon, while lying in hospital, was awarded by the Serbian crown prince the Kara George decoration, which is the Serbian equivalent of the British Victoria Cross. Three other decorations she has received for bravery in the field.

Not in That Way.

A foreign-born citizen and his wife were not living together. A fire destroyed their home. The insurance company was resisting the payment of the policy of insurance thereon. The husband, on cross-examination, was asked by the lawyer for the insurance company if he and his wife were not separated. He replied, "Not financially."—Everybody's Magazine.

Just a Hint for Aunty.

Aunt Mable, visiting at our house, borrowed a nickel from little Katie to telephone and forgot to repay the loan. Katie worried about the loss, for to her it was a mighty big sum. Finally she said to her mother, "When we are all at the table, let's you and me begin to talk about owing people nickels, then maybe auntie will remember she owes one to me."

Mrs. R. W. WHAT YOUR MONEY IS WORTH

Comparative Value of Coins of Different Countries of the World Explained.

How much is a franc? A ruble? A mark? To be well posted a man should be familiar with the money in circulation in foreign lands, observes the Columbus Dispatch. And if the man is of military age or inclination there is no telling how soon he may be called upon to exchange his perfectly good American dollars for the medium of circulation in France, England, Russia, Germany or other European countries.

Of course values are changing almost daily, as regards the exchange of foreign money for Uncle Sam's dollars, but under ordinary conditions it can be figured that in Germany the mark is worth 23.8 cents in United States money. The German thaler is equal to three marks, and the krone (a gold piece) equals ten marks. In England the sovereign (gold) is worth $4.8665, a pound sterling; the penny equals two of our cents, the crown $1.21 and the shilling 24 cents.

It is interesting to note that the franc of France (worth 19.3 cents) is also the unit of currency in Belgium and Switzerland, and that it is equal to the peseta of Spain, and lira of Italy, the drachma of Greece, the leu of Roumania, the dinar of Serbia and the bolivar of Venezuela. The Russian ruble, normally, is worth 51.5 cents, the piaster of Turkey 4.4 cents, the Japanese yen 49.8 cents, the Mexican peso (silver) 49.8 cents and the Chinese tael 75 cents to 85 cents. And there's no wonder that "Chinese money" is tossed about so carelessly, for the copper cash (China's monetary unit) is worth a United States dollar when you have 1,750 of them.

Let the Other Fellow Do It.

"It is not necessary to hate a man you are going to fight," said Grandpa Mintficker. "Let him do the hating. It'll help to rattle him."

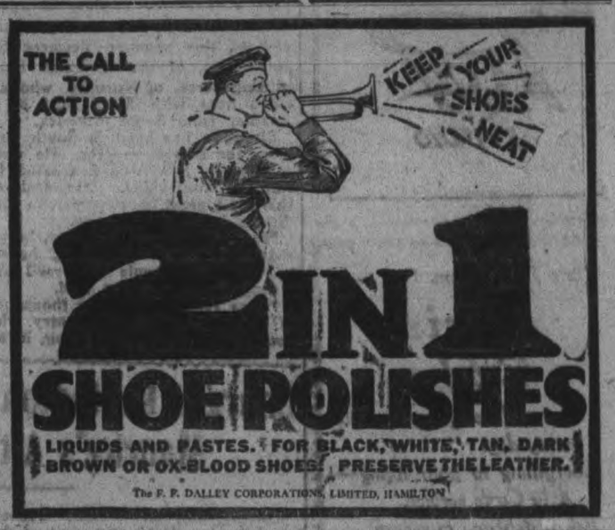
Licorice root is found in various parts of the province of Cape of Good Hope. Later it so spread in certain localities as to become a pest difficult to eradicate. Now, its usefulness has been recognized, and the diggers pay two cents a pound for the privilege of digging it.

ECZEMA ON BABY'S EAR.

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes: "My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to do her very much good. Hearing of the remarkable cure Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend it as preparation too highly."



"THEY SHALL NOT WANT"

In a moment of inspiration an advertising man recently hit upon the above four words as epitomizing the desire and determination of the people of Canada that the Armies of the Allies and the suffering peoples of the Allied nations of Europe shall be supplied with all that Canada can possibly furnish of the food stuffs necessary for their support in the energetic and successful prosecution of their struggle for the defeat of tyrannical Prussian aspirations.

Compressed in this little sentence is more real throbbing meaning than most full pages of printed matter contain. In sixteen letters it expresses the determination of a people that a great cause must be sustained at no matter what personal sacrifice.

"They shall not want."

How aptly these words also express the attitude of the NORMAL, HEALTHY-MINDED MAN towards, those who under our social system, naturally look to him for support and protection. As he thinks of the wife who has entrusted her future to his care and of the children whom he has brought into the world, his thought and determination is "THEY SHALL NOT WANT."

This is always the attitude of the normal, healthy-minded man who is willing to sacrifice, if need be, to attain this noble end.

A policy in the Sun Life of Canada provides the safest and most economical means of fulfilling this noble desire and determination and incidentally, if fortunately in time this mode of protection is no longer necessary he may himself reap the benefits of his savings and thrift.

Thus virtue has its own reward.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Dynamite Rain!

By EDITH WALTERS TUPPER

"A box of luxuries from home, Aldrich," announced Elbert Lee gayly. "Come over to our quarters this afternoon and help divide it."

Lee stood looking after the uncompanionable fellow in a sort of wonderment. "I can't understand it," he soliloquized. "We enlisted in the same town, a good many back there are our mutual friends. We came over in the same ship, we are quartered in the same cantonment here on the front. Ever since we left home Aldrich has been getting further and further away from the boys. I wonder what has come over him," and the open-hearted, bright-faced young soldier sighed sorrowfully.

For he himself, had his troubles. It was not until he had left home and winsome Myra Randall behind him, that he began to get lonesome and miserable, and wondered why he had not spoken out the love tugging at his heart-strings for the girl who saw him leave and cried over it, and kissed her hand to him at the last. So, when he got to Paris, Lee purchased a ring. Then he sat down and wrote the secrets of his soul to Myra. He asked her to accept the pretty circlet as an engagement ring. Would she write back the words that would buoy him up to valiant deeds, and to feel that he had a sweetheart awaiting his return?

And now two months had gone by and there had been no reply, and Lee went through all the miseries of an unhappy lover.

It was two nights after that, when by chance sentry duty brought Lee and Aldrich on beats that joined. It was possible during that night on rounds to meet and pass a few minutes in hall or gossip, but Aldrich purposely evaded this meeting.

If Lee could have seen Aldrich about an hour after they had come on duty and the camp had settled down! The latter, resting for a moment where the earth from a dugout screened him from general view, stood glaring wildly in the direction of Lee. His eyes were like balls of fire, his lips seemed to exude a venomous kiss. His gun was at his shoulder and aimed at the unsuspecting Lee, and he resembled some demon bent upon a frenzied, murderous mission.

"One touch of the finger," he uttered hoarsely, "and they will judge it the work of a sniper. Oh, Merciful Father! what am I thinking of? Am I a lost, accursed soul, indeed!"

Of a sudden a powerful revulsion of feeling overpowered him. He flung his weapon to the ground as though it were a serpent of fire. He dropped to his knees, and, covering his face with his hands, moaned and groveled there. Then, limp and like an automaton he resumed his sentry duty, but with eyes ever bent away from Lee, as though he dared not take him within the scope of his vision.

It was at dusk, a week later. A terrific combat had been raging between advance parties of the opposing forces since mid-afternoon. A constant rain of dynamite, of curtains of shellfire and creeping, jumping barrage had brought about pandemonium—chaos. Taking advantage of the heavy fog, a score of enemy balloons were sending down tons of deadly explosives.

Lee, rushing madly for a covert to which the company had been ordered sprang from the disordered ranks as he noticed a man fall as the scattering contents of a bomb from aloft engulfed him. In the glare he recognized David Aldrich. A group of three from the enemy rushed at Aldrich to dispatch him with their bayonets.

Lee threw himself forward, heroic fervor infusing him with prodigious strength. He knew not how he had done it till it was all over. A writhing trio lay upon the ground. Another shell burst within ten feet of him and a dozen missiles seemed to cut arm and chest, yet he lifted Aldrich in his arms, staggered towards the nearest shelter and fell down, collapsed, amid his company comrades.

"You'll do," finally greeted him at the side of his cot in the field hospital next morning. Then the surgeon added: "I think you're strong enough to get over to ward nine. The man you risked your life to save, David Aldrich, is calling for you constantly and he won't live the day out."

"Cheer up, old fellow!" hailed Lee, as an hour later with the aid of an attendant he managed to reach the side of Aldrich.

"I've done my bit," whispered Aldrich, faintly. "There is something to tell you," and he groped within his breast, producing a folded letter. "Open it, read it, and then curse me for the miscreant I have been!"

Lee traversed the creased, worn missive. It was dated two months back. It was from Myra Randall and it told him that she was wearing the engagement ring.

"I loved her," low murmured the dying man. "I loved her so that, intercepting that letter, I madly kept it next to my heart as a cherished memento. Lee, forgive me, if you can."

"Oh, freely, dear old comrade! poor tortured soul! Don't give under, Aldrich. We are all your friends," but with fast glazing eyes the hand of the other was groping for his own.

"Don't tell Myra"—it was a sobbing whisper now. "Good-by—brother!"

At this time of the year most people suffer from a condition often called Spring Fever. They feel tired, worn out, before the day is half thru. They may have frequent headaches and sometimes "pimply" or pale skin.

Bloodless people, thin, anemic people, those with pale cheeks and lips, who have a poor appetite and feel that tired, worn or feverish condition in the springtime of the year, should try the refreshing tonic powers of a good alterative and blood purifier. Such a one is extracted from Blood root, Golden Seal and Stone root, Queen's root and Oregon Grape root, made up with chemically pure glycerine and without the use of alcohol. This can be obtained in ready-to-use tablet form in fifty-cent vials, as druggists have sold it for fifty years as Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a standard remedy that can be obtained in tablet or liquid form.

WINDSOR, ONT.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his 'Pleasant Pellets' are wonderful medicines for home use. I used to suffer with weak lungs, smothering spells and sick-headaches, but since I have taken the above mentioned medicines these conditions have left me. "Such medicines as Dr. Pierce's are worthy of praise and I am very glad to add my testimonial to the thousands of others."—MRS. ELLEN HARDING, 11 Erie Street, West.

The Torpedo-Boat.

The torpedo-boat was originally intended as the great offensive weapon against armored ships; a weapon which might be of supreme value in the hands of a weaker power, and enable her to weaken a stronger adversary sufficiently to allow of a general action between fleets on even or more even terms. But modern gunnery has already rendered the torpedo-boat obsolete for the purpose for which she was originally constructed. There are very few instances in the course of this war in which a battleship or a cruiser has been sunk by a torpedo fired by an above-water craft. There was the case of the unfortunate Goliath, which was torpedoed three times by a Turkish destroyer manned by a German crew on the night of May 13th, 1915, in the Dardanelles, and also some cases in the Battle of Jutland.—Wide World.

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

OUR ROLL OF V.C.'S.

THE MONITOR REVIVED.

A curious by-product of the undersea warfare is the revival of the monitor. At the outbreak of the war, certain monitors were being built in England for the Brazilian Government for use in the Amazon. At that time a monitor was regarded as only a shade less obsolete than a frigate. But since the Admiralty requistioned everything in the yards that could be called a man-of-war, these monitors took the sea, and because of their shallow draft were used in the shoal waters off the coast of Belgium. There they proved themselves most useful. They were able to co-operate with the troops on more than one important occasion, they moved as a rule in waters too shallow for submarines to pursue, and even if exposed to attack, their draft was so slight that the ordinary submarine torpedo, set to run at a depth of eighteen feet, would pass far below their keels. Consequently these despised monitors banked away most effectively and stayed afloat at a time when it began to look as if every other type were doomed to go down.

The result has been that monitors of all shapes and sizes have been built and operated ever since. There has been considerable mystery about them, but it can be said that the largest monitors mount the heaviest naval ordnance in the fleet, and that as special protection against the torpedo, the hulls of these vessels are adorned with "cushions" or "blisters." The value of these protective devices has never been put to proof because no monitor has yet been hit by a torpedo. It is this enviable distinction that enables the venerable monitor to cock its hat in the presence of younger but more vulnerable men-of-war.

Beaver Is on Sale.

Although pork and beef products must be conserved to the limit in order that the urgent needs of the overseas forces may be served, there is no occasion that the Ontario public should suffer through lack of flesh foods. Poultry, fish, eggs, lamb and mutton, together with what are described as "offal by-products" are available for all, without limitation as to quantities or days of consumption. Beaver is also on sale, appearing on the Toronto market for the first time a few weeks ago. It makes a dainty dish—so those who have tasted it say.

A new Arctic meteorological station equipped with a wireless outfit has been established at the mouth of the Yenesei, and is sending out daily reports to stations to the south of it.

Coal In Ontario.

What may be a coal mine has been discovered by men constructing the Queenston Hydro Power Canal, near Niagara Falls. Very deep excavations are necessary to construct the canal, and the coal deposit was struck at a depth of about 170 feet near the whirlpool. The coal is of rough variety, what is called rock coal, but it is inflammable. Engineers say if there are any quantities of it there it may prove a rich find for the province. The Hydro engineers think this coal deposit came from a buried forest perhaps in the glacier period when much of the land in this end of Ontario was materially changed. The experiment work will be carried out likely to ascertain just how large this coal deposit is and whether it is worth working. The Hydro engineers are coming across much rock and quicksand in building the power canal. Many farms along the route are being purchased by the Hydro Farms Department, though what is to be done with them is not given out. It is said, however, that there will be a lot of factory sites between the Whirlpool and Queenston when the canal is finished.

How Proverbs Travel.

Proverbs undoubtedly have a tendency to travel; they are carried from one land to another by emigrants, tourists, missionaries, tradesmen and seamen; but many which are closely similar doubtless owe their origin to no common stock, but the common experience of mankind.

Domestic Tragedy.

Wife (returned from overnight visit)—"Did you get yourself a good dinner last evening, dear?" Hub—"Yes, there was a bit of steak in the ice box and I cooked it with a few onions I found in the cellar." Wife—"Onions? Jack, you've eaten my bulbs."—Boston Transcript.

North American Birds.

A recent census of North American birds shows an increase of 125 species and subspecies since 1910. But though there are really new birds in the list, many of them belong to subspecies, up to this time unrecognized.

One Thousand Tons 2,000,000 Pounds

Of grain elevator machinery, the construction of which is but one branch of our business, we built and shipped in 1917, one thousand tons (2,000,000 pounds).

It was distributed from coast to coast; almost every terminal elevator and flour mill took some of it. What's more, each unit was delivered on time.

How, then, did we do it, with raw material markets as uncertain as they were?

The answer is, that in 1916 we anticipated events, and contracted for thousands of tons of pig iron and steel, took delivery of it, paid for it, and held it against emergencies. What was the result? When buyers came and wanted big equipment, built and delivered in a hurry, we were able to accept their contracts, and give guarantees on deliveries. We were possibly the only firm that had the raw materials to do it.

This transaction is but one of the things we refer to when we talk about Dodge Service. We confess to a certain pride in it because our pride is based upon our faith in the fundamental strength of Canadian industrial enterprise.

Though, in a sense, we now see through a glass darkly, our vision is, that come what may, Canadian industry will endure. And, when Victory and Peace is ours, Canada will stand as firm in the industrial esteem of her Allies as she has stood with them through the ordeal by battle.

The Crow Family.

The crow family, to which the rook belongs, is placed by ornithologists at the head of the bird world, as being more highly organized than any other. Linnaeus gave the post of honor to the eagles, because of their kingly quality of rapacity. The eagles were then dethroned in favor of the thrushes, by reason of the higher development of their vocal organs; but two great authorities on ornithology, Prof. Parker and Prof. Newton, agreed in assigning the highest place to the Corvidae, on account of their "wit and wisdom," their development of social habits, their "subrationality," and their possession of larger brains in proportion to the weight of the body than those of any other birds.—Family Herald.

WOMAN WORKS 15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METERIANO, 86 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

BREEDING SHEEP FOR FUR

Production of "Persian Lamb" May Be Added to the Industries of the United States.

In far-away Bokhara, a town and district in Asiatic Russia that has a half-mystical sound to American ears, "Persian" lambs have been grown for ages for the tightly curled, lustrous-black fleeces that constitute the warm cover of the natives. And so the fashion of wearing Persian lamb and astrakhan has come down from the ages until women in all civilized lands where the winters are cold seek their warmth, and fashion's decree has made them so popular that the cost of Persian lamb has gone up 142 per cent in 15 years.

It must have been instinct—it could not have been foreknowledge that a world war would curtail commerce—that made an American decide a few years ago to try breeding the sort of sheep that bear the highly prized fleeces, on his 1,900-acre ranch near Cottonwood Falls, Kan. He reasoned that if they could be bred in Asia, they could be bred in Kansas, and so thoroughly did he believe in the proposition that he invested $35,000 in karakul sheep from Bokhara. These he crossed with native Lincoln-bred sheep, and the lambs of this cross bear the valuable pelts that hitherto have been imported almost exclusively from Russia.—Robert H. Moulton in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Clear Roads for Dispatch Bearer.

"You have made a great mistake. You have placed all the army trucks on the side of the road, leaving ample room for trucks going in the opposite direction to travel without going down in the ditch. My experience with army motor trucks is that they always travel on the crown of the road, and when you see one on the side of the road you can figure that it is broken down."

Collier's replied: "Be this observation true or not, there is one being before whom even the ruthless and disdainful truck driver quails—the dispatch rider. There is no more soul-satisfying sight for a harassed pedestrian in the French war zone than that of a dispatch motorcycle shooting down a road at 80 miles an hour, with a two-mile line of motor trucks and staff cars scuttling hastily into the ditches to get out of the way."

An Asiatic Railway.

Work is being rushed on the Federated Malay States railway, which will connect Singapore with Bangkok, Siam. The opening of this new route will shorten the distance from Singkok to European trade centres by days.

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face Was Such a Sight

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. Those festering and running sores appear on the forehead, on the nose, on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unsightly to both you and your friends.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This sterling remedy has been on the market for over 40 years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. Victor G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear, so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run-down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is A1 the face is clear."

"Cape-to-Cairo Rhodes."

So they called him, mockingly, when Cecil Rhodes, idealist and pirate, empire builder and adventurer, dreamed a railroad through the African sands that should run straight from the Cape of Good Hope to the shores of the Mediterranean. "Nonsense!" said the British government, forgetting that this man's "nonsense" had given the empire a territory greater than France, Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy, all together. So Cecil Rhodes merely went out and built the railroad that turned a desert into a nation.—World Outlook.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Military Mathematicians.

Napoleon was a skillful mathematician, a science which has always attracted great soldiers. As a young man he was distinguished by his ready manipulation of mathematical formulae, and his keen mathematical brain was a big factor in his success as a general. Wellington also had a similar talent and on one occasion he told the Rev. Mr. Gleig that he attributed much of his military success to his lifelong devotion to the science of numbers. Many other famous soldiers of the last century were adepts in rapid and accurate calculation, among them Lee, Jackson and Moltke. Washington, too, was a mathematician, a subject in which he was exceptionally proficient. Gen. Joffre, had he not chosen the army as a profession, might have been a professor of mathematics. Mathematical calculation and applied science are great factors for success in war.

Hun Civilians "In Extremis."

A German who has got to Holland has been telling a Dutch friend of mine something about the queue system. "As long as you live," he said, "you stand en queue for your food, and when you die your relatives have to stand en queue for a coffin. Our older people are actually dying off faster than the undertakers can get them to the cemetery." Cold, I believe, is now the chief cause of mortality, and one of our returned prisoners from Ruhleben tells me, as evidence of the intensity of the coal famine, that, except in centres of the munition industry, hardly a house or cottage chimney in any of the towns or villages which his train passed through, was emitting smoke.—Westminster Gazette.

Amusement for Children.

For the children, before they are old enough to use scissors, tearing paper is an engaging occupation. Tear a piece of old newspaper into an oblong shape; it may be any size, about two by four inches, we will say. By folding this in the middle it will make a little tent. Again, fold in thirds, one piece turned up and one down, for a chair. Turn both ends down for a table. The child can tear paper into trees, a ball, doll bubies and many other simple shapes.

Average Values.

In estimating quantities of bulk it is of considerable help to have unit figures handy for multiplication or division to get the required result. The following figures are recognized average values, giving weights in pounds for one cubic foot of the material named: Soft coal ashes, tightly packed, 43; cinders, 40 to 45; hard or anthracite coal, 56 to 60; soft or bituminous coal, 47 to 52; coke, 23 to 32; iron, 450; lead, 709; pitch, 75 pounds per cubic foot.

First Colonial General Hospital.

It was on February 7, 1751, that the first general hospital was chartered in the colonies—the Pennsylvania state hospital in Philadelphia. Joshua Crosby was the first president of the institution, and Benjamin Franklin, who had been prominent in urging the establishment of an institution for the care of the sick, was the first clerk. It was in this hospital in 1769 that Thomas Bond gave the first clinical instruction in America.

Ancient "Cathay."

Cathay was an old name of China by which that country was known to Europeans during the middle ages. The British Encyclopedia says: "Cathay is divided from Khitai, the name which was properly that of the kingdom established by the Khitan conquerors in the northern provinces of China about A. D. 907 and was subsequently applied to the whole of China." Khitai is still the Russian name for China.

Seen in a Different Light.

There stood an old peddler resting on the bridge situated near Avoca at the meeting of the waters. He was tired and weary after a hard day's walking, and as he looked down into the waters he murmured: "Sweet Vale of Avoca, Tom Moore called you sweet, but if he had to be on a bed without a blanket or sheet and travel the country without boots on his feet, he wouldn't give a curse where the bright waters meet."

Old Winter Coughs Now Easily Cured

A New Remedy Now Cures Without the Use of Cough Syrups or Drugs.

Just think of it—you can clear away that hard, racking cough, drive it completely out of the system, make yourself perfectly well by the new breathing cure that employs no medicine at all.

You wonder how; very simple, indeed; you simply breathe in through a Catarrhozone Inhaler, rich balsamic essences that heal and soothe away the cough in a few hours' time.

In using Catarrhozone you bathe the lining of the nose and throat with that powerful antiseptic of the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, which is probably the surest cold and cough cure in the world to-day.

Clarence E. Cromwell, writing from Medicine Hat, says: "To cure a sneezing cold in about ten minutes the one thing I know of to do it is Catarrhozone. To relieve an irritated throat quickly, nothing can excel Catarrhozone. It simply eats up a cough or cold of any kind. I know of colds that have hung on for months that Catarrhozone cured quickly. Nearly every man I know carries a Catarrhozone Inhaler with him day and night, and in this country it makes a wonderful protection against all winter ills."

Get the dollar outfit, including the hard rubber inhaler, and medication to last two months; medium size 50c., sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Great Explorers.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie and Captain George Vancouver are two explorers about whom Canadians ought to know more than they do. These two men were too modest to leave monuments to themselves.

The name Mackenzie was given to the great river to the Arctic by others than the explorer himself. Similarly Captain Vancouver gave names to Burrard Inlet and Point Grey, after two friends in the navy, and left his own unmarked. But others filled the blank by attaching the name Vancouver in later years.

A man less well-known than these two, but who endured more hardship than either, and made more extensive explorations, was Robert Campbell of the Hudson's Bay Company, who discovered the Yukon and went up to its source sixty years before the famous gold rush. The Yukon river should be called the Campbell. This remarkable and devout man spent some twelve years in travelling, in a sort of Livingstonian way, all through the regions that have since been opened up to civilization in the north. The explorer's son, Mr. Glenlyon Campbell known as Glen, was a member at Ottawa, and died recently at the front.

WHY IS A FISH?

Some Facts About an Important Article of Food.

And the answer is: You don't have to feed a fish.

This has relation to fish for food. When one thinks of a hog on the other hand as possible food, one has to take into account the fact that a hog must be fed from the time it arrives on earth till the very moment it is suddenly shuffled off the earth. Hog feed costs money, for hogs eat a lot of feed. Caring for a hog also costs labor and labor costs money.

But in the case of a fish, there is no outlay for feed and no expense attached to caring for it from its minnow stage to its mature development. Nature does all that for man. Nature feeds the fishes and acts as their hired man. Fish for food is prepared by nature without man having to lift even his little finger.

Then again there is a limit to the number of hogs a man can feed and care for on a farm. But there is no limit to the number of fish nature can feed and care for in the sea. The supply of fish in the Pacific and the Atlantic is humanly inexhaustible.

As with hogs so with other farm produce, they need care on the part of man. Not so with the fish. You don't have to plough and harrow and hill and hoe the sea. Nature performs those functions for man on behalf of the fish.

Thus in many distinctive ways a fish is not like a hog. As a food, fish is nature's pet, nurtured for the sustenance of man. All he has to do is to go out and catch the fish and he has food. It may be that if fish were harder to get, if man had to feed them and care for them, they would be more greatly esteemed as food, but because they are like manna was to the children of Israel, they are taken for granted and like all familiar things not fully appreciated.

Yet fish is a wholesome food, pound for pound, the equal in a well ordered diet of any food in the world. And you don't have to feed fish.

A Crude Old Rule.

Pesimists to the contrary notwithstanding, there have been many improvements in the rules of lacrosse since the good old days. An anecdote told by Mr. Blaney McGuire at the O.A.L.A. convention indicates how the national game has progressed since it was adopted by the Canadians in its primitive form. Mr. McGuire recalled that away back in the 80's of the last century a game was won by the team that scored the first four goals. Also, when playing off for a championship the games took place one after the other. In 1887 the Dufferins of Orangeville won the intermediate championship of the young Canadian Lacrosse Association. At the end of the season three teams were entitled to play in the finals, the Young Torontos, the Dufferins and the Stars of Bright, a famous lacrosse team in its day. The games were to be pulled off in a Toronto park on the east side of the Don. The Dufferins were fortunate enough to draw the bye, and the Young Torontos met the Stars of Bright in the first contest. The Stars scored the three initial goals, and the Dufferins departed to prepare to meet the winners. When they returned later they found to their surprise that the Young Torontos, then, as now, good finishers, were the victors. After a terrific contest they had turned the tables on their opponents, pulling out the game by a score of 4 to 3. It need scarcely be added that the Young Torontos were completely exhausted and scarcely in condition for another game. Still, under the rules, that was their misfortune, and they had no comeback. They took a rest, and then went on the field against the Dufferins. Under the circumstances the Orangeville boys had little difficulty annexing the coveted honor of being the first intermediate champions of the Canadian Lacrosse Association. Some of the lacrosse rules may still be imperfect, but they are not as crude as that old one.

Railroads In India.

India has 35,000 miles of railway and 80,000 miles of telegraph, compared with 1,600 miles of railways and 11,000 miles of telegraph in 1851.

SELECT MEDICINE CAREFULLY

Purgatives are dangerous. They gripe, cause burning pains and make the constipated condition worse. Physicians say the most ideal laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut; they are exceedingly mild, composed only of health-giving vegetable extracts. Dr. Hamilton's Pills restore activity to the bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. For constipation, sick headache, biliousness and disordered digestion no medicine on earth makes such remarkable cures as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c box yourself.

Veteran Saleswoman Dead.

Miss Mary E. Hallam, for 45 years an employe of Marshall, Field & Co., said to be the veteran saleswoman of the world, died at her home in Chicago recently, following a short illness, brought on by acute indigestion. Miss Hallam was born Oct. 31, 1838, in Canada, and was a descendant of Henry Hallam, the English historian. She was employed by Marshall Field, founder of the retail firm, May 5, 1875, when the store was a small drapery shop at South Market and West Madison streets, Chicago. Two years ago, when she celebrated the 43rd anniversary of her entrance into the employ of the store, she was given an ovation seldom accorded a saleswoman. Her counter was a bower of flowers.

Job Too Big for Average Man.

It takes lots of brains, patience and attractiveness to keep everybody straight. The trouble is it's not so much a matter of benefit to others as it is a satisfaction to yourself to be the general manager of things. The world could lose several in every community and its efficiency and peace would not suffer in the least. The chap that would be general manager of any group of people must not only be a man of big mentality but it has to be recognized to bring harmonious results.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1918

LARGE RUSSIAN CITY RECAPTURED BY RUSSIAN TROOPS

AN ENEMY RAID NORTH OF LENS WAS REPULSED

FARMERS SAY PRODUCTION WILL BE INTERFERED WITH

THE MEMORIAL

(Special to Examiner.)

Ottawa, May 15. — The memorial which it was the intention of the farmers' delegations to read to the House of Commons yesterday, had their appointees been granted entry, was read last night at the Arena, and consisted of a protest against the delegation of parliamentary function powers to a Cabinet in council and against the curtailment of privileges of the representatives of the people.

NEW DEPARTURE.

The memorial expresses gratification at "this new departure in Canada parliamentary practice" (permitting the delegates to address the House) following so closely upon the speech to the House and the Senate of the president of the American Federation of Labour. It is, says the memorial, "an agreeable recognition of relationship which the war is producing as between those who govern and those who are governed by consent."

Gratification is also expressed that a larger independence of thought and speech han usual has been evident in the new parliament.

THE UNREST.

"The unrest in the country which has brought about the unexampled spectacle of thousands of farmers leaving their important work of planting their crops to come to the capital to remonstrate with the government," continues the memorial, "is known to every member of this House. We cannot disguise from the house the apprehension of the public that the liberties of which the popularly elected branch of the legislature is the bulwark, may be dangerously curtailed during the period that the House is now sitting."

Complaint is then made of certain innovations, the continuance of which it is claimed, would be fraught with serious results.

"BROKEN PLEDGES."

Toronto, May 15.—"The government did not keep its pledge to us. I say that a government has as much right to keep one pledge as another. Why was the government ever satisfied of that pledge of 400,000 men from Canada. The premier said he never had any authority to make such a pledge" said President R. H. Halpert, of Dufferin county, the chairman of the Ontario Farmers' Association, who arrived in the city to-day on his return from Ottawa.

"We don't expect that anything will be done, and the production is going to suffer," he continued.

"There never was a war yet that was not won by food in the end. The Crimean war was ended in that way, and so was the American civil war, and the Russo-Japanese war; and this war is going to be ended in that wa, too." Mr. Halpert said that the farmers were very disappointed with the attitude which had been taken by the government, and added that the power seemed to have passed to the Cabinet, instead of the men who were elected to represent the people.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

"They go ahead and pass orders in council and then when parliament is in session. This is quite wrong. The orders in council were only intended to be used when the government is not in session, and the laws have to be made in a hurry. The result is that the men of the government are powerless." The deputation is not at all satisfied and it was a large and representative gathering which filled the Russel House in Ottawa to its capacity.

Mr. Halpert said that production is going to be seriously affected. In his own district farmers were sowing grass seed without grain for lack of help. They usually sow grass and grain together to get the grass for summer the next season after the crop has been gathered in, but this year no grain will be sown, only grass on 1000 acres in Dufferin county.

RUSSIANS DROVE OUT THE GERMANS

MOSCOW, May 15.— Rostov on Don, the largest city in the Don Cossack territory, was recaptured last week by the Russian Soviet troops who drove out the Germans. The Germans who had held Rostov for only a day, are retreating.

Huns Embark On Their Last Big Adventure

Enemy Divisions Are Being Refitted—German Losses Were Very Heavy in Last Offensive

THE THIRD PUSH

Ten O'clock Despatch—

(By William Philip Simms.)

With the British Armies in France, May 15. — There is no doubt that Germany has embarked on her last great adventure, in which every man, boy, horse and machine will be used in a desperate endeavour to gain a favorable decision during the present fighting.

REFITTING DIVISIONS.

The German drafts are refitting divisions which are about half composed of returned wounded and recruits. The latter include some boys of 18 years. Few if any of youths of this age were in line at the beginning of the offensive when Hindenburg depended largely on the class of 1918, which fought with great impetuosity, but lacked stamina to win a victory.

A captured non-commissioned officer of the 62nd infantry declares that the regiment lost fifty per cent. of its personnel around Meteren (on the Flanders front.) Its casualties included nine company commanders.

Another prisoner says his battalion lost between 60 and 70 per cent. of its effectives.

LOSSES WERE HIGH.

A prisoner belonging to the 112th regiment, says certain battalions lost between 40 to 60 per cent. It is clearly established that the German losses were high in both the Somme and the Lys fights, delaying the start of the third push.

There is every probability that the class of 1918, which is being drafted in large numbers, will with Veterans, be driven to death—fulfilling the Kaiser's boast that he will continue to rule the world, or will see every man, boy, horse and dog die.

Important Debate For To-morrow

The Austrian Peace Offer of Last Year Will Be Discussed in the House of Commons

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 15.—The Manchester Guardian says that the peace offer made to France last year by Austria, as revealed recently in letters written by Emperor Charles to Prince Sixtus will form the subject of a debate of the highest importance in the House of Commons to-morrow. Since the publication of the Emperor's letter the question has been raised whether the Austrian offer should not have received greater attention, and especially whether President Wilson should not have been consulted.

THE GERMANS IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW THREATENED

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Germany is seeking to augment her armies by conscripting the Russians of the borderlands. She is striving to make rich Russian territory purely and simply a German province.

These statements represent official opinion here to-day, backed by official information. Both programmes are in line with the Teuton plan of ending the war this year. By getting fresh men from the army, Germany hopes to make a military decision possible, but if she cannot get the borderlands to yield the desired cannon fodder she hopes at least to dominate Russia so that she can later go before the world with the insidious plea: "We will give up the west if we can hold what we have in the east."

"A SERIOUS MENACE.

Both these plans represent a very serious menace which the allies must consider, according to officials.

One said to-day that the western military situation, plus this Russian problem, meant that England and France must drain their man power much farther, while the United States proceeds to throw in a greater force than we have thus far contemplated.

Moscow is threatened. The Boche has overrun Ukrainia, violating the Brest-Litovsk treaty indiscriminately. Germany is making demands that she be permitted a free hand in the present Russian capital and removal of it further east is considered. The Boche is seeking to strip away the last of the Russian army so he can mold the men into German soldiers or German war workers. He has already put the Russian navies out of business. He is systematically instilling terror into Russian hearts by his "Belgium-like atrocities in Finland, Ukraine and Russia proper."

CLOSING SESSION OF RURAL DEANERY

The closing session of the Rural Deanery meeting at All Saints' Church was marked by a very interesting discussion led by Ven. Archdeacon Warren on the "Fate of the Church in the Deanery." Hostile Artillery Shows Increasing Activity On The Western Battlefront

Enemy Raid North of Lens Was Repulsed--British Carried Out a Successful Raid on the Flanders Front--Indications Point to the Opening of Another Offensive

BRITISH AND FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORTS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 15.—German artillery fire increased this morning near Morlancourt, south of Albert, and in Flanders, north of Kemmel, the War Office reports.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

A raid attempted by the enemy last night north of Lens was repulsed. We carried out another successful raid north-east of Robecq, Flanders. The hostile artillery was active during the night in the valleys of the Somme and Ancre north of Bethune, and in the Forest of Nieppe sector. This morning the enemy's artillery activity increased south-west of Morlancourt and north of Kemmel.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, May 15.—French troops yesterday evening attacked German positions near Hailles, on the front below Amiens and captured the wood on the west bank of the Avre River, it is announced officially. The Germans made a counter attack and were beaten off with severe losses. During the night there was a violent bombardment north of Montdidier and between Montdidier and Noyon.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

During the night there was a violent bombardment in the region north of Montdidier and between Montdidier and Noyon. Late yesterday French troops made a vigorous attack on German positions south of Hailles and captured a wood west of Avre, notwithstanding determined resistance by the enemy. This morning strong German counter attack was delivered. After a spirited engagement our troops remained in entire possession of new positions. They inflicted very serious losses on the Germans. The number of prisoners taken is seventy, including one officer. Another enemy egort south of Rollott, south-east of Montdidier, which was made after a heavy bombardment, met with a complete check. North of Chemin Des Dames, the French repulsed a raiding enterprise directed against our posts in the region of Labovelle. There is nothing to report elsewhere on the front.

A Message To Canadian Mothers

Canadian Press:

(By W. A. Willison.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, May 15.—"It is really you, our mothers and our homes, for whom we are fighting. When the giant of freedom is ours, then we will come home and lay it reverently at your feet, for it will be hallowed by the blood of our comrades. Pray for us that this high and holy vision may never fade from our minds, and that we may have courage and patience to finish our task. What glorious homecoming there will be."

ON MOTHERS DAY.

This is the message from Canadian sons on the Flanders battle front to their mothers in the homeland far across the Atlantic. It was sent on Mothers Day by thousands of boys here, on cards supplied by the Y.M.C.A. officials of that organization who report an unprecedented demand for stationery on and around that day.

While the Canadian guns continue hammering the enemy night and day, our patrols infantry, outposts continue active. The weather has been very wet.

RECEPTION IS PLANNED

Hon. Dr. Beland Will Be Warmly Welcomed When He Returns to Canada—Enthusiasm in Quebec

HATE THE BOCHE

(Special to Examiner.)

Montreal, Quebec, May 15. — No event has done more to stimulate military enthusiasm, and hatred of the Boche, amongst the French Canadians than the release of Dr. Beland, member of Parliament for Beauce, which has revived the stories of the cruelties inflicted on him by the Germans whose wounded soldiers he stayed in Brussels and Antwerp to help. Not only is there a movement to have Dr. Beland replace Dr. Albert Sevigny in the ministry, but there is also a widespread feeling that the day of his arrival in Canada should be celebrated by a national holiday. Whether this is done or not it will be so held by the French Canadians. Newspaper comment is universal in its comments of sympathy for the doctor, and assures him that on his arrival in Canada his companions will do their utmost to compensate him by their affection for his sufferings at the hands of the Huns.

BIG FIRE IN THE WEST

Shipyard in British Columbia Damaged to Extent of Over a Million and a Half

FIREMEN KILLED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 15. — Fire in J. Coughlan and Son Shipyards at False Creek did damage to the extent of from one and a half to two million dollars early this morning. Flames were discovered in the boiler rooms shortly after eleven o'clock and spread rapidly. The fire was under control at 5 a.m. The fireman Cameron was killed by falling walls of the boiler house, and three others suffered minor injuries. One steamer which was about two-thirds completed was damaged in the flames. Other ships were saved.

CANOE UPSET IN LITTLE LAKE

Local Boys Have a Narrow Escape From Drowning

Messrs. V. Carr and Chas. Mongour, two members of the local branch of the G.W.V.A., had a narrow escape from drowning last night shortly after nine o'clock, when their canoe upset in the middle of Little Lake. When they were opposite Burnham street and well out in the lake a sudden move on the part of one of the men capsized the canoe. Fortunately both could swim and they were able to reach and cling to the boat. They endeavoured to swim to the boom, running across the lake, towing the canoe with them, but the wind was too strong and they were compelled to head for the shore several hundred yards away. Mongour, who had been wounded by shrapnel in the leg in France was seized with cramps, but maintained his hold on the canoe, and finally after half an hour's battle the two managed to reach the shore near Burnham street, numb and stiff with their long immersion in the cold water, but otherwise none the worse for their adventure.

Minister Of Railways And Canals Coming

After the close of the present session of Parliament, Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways and Canals, will officially and firmally open the Trent Canal from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay. A steamer will leave Ottawa and by way of the Rideau Canal, the Bay of Quinte and the Trent Canal, will visit Peterboro and proceed to Georgian Bay. Dr. Reid will probably embark at Trenton, arriving there by train.

Assurance of his interest in the formal opening, and of his desire to make the occasion as successful as possible was given by the Minister to Mayor Duncan at Ottawa yesterday. The Mayor was accompanied by City Clerk Armstrong and Mr. W. H. Denham of the Quaker Oats company.

This may be accepted as a guarantee that the opening will be held in the near future, probably on the 3rd of June, the King's birthday. The Minister has been decidedly responsive to the suggestions, Peterboro has put forward, and with his co operation it is believed that the official opening will be a memorable event despite the oppressive pall, the war throws over every undertaking in these days.

WELCOME NEWS.

The prolonged cheering which greeted the announcement in the House of Commons that Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, M.P., former Postmaster General of Canada, had been released by the Germans and was in Holland on his way home, will be echoed throughout the Dominion. Dr. Beland was one of the first Canadians to whom the acid test of war came, and he met the issue squarely, acting a hero's part. It will be remembered that when hostilities commenced he was on his honeymoon in Belgium and could easily have made his escape from that country before the invasion commenced. Being, however a physician, and recognizing the need of medical assistance, Dr. Beland decided to remain to give succor to the wounded and was captured by the Germans, who have held him a prisoner ever since, despite repeated efforts on the part of the Imperial authorities and the Dominion government to secure his release.

That he has finally been liberated will be a cause of rejoicing to the people of Canada generally.

Dr. Beland is the Liberal member for Beauce County, Quebec, having been elected by acclamation in December last while still a prisoner.

CLINGING TO PATRONAGE.

Is J. H. Burnham, M.P., lothe to say good-bye to the spoils system? His criticism of the Civil Service Bill in the House on Monday on the ground that it is an insult to the people to assume that members of parliament are not fit to recommend appointments, seems to indicate that such is the case and that the member for West Peterborough hesitates to let go of the chief weapon of party power, the pork barrel. If the measure which is designed to put an end to political patronage is passed, there are no thanks coming to Mr. Burnham, who seems to have aligned himself with the "ginger group," headed by Col. J. A. Currie, and composed of hard-shell Tories of the old school in trying to block the progress of the measure. West Peterborough's member declares he is going to vote against every section of the bill, which is prima facie evidence that he still favours the old system by which the sitting member handed out the plums to the faithful party workers.

How Mr. Burnham figures that taking such power from the member is an insult to the people is hard to understand. He should remember that often the people have to vote for a principle and therefore they sometimes elect a member who under any other set of circumstances they would be almost unanimous in leaving him at home. It is in line with Mr. Burnham's argument that having elected a member because of the cause with which he is identified, the electors should feel aggrieved that he is not to be permitted to select the men for government positions in his constituency. He seems to ignore the fact that under circumstances such as have been outlined men have been elected to Parliament by the votes of people who would not trust their member's judgment in recommending a painter for a lock-gate let alone selecting a man for any more important position.

If the Civil Service Bill does away with conditions such as have existed in the past, Mr. Burnham need not fear that the people of Canada will feel insulted. It is not necessary to go outside of this riding during the present political regime to find substantial reasons for believing that the public will welcome any measure that will eliminate the old order of things. The Bill will at least remove from public life the practice of a patronage committee getting together and awarding themselves government positions—a practice that West Peterborough in recent years is not a stranger to, and about which Mr. Burnham should have a good working knowledge.

THE FARMERS' DEPUTATION.

The visit of the monster deputation of farmers to Ottawa yesterday did not accomplish any concrete results in securing exemption for farm labourers. In view of the statements made within the past few days by the Premier to smaller delegations of farmers, there was little likelihood of yesterday's effort being successful. However, the visit to the capital should convince the government, if they had not already been convinced, of the straits in which rural Canada is at the present time.

The situation has been aggravated by the government's failure to meet the needs of the situation. If it had been able to announce to the farmers simultaneously with the announcement that exemptions to all men between 20 and 22 years were cancelled, that it had arranged for substitutes in the person of men unfit for military service to take the place of the drafted men on the farms, the present agitation would not have taken place. Instead, in the midst of its loud appeals to the farmers to produce more, to grow more wheat, without any practical suggestion as to how this was to be done, the government suddenly drafted the farm labourers under twenty-three years of age who had been granted exemption. Who is to take their place? The authorities at Ottawa apparently don't know; it is apparent that the farmers do not. What is the next step?

The indignation of the rural communities has been added to by the feeling among many farmers that they have been deceived. Government candidates told the farmers that their sons and farm help would be exempt, and now that these promises have been broken there is a general cry of "broken faith."

HEROES NO LONGER.

Before the war American major league baseball players were heroes in the eyes of the public generally, but now that the call has gone out for men who are fit to play their part in the bigger game overseas, much of the tinsil has been knocked off the diamond experts. It was felt that they, being athletes and sportsmen would be among the first to enlist as has had been the case with the cricketers, footballers and oarsmen of England, and the hockey and rugby players of Canada. So far, however, the professional baseball stars, with a few notable exceptions, have failed to meet the test, and there is pretty caustic comment in many of the papers across the line. The early enlistment of Jack Barry, Ernie Shore and a number of other big leaguers in the navy, was enthusiastically applauded, but as the days went by and the chief duties of these sailor lads seemed to be to play baseball for the Boston navy yard, with a schedule that called for many games during the next few months, public opinion grew rather heated, and finally the naval authorities have ordered the baseball tars for sea duty. The sudden decision of a number of baseball stars to retire from the game and devote themselves to farming did not pass unnoticed, and now a new way of evading the draft has been held up to public attention. It has been discovered that the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and other ship-building plants have had no trouble in securing major league players to whom the prospect of being exempt from military service as well as of securing a comfortable salary, has proved an irresistible inducement. The action of Joe Jackson, star outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, world's champions, in accepting a shipbuilding berth when his call for army service is imminent, has turned the spotlight on this remarkable eagerness of baseball stars to forsake the diamond for the shipyards.

Many a former hero of the ball field will find that his fame has sadly diminished as a result of his failure to arise to the situation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The 93rd band instrument question having been settled, what about the grant to the 57th band?

If there is to be music in the parks this summer the Veterans' band will not be in a position to supply it, because they will take at least six month to get organized and ready for a public appearance

The publication of the German casualty lists on the western front since March 21st, would give the people of Lithania an idea of what helping to bear the German burdens means.

It is suggested that a few cents worth of paint would improve the appearance of the new steps of the Central Park band stand.

The spokesman of the farmers' deputation at Ottawa yesterday did not help his case any when he pointed out as a proof of the patriotism of the farmers that farmers' sons had done good work in the munition factories.

A contemporary says that the people who have been complaining about the hard case of the farmers, should get out on the land, and help them. Yesterday, however, the farmers told the Prime Minister that unskilled city help was of no use to them. There is a hitch here somewhere.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

A Relief.

(London Advertiser.)

What a relief! Women can give their correct ages to the registrar without fear of their becoming known publicly, the officials being sworn to secrecy.

What It Means.

(Toronto Star.)

Under the old system officiency in the civil service had somehow to be reconciled with the desire to reward partizans. Under the new system efficiency must be reconciled with the desire to reward soldiers who have deserved well of the country. The advice and co-operation of returned soldiers will be necessary to make the new system work well. But nothing is to be said for the old system.

A Welcome Sign

(New York Herald)

Insurance on steamships and cargoes passing through the war zone was above six per cent last August, has been three per cent of late, and now a reduction to two per cent is discussed. So much for the vaunted efficiency of the U-boat!

Pleasing Indeed.

(Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune)

We are not strong for the Tsar, but we will not be among those betraying a sense of outrage if he should come back long enough to hang Nicholas' Lenine and some of the other men who have betrayed free Russia.

Another Reason

(Savannah News)

Fifteen hundred Armenians making for Jericho, after having been used by the Turks for nearly three years in breaking stone, furnish another reason for the political snuffing out of German kultur and all it implies. This particular band of Armenians originally numbered ten thousand.

An Outrageous Proposal

(Lancaster New Era)

The impudance of the condition for the exchange of prisoners of war which the Germans have demanded of the Russians would surpass belief if it were not for the fact that are made by Germans. That makes everything credible. They also display a callous brutality that would be impossible in any except Germans.

Started Too Late.

(Philadelphia Record)

The Germans started too late to overwhelm the British and French troops before our troops reached Europe. They too long cherished the delasion that we could not get men across the ocean. Now one German paper cries hysterically, 'We must hurry to obtain a solid victory by arms before the full American forces arrive.' They can't get the solid victory. We already have enough men at the front to give important help to the French and British.

Bombing the Bullies.

"The way to win the war is to keep on bombing Germany until she cries enough," writes a Liverpool army officer from the front in a letter to his home newspaper.

"You at home," he adds, "do not realize how great is the air superiority of the allies on the West Front. The means of finishing off the campaign is to create such a feeling in the German towns that the population will rise and demand the ending of the war. I know Germany well, and the bullies are real cowards at home. I believe that most of the German soldiers are sick of fighting and when they find out how much more effectively we are air-raiding than they; then, will come the finish.

"I noticed that in a raid on London recently, 16 bombs were dropped. Do you realize that in our air report on Tuesday night it was stated that we had dropped over 700 bombs? England has been slow in starting, but she is going to be terribly effective in the air, and from what I hear, the Americans are presently going to give us all a wonderful demonstration of how air-raiding should be done.

"Ruthlessness is the only thing a German appreciates and fears, and the Americans are planning to show it to him."

A Lucky Prospector.

A discovery of gold has been made in the township of Rickard, about ten miles east of Iroquois Falls Northern Ontario. The discovery was made accidentally by a man who was prospecting for pulpwood in the district. Three veins were located, one of which is stated to be nearly twenty feet in width. The specimens brought in are said to be among the best samples of the precious metal ever shown in Northern Ontario.—Famil, Herald.

Another List Of Cases Was Heard This Morning Before His Honour Judge Huycke

Production Must Be Increased or Peterboro' County Youths Will Have to Join the Army.

EXTENSIONS GRANTED

Resigned spirits prevailed this morning among "A' men who came up before His Honour Judge Huycke, and most of them got a limited extension of time to do their bit with the shovel and hoe.

One Must Go.

George Alexander Clements produces a grain crop of 133 acres. As his brother, who is 20 years of age will probably be taken, leaving a large crop to be taken in by the few remaining at home, the Judge gave him time to speed up production.

Crop a Failure.

John J. Corkery, Otonabee, with his brother and father, works two farms of 190 acres. The department though his production does not justify his exemption, but the boy explained that last year's crop was particularly poor owing to weather conditions and would probably speed up for 1918. He will be given some time to work up the land.

Exemption Refused.

Mr. George Scott had been given till March 1 to settle his business, later until May 1, Wanted another month to settle his property. He was refused.

Works on Two Farms.

Wm. August Northey, Lakehurst, bought a farm after the Military Service Act was passed, which he works besides helping on his father's farm. If his production justifies his staying he will be allowed to remain and he was given some time to work up his land.

Changed His Position.

Peter Maloney works a 100-acre farm. He had changed his farm from a grazing to a grain farm, which showed evidences of a big crop. He will be allowed a limited exemption and an investigation will be made.

Given Time.

Geo. Alexander Booth had previously been exempted to help on his father's 200-acre farm and had since bought a second farm of 112 acres. We wanted time at least to take in his harvest. The case will be considered.

A Decision.

John D. Crapp, Hall's Bridge, decided either to enlist and give up the farm or get married and stay. Choosing the latter, he settled down until the government became insistent about his going, as his production is not large. He was given until June 15, when the government authorities will look for improvement in production.

Willing to Go.

Robert Smith, Lakehurst, works a 150 acre farm with his brother and father. The Judge suggested the brother could do the necessary work and the boy was quite willing to abide by the decision.

Ernest Moore, a carpenter working in the city, had been allowed until Class 2 was called. His brothers have both been called up, one for active service and one to build aeroplanes. If the aeroplane worker is released from military service, Ernest must go, which he would gladly do but for his aged mother.

Allowed Till July 1.

Hilliard Matthews was allowed till July 1 to prove to the government he is speeding production on a 250 acre farm at Hall's Glen, which farm he works with a partially crippled father.

An Investigation.

Joseph Moore, Hall's Glen works a big farm with his father, aged 73, 90 acres cleared, the rest in pasture land, with big cattle production. He was allowed a short time for investigation as to better results.

May Stay.

Mr. Henry Puffer, Clarina, works a 600-acre farm with his father and one brother, as another brother had been taken lately. The Judge allowed Puffer a limited time to see if the brother is rejected on physical grounds. If so William will go.

A Creditable Record.

Alfred Ecles had paid his passage to England to join and had been rejected. He has two brothers overseas. Instead of trying to get out of service he had tried to go and been rejected and reported his case this morning to the Judge.

Buck, Pidgeon, Maher and DeFinney reported this morning after a trip to Kingston to make sure of their fitness. Maher was kept in "B" class, and DeFinney put in "E." Buck and Pidgeon have not yet been notified of their medical rating.

COARSE GRAINS VS. WHEAT

THE EDITOR,

The Peterborough Examiner.

Sir,—

An article appeared in Monday's issue of your paper written by Mr. R. R. Hall headed "Shortage of Food" "kept 2,000,000 Italian soldiers out of "the Battle line, while many British "people ate horse flesh."

In this article is contained "The "Dominion Government know our "Allies want wheat and they keep "in force regulations, that make it "more profitable to grow coarse "grains instead of wheat."

Your readers are interested to know fuller particulars regarding these regulations and how it tends to reduce the production of wheat, and make it more profitable to grow coarse grains instead of wheat.

Yours, etc.,

FLOUR SAVER.

May 15th, 1918.

Mr. Hall when seen stated that the Government h ve passed a regulation fixing the price of wheat at $2.21 per bushel F.O.B., Fort William, while the price per bushel of coarse grains is left to be fixed by the law of supply and demand.

For instance, an acre of land which produces 20 bushels of wheat, will at $2.21 per bushel give the farmer a return of $44.20 F.O.B., Fort William.

Land however which is so well cultivated as to produce 20 bushels of wheat to the acre, will easily produce 60 bushels of oats to the acre, which at the recent current price of $1.05 per bushel, will give the farmer a return from such acre of oats of $62.50 F.O.B., Fort William.

This shows a profit of $18.30 per acre to the Farmer to grow oats instead of wheat or in other words if the farmer grows 100 acres of oats instead of 100 acres of wheat he will be $1,830 ahead at the end of the year.

The Dominion Government know the Allies are desperately in need of wheat and yet the effect of the regulations passed by the Government are such as to really bonus the farmers to grow coarse grains instead of wheat.

The foolish regulations of the Government would be laughable, only for the fact that to Great Britain and her Allies the lack of wheat may prove a world wide tragedy.

This is no doubt what Mr. E. C. Drury, had in mind in speaking on behalf of the Farmers, as reported in yesterday's Globe, when he said:

"We have been urged to produce "and many of us are this year pro- "ducing at a loss."

"Thousands of acres of Spring "Wheat have gone in this year in "response to that call, when the "farmers know that they could make "more by growing barley and oats. "There is the proof of our patriot- "ism . . . The men who are bring- "ing us to Ottawa do not know that "life has been a drudgery for the "past year and that the farmers have "been working to the limit of their "endurance. I am not going to "charge malice, but I do charge ig- "norance of conditions upon the part "of the powers that be."

Amendments To O.T.A. Which Apply To Sales Of Flavouring Extracts And Also To Ginger

The amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act, passed in March, 1918, contain the following clauses respecting the sale of flavouring extracts, essences and tincture, and also of ginger, which License Inspector Stewart directs to the attention of the public:

125 a(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 125 of the Ontario Temperance Act no essence, tincture, compound or preparation commonly known as a flavouring extract or essence containing alcohol shall be sold except in bottles containing not more than two and one-half ounces, and a record of the sale shall be kept by the manufacturer, merchant, druggist or other person who sells the same in a book provided for that purpose, which shall show the name and address of such person to whom any such article is sold, the date of sale and the quantity sold, and this record shall be open to the inspection of any license inspector or any officer authorized by the Board to make such inspection and a true copy thereof under oath shall be supplied to the Board forthwith on demand by the proprietor of the business upon whose premises any such sale was made. Provided, however, that nothing in this section contained shall prevent the sale of any such essence, tincture of flavouring extract in a larger quantity than two and one-half ounces to a druggist or a manufacturer of confectionery or other similar commodity, or to a person in any trade or business in which any such article is commonly used for legitimate purposes, or to a public institution, or to a wholesale dealer for resale to any of the persons mentioned in this proviso, but all such sales shall be recorded in a book as above mentioned by the person selling the same and in all other respects the provisions of this sub-section shall apply thereto.

(a) This sub-section shall not apply to any preparation containing less than two and one-half per cent. of proof spirits.

(2) No pedlar or transient trader in Ontario shall sell or dispose of any tincture, essence or extract mentioned in the preceding sub-section.

Extract of Ginger.

(3) Unless upon the order of a duly qualified medical practitioner no druggist shall sell any tincture, essence or extract of ginger except to a person having a permanent place of residence in the city, town, village or district in which such sale takes place, and then only upon the affidavit made by the person requiring the same in the form in schedule "G", stating that it is not required for beverage purposes. Upon receiving such affidavit and being satisfied that such tincture, essence or extract is required for legitimate purposes, the druggist may supply a quantity not exceeding two ounces and all the provisions of sub-section (1) hereof shall apply to such sale.

(4) The provisions of the next preceding sub-section shall not affect the sale or purchase of any such tincture, essence or extract of ginger by or between wholesale dealers, druggists, manufacturers of confectionery, persons carrying on any trade or business where the same is required for legitimate purposes or where it is needed in a public institution.

(5) Except as in this section provided no person other than a druggist shall sell or dispose of any tincture, essence or extract of ginger.

(6) Any violation of this section shall be an offence against this Act, and the person committing the offence shall upon conviction incur the penalties provided by section 59.

Important Announcement To The Next Of Kin Of All Peterboro' Prisoners Of War

The executive of the Local Red Cross wish to notify the next of kin or those acting as such, who applied through the society for the personal parcel coupons, that the secretary has received the coupons and that such may be obtained at the Public Library, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

That the plan, adopted by the Peterboro Prisoners of War Department, by which the local society has assumed the responsibility of securing the next of kins authority to obtain these coupons for them, has been heartily endorsed by Mrs. Rivers Bulkeley, may be seen by the following extract of a letter received from her, by the secretary, on this subject.

"I must congratulate you on the admirable scheme you have evolved for applying for personal parcel's coupons. It strikes me as such an excellent way of solving a rather tiresome problem, that I am writing to the Head Office, Toronto, suggesting that all Canadian Red Cross branches should be circularised and asked to adopt your system. I hope you will not mind! One is always so grateful for new ideas which help to simplify the work."

Definite and explicit regulations, governing the sending of parcels to prisoners of war, Officers, non-commissioned officers and privates in neutral countries as well as in Germany, have been received in circular form by the secretary and all those, who are interested may receive a copy of the same.

During the month of April, acknowledgments of parcels, sent through the Red Cross, have been received from Lieut. H. Rogers, C. M. Drummond, W. H. Larkman, J. G. Hadden, F. H. Evans, F. Le Bar, Geo. Hutchinson, H. Lawrence, L. Stanley, F. Casson, J. Armour, H. Godfrey.

The name of Lieut. V. Fessenden, Lieut. Massey-Cooke, Cpt. A. Dickson, all of whom are now in Holland and Cpt. J. L. Davis, who escaped to England, have been removed from the Peterborough list, while the names of Geo. Logan and V. Henry have been added.

RUMOUR PROVED TO BE UNFOUNDED

Was the Cause of Much Unrest in War Factories.

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, May 15.—Socialist deputies to-day explained to Albert Thomas, Minister of Munitions, that the recent unrest in the war factories resulted from a rumour that American workers were relieving the British. The Minister proved the rumour was unfounded.

MRS. CLARK FEELS 10 YEARS YOUNGER

Before Taking Tanlac She Often Cried Over Her Condition, She Says

"Positively, with all the work and worry I have had to go through the last year or two I don't believe I could have kept up if it hadn't been for Tanlac," recently said Mrs. Henrietta Clark, of 278 Woburn avenue, Toronto, an old resident and well-known to many in the Bedford Park district.

"Two years ago," she continued, "when my health began to fail, I lost my appetite and didn't relish a thing I forced down. Shortly after eating I would have a feeling of tightness that would distress me for hours. My nerves too were in a dreadful state and my whole system terribly rundown. When I went to bed I would roll and toss half the night unable to sleep, and when I got up in the morning and thought of the work I had to do I would get so despondent that I would break down and cry. I was so weak and exhausted that I was hardly able to go up and down stairs and couldn't walk any distance without giving out. I felt perfectly miserable all the time and believe I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

"I had read so much about Tanlac that I decided to try it. By the time I had finished my first bottle I was feeling so much better that I told my son the other day my improvement was simply astonishing for I actually feel ten years younger. My appetite is fine, I eat heartily of everything and nothing hurts me at all. Before taking Tanlac I most anways had to have someone help me with my housework, but now I do it all myself and can go up and down stairs as good as anybody."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

GERMANS WILL EVACUATE THE ALAND ISLANDS

Swedish Forces Will be Withdrawn at the Same Time.

Special to The Examiner:

STOCKHOLM May 15.—The Germans will evacuate Aland Islands on May 23rd, it was announced to-day. Swedish forces will be withdrawn at the same time. It is probable that the Alands will become a part of the Republic of Finland.

REFERENCE TO A FORMER RESIDENT OF PETERBOROUGH

The Los Angeles Herald makes the following reference to Barbara Tennant (Mrs. Wadley, wife of Mr. Wadley, who was formerly connected with the Brinton Carpet Works in this city):

Screen queens who think they are brave because they pose before the camera with lions and tigers have nothing on daring Barbara Tennant, the star of "The Submarine Eye" at the Palace. She had to be left at the mercy of man-eating sharks and many-tentacled devil fish. As a result she says: "Give me your lions and tigers, bears or wolves, or even Gila monsters or boa constrictors on dry land, in preference to battling in a choppy sea with the wild animals or reptiles of the ocean."

Mrs. Wadley, after leaving the city, where she made many friends, returned with her husband to the stage, and has now embarked in the movie world.

"Cascarets" Best If Headachy, Bilious, Sick, Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, bad breath, bad colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels, or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Manufacturers Will Assist In The Registration On June 22

Recommended Certain Facilities to Ald. Dobbin in a Conference Last Night — Will Apparently Have to Bear Whatever Lost Time is Entailed.

OTHER ARRANGEMENTS

As registrar for West Peterborough, Alderman Dobbin is fast developing the organization for the registration of the man-power and woman-power of this riding. Last night, he held a conference with the manufacturers, explaining to them the details of the coming registration and the assistance which the Government expects them to render. With characteristic despatch they stripped the copious instructions of unessential points and went straight to several questions which they felt would materially affect their ousmesses.

For example, the registration will begin on Monday, June 17th, and close on the 22nd, but Mr. E. G. Patterson suggested that if the time were extended to a date earlier than the 17th, the work could be carried on in the large establishments with less difficulty than in one week.

"The 22nd is pay day," he said, "we can't postpone pay day, and our clerks will be busy on the roll."

Alderman Dobbin replied that he would recommend this as an amendment, stating that many factories throughout the Dominion would doubtless welcome it.

As the discussion proceeded the manufacturers grew reconciled to the prospect that upon them will fall the cost of the factory registration.

Employees who earn $6 or $7 a day, it was pointed out, are each worth nearly one dollar an hour, and since it is expected that the average registration will require fifteen minutes, the aggregate loss of time threatens to reach a very considerable sum, not to mention the time of the deputy registrars and assistants, resident in the factories, who are expected to volunteer for the taking of the registrations.

The manufacturers made it plain that they intended to do what the Government asked of them, but there was a feeling that facilities which would not affect the results should be arranged. They agreed to nominate deputy registrars to represent Alderman Dobbin at the factories, and in the near future these volunteers will meet at the Collegiate Assembly Hall for a "chalk talk" on the intricacies of extracting from the registrants the information the Government intends to get.

A Central Board.

On Monday evening a Central Board was formed and duties allotted. The Board comprises the following:

Ed. Manning, Frank Adams, F. M. Somerville, G. O. Cameron, W. Merrill, J. A. Johnstone, V. Eastwood, Geo. Powell, Jos. Picard, Frank Linton, Basil Hall, W. Stocker, F. W. Dean, R. E. Layfield, Jos. Maher, Geo. J. Sherry, chairman.

Side by side with the appeal that has been made to the school teachers of the city, and to the clergymen of the local churches, the Board assumed the duty of selecting and procuring a sufficient number of places in which to carry on the registration. It is assumed, after careful calculation that about two hundred places will be needed. These must be conveniently located, and selected with some care as to position and environment. While it is true that men only, in case of an election or other polling can make use of a blacksmith shop, garage or other place, the ladies come into consideration this time, and the places made use of must be selected with that service in view.

Clergy Enlisted.

On Saturday afternoon the local clergy came together at a meeting, and the matter of securing the use of the Sunday schools and securing, also, a sufficient number of workers from the several congregations to carry on the registration in these places was also assumed. The Sunday schools should give at least from twenty-five to thirty additional places, leaving the city at large to be culled over for the remainder. Places will be established at the Y.M.C.A., the Salvation Army Temple, the Y.W.C.A., the T.A.S. rooms, Public Library, City Hall, etc. Then, where accessible and convenient, other places will be procured, making up the full quota required.

ALL PERSONS, 16 YEARS AND OVER MUST REGISTER

The registration on June 22nd applies not only to persons between the ages of 16 and 60, as has been generally understood, but to all persons in Canada of 16 years and over. Alderman Dobbin, the local registrar made this plain at a conference with the manufacturers of the city last night.

57TH CHAPTER, I.O.D.E.

Regular Monthly Meeting Of Children's Aid Society Held Yesterday

Wage Scale Has Been Adjusted by Mr. Powell—Local Society Will Not Contribute to $2,500 Present For Mr. Kelso.

ACCOUNTS PASSED

At the regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society, Mr. Powell, the Agent, reported satisfactory progress in adjusting a wage scale for wards of over 14 years of age. As this matter could not be dealt with by a hard and fast rule, Mr. Powell has had some difficulty in providing for the children's future. However, by persuading foster parents to make provision by wills for children, the Society felt they could not compel to pay wages, and in other manners equally satisfactory he has made headway.

TRUST ACCOUNTS.

Trust funds for children, wards of the home, are kept under the present management. Mr. Peck is especially anxious that these funds shall be kept sacred.

A MORSE CODE.

No trace of Lillian Martin, the little girl who disappeared from her adopted home in Toronto some time ago so mysteriously, has been found. The nearest Mr. Powell has got to any clue is a letter addressed to the girl in care of the home, in which, in Morse code, the soldier who wrote, added a postcript with a proposal of marriage to the girl. This however does nothing in clearing up the mystery.

A DEMAND.

A small boy who recently ran away from the home and was recovered, wrote an imperious note to Mr. Powell demanding that he see to having his small brother educated. Mr. Powell will humour the child and look into the matter.

COAL FOR HOME.

No provision has been definitely made for heating the home.

MATRON'S REPORT FOR APRIL.

Mrs. Read's report showed 12 children in the home during the past month; nine in the home at present—3 wards, 6 otherwise. The Jackson baby abandoned during the winter is still at the home.

AGENT'S REPORT.

Mr. Powell reported 5 applications; 1 child brought in; 30 involved; 2 made wards; 3 complaints; 3 investigations; a visit to Havelock; 3 wards placed out; 1 returned.

IDEA SAT UPON.

The annual meeting of all the agents of the Children's Aid will be held on May 28, 29, and in connection with this a communication was received, suggesting a subscription to a present of $2500 to Mr. Kelso as a jubilee present in recognition of his 25 years service. This idea was sat upon by the members, as Mr. Kelso is paid a regular salary, and the society funds cannot be devoted to this. A canvass for donations was considered inadvisable.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

QUARANTINE REGULATIONS MUST BE STRICTLY OBSERVED HERE

While Houses Are Placarded Milk Bottles, Letters, Rags, etc., Must Not Be Sent Nor Taken From Them—Board of Health Will Prosecute.

MILK TESTS FOR MAY

At the meeting of the Board of Health last night it was asserted that some citizens have shown a tendency to disregard the regulations respecting quarantine. Milk bottles, rags, paper, letter or other articles must not be taken from houses while they are placarded. Dr. Amys stated that this is a vitally important responsibility, and permits of no exceptions. He mentioned one case of scarlet fever in Peterborough which had been traced to a home across the border and had been transmitted by a letter.

Ald. Langford presided, with Ald. Saunders Jas. Murty, Dr. Amys and Sanitary Inspector Stapleton present.

R. Tiveys' application for a sewer on Rogers street, from Stanley avenue to Wilson street, was approved, and a recommendation for its construction forwarded to the Council.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Hainge, Ashton Farm, Pelley, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three

Few Cents Destroys Your Dandruff And Stops Falling Hair

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die — then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually set a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Some Revisions May Be Made in Connection With Cigars

OTTAWA, May 15.—In the Commons this morning considerable objection was raised to the Government proposed new war tax on cigars. Several members protested that the tax should be put on the rearer brands of cigars and not one the cheaper grades. Mr. MacLean, Acting Finance Minister, said there might be some revisions made along the line. The duty amounted to two thirds of one per cent on each cigar.

FARMERS STILL LINGER IN OTTAWA

WANT TO FIGHT.

Riders of the Plains to Go to the Front.

There are no slackers in the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Severe casualties sustained by the Canadian cavalry brigade in their heroic fight to stem the German tide in Picardy has resulted in demand for reinforcements. Ever since the outbreak of the war the Mounted Police have been urging that they be permitted to go overseas as a unit. In the early days of the war, with the enemy alien situation in the Northwest demanding strict supervision, the Government felt that the force could render more valuable service at home; at one period it was even increased to double strength. Internment of the most dangerous of the aliens, and the entrance of the United States into the war, combined with the establishment of a provincial mounted police, have changed the situation. The Government during the past year has been endeavoring to meet the desire of the Mounted Police, but the war authorities have always stated that there were sufficient cavalry in France.

The losses of Canadian and British cavalry at Picardy, however, where they were thrown into the breach as infantry, have changed the situation and, for the first time since the beginning of war, there is a call for cavalry reinforcements. The Ottawa authorities decided that this was an opportunity for the Mounted Police and decided to ask for 200 men from that force. The force at present consists of 600 men. So fine was the spirit shown that practically the whole six hundred have offered their services.

It is impossible for the men to go to the front as a unit, however, as there are three squadrons in the Canadian cavalry brigade and all are in need of men. These squadrons are the Royal Canadian Dragoons, the Fort Garry Horse and the Strathcona Horse, the historic Canadian units.

As might be expected, the people of Western Canada, intensely proud of these "Riders of the Plains," are strongly urging that the force be permitted to go over as a unit, but the exigencies of the military situation are such that it would seem to be impossible to meet their request. While nothing official has been given out, and the authorities refuse to discuss the matter, it is believed that the resignation of Commissioner Perry and some of the higher officers comes as a protest against the inability of the Government to permit the force to go to the front as an integral body.

There have been persistent rumors for some time that the Government intends to disband the Mounted Police and that this historic force will soon be but a glorious memory. These rumors, however, are denied by the authorities in Ottawa. They say that the need for the force will remain intact, if reduced, to the end of the war, when its future will be definitely decided.

Good Lungs.

Alice, age eight, who was in the second grade of school, was describing the wonderful chorus of the school which she attended, and also told of the songs that were sung each morning in her room. "And who is the best singer in your room?" inquired Alice's mother. Alice was quick to reply: "Why, mother, I can sing as loud as any of them."

Gold Under the City.

A Philadelphia assayer recently took several handfuls of sand from a street excavation near Independence hall and after putting it through an assaying process extracted a small quantity of gold. He declared that, in his opinion, there was enough gold under Philadelphia to make hunting for it worth while.

Why Called "Bloodhounds."

Bloodhounds were first known as southhounds, owing to their ability to track the deer, wild boar or the wolf. When the wounded game broke away and was lost these good-nosed dogs were used in tracking the quarry by the blood trail, and hence they were finally called bloodhounds.

Mr. Brock was politely informed that there was no use wasting time and rehashing a story that had been heard dozens of times before, and that the Council had other business to transact.—Lindsay Warder.

Rabies Is On The Increase In Peterboro' County

Another case of rabies has been discovered in the county. This makes the twentieth case during the past year. Last Saturday Leonard McAuliffe, of Emily Township, was badly bitten by their own dog. On Sunday the dog escaped but was captured and destroyed. Suspecting a case of rabies young McAuliffe came to Peterborough to see Dr. Johnson, the local veterinary surgeon. Dr. Johnson advised McAuliffe to go to Toronto and have the dog's head examined. He did so, and Dr. Naylor who administers the rabies cure in Toronto examined the head and informed Dr. Johnson that it was a sure case of rabies. As a result Dr. Edwards of Ottawa has left for the McAuliffe farm to have it quarantined.

Only last week Dr. Johnson found a cat with the rabies. The mistress of the house alarmed by the actions of the cat had incarcerated it in the cellar. It was declared a case of rabies and destroyed. Dr. Johnson is alarmed at the increasing number of cases of rabies in the county and will suggest to Dr. Edwards that means be taken to destroy all the dogs of the county.

Although some 150 dogs have been destroyed in the city, rabies is on the increase. Already this year two men and a boy have died from the dread disease, not to mention a large number of horses, sheep and cattle, which have succumbed.

Mr. McAuliffe is being successfully treated in Toronto, and will soon be able to return to his home.

GROCERS ARE LIABLE.

If Light Weight Bread Is Found On Their Shelves.

Police Sergeant Reid, the city's bread inspector, stated to-day that the regulations make grocers responsible if five or more short-weight loaves of bread are found in their stores. Hence, they should provide proper containers for the bread, instead of leaving it exposed on the open shelves where its moisture is quickly absorbed. If a baker has ten or more light loaves he is liable to a penalty, but the grocers are not immune, and the Inspector reminds them that they may expect visits at any time.

Hostile Artillery Are Active On The Western Front

THE GERMAN MINISTER OF MARINE APPROVES OF SUBMARINE WAR

FRENCH TROOPS PENETRATED THE GERMAN LINES

SURPRISING STATEMENT

American Army Will Not Be Used Until It Becomes a Powerful Separate Unit—Conflicting Reports

A CHEERING FACTOR

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, May 13. — The Canadian announcement that the Entente will use the American army only when it becomes a powerful separate unit, caused surprise here today.

There had been no indication of any shift in the plans for brigading the Americans with the Allies, and thus taking away the identity of the United States forces. In the absence of Secretary Baker other officials maintained silence as to the significance of the statement. As Secretary Baker was expected back from inspecting Camp Green, Charlotte, North Carolina, today, some explanation was anticipated.

A Strong Reserve.

The cheering factor in the published Canadian statement was its supreme confidence. It showed a new strategy by Foch, that of resisting the Germans with the fewest possible troops yielding when necessary, but maintaining a strong reserve. It pointed out that Germany has massed her all and that now it is only a case of victory deferred for the Entente, and of certain defeats for the Teuton. This strain of optimism deferred from the warning of British Ambassador Reading here Saturday night against a "false optimism." This is the second time in recent days that foreign British statements have failed to tally with utterances from the British services here.

A Surprise.

These conflicting views mystify the authorities so. Especially is the Canadian announcement a surprise in view of the recent clamour for more Americans speedily and because under the strain of this appeal General Pershing agreed to brigade the Americans with the British and French.

If the German is as badly off as the Ottawa statement would indicate, or if the Entente is as well off as the announcement claims, then the situation is far better than military men here have believed it to be.

SCOW OF COAL SINKS IN PIGEON LAKE

Mr. Bruce Freeburn was towing a scow of coal to Sandy Point, the summer home of Sir Edward Kemp, this week, when suddenly it dove to the bottom of the lake. This peculiar occurrence is explained thus: The launch which is a high powered one, was travelling at a good speed, raising the bow of the scow up in the air, and upon approaching the wharf at the Point, the speed was lowered and the weight of coal caused it to dip at the bow and sink immediately. Only quick work with a knife, cutting the line prevented a complete disappearance of the scow, launch and all.—Independent.

Instantly Killed By Automobile

Toll Gate Keeper Met Tragic Death Near Port Hope—Owner of Car Was On His Way to Peterborough

INQUEST OPENED

Canadian Press:

PORT HOPE, May 13.—John Pacard aged 70, a toll gate keeper about five miles from here, was instantly killed early Sunday morning when he was struck by an automobile, in which were James Rooney and E. Plunkett, of Cobourg. The remains of the victim were picked up by the two men and taken to his late home, and they then reported to the authorities here. An inquest will be opened in Port Hope to-morrow by Coroner Dr. Ferris.

COMING TO PETERBOROUGH.

It is said that the aged keeper, when he saw the automobile coming, started to cross the road to be in a position to collect the toll and was struck by the machine before he could clear the road. He leaves a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Hutchison and Mrs. Fox, Port Hope. Rooney is a commercial traveller, and Plunkett, the owner of the car, was, it is alleged, driving him to Peterborough when the accident happened.

Stirring Prophecy

Hon. James Beck Prophesies Time When the United States Will Not Accept Repayment of Its Loans to the Allies

MEETING LAST NIGHT

(Special to Examiner)

MONTREAL, May 13.—A stirring and almost utopian prophecy of American Generosity to the Allies was made by Hon. James M. Beck, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States in an address at St. James Methodist church last night when he said the United States would not accept the repayment of its loans to the Allies. Great applause greeted speaker when he told of how enthusiastically American audiences of stock brokers, hard headed business men and others had greeted his prophecy that when after the war, Great Britain and France come to settle for the $4,000,000,000 they owe now and the $7,000,000,000, they will owe before the war is over, the reply of the United States will be "receipted in full it is paid already, paid by the blood of your sons who died as much for the Unites States as for you". Mr. Beck said that this suggestion had received the widest publicity all over the United States and everywhere it met with general and widest acceptance. Hon. Mr. Back stated that when a million soldiers came back to the United States after the war these veterans would not hear a word of the old national animosity against her French or British soldiers, and that an enduring friendship would be cemented for ever. He also prophesied the ultimate victory of the Allies, saying that every prophecy he had made so far had come true.

The Speaker had on the pulpit with him Sir Vincent Meredith, Sir Charles Davidson, Sir William Paterson, Senator Foster and other prominent citizens.

EMPEROR WILLIAM LOOKS FOR LONG, HAPPY YEARS OF PEACE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, May 13.—Replying to a message of congratulations from King Ludwig of Bavaria on the conclusion of peace, with Roumania, Emperor William has sent the following telegram.

"I know I am at one with you in confirming the confidence that the Almighty will lead our good cause to victory. May God grant that our brave and faithful people will reap the fruits of their present sacrifice in long and happy years of peace."

"Shortage of Food Kept 2,000,000 Italian Soldiers Out of Battle Line While Many British People Ate Horse Flesh" Says Mr. Hall

The Canadian Food Bulletin No. 14, issued by the Dominion Government under date of April 13th, 1918, says:

"Desperate Need of Food."

"Information reaching the Italian Embassy in Washington indicates that the Italian army and civilians are in desperate need of food. It is said that only one-third of the Italian army of 3,000,000 men is now being maintained on the battle lines, the official explanation being that there is not sufficient food to feed more and that there is also shortage of other supplies. On the other hand, the strong Austrian army facing the Italians is said to have received recently large supplies from Russia.

"In order to maintain the morale of the Italians, as well as that of the other allied nations, there is an ever-increasing responsibility upon this continent to send greater quantities of essential foods. This can be done only by the most rigorous economies with wheat products, meats and fats."

Not enough food in Italy to feed two-thirds of her army in the battle lines; Think of it;

Not enough food in Italy to feed an army of 2,000,000 trained soldiers in the battle line! Think of it!

The minimum wants of the Allies from Canada and the United States are 800,000 tons of food stuffs per month—enough to feed 45,000,000 people—enough to feed the whole population of Great Britain.

Owing to the United States Railway breakdown last February the Allies went short 100,000 tons in food stuffs. Result? In one district alone in England 7,000 horses were slain and tens of thousands of British people sank their teeth into horse flesh for the first time in over 100 years.

And still we find our Dominion Government advising us to save, which is wise, and cackling like geese to produce—produce—and doing nothing to really organize this nation to increase food production.

It is nothing short of a crime against humanity that our fertile millions of acres in the Northwest, that should now be growing grain, are still growing weeds and grass.

Moreover the Dominion Government know our Allies want wheat, and they keep in force regulations that make it more profitable to grow coarse grains instead of wheat.

Could the enemy of old, who sowed tares in his neighbour's wheat field, do a more malicious work against our Allies.

Our Allies know that for the want of food 2,000,000 soldiers are kept out of the battle lines.

Our Allies know our vast resources, and the lothful use of Borden Government — the Union Government have made and are making of them.

But what can you expect from false or self-seeking leaders who violate their pledges and build up their own political fortunes by base appeals to passion, prejudice and interest and by instilling into the minds of Canadians, doubt and fear and hatred of each other.

Under the leadership of Sir Robert Borden we are showing to our Allies and to the World, in a most unenviable way, that we are unworthy of the rich and fertile fields that have been handed down to us, and that we are using our vast producing resources with as little sense and prudence as the Bolsheviki of Russia whom we now look proudly down upon.

The Canadian people must struggle to overcome the mistakes of these foolish leaders. Every hour wasted in not producing food will bring hunger and despair to homes.

It is the highest duty of each and all not only to save but to produce "cereals, meats and fats," for the constant supply of food to our Allies is so vital to victory that generations yet unborn may rue the wasting of these days.

R. R. HALL.

German Minister of Marine Says German Naval Offensive is Much Stronger Now

REPORTS FAVOURABLE

(Special to Examiner)

AMSTERDAM, May 13.— Admiral Von Capelle, German Minister of Marine, addressing the Reichstag declared that the German naval offensive is stronger than at any time since the beginning of unrestricted submarine war. The April reports from the submarines were favorable, he said. Herr Pfliger, a centrist said that despite the differences of opinion in the Reichstag it was agreed that the Submarine war should be kept up.

EXEMPTION APPEALS WERE HEARD BEFORE HIS HONOUR JUDGE HUYCKE

Most of the Men Examined This Morning Will Have a Chance to Learn What "Zero" Time Means.

LIST OF CASES

The military exploits and activities of various uncles, cousins and brothers were eulogized his morning by various B men who appeared before Judge Huycke, at the review tribunal. "No doubt you are prouder of them than they are of you," said His Honour.

Most of the men were pretty well assured of a chance to follow the example of their relatives.

Raymond Barrie, age 20, works a 200-acre farm with his father, who is 56 years of age. Considerable production was evident.

Judgment reserved.

MAY GO.

Daniel O'Brien, the Ridge, Hastings, is blind in one eye; has three brothers; two married and one in the west. He works a 200 acre farm with his brother and does his best to aid production. He will probably be sent.

Percy Forbes, default.

Nelson Daniels, default.

NOT SHIRKING.

George V. P. Shaver, Hamilton, a school teacher at Apsley, has been married since the act came into force, which His Honour assured him would not help him as the Act specifically states those married after the 6th of July, 1917, would be considered single, as far as the service is concerned. His immediate conscription will terminate his education and he wishes to try his final examination for matriculation, and would ask for time to do so. His chief trouble was his general unfitness and weak eyesight. On account of the fact that his family record shows that they are not shirking, he will probably be given until July 1.

BIG CROPS.

Samuel Willard Slater thought his activiy on greater production justified his exemption. "Your friends at the front would probably think differently," said His Honour. He works 212 acres and has big crops. His case is to be considered.

His father appeared for him.

WILL PROBABLY GO.

Raymond Hunt, age 22, a farmer, thought that he was necessary to greater production; works a 180-acre farm with his brother in Harvey and has another brother farming. He is quite willing to go if the Judge thinks it necessary.

He will probably go.

A GOOD WORKER.

John Butler of Garden Hill, age 22, applied for exemption on the grounds of physical unfitness. He is a farm laborer, and his employer needs him for greater production on a 400-acre farm.

Mr. Hatton said that if he fights as well as he works, he would make a good soldier.

Judgment was reserved.

Michael Ryan, default.

John O'Brien, default.

TWO OVERSEAS.

Archibald Downing, Apsley, who has two brothers at the front, one of whom has been gassed and twice wounded, the other wounded, applied for exemption on account of impaired eyesight and his activity as a producer. He works a 230-acre farm alone and raises considerable cattle.

Judgment was reserved.

George Kirk, default.

NOT YELLOW.

Thomas Brownlie, city, age 33, does not wish to be considered yellow, and wants to go overseas, but for domestic obligations of an invalid brother and mother to support. He wanted 3 weeks' exemption to settle some business.

He will probably be sent but allowed his asked for time.

James Devlin, Indian River, default.

He will go to Kingston to-night.

Shipping Losses For Past Two Months

Germany Is Preparing to Launch a Series of New Submarine Cruisers.

PARIS, May 13.—The Allies' navies are sinking more German submarines than the Germans can turn out, and the Germans are making exaggerated statements to convince their people that the submarine campaign is still a big success. This is the statement of Georges Leygues, the French Minister of Marine. Leygues declares the situation most favourable for the Allies, and on the other hand the number of submarines destroyed has increased progressively since January, owing to the close methodical co-operation of the Allies.

"I know the enemy is about to launch a series of new submarine cruisers of a great size, but we are ready and will not step over the fine results already obtained," declared Georges Leygues to-day.

Statement Is False.

PARIS, May 13.—During February, March and April 4,511 ships passed safely through the submarine danger zone, it was officially announced today. The Germans claim to have sunk 900,000 tons of shipping during April. This statement is false, as only 208,784 tons were sunk.

McDonald Hillier Won Overland Car Given By E. R. Wilson

McDonald Hillier, 188 Rubidge street, won the Overland runabout donated to the Motor Show committee by Mr. E. R. Wilson, to be disposed of as they deemed best, the proceeds to be given to the Canadian Red Cross Society. Since the Motor Show week, a jar of beans has been displayed in the window of the Richard Hall & Son store, and the automobile was offered to the person estimating the closest to the number of beans it contained. Mr. Hillier's guess was 2,135.

Mr. E. J. H. Vanston announced this morning that Messrs. Peter Campbell and Arthur Stevenson, who counted the beans, reported the correct number to be 2,134. Mr. Wilson's gift netted the Red Cross $300. Other estimates that were only a few figures wide of the count were as follows: Mrs. Thomas DeForge, 335 Patterson street, 2,136; R. C. Hillier, 184 Rubidge street, 2,129; Mrs. C. H. Ackerman, 303 George street, 2,127.

Must Give Notice Of Auto Transfers

Chief Thompson stated today that automobile owners when selling or transferring cars must notify the department in order that the change may be recorded by the Department at Toronto. This is a very important duty, and if there is any further evidences of negligence the Chief is prepared to take action against offenders. Recent accidents when traced by the license numbers, have been blamed on former owners who had sold their cars, but had not notified the department or the police of the new owner.

15,000 Persons In This City The Estimate Of The Registration

Although the date of the registration of the men and women between 16 and 60 years has been fixed for Saturday, June 22nd, it is expected that a large part of the work will be done during that week. The employees of factories and stores, church members and other citizens will be given every opportunity of registering prior to the 22nd, and the bulk of the work should be completed before that day, thus avoiding congestion and confusion, and at the same time enabling the deputy registrars to make the work as thorough and as valuable as possible. It has already become evident to the first volunteers, the principals and male assistants of the Normal School, Collegiate Institute and Public Schools who met Ald. Dobbin last night, that the set of questions which each person must answer cannot be quickly disposed of if the full fruits of the registration are to be obtained. An estimate of the number of registrants within the city limits was placed last night at 15,000. This does not include the residents of the suburbs, those sections of the townships immediately adjoining the city, and virtually part of it. The information which each person must give cannot be disposed of in a few minutes, and it is believed that the assistant workers will do well if they can each register six or eight persons an hour. To facilitate the work, many booths will be provided throughout the city, and an army corps of workers will be mobilized, probably with a reserve force to be despatched to places where the registrants are reporting in numbers greater than were anticipated.

Ald. Dobbin, the registrar for West Peterborough, has lost no time in getting into action. He has not only made a preliminary survey of the city, but has also outlined the rural work, and should gradually enlist an efficient organization in this district.

TWELVE PER CENT OF THE ROADS IN PETERBORO COUNTY SHOULD ACCOMMODATE TRAFFIC

Peterboro is the Only County in Ontario Which Has Not Yet Established the County Road System—County Roads Are Market Roads.

PROVINCIAL AID IS SUBSTANTIAL

In a letter addressed to Mr. B. D. Hall, Secretary of the Peterborough Board of Trade, Mr. W. A. McLean of the Highways Department of the Provincial Government, has the following to say regarding the question of good roads as applied to Peterborough County:

The principal means by which general improvement is being brought about is through the County Road System. Peterborough is the only County in Ontario which has not yet established such a system. This is no doubt due to misunderstanding as to its merits among the ratepayers of your County. It would, therefore, appear only just to the County of Peterborough that we avail ourselves of the opportunity to outline the situation.

Experience Favours County Roads.

Under the Highway Improvement Act, passed by the Government of Ontario in 1901, each County Council is empowered to adopt a System of County Roads. These roads are to be under the control of the County Council.

County Road Systems are not a new institution. Four Counties were maintaining county roads at the time of the passing of the Highway Improvement Act in 1901. By 1904, seven systems had been adopted. Six additional were established in 1906 and 1907, so that thirteen have been in operation for over ten years. Six more were established by 1912. The remainder were established in 1916 and 1917, the provincial grant having been substantially increased in 1917.

No county road system created under the Highway Improvement Act has been abandoned. Wherever it has been properly established, public opinion is strongly in favour of road improvement under this system. It is safe to say that no county council which has had a system in existence a sufficient period to give it a fair trial, could or would seriously attempt to abandon it. The work accomplished, as a rule, has been a revelation of efficiency to the ratepayers, as compared with ordinary township management.

It is not intended to say that county road systems are in all cases entirely above criticism. As with other public services, some criticism has been justified in individual cases, while much has not been justifiable. No merely human organization can be perfect. A county road system is successful in proportion to the determination and earnestness of the county council.

County Roads Are Market Roads.

County roads are selected by the county council and are individually described in the schedule attached to the County By-law. It is expected that they will be the market roads of the district; that is, they are the roads radiating from the local towns, villages and shipping points. The City of Peterborough is central to the County, and it is to be assumed will attract a good deal of traffic.

"Market" includes not only Peterborough, however, but every village where produce is sold, and every railway station or siding from which produce is shipped. All farmers have to sell their produce. All farmers go to the village, to the store, to the church. A very limited mileage of roads, properly located, will serve a large proportion of the traffic. It can be demonstrated that 20 per cent. of the roads, if well built, can serve 80 per cent of a county's traffic. A map suggesting a system of county roads has been submitted to the county council by this Department. If these roads are not the roads which best serve the county traffic, the county council has full liberty to prepare a plan of roads which will do so.

This map, prepared by the Department merely as a suggestion to the county council, comprises about 140 miles of roads, situated in the southerly and more closely occupied portion of the county, and includes about 12 per cent. of the total road mileage. A county road cannot pass every farm, but under a properly selected system, few farmers will be able to go far from home without reaching and travelling on a county road. To infer, of course, that, because only 12 per cent. of the roads are selected, only 12 per cent of the residents of the county will be benefitted, is an absurdity.

Good roads attract traffic, and vehicles accumulate on them. It has been shown by publications of this Department and by the United States Office of Public Roads at Washington that, as ordinarily laid out, 20 per cent. of the total road mileage in a district will accommodate 80 per cent. of the traffic. In Peterborough County, 12 per cent. of the roads should accommodate 70 per cent. of the total farm traffic.

Provincial Aid Is Substantial.

The general proportion of provincial aid is 40 per cent. of the total expenditure for construction; and 20 per cent. of expenditure for maintenance. Construction on which aid is granted, includes not only the ordinary roadbed, but also bridges and culverts on the designated roads, the cost of machinery, the cost of gravel pits, and the salary of the County Road Superintendent.

It should be clearly understood that the provincial grant, as stated, is not a proportion of the county's contribution,—but of the total expenditure. There is an important difference in favour of the county. Forty per cent. of the total expenditure is equivalent to two-thirds of the amount raised by the county, reduced to a concrete example,—

The County raises	$1,000.00
The Province grants	666.66
The County spends	$1,666.66

Maintenance and repair are estimated on a similar basis; the provincial grant, however, being one-half that for construction.

In addition to ordinary county roads, there is a class of road carrying heavy traffic between cities or important terminal points, and which are designated "Provincial County Roads." It is to be expected that such a road should connect the City of Peterborough with the Provincial Highway which will ultimately traverse the north shore of Lake Ontario. To roads of this class, the provincial grant is 60 per cent. of the total cost of construction, and a like proportion of maintenance.

The grant for maintenance and repairs commences as soon as the roads are assumed by the county, with a view to getting the best service from roads as they exist; pending the time when construction can be reached. Counties, upon assuming a system of county roads, are expected to at once establish a comprehensive plan of maintenance. Coupled with maintenance, construction is carried on, so that the roads give good present service, and are gradually developed to a higher standard.

A Starting Point in Construction.

A county road system is a starting point in construction. One of the great mistakes of ordinary township management is that there is an effort to improve all the roads at one time. That has been an impossibility in the past, and will continue to be an impossibility for the future. It is to the advantage of a county road system that a limited mileage of roads, capable of serving the public generally, are set apart for continuous construction. When these are satisfactorily built, the system can be extended. In the meantime, however, it is the experience that townships will have been active on a reduced mileage, and the more general improvement of the feeders entering the county road system has resulted. This is the universal experience in connection with old established county road systems under the Highway Improvement Act.

SUFFERED WITH NERVES COULD NOT KEEP QUIET

Diseases of the nervous system are very common.

All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and wornout by household duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with their nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy, or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the shaking nerves, strengthen the weak heart and build up the entire system.

Mrs. F. Bailey, 221 Earl St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "I was suffering very much with my nerves, so much so that I could not keep myself quiet at all. I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I bought three boxes, and I must say I have derived much benefit from them, so much so that my friends have all noticed the change in me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Health for all the Family

MODERN, artificial methods of life make it absolutely necessary to use medicines occasionally to ensure the regular, and healthful action of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are recognized as the most satisfactory regulating medicine for all the members of the family.

This medicine is not in any sense a cure-all, but its use occasionally, as required, ensures the activity of the liver, kidneys and bowels, the cleansing of the system, and the purifying of the blood.

For this reason you can depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to prevent and cure constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, kidney derangements and resulting painful ailments, such as backache, rheumatism and lumbago.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so universally used that you can obtain them at any store where medicines are sold.

FIGHTING BLACKLEG IN PETERBOROUGH COUNTY

Vaccine is Being Distributed to the Farmers Throughout the District

F. F. McRae, agricultural representative of Peterborough County, writes as follows to the Weekly Sun, Toronto:

We have sent out to three farmers 280 doses of Blackleg Vaccine. I may say that the output of this vaccine since I came to the Department of Agriculture four years ago, has increased at least 200 per cent. Last spring almost 1,000 head of cattle in this district were vaccinated and present indications are that the number will be as large, if not larger, this year. Blackleg has been quite prevalent in the past, but is being eradicated.

Lieut. Morrison Presented With Cigarette Case

Peterboro' Soldier Was Invited to Meet the Duke of Devonshire

Lieutenant David E. Morrison, of the R.A.F., received a telegram from Colonel Hon. Harold Henderson asking him to be at the station when the Vice-Regal party stopped off last evening. Lieut. Morrison drove the second car in the parade when the Duke visited the city on Monday. Last evening he was presented with a beautiful silver cigarette case lined with gold. On the cover was the Duke's crest, under which was the letter "D."

Lieutenant Morrison enlisted in the first contingent as a private. At Valcartier, owing to his knowledge of all kinds of cars, he was selected to drive Sir Sam Hughes' car. Lieut. Morrison drove for Brigadier General Brooke, the Duke of Connaught for headquarters of the 4th Canadian Division, and also in the King's parade at Aldershot. He has driven all the best makes of cars. In the Flying Crops he has had many narrow escapes. Once he lost control of his machine, fell out and landed in a tree, practically unhurt. He was driven from the headquarters of the 4th Canadian Division to the port of Boulogne. He is now home on leave until June 1. He is a son of the late Alexander Morrison of Bridgenorth, and is now staying at the home of his brother, Robert Morrison, 599 Bolivar street.

Joseph Mantell Celebrates His 108th Birthday

Mr. Joseph Mantell, a one-time resident of Peterborough, is celebrating to-day his 108th birthday at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. J. C. Edwards, 49 Rainsford road, Toronto, who formerly lived here on Charlotte street. Mr. Mantell has just finished planting his war garden, and this morning had more time than usual to devote to reading the war news. He is as keenly interested in the events of the time as ever. On December 7 last he cast his vote for the Union Government, and was one of the earliest voters.

He tells with glee of the wild experiences of the early days of voting in Canada. When living in London he had often walked thirty miles to Long Point to cast his vote. On other occasions he has loaned his boots to his friends to go to the polls, as often there were not enough good walking boots to go around. At Cobourg when he entered the polling booth, Grits and Tories would be lined up on both sides and the voter would be asked how he intended to vote. If there was a majority of his own party around him he was perfectly safe, but if not he was given a good thrashing, the men even resorting to the use of rails from the old rail fences.

Mr. Mantell was born in Edmonton, May 10, 1810, and was christened in the old church of Hendon, then near London, England, but now a suburb of the city. He remembers his mother telling the children that if they were not good Napoleon would get them and he remembers distinctly the battle of Waterloo. Eighty-two years ago he came to Canada and walked along the shore from Quebec to Toronto. It took him three weeks to do this. He served at the time of the rebellion in 1837. Later he lived in London for a number of years, then in Wilsonburg, and finally in Toronto for the last ten years with his granddaughter, Mrs. Judson Edwards. His hearing is not good, but otherwise he seems to have possession of every faculty. He has one daughter and two sons living, seven grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

"THEY SHALL NOT WANT"

In a moment of inspiration an advertising man recently hit upon the above four words as epitomizing the desire and determination of the people of Canada that the Armies of the Allies and the suffering peoples of the Allied nations of Europe shall be supplied with all that Canada can possibly furnish of the food stuffs necessary for their support in the energetic and successful prosecution of their struggle for the defeat of tyrannical Prussian aspirations.

Compressed in this little sentence is more real throbbing meaning than most full pages of printed matter contain. In sixteen letters it expresses the determination of a people that a great cause must be sustained at no matter what personal sacrifice.

"They shall not want."

How aptly these words also express the attitude of the NORMAL, HEALTHY-MINDED MAN towards, those who under our social system, naturally look to him for support and protection. As he thinks of the wife who has entrusted her future to his care and of the children whom he has brought into the world, his thought and determination is "THEY SHALL NOT WANT."

This is always the attitude of the normal, healthy-minded man who is willing to sacrifice, if need be, to attain this noble end.

A policy in the Sun Life of Canada provides the safest and most economical means of fulfilling this noble desire and determination and incidentally, if fortunately in time this mode of protection is no longer necessary he may himself reap the benefits of his savings and thrift.

Thus virtue has its own reward.

Are you giving aid and comfort to the enemy?

Any householder in your neighborhood who has a garden plot, or who owns a piece of suitable vacant land that is not being put under cultivation in order to increase food production, is (though he or she may not believe it) giving aid and comfort to the enemy in restraining food production, as really as is the Submarine Commander who sinks an Allied ship laden with food.

Look around you! Look around you!

If you have not yet decided to plant a vegetable garden make up your mind to do so now. You will not regret it. There is still lots of time. Potatoes and beans may be planted up to June 1st and these are the best substitutes for wheat and meat.

For good, practical advice upon how to lay out and cultivate a Vegetable Garden, write for a free copy of the booklet entitled: "A Vegetable Garden for Every Home." This has been prepared by the Ontario Department of Agriculture for the guidance of citizens who will respond to this call for increased production.

OUR DEFENSE

In the spring we may be attacked at any moment. Toxic poisons pile up within us after a hard winter, and we feel "run-down," tired out, blue and discouraged. This is the time to put our house in order—cleanse the system and put fresh blood into our arteries. You can obtain an alterative extract from Blood root, Golden Seal, Stone and Queen's root, Cherry bark, rolled into a sugar-coated tablet and sold by most druggists, in fifty-cent vials, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This blood tonic, in tablet or liquid form, is just what you need for "Spring Fever," for that lack of ambition. It will fill you full of vim, vigor and vitality.

LINDSAY, ONTARIO.—"When my little daughter was five years old her liver was so sluggish that I feared she might be troubled with habitual constipation. I had read a great deal about Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and decided to try it with her, giving her small doses. I found that it not only helped her liver but it also proved to be a splendid tonic, as well. It was such a splendid medicine that I would never hesitate to give it to her again if she needed it, and I take pleasure in recommending it to other mothers whose little ones seem to need a liver regulator and blood maker."—Miss LOUISA BEALS, Box 1135.

FALL WHEAT A FAILURE.

Poor Showing in York, Simcoe and Peel Counties.

TORONTO, May 9.—C. F. Bailey, assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, has just returned from a tour of inspection of the farms of the counties of York, Peel and Simcoe, and states that the fall wheat situation is very serious. In a tour of 225 miles Mr. Bailey only saw about three good fields of fall wheat.

"Not more than 10 per cent. of the wheat sown will yield anything," said Mr. Bailey. "Many of the farmers have sown spring wheat, and others have ploughed up the ground altogether and are putting in oats, barley or some other grains."

Mr. Bailey accounted for the poor showing of fall wheat as due to the lateness in sowing it last fall, and adverse weather conditions.

"One fact is very noticeable," said Mr. Bailey, "and that is the response of the farmers to the call for increased production. In the distance travelled I never saw so many acres under cultivation.

Canadian Railway Battalion Constructed Nine Miles Of French Railway In One Day

Over This 27 Locomotives and 235 Cars Were Rushed to Safety—Salve 20,000 Feet of Lumber in German Advance By Feverishly Building Rafts

VALUABLE SUPPLIES SAVED

OTTAWA, May 13.—The following article by Roland Hill has been received:

"One company of Canadian railway troops of a York County, Ontario, battalion had amazing adventures during the British retirement. They were building lines at the extreme eastern limit of the British section and for days and nights they worked feverishly to connect up with a French system so that the valuable rolling stock could be hauled away. At one place they made a record of over nine miles constructed in one day under heavy shelling from the enemy. By making the connection 27 locomotives and 235 trucks were run out of the danger zone.

"Their wanderings from Chauny took them to Novon and thence to Applecourt, where a barge was obtained from the French and their equipment loaded on that and sent down the canal to safety. At Longeuil they came across a huge French engineering dump which the allies are trying to salve. They offered their services and set to work in real Canadian fashion. There are great shortages of barges, but plenty of huge timbers. The railwaymen boomed the canal and dumped in the lumber, making long, slim rafts that would just fit the locks.

"Twenty thousand feet of lumber was salved in this way, but that was not enough. They loaded steel rails and other engineering material on the improvised rafts and under the guidance of some French-Canadian lumbermen who belonged to the battalion started their adventurous but completely successful journey down the canal. Lower down another huge timber dump of fifty thousand feet of several thousand telegraph poles and wooden ties were salved in the same way. Arrived safely at Compeigne with their miscellaneous freight, they built a huge skidway and safely removed all the lumber started north and joined their battalion."

RUSSIAN LABOUR NOW RANGING ITSELF AGAINST THE BOLSHEVIKI

Finnish Minister Reports Great Unemployment and Industry Paralyzed

LONDON, May 13.—A despatch to the Times from Stockholm says the Finnish Government has summoned M. Von Enkel, Finnish Minister at Petrograd, to return to Helsingfors for the purpose of discussing the suggested annexation of Russian Karella by Finland.

M. Von Engel is quoted by the correspondent as reporting the situation in Petrograd as precarious owing to the scarcity and dearness of food. The Lenine Government however, is gaining in stability and power, he says, subduing the unruly elements and making an effort to reorganize the army. The number of unemployed is very great and industry is completely paralyzed. The Bolsheviki are still looking to that Government for a free distribution of land, most of which in the meantime has been left uncultivated.

M. Boichiler, a French economist, who has arrived at Stockholm on his way to France from Russia, confirms the statements of the Minister regarding the labourr situation. Bolshevikism, the French traveler declares, has destroyed industrial and disintegrated labour throughout Russia. Labour is now gradually ranging itself against the Bolsheviki, the better elements among it becoming reactionary.

WOMAN'S NERVES MADE STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Winona, Minn.—"I suffered for more than a year from nervousness, and was so bad I could not rest at night—would lie awake and get so nervous I would have to get up and walk around and in the morning would be all tired out. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it. My nervousness soon left me. I sleep well and feel fine in the morning and able to do my work. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make weak nerves strong."—Mrs. ALBERT SULTZE, 605 Olmstead St., Winona, Minn.

How often do we hear the expression among women, "I am so nervous, I cannot sleep," or "it seems as though I should fly." Such women should profit by Mrs. Sultze's experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For forty years it has been overcoming such serious conditions as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

THE CHANNEL IS BLOCKED

Thrilling Story of the British Naval Raid on Ostend--Guns Thundered on All Sides

LOSSES WERE LIGHT

(Special to The Examiner.)

DOVER, England, May 11. — The German naval base at Ostend undoubtedly is effectively blocked, as the result of Friday morning's daring raid, except for the passage of small craft.

The old cruiser Vindictive, 320 feet long, lies quartering in the 327-foot channel. The rapid filling in around her with silt by the current will cause the Germans considerable trouble.

British casualties were remarkably light. Officers and men who participated in the venture reported five

(United Press Service.)

(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 10 —Information from the Italian front establishes the fact that since the inspired announcement by the entire German-Austrian press regarding the impending offensive against the Italians, indications are daily apparent of a complete reorganization of the Austrian armies in that theatre and of preparations for an offensive.

Campaign of Raids.

The Austrians have inaugurated a campaign of raids and reconnaissances usually the prelude of major attacks. The Austrian High Command apparently has divided its forces into two groups, the armies of each being commanded separately.

The effective divisions holding down the Italian front, which were allowed to decrease during the winter have been reinforced, the number of companies has been increased and the artillery filled out.

May Be Diverted.

From various sources it is learned that extensive efforts are in progress for the purpose of restoring the combative quality of the Austrian army.

While these preparations seemingly indicate an offensive against Italy, allied military officials recognize that this new military concentration could easily be thrown against the Franco-British front.

Reports from the Macedonian front state that after a winter of inactivity the French and British have begun activities, capturing several villages during the past month.

The Macedonia Front.

The Macedonia front is now held exclusively by Bulgarians. The German divisions formerly there have been transferred to the French front and into Asia Minor and Syria. Although German officers are still commanding the artillery and aviation units, and the Bulgarians presumably are acting under the German Imperial Staff, they do not give any evidence of an offensive.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

ASHAMED TO GO OUT

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by unsightly pimples, blotches, flesh worms and various other blood diseases.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted as well as pain and regret to their friends.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mould of beauty have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost and their possessor rendered unhappy for years.

Why, then, consent to rest under this cloud of embarrassment?

There is an effectual remedy for all these defects.

It is Burdock Blood Bitters. This remedy will drive out all the impurities from the blood and leave the complexion healthy and clear.

Mrs. Katherine Henry, Port Sydney, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my face was so covered with pimples I was ashamed to go out at all. I tried several remedies, but they were of no use. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle, and by the time it was used I could see a difference. I then got two more, and when I had used them the pimples were completely gone. I can highly recommend B.B.B."

Hardware And Metal Markets

Rapidly advancing markets feature the situation in turpentine during the week, prices going up from 8c. to 10c. per gallon, with prospects of even higher levels being reached, says "Hardware and Metal" this week. At primary points the market on this commodity shows increasing strength. Great difficulty in getting shipments through to Canadian points is being experienced, and supplies are within a very small compass.

A further advance in tin of 15c. per pound features the metal markets. This, it is intimated, is the result of increased costs, due to advances in primary markets. Stocks are at a very low ebb, and no shipments from Great Britain are reported on the way. Solder has been influenced to higher levels by the increase in tin, and quotations are up about 4c. per pound in some quarters, which has served to narrow the range. Stocks are none too heavy, and manufacturers are trying to equalize distribution as carefully as they can.

Steel Outlook.

The outlook for all steel grows more uncertain. The action of the United States government in taking over the entire output of the mills must result in supplies for commercial requirements reaching a low point. At the present, fair stocks of sheets are reported available, and a very firm undertone exists. Business, however, must be conducted on the basis of a constantly decreasing supply.

A very big advance in China bristles has been put into effect at primary points, and this has resulted in a very firm undertone for brushes. French and Russian bristles are not coming in, and under the exceptionally heavy demand for war work in shipbuilding, railroad equipment, etc. there has been some question as to whether bristles available would take care of all requirements. Corn brooms are in a very firm market, and higher prices are not altogether unexpected.

The general tendency of the markets during the week has been upward. Fire-welded coil chain is quoted at higher levels and other lines similarly affected include small bore rifles, shovel, spade and scoop handles, blow torches, fire pots, nut and chain wrenches, automatic hand drills, spiral screwdrivers, breast drills and alarm tills. An advance in some quarters of 1 1-2c. per pound on horse shoe nails has been made, and horse clippers have also gone to higher levels. Ready roofing is another line to make an advance, and asbestos sheathing is also up. Business in spring lines is reported excellent.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1918

FARMERS SAY PRODUCTION WILL BE INTERFERED WITH

President of Ontario Farmers' Association Says Deputation Not At All Satisfied With Results of Trip to Ottawa.

THE MEMORIAL

(Special to Examiner.)

Ottawa, May 15. — The memorial which it was the intention of the farmers' delegations to read to the House of Commons yesterday, had their appointees been granted entry, was read last night at the Arena, and consisted of a protest against the delegation of parliamentary function powers to a Cabinet in council and against the curtailment of privileges of the representatives of the people.

The assumption by the government of perogatives lightly belonging to parliament is strongly warned against.

NEW DEPARTURE.

The memorial expresses gratification at "this new departure in Canada parliamentary practice" (permitting the delegates to address the House) following so closely upon the speech to the House and the Senate of the president of the American Federation of Labour. It is, says the memorial, "an agreeable recognition of relationship which the war is producing as between those who govern and those who are governed by consent."

Gratification is also expressed that a larger independence of thought and speech han usual has been evident in the new parliament.

THE UNREST.

"The unrest in the country which has brought about the unexampled spectacle of thousands of farmers leaving their important work of planting their crops to come to the capital to remonstrate with the government," continues the memorial, "is known to every member of this House. We cannot disguise from the house the apprehension of the public that the liberties of which the popularly elected branch of the legislature is the bulwark, may be dangerously curtailed during the period that the House is now sitting."

Complaint is then made of certain innovations, the continuance of which it is claimed, would be fraught with serious results.

"BROKEN PLEDGES."

Toronto, May 15.—"The government did not keep its pledge to us. I say that a government has as much right to keep one pledge as another. Why was the government ever satisfied of that pledge of 400,000 men from Canada. The premier said he never had any authority to make such a pledge" said President R. H. Halpert, of Dufferin county, the chairman of the Ontario Farmers' Association, who arrived in the city to-day on his return from Ottawa.

"We don't expect that anything will be done, and the production is going to suffer," he continued.

"There never was a war yet that was not won by food in the end. The Crimean war was ended in that way, and so was the American civil war, and the Russo-Japanese war; and this war is going to be ended in that wa, too." Mr. Halpert said that the farmers were very disappointed with the attitude which had been taken by the government, and added that the power seemed to have passed to the Cabinet, instead of the men who were elected to represent the people.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

"They go ahead and pass orders in council and then when parliament is in session. This is quite wrong. The orders in council were only intended to be used when the government is not in session, and the laws have to be made in a hurry. The result is that the men of the government are powerless." The deputation is not at all satisfied and it was a large and representative gathering which filled the Russel House in Ottawa to its capacity.

Mr. Halpert said that production is going to be seriously affected. In his own district farmers were sowing grass seed without grain for lack of help. They usually sow grass and grain together to get the grass for summer the next season after the crop has been gathered in, but this year no grain will be sown, only grass on 1000 acres in Dufferin county.

RUSSIANS DROVE OUT THE GERMANS

Canadian Press:

MOSCOW, May 15.— Rostov on Don, the largest city in the Don Cossack territory, was recaptured last week by the Russian Soviet troops who drove out the Germans. The Germans who had held Rostov for only a day, are retreating.

Huns Embark On Their Last Big Adventure

Enemy Divisions Are Being Refitted—German Losses Were Very Heavy in Last Offensive

THE THIRD PUSH

Ten O'clock Despatch—

(By William Philip Simms.)

With the British Armies in France, May 15. — There is no doubt that Germany has embarked on her last great adventure, in which every man, boy, horse and machine will be used in a desperate endeavour to gain a favorable decision during the present fighting.

REFITTING DIVISIONS.

The German drafts are refitting divisions which are about half composed of returned wounded and recruits. The latter include some boys of 18 years. Few if any of youths of this age were in line at the beginning of the offensive when Hindenburg depended largely on the class of 1918, which fought with great impetuosity, but lacked stamina to win a victory.

A captured non-commissioned officer of the 62nd infantry declares that the regiment lost fifty per cent. of its personnel around Meteren (on the Flanders front.) Its casualties included nine company commanders.

Another prisoner says his battalion lost between 60 and 70 per cent. of its effectives.

LOSSES WERE HIGH.

A prisoner belonging to the 112th regiment, says certain battalions lost between 40 to 60 per cent. It is clearly established that the German losses were high in both the Somme and the Lys fights, delaying the start of the third push.

There is every probability that the class of 1918, which is being drafted in large numbers, will with Veterans, be driven to death—fulfilling the Kaiser's boast that he will continue to rule the world, or will see every man, boy, horse and dog die.

BIG FIRE IN THE WEST

Shipyard in British Columbia Damaged to Extent of Over a Million and a Half

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 15. — Fire in J. Coughlan and Son Shipyards at False Creek did damage to the extent of from one and a half to two million dollars early this morning. Flames were discovered in the boiler rooms shortly after eleven o'clock and spread rapidly. The fire was under control at 5 a.m. The fireman Cameron was killed by falling walls of the boiler house, and three others suffered minor injuries. One steamer which was about two-thirds completed was damaged in the flames. Other ships were saved.

Minister Of Railways And Canals Coming

After the close of the present session of Parliament, Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways and Canals, will officially and firmally open the Trent Canal from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay. A steamer will leave Ottawa and by way of the Rideau Canal, the Bay of Quinte and the Trent Canal will visit Peterboro and proceed to Georgian Bay. Dr. Reid will probably embark at Trenton, arriving there by train.

Assurance of his interest in the formal opening, and of his desire to make the occasion as successful as possible was given by the Minister to Mayor Duncan at Ottawa yesterday. The Mayor was accompanied by City Clerk Armstrong and Mr. W. H. Denham of the Quaker Oats company.

This may be accepted as a guarantee that the opening will be held in the near future, probably on the 3rd of June, the King's birthday. The Minister has been decidedly responsive to the suggestions, Peterboro has put forward, and with his co operation it is believed that the official opening will be a memorable event despite the oppressive pall, the war throws over every undertaking in these days.

THE GERMANS IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW THREATENED

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Germany is seeking to augment her armies by conscripting the Russians of the borderlands. She is striving to make rich Russian territory purely and simply a German province.

These statements represent official opinion here to-day, backed by official information. Both programmes are in line with the Teuton plan of ending the war this year. By getting fresh men from the army, Germany hopes to make a military decision possible, but if she cannot get the borderlands to yield the desired cannon fodder she hopes at least to dominate Russia so that she can later go before the world with the insidious plea: "We will give up the west if we can hold what we have in the east."

A SERIOUS MENACE.

Both these plans represent a very serious menace which the allies must consider, according to officials.

One said to-day that the western military situation, plus this Russian problem, meant that England and France must drain their man power much farther, while the United States proceeds to throw in a greater force than we have thus far contemplated.

Moscow is threatened. The Boche has overrun Ukrainia, violating the Brest-Litovsk treaty indiscriminately. Germany is making demands that she be permitted a free hand in the present Russian capital and removal of it further east is considered. The Boche is seeking to strip away the last of the Russian army so he can mold the men into German soldiers or German war workers. He has already put the Russian navies out of business. He is systematically instilling terror into Russian hearts by his "Belgium-like atrocities in Finland, Ukraine and Russia proper."

Rabies Is On The Increase In Peterboro' County

Another case of rabies has been discovered in the county. This makes the twentieth case during the past year. Last Saturday Leonard McAuliffe, of Emily Township, was badly bitten by their own dog. On Sunday the dog escaped but was captured and destroyed. Suspecting a case of rabies young McAuliffe came to Peterborough to see Dr. Johnson, the local veterinary surgeon. Dr. Johnson advised McAuliffe to go to Toronto and have the dog's head examined. He did so, and Dr. Naylor who administers the rabies cure in Toronto examined the head and informed Dr. Johnson that it was a sure case of rabies. As a result Dr. Edwards of Ottawa has left for the McAuliffe farm to have it quarantined.

Only last week Dr. Johnson found a cat with the rabies. The mistress of the house alarmed by the actions of the cat had incarcerated it in the cellar. It was declared a case of rabies and destroyed. Dr. Johnson is alarmed at the increasing number of cases of rabies in the county and will suggest to Dr. Edwards that means be taken to destroy all the dogs of the county.

Although some 150 dogs have been destroyed in the city, rabies is on the increase. Already this year two men and a boy have died from the dread disease, not to mention a large number of horses, sheep and cattle, which have succumbed.

Mr. McAuliffe is being successfully treated in Toronto, and will soon be able to return to his home.

CANOE UPSET IN LITTLE LAKE

Local Boys Have a Narrow Escape From Drowning

Messrs. V. Carr and Chas. Mongour, two members of the local branch of the G.W.V.A., had a narrow escape from drowning last night shortly after nine o'clock, when their canoe upset in the middle of Little Lake. When they were opposite Burnham street and well out in the lake a sudden move on the part of one of the men capsized the canoe. Fortunately both could swim and they were able to reach and cling to the boat. They endeavoured to swim to the boom, running across the lake, towing the canoe with them, but the wind was too strong and they were compelled to head for the shore several hundred yards away. Mongour, who had been wounded by shrapnel in the leg in France was seized with cramps, but maintained his hold on the canoe, and finally after half an hour's battle the two managed to reach the shore near Burnham street, numb and stiff with their long immersion in the cold water, but otherwise none the worse for their adventure.

RECEPTION IS PLANNED

Hon. Dr. Beland Will Be Warmly Welcomed When He Returns to Canada—Enthusiasm in Quebec

HATE THE BOCHE

(Special to Examiner.)

Montreal, Quebec, May 15. — No event has done more to stimulate military enthusiasm, and hatred of the Boche, amongst the French Canadians than the release of Dr. Beland, member of Parliament for Beauce, which has revived the stories of the cruelties inflicted on him by the Germans whose wounded soldiers he stayed in Brussels and Antwerp to help. Not only is there a movement to have Dr. Beland replace Dr. Albert Sevigny in the ministry, but there is also a widespread feeling that the day of his arrival in Canada should be celebrated by a national holiday. Whether this is done or not it will be so held by the French Canadians. Newspaper comment is universal in its comments of sympathy for the doctor, and assures him that on his arrival in Canada his companions will do their utmost to compensate him by their affection for his sufferings at the hands of the Huns.

THE FARMERS' DEPUTATION.

The visit of the monster deputation of farmers to Ottawa yesterday did not accomplish any concrete results in securing exemption for farm labourers. In view of the statements made within the past few days by the Premier to smaller delegations of farmers, there was little likelihood of yesterday's effort being successful. However, the visit to the capital should convince the government, if they had not already been convinced, of the straits in which rural Canada is at the present time.

The situation has been aggravated by the government's failure to meet the needs of the situation. If it had been able to announce to the farmers simultaneously with the announcement that exemptions to all men between 20 and 22 years were cancelled, that it had arranged for substitutes in the person of men unfit for military service to take the place of the drafted men on the farms, the present agitation would not have taken place. Instead, in the midst of its loud appeals to the farmers to produce more, to grow more wheat, without any practical suggestion as to how this was to be done, the government suddenly drafted the farm labourers under twenty-three years of age who had been granted exemption. Who is to take their place? The authorities at Ottawa apparently don't know; it is apparent that the farmers do not. What is the next step?

The indignation of the rural communities has been added to by the feeling among many farmers that they have been deceived. Government candidates told the farmers that their sons and farm help would be exempt, and now that these promises have been broken there is a general cry of "broken faith."

CLINGING TO PATRONAGE.

Is J. H. Burnham, M.P., lothe to say good-bye to the spoils system? His criticism of the Civil Service Bill in the House on Monday on the ground that it is an insult to the people to assume that members of parliament are not "fit to recommend appointments," seems to indicate that such is the case and that the member for West Peterborough hesitates to let go of the chief weapon of party power, the pork barrel. If the measure which is designed to put an end to political patronage is passed, there are no thanks coming to Mr. Burnham, who seems to have aligned himself with the "ginger group," headed by Col J. A. Currie, and composed of hard-shell Tories of the old school in trying to block the progress of the measure. West Peterborough's member declares he is going to vote against every section of the bill, which is prima facie evidence that he still favours the old system by which the sitting member handed out the plums to the faithful party workers.

How Mr. Burnham figures that taking such power from the member is an insult to the people is hard to understand. He should remember that often the people have to vote for a principle and therefore they sometimes elect a member who stands for that principle when under any other set of circumstances they would be almost unanimous in leaving him at home. It is in line with Mr. Burnham's argument that having elected a member because of the cause with which he is identified, the electors should feel aggrieved that he is not to be permitted to select the men for government positions in his constituency. He seems to ignore the fact that under circumstances such as have been outlined men have been elected to Parliament by the votes of people who would not trust their member's judgment in recommending a painter for a lock-gate let alone selecting a man for any more important position.

If the Civil Service Bill does away with conditions such as have existed in the past, Mr. Burnham need not fear that the people of Canada will feel insulted. It is not necessary to go outside of this riding during the present political regime to find substantial reasons for believing that the public will welcome any measure that will eliminate the old order of things. The Bill will at least remove from public life the practice of a patronage committee getting together and awarding themselves government positions—a practice that West Peterborough in recent years is not a stranger to, and about which Mr. Burnham should have a good working knowledge.

Von Buelow Exchanged.

OTTAWA, May 15.—Dr. Beland was exchanged for Von Buelow, son of former German Chancellor, who has been interned in England.

THE NAVY AGAIN.

Once again the British navy has thrilled the world with a daring exploit, successfully and audaciously carrid out. The dashing raid on the enemy's submarine bases at Zeebrugge and Ostend a short time ago succeeded at the former port, but was only partially effective at Ostend. The navy, however, has scored again, and by the sinking of the old cruiser "Vindictive" squarely between the piers, has blocked the entrance to the harbour. The Empire will rejoice at this new proof that the spirit of Nelson still animates Britain's jack tars.

VON TIRPITZ'S GLOOM.

Admiral von Tirpitz, at a meeting in Hamburg, gloomily contemplated the vision of economic retaliation, says the Hamburger Nachricten, and declared: "Without existence of that vigorous industry, which, after Germany was isolated, we converted mainly into a war industry, we should long ago have lost this war. This kind of war industry must shrink, however, when peace comes, while millions of our fellow countrymen will stream back from the trenches without finding sufficient work here, or, in any case, wages corresponding to the increased cost of living. Imagine if we had to simultaneously bear the taxation which must fall on every German, even the poor—for the greatest exaction from property would not be sufficient even remotely to meet it; and further if, in spite of the fallen value of the German mark, we must still buy the most necessary raw materials and food supplies from abroad, notwithstanding all political and other hindrances the situation would produce for all. Can anyone believe that under these circumstances, without an increase of power, without an indemnity, without security, we could avoid German's ruin."

THE VINDICTIVES'S END.

Another glorious page has been added to British naval history by the story of the gallant end of the "Vindictive." This old cruiser which played such a valiant part in the previous expedition against Zeebruge when she lay along the Mole for over an hour and sustained the unceasing fire of the German batteries until her upper works were practically obliteratd, now lies in her last berth between the piers at the harbour entrance of Ostend. Thrilling as was the narrative of the Vindictive's first exploit of April 23rd, the description of her adventures the other night lacks nothing in comparison. The story of how the gallant old vessel with her crew of fifty-two volunteers selected from the men who had taken part in the previous attack and begged for another chance at the enemy, cruised up and down in full sight of the Germans and illuminated by hostile searchlights and star shells for twenty minutes as she sought the harbour entrance, will be ever verdant in British history. It is stated that she was hit repeatedly but persisted in her search until the entrance was located. Then her brave crew calmly sunk her and equally brave comrades in motor launches dashed in under very heavy fire and rescued the survivors.

The Vindictive will take a place in British annals alongside the Victory.

VOTES FOR INDIANS.

A contemporary remarks that any Indian who wants the franchise can obtain it by giving up his special privileges as a ward of the government. That is understood, but why in the case of Indians who have fought for Canada overseas should this additional sacrifice be necessary. The man who was good enough to fight for Canada is good enough to vote in Canada, and he should not have to give up any of his privileges to get the franchise. It would be just as logical to deprive any returned soldier of his vote because he is in receipt of a pension from the government, as to say that the Indian who offered his life for the cause of liberty cannot exercise the franchise because he is a ward of the same government. Alien women the wives and daughters of the very men who were denied the privilege of voting by the War Time Elections Act, are being enfranchised. There is little justice in measures that allow to aliens the opportunity that is denied to men who have faced the Hun overseas.

The War Times Election Act allowed Indian members of the Canadian expeditionary force to vote at the last election. Why not make the privilege permanent? The government was willing enough to take Indians as soldiers, the government was willing enough to give them the vote when it figured that the soldier vote would go to support conscription; the government should be willing enough now to say that the Indians who fought for Canada should have a voice in Canadian affirs.

It only takes a few seconds to swear an Indian in as a soldier. As the law which our contemporary quotes now stands, it takes six years to enfranchise him. The red tape should be cut.

THE COUNTY ROADS SYSTEM.

The attention of the Peterborough County Council is respectfully called to the most interesting article on the County Roads System by Mr. W. M. McLean, which appears in anither column of to-day's issue. Peterborough at present holds the unique record of being the only county in the Province which has not adopted such a system. It is a distinction that is not justified by the general condition of the roads in the county.

Mr. MacLean states that there has not been a single instance of a county abandoning a county road system created under the Highway Improvement Act, and adds that "it is safe to sty that no county council which has had a system in existence a sufficient period to give it a fair trial could or would seriously attempt to abantion it. The work accomplished as a rule, has been a revelation of efficiency to the ratepayers as compared with ordinary township management."

These are significant statements which the county legislators would do well to consider at their meetings in June, while Mr. McLean's explanation of the financing of the system should also be carefully noticed. The Provincial Government provides 40 per cent of the total expenditure for construction and 20 per cent. of the cost of maintenance which may be regarded as a very substantial aid on the part of the province.

The roads radiating out of Peterborough are in such condition that the average citizen who drives over them is at a loss to understand how the indifference of the County Council to the advantages of the county system is justified either from the viewpoint of cost or of results.

The Deputy Minister's article on the subject is to be followed by one or two more, and it is hoped that at their next meeting the county may be persuaded to join in the Good Roads Movement with all the other counties in the province.

THE CALL TO "B" MEN.

In connection with the drafting of farm labourers and farmers' sons, it would seem that the situation would be appreciably relieved if the military authorities postponed as long as possible the calling out of men from the farms who have been placed in Category B by the medical boards. Young men in this category are now being drafted and included, in their number are many bonafide farmers. The war situation, Lloyd George's recent appeal for reinforcements, the heavy lists of British casualties, all indicate the need of Category A men, fit for the firing line, but so far the government has failed to show any pressing reason for calling out men for non-combatant service. If the Forestry Battalions and the Railway Construction units are so badly in need of reinforcements as to require the drafting of all the Category B men in the first class it would be a surprise to many people in view of the recent statement that the forestry corps is "ridiculously over-manned." In any case, whatever may be said about the relative value to the State of a young man on the farm, and the same young man in the firing line, certainly it seems reasonable conclusion that a man who has been brought up on a farm and has been continuously engaged in farm work could do more effective work in producing food than he could accomplish working in a saw mill in England or France, or employed with pick and shovel in a labour battalion. For the present at least it should be possible to secure all the non-combatant recruits needed from among the Category B men without drafting genuine farm labourers who come in that category.

BRAVO, THE MOUNTED.

Canadians have always been proud of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Their fame has been sung in many a thrilling story and in recent years the life of these gallant riders of the plains has been featured in moving picture films shown the world over, so that the glory of the Mounted has travelled everywhere. The news from Regina that no fewer than 755 members of the force have enlisted for overseas service in the past few days will only confirm the golden opinion that the people of Canada have held of the picturesque men that have long been a feature of western life. Since the first days of the war the Mounted have been clamouring for a chance to show their mettle against the Hun. Request after request has been refused and much to the disappointment of the entire force, only the members who were reservists of the British army were allowed to go. Among them was Sergt. Michael O'Leary, who won the Victoria Cross and imperishable glory early in the war. The Mounted were told that they were needed in Canada and that settled the matter, for being on practically a military basis, there was no chance to resign.

Since the Canadian cavalry got into action in France, however, and it was seen that the Mounted soldier still had a place in modern war fare, the authorities decided to give the Northwest Police the opportunity they had for many months been demanding. It was announced a short time ago that members of the Mounted could volunteer for service overseas with the Canadian Cavalry. The response was instantaneous and when recruiting stopped on Saturday it was found that 775 men, nearly 200 over the strength of a ordinary cavalary regiment, had joined the colours. The Mounted will go overseas soon and they will be followed with the good wishes of their legion of admirers in Canada.

INFORMATION WANTED.

In view of the shortage of labour throughout the country the policy of the military authorities in holding men in the service who are medically unfit for overseas is hard to understand. At Fort Henry, Kingston, ther are many soldiers who have been returned from England or France as being of no military value there, and who are members of what was formerly the special service battalion and now known as the garrison battalion. These men are for the most part in C category, and as far as service overseas is concerned are of no further use. Many of them have positions to which they could go, but they are not being discharged, the authorities preferring to keep them loafing around the fort.

A recent order-in-council enacts that only men wohse medical category is "E" can be discharged and returned to civil life, and the result is that the number of soldiers who are being kept in uniform and who will never be of any use as part of Canada's expeditionary force is steadily growing. In addition men who have been called out under the Military Service Act and whose category has been lowered by the medical boards from A or B to C are also being retained for the service, so that there will soon be a formidable army of men only fit for home service, each one costing the country as much as a man who is fit, and the policy adding considerably to the labour crisis

A fuller explanation to the public on points such as these would seem to be advisable. There may be some good reason for holding men who apparently would be of more value in civilian life, and the Canadian people should be given the necessary information. At the same time an explanation of the necessity for the call to "B" men would be helpful in allaying some of the complaints. Men of this category are unfit for fighting units and are used largely in forestry and construction battalions, where the casualties are not so severe or the wastage so great, and for which the demand for men would not appear to be so urgent. In spite of the fact that the chief need of the hour is stated to be infantry reinforcements, the call for B category men seems to be more vigorously pushed than in the case of A men. In fact from the reports of the proceedings of tribunals, B men have had more trouble in securing exemption than had their fellow citizens who were pronounced fit for the firing line.

The need for men in this category may be great, but the rulers at Ottawa have not said so. They have reiterated the importance of supplying infantry men as reserves for the fighting forces in France but nothing has been given out officially that reveals a similar demand for non-combatants.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up, and the skin is left soft and velvety.

Four Priests Ordained At St. Peter's Yesterday's With Solemnity And Ceremony

Impressive and Unique Event Attended by a Great Congregation —Sacrament Administed by Bishop O'Brien—Many Relatives and Friends of the Young Men Were Present From Distant Points.

BISHOP O'BRIEN'S ADDRESS

In the presence of a large congregation at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday morning, four young men were ordained to the priesthood by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien. They were Rev. Michael L. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Brien, of Toronto, formerly of Peterboro; Rev. John J. Garvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Garvey of Douro; Rev. Gerard J. Maher, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Maher, 545 Homewood Ave., and Rev. John J. O'Leary, son of Mrs. Patrick O'Leary, 273 Romaine Street.

To the pervading solemnity of yesterday's event, almost unique in the records of the diocese of Peterboro, was added the deep interest with which the many relatives and friends of the candidates followed the impressive ceremony. A large section of the nave of the church was reserved for the relatives. The rest of the congregation were friends who had known one or more of the young men for many years and had observed their progress in their long studies for the vocation to which they have given themselves. Rev. Father O'Brien was educated in the local Separate Schools and Collegiate Institute, afterwards attending St. Michael's College and Toronto University and finishing his studies at the Propaganda College in Rome. His father was formerly Inspector of Separate Schools. Three of his brothers enlisted for overseas service early in the war. Lieut. W. J. O'Brien won his commission since going to France and is still on duty; Gunner Richard A. O'Brien, went over with the 33rd Battery and was invalided home; and Corporal James O'Brien at present in France joined the 93rd Battalion.

Rev. Father Maher, is also a Peterboro boy, who has a host of friends here. He too received his early education in the Separate Schools and Collegiate Institute and with Fathers Garvey and O'Leary completed his studies at St. Michael's College and St. Augustine's Seminary. The two latter priests attended Douro schools and matriculated from the Norwood High School. Father O'Leary, has lived in Peterboro for some years and has already many warm friends here. His brother, Private David O'Leary, has been two years and one-half in France, serving as a signaller.

Hence, not only were there a great number of citizens present for the ordinations, but there were also many persons from Douro, Otonabee and Ennismore. The masses in the several churches in these parishes were held earlier than usual to enable the pastors to assist at the Cathedral.

THE CLERGY PRESENT.

For the ceremony, Bishop O'Brien was clothed in full Pontifical vestments, wore the mitre and carried his crosier.

The mass was celebrated by His Lordship, assisted by Rev. C. J. Phelan and Reverend Dean McColl. Reverend J. V. McAuley, of Ennismore, was master of ceremonies. Among the priests present were Rev. Archdeacon Casey, of Lindsay, Rev. F. Powell and Rev. J. Collins, of St. Michael's College, Toronto, Rev. Father Foley, of London, editor of the Catholic Record, Rev. Father Dutton of St. Mary's Church, Toronto, Rev. M. J. O'Leary, of Bracebridge and Rev. Fathers McGuire and Ferguson, of Peterboro, Galvin, of Downeyville, Meagher, of Lakefield, McGuire, of Douro.

Rev. Cyril Kehoe, O.C.C., of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto preached the sermon.

The Ceremony.

The mass proceeded to the Tract when the four candidates were called before the Bishop, who was seated in front of the altar. Their worthiness for ordination being attested by the Archdeacon, the Bishop addressed the clergy and laity, pausing to announce that if any person had any objection to the promotion of the candidates, "let him come forward and speak what he knows." The address concluded with an exhortation to the candidates to preserve chastity unstained and to lead holy lives. "Let your doctrine be as spiritual medicine for the people of God and let the order of your lives be the joy of the church of Christ, that you may build up, as well by example as by precept the house of God, which is His family; so that neither we who ordain you, nor you who are ordained, may incur the wrath of the Most High, but rather deserved to be remunerated by Him, which may He grant by His holy grace."

Following the imposition of hands and the recital of the Litany of the Saints and other prayers, the candidates were individually invested with the stole and folded chasuble, the Bishop saying, "Receive thou the yoke of the Lord, for His yoke is sweet and His burden light"; "Receive the sacerdotal vestment by which charity is understood, for God is powerful to increase in thee charity and every perfect work."

During the singing of "Veni Creator Spiritus," the Bishop annointed with Holy Oil the hands of each candidate, saying: "Deign to consecrate and sanctify, O. Lord, these hands through this unction and our benediction, that whatever these hands bless shall be blessed, and whatever they consecrate shall be consecrated and sanctified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." They were then presented by the Bishop with a chalice containing wine and water, and patena with a host, while the Bishop recited, "Receive the power to offer sacrifice to God; to celebrate mass as well for the living as for the dead, in the name of the Lord." When the ordained had received communion they made a profession of faith by reciting the Creed, and as they knelt before the Bishop he placed his hands on the head of each, saying, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost, whose sins you shall forgive they are forgiven them, and whose sins you shall retain they are retained." The chasubles were then unfolded and the investiture was complete. The ordained promised reverence and obedience to the Bishop, who gave them the kiss of peace, saying, "The peace of the Lord be with you forever," and afterwards pronounced over them the following benediction, "May the blessing of God, the omnipotent Father of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, descend upon you, that you may be blessed in the order of the Priesthood, and that you may offer pleasing sacrifices for the sins and offences of the people of the omnipotent God, to whom be honour and glory for ever and ever."

The Bishop's Address.

At the close of the mass, Bishop O'Brien briefly addressed the congregation and gave a final injunction to the young priests. He spoke of the importance of the ordinations not only to the church, but particularly to the diocese of Peterborough. "They are not only important for to-day, but I was going to say for eternity, recalling the words, 'Thou are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchisedech.' We have been looking for this day for a long time. It was forced upon us by present demand. These young men sacrificed their entire vacations last year in a summer school, finishing their studies, that they may allow others to go abroad as chaplains in the war. This ordination is but the climax, for they have already received seven ordinations, ascending step by step nearer God's sanctuary. It gives that power God gave to men, whereby that power and knowledge may be resident in this world.

"I congratulate these men, and also their parents who sacrificed their work and time and efforts to educate them." His Lordship said that the parents would be remembered by their sons in the intentions of the masses they will celebrate. He expressed the hope that the ceremony would be an inspiration to others.

Addressing the priests, Bishop O'Brien recalled their long periods of education at the Separate schools, High schools and Collegiate Institute, St. Michael's College, the University of Toronto and finally St. Augustine's seminary. "You are equipped by nature, and, I believe, by grace. The power given you this morning with the words, 'Receive ye the Holy Ghost, whose sins you shall forgive they are forgiven them,' is as effective as when Christ gave it to His apostles. You have the same mission as the apostles. Teach all nations. What are you told to teach. 'Teach all things whatsoever I commanded you,' were Christ's words. Go therefore and preach and carry on the work for which you were ordained. Notwithstanding the difficulties the church meets with, bear in mind the earnest of success, the assurance of Christ, 'Behold I am with you all days even to the consummation of the world.'

"In your breviary this morning you read and contemplated on humility. Practice it before God. Be humble in spirit notwithstanding the glorious power you have received. Keep in your hearts day in and day out a love for God, and your neighbour, no matter whom that neighbour may be. Keep that love of the brotherhood, of which St. Paul speaks, that ultimately we may see the words of the Divine Son fulfilled, that through the love of God there may be one fold and one shepherd."

The Sermon.

Rev. Father Kehoe quoted his text from the epistle read during the mass, 1st. St. Peter, 4-11:—"If any man speak, let him speak, as the words of God. If any man minister, let him do it, as of the power which God administereth: that in all things God may be honoured through Jesus Christ."

"We have witnessed this morning a very interesting event. An ordination is comparatively new to most of us. It is something we have heard of often. It is familiar to us in our thoughts and in our doctrine. But it is an old scene. In substance it goes back from year to year, from Pentecost to Pentecost, for that is the favourite time for ordinations, commemorating the descent of the Holy Ghost upon the Apostles.

"At Caesarea Philippi, by the Lake of Genesareth and elsewhere, the Master had lived with his disciples. He had walked with them, and ate and slept with them. Finally He called them together and said to His chosen twelve, "As the Father hath sent me, I also send you." Then He breathed on them and said, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost. Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained." That was an ordination. It was the same as that which the prelate administered before you this morning, the same words, the same spirit, the same valid effect."

Holy Writ and Tradition.

Father Kehoe declared that not only did the Holy Writ testify to the first ordinations when the apostles received their commission from Christ, but also there were the unbroken traditions of 1900 years, of a church that comes down to to-day with three hundred millions of people. "I will also summon as many more who have every doctrine that we have, every ceremony, who have a celebration like this, and yet they have been separated from us for more than one thousand years. I speak of the great Greek church that broke away from the jurisdiction and discipline of Rome. It has stood ready to check us if we swerved a line from the path of tradition, even from ceremonies not to speak of doctrine."

Father Kehoe referred to the failure of the Council to resolve the differences between the Catholic church and what, he said, might be called its Greek branch. Stating that men have become pragmatic, that they distrust human season and love established facts, Father Kehoe recalled the evidences the first Christians left behind them. "In the catacombs of Rome where they lived before Christianity dared show itself on the surface, you see depicted in the art they left on the walls scenes like this you are witnessing this morning. You see the pontiff with young men about him, stretching forth a power from head to head. Behind him you see the altar. Only the other day a church that dates back to the sixth century was uncarthed in Rome. It had been preserved by the ashes that buried it. As it was cleaned and dusted it was found to be an old Catholic church. There was a holy water font at the door, the tabernacle on the altar, and the odour of old ceremonies seemed to linger there. It came out of the sixth century and yet is was very familiar to us."

Another Power.

The ordination, Father Kehoe continued, celebrated the Last Supper when Jesus blessed and broke bread, and giving it to his disciples said, "Take ye and eat. This is my body." After He had supped He gave them the chalice saying, "Take ye and drink. This is my blood which shall be shed for many. Do this in commemoration of Me."

"These two powers were communicated this morning by the Bishop, using the very words of Christ and repeating the instructions He had enjoined upon His apostles. Jesus sent them forth with doctrine and great power. Thus the church was organized of twelve priests who were sent out to convert the world. How strange the story."

Father Kehoe added that the Church was guided by God, Himself. What success could there be for Christianity if it could go astray. Only the power of God strengthens the weakness of men. It would be a great travesty of power if God did not stand with the Church and keep it holy and infallible.

No Higher Criticism.

"These young men represent the living church of the past and present. We have laboured with them to make them worthy of their high position. Notwithstanding the culture we have tried to impart they are not by nature more talented, nor by culture above those outside the church. I will not say that we gave them a longer course of study, that they are more conversant with history, philosophy and science than others, but we thank God that they are not at the mercy of any man's talent."

Father Kehoe said that higher criticism had torn the scriptures apart. The divinity of Christ is questioned, also the Trinity, and some assert that Jesus was a mere man born as we are. "God save us from that," remarked the speaker. Explaining by analogy the meaning of a living church, Father Kehoe said that Great Britain had a constitution, with constitutional history and learned Englishmen to interpret it. From it we find that laws which William the Conquer enacted are still alive. Discussing the divergence between the Anglican and Catholic church he stated that while there were similar ceremonies, the divergences arose in the searching of traditions. Anglican scholars had read Augustine, Jerome, Cypnan and others back to apostolic origins, and had constructed a church accordingly. "They are near the truth we know, but they didn't see the living Church in the background. It was that church that taught St. Augustine, and brought him groping out of paganism. It taught Jerome who gave us the Scriptural translations as we have them now. The great doctors were but the spokesmen of the Church."

Appeal for Prayers.

Speaking of the young priests Father Kehoe said: "They are of yourselves. You have opened the gates of the sanctuary for them and they should reflect honour on you. There is no royalty in the sanctuary. They have been studying for a long period, responding to the college and seminary bells from 5:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. with a discipline even the army doesn't know. They are skilled moralists. They have studied the law of God, civil law, natural law, and the laws of the church. I have often heard it said by men who were not hostile to the church that it was a blessing to have these trained men in society. There is no greater duty I know of than to pray to God for the stability of the clergy. They leave their homes, giving up home and married life for a solitary life of sacrifice until the years whiten their hair. Their only reward is the approval of God."

Relatives Present.

Relatives of the new priests who were present were Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Brien and family, of Toronto; Mr. J. J. Sheehy, Mr. P. W. O'Brien and Mr. D. O'Brien of Chicago, uncles of Rev. Father O'Brien. SIX WEEKS HAVE PASSED SINCE HUNS WERE CHECKED

Little Ground Has Been Won by the Enemy In the Past Four Weeks --Hindenburg Is Re-arranging His Plans

ARTILLERY ACTIVE

(United Press Service.)

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 14.— (10 O'clock Despatch.) — While the German High Command is completing preparations for the third—and perhaps the biggest — thrust of all, a sinister silence spreads along the battle lines.

Six weeks have passed since the combined drive of the German and Bavarian Crown Prince were checked on both sides of the Somme, and comparatively little ground has been won by Von Armin and Von Quast on the Lys during the past four weeks. Yet to-day more than one hundred and fifty German divisions (1,800,000 men) have been used on these two battle fronts, and Von Hindenburg's promise to Germany of a quick decision has gone by the board.

Plans Scrapped.

The Allies, fighting as one army, and under a single commander, not only have frustrated the enemy's plans, but have forced an almost complete overhauling of his entire army and have necessitated a brand new start. Hindenburg, obviously forced to scrap his original plans and build others, has brought new leaders to the west front, including Mackensen, and according to reports, is concentrating the German empires' total output of brain, muscle and materials.

Raining To-day.

Meantime the lines are curiously inactive although the battle field has been unusually dry. To-day, however, a cold, autumnal drizzle was drenching the area. Airmen scarcely left their perches. Frequently artillery on one side or the other cuts loose in a spasm of shelling, but soon quiets down. The principal feature of German activity is the bombardment with gas shells of back areas. Even villages a considerable distance to the rear are dashed with a heavy fire. British gunners are better at this game than the enemy, plastering German communications so that many have been abandoned as impracticable.

HUGE FARMERS' DEPUTATION WAITS ON THE GOVERNMENT

THE PETITION

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, May 14.—Farmers by the thousands from Ontario, Quebec and from the Maritime Provinces, and from the big wheat grounds beyond the great lakes, crowded into Canada's capital today to give weight to their demand that the exemption of farmers and farm help from military service should be continued, notwithstanding the demand for men to fight overseas.

Their petition presented to the Government reviewed the drastic measures being taken all over the world to meet the emergencies of food production, and also all the pledges made by the Government to increase the supplies for the Allies. "Therefore," concluded the petition, "as farmers and loyal citizens of Canada, we hereby enter our most solemn protest against the great breach of faith by the breaking of these sacred covenants and taking from our farms the very labour which will enable us to produce, and in the absence of which, more particularly on Ontario live stock farms, will paralize the production effort, and we exhort your Government to stay the hand in these proceedings, by instructing the military authorities to still grant continuous leave of absence to all bona fide young farmers."

HOUSE WAS CROWDED.

The Ontario delegtion crowded the Russell Theatre from the floor to the roof. The aisles and the galleries were jammed at the same time. The farmers of Quebec met in the Francais Theatre.

Amid great enthusiasm the Toronto men reaffirmed their support of the resolution adopted in Toronto by the United Farmers of Ontario.

It was 11.30 when the members of the Government reached the theatre. There were present Sir Robert Borden, Major-General Mewburn, Hon. T. A. Crearer, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, and Hon. N. W. Rowell.

They took their seats on the platform without applause from the delegation. The proceedings were opened by Manning Doherty. The delegation of farmers from all parts of the Dominion, he said, was assembled in no spirit of rebellious protest, but rather to strengthen the hand of the Government. There was, however, a dread that the Government might be led to draw the man power from an essential industry to such an extent that the farmers would not be able to supply food to the Allies. "We humbly submit," he added, "that our judgment in the matter of production of food should meet with serious consideration."

ELECTION PROMISES.

Mr. Doherty outlined the drain on farmers since the outbreak of the war. Men who had joined the army and men who had gone into munition work. Previous to the outbreak of the war, there had been a draft of man power from the rural districts to the cities.

We had, last November, said Mr. Doherty, the Hon. Minister of Militia in Dundas saying that the necessity for food was so great that he would see that farmers were exempted. (Cheers). The farmers believed these assurances, and hundreds of thousands broke new land and bought implements, which they would not otherwise have done. Hundreds of young men, working on farmers, who believed they were not to be drafted, got married.

MUST HOLD THE LINE.

In his reply, the Premier emphasized the necessity of holding the line on the Western front, "I know whereof I am speaking when I tell you," he declared, "that if the Channel ports should be reached through the breaking of that line, it would be, to say the least, extremely problematical whether any of that production of which you speak could be made of service to the Allied nations overseas, to our men who are holding that line. I regard it as the supreme duty of this Government to see that these men, some of whom have been fighting for three years, are sustained by reinforcements as will enable them to hold the line.

NON-ESSENTIAL INDUSTRIES WILL BE EFFECTED.

OTTAWA, May 14 — (Bulletin) — Sir Robt. Borden told delegation of Five Thousand Farmers here today to secure exeptions from the Militia Service Act for farmers and farm help that the Government was seriously considering closing many non-essential industries. The Government sympathized with the farmers but beldout no hope of further exemptions.

We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

The Address.

Lieut. Lorne Cann, C.E.F.,
Smith Township.

Dear Friend,—It has been intimated to us that you are now home on your last leave before going overseas in the service of our King and country. Although during the last few years you were absent in the pursuit of your duties, we feel that you are still one of us, and as you go to perform your duty, we are losing one of "our boys."

In remembrance of your school days we ask you to accept this token of our esteem and good will and we earnestly hope that you and your comrades may meet with every success in the defeat of our enemies; that you may enjoy continued good health and a safe and speedy return, when peace, so long hoped for and so dearly bought, will reign once more throughout the civilized world.

BUILD UP THE BLOOD

You Cannot Have Health If the Blood Is Weak and Watery

It is a hopeless task to try to restore your health while your blood is deficient in quantity or quality. The blood circulates through every portion of the body. It takes nourishment from the food and distributes it to the various organs and muscles; it takes also and medication that is administered through the mouth. The blood is the only means by which medicine can reach the nerves. Hence if the blood is poor the body becomes weak and the nerves shaky, and the victim may be subject to headaches and dizziness, poor appetite, indigestion, a constantly tired feeling or perhaps to rheumatism, sciatica or neuralgia. Poor blood is the forerunner of nearly every ailment to which mankind is subject, and you can only enjoy robust health by keeping the blood rich, red and pure. To keep the blood in this condition no medicine yet discovered can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new, rich, blood which carries new health and new strength to every part of the body. When one becomes weak and pale Dr. Williams' Pink Pills restore the blood, bring the glow of health to the cheek and make weak, ailing people energetic and strong. Mrs. Stephen H. Williams, Kitchener, Ont., says: —"Some years ago my health started to fail. The doctor said my blood was thin and watery, but the medicine I took did not do me any good. My joints and limbs would ache and swell, until it was almost impossible for me to get up and down, and no one knows how much I suffered or how discouraged I was. Reading of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills one day I decided to try them. I got a couple of boxes, and by the time I had taken them felt an improvement. I then got six boxes more and before I had taken them all felt like a new woman in every way. I could do my housework without feeling tired, and in fact I was enjoying better health than I had done for years. You may be sure I will always strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all other sufferers."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WOMAN WITH BOTTLE ARRESTED BY POLICE

Sentenced to Fine of $200 or Three Months in Jail.

Arrested on George street at nine o'clock last night with a bottle of whiskey in her possession, a woman was fined $200 in police court this morning, and in default of payment, was sentenced to three months in jail. She was arrested by Detective Newhall and Police Sergeant Blade, to whom she admitted that she was taking the "life saver" to a man who is known to the police as an inveterate drunkard. Detective Newhall in his evidence stated that this woman had been frequently seen entering the George street house. When she was intercepted last night she was asked what she was carrying in the parcel under her arm. She made no reply, and the Detective reached out and felt the bundle which was of the general outline of a quart whiskey bottle. Wrapped in paper and a fancy bag was an Imperial quart bottle that had never known a cork puller. At the woman's home the police found a half-gallon jar of whiskey, and two stone jars almost empty. Detective Newhall added that the woman's husband did not live with her, and that she had a bad reputation.

Petitions Do Not Carry Much Weight With Review Tribunal

"I Venture to Say Hundreds Would Sign a Petition to Hang Me" Said His Honour Judge Huycke.

LIST OF CASES

Petitions avail little with the review tribunal and when Mr. Bullock of Cavan suggested such this morning, his Honour Judge Huycke told him petitions were useless and easy to get. "I venture to say hundreds would sign one to hang me" he said, greatly to the amusement of the court.

The first case of plenty of available men for the farm was told of by Mr. Nesbitt, who could have hired several, who applied askinng $30 and $35 a month this spring.

Thrasher and Farmer

Gordon Bullock, Baileybow, age 24, asked exemption because of his services as a farmer and thrasher on t 100 acre farm 80 acres broken. He and his father run 2 threshing machines. His father appeared for him and reported that the country can't do without him. "That's what General Currie says" said his Honour He will probably go.

One Will go.

Herbert Lord, Baileybow, age 21, supports a crippled brother mother and sister. He showed considerable industry as a farmer working a 200 acre farm and raising a number of cattle. The boy is willing to go, but for his domestic ties. Either Herbert or his young brother Walter will have to go probably, both cannot be taken.

John McCorkey, Lakefield, age 28, had slight deaf trouble. He works a 100 acre farm with his father and has one brother drafted, which left his farm to be attended to also. He will probably be given until July 1st to see the government inspector. His father who appeared made a strong plea through proof of extensive farming operation.

Norris Hurley—default.

Had Tried Before

William Hunter, age 30, post-master and general merchant at Fowlers Corners wants to go to war but supports his mother and father. His written appeals stated that he is an accommodation to the farmers. He tried twice to enlist in Toronto.—Decision deferred.

A Difficult Case

James Trotter, Clydesdale, age 28, wanted exemption to pursue his farming operations on a 100 acre farm, he rented in September. He was married in March, has two brothers are "E" another an invalid.

Decision deferred.

Joseph Maloney, Lakefield, sought exemption on grounds of domestic as well as farming grounds. He works 150 acres owned by his father The case is to be considered.

Archibald Hay—default.

William Hall—default.

William McIntoch—default.

Thomas Simpson—default.

George O'Brien, age 22, was represented by his employer, R. H. Nesbitt. George was detained on the farm to finish ploughing. Mr. Nesbitt wanted the boy to take his place on his farm while he goes West to see to 640 acres of wheat. O'Brien receives $42 per month. Mr. Nesbitt could have hired countless men at $30 a month.—Decision is deferred.

Sergeant Norman Saxby Was Hit In Leg By Machine Gun Bullet

In a Letter Home He Describes the Circumstances That Placed Him on the Casualty List.

NOW IN HOSPITAL

Mr. William Saxby, 352 Smith street, has received the followitg interesting letter from his son, Sergeant Norman Saxby, who a short time ago was reported wounded the second time.

The Letter.

The letter follows:

My Dear Dad,—This is perhaps the first opportunity which I have had since I have been wounded, of writing you, giving you details.

I was in the front line when I got wounded. To be more exact, I was out on patrol in front of our wire in No Man's Land when 'Fritizie' suddenly opened on us, and I got a machine bullet through the lower part of the right leg. As my leg was absolutely useless I had some time in crawling back to our line through our wire. When I got there the stretcher bearer fixed me up, and four husky chums of mine soon had me on a stretcher and carried me to a dressing station, where I got in a "Blighty waggon," which took me on to a big dressing station, where I was ticketed for Rouen. But I had an operation before I went. Awfully nasty!

I was in an American hospital at Rouen. Some speed to them. They used me fine and soon marked me for Blighty. Bless 'em.

So after a rather tedious journey on train and boat I landed in this hospital, which seems to be thoroughly Canadian in every respect, including the staff. I have written uncle and told him all about it, so I may get a visit from him some day soon.

I do not feel very much inclined to write. I seem to be tired and want to sleep all the time. Perhaps you have gathered from the papers what kind of a time we are having? It has been hell for a time and I need a rest. Must close for now. Love to all.

CROPS UNHARMED.

Farmers Say That Last Nigth's Frost Was Not Serious.

Farmers stated to-day that the young crops had apparently not suffered from four degrees of frost last night. Mr. Robert Duff, of Selwyn, driving in this morning, particularly observed the field and noticed no damage. Several farmers on the market said they believed the clover had been slightly nipped. On the whole, however, there was little or no damage, although in the city some tomato plants that had been put out early are believed to have been killed.

Magistrate Tried To Make Peace In A Divided Home

Magistrate Dumble tried this morning to ease the conjugal yoke that has chafed a husband and wife for nearly seven years, but his efforts promised little success. After hearing their versions of the differences that culminated on Sunday night in the husband assaulting the wife, His Worship advised them to bury the past and to overlook the little irritations that have caused friction and driven peace and goodwill from their home.

The woman held up a handbag which she said was empty, and she must have money for fuel at once. The man promised to provide for his family, but he did not think he would return home.

"We have tried so many times to get along," he said, "that there is no use going over it again."

At Chief Thompson's suggestion the case was adjourned for a month in the hope that the couple would re-establish the relations of their first married days. Magistrate Dumble warned the husband that in any event he must adequately provide for his family, and the best way was to go home and live in peace which could be restored through forbearance, consideration and love.

The Sunday night rumpus began to gather on Thursday night, but back of that were disagreements. The husband went to a neighbouring house "where there was music," and the wife followed him and wanted him to return home. He refused, and when he did arrive later both parties were ripe for trouble, and it was not long delayed. The wife alleged that her husband choked her. He denied this, but admitted pushing her out of the bedroom he had gone into when she ordered him from their common room. The next morning he struck her on the shoulder leaving a bruise which she showed the Magistrate. It was not the first blow she had received.

"One can stand being kicked and knocked, but not being choked," she said in tears.

The husband admitted striking his wife, but said that she had hit him with a cake.

"Sure I've struck her whenever she struck me," he said. "I'd strike anyone that struck me."

"Even the mother of your child?" asked the Chief.

"Yes, or anyone else."

"That's the kind of man I thought you were," remarked the Chief.

"You're a cowardly man," said His Worship contemptuously.

It was a patchy and pathetic story in the stray incidents that were recalled. The wife said her husband would not take her out with him, and had even declared that he would not be seen on the street with her.

To the Magistrate he admitted that she was a good woman and a good housekeeper, but he could not stand her wrangling.

Magistrate Dumble told him he was the more to blame. "I can remake you two, you must change yourselves, if you are to live in harmony and happiness."

Important Announcement To The Next Of Kin Of All Peterboro' Prisoners Of War

The executive of the Local Red Cross wish to notify the next of kin or those acting as such, who applied through the society for the personal parcel coupons, that the secretary has received the coupons and that such may be obtained at the Public Library, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

That the plan, adopted by the Peterboro Prisoners of War Department, by which the local society has assumed the responsibility of securing the next of kins authority to obtain these coupons for them, has been heartily endorsed by Mrs. Rivers Bulkeley, may be seen by the following extract of a letter received from her, by the secretary, on this subject.

"I must congratulate you on the admirable scheme you have evolved for applying for personal parcel's coupons. It strikes me as such an excellent way of solving a rather tiresome problem, that I am writing to the Head Office, Toronto, suggesting that all Canadian Red Cross branches should be circularised and asked to adopt your system. I hope you will not mind. One is always so grateful for new ideas which help to simplify the work."

Definite and explicit regulations, governing the sending of parcels to prisoners of war. Officers, non-commissioned officers and privates in neutral countries as well as in Germany, have been received in circular form by the secretary and all those, who are interested may receive a copy of the same.

During the month of April, acknowledgments of parcels, sent through the Red Cross, have been received from Lieut. H. Rogers, C. M. Drummond, W. H. Larkman, J. G. Hadden, F. H. Evans, F. Le Bar, Geo. Hutchinson, H. Lawrence, L. Stanley, F. Casson, J. Armour, H. Godfrey.

The name of Lieut. V. Fessenden, Lieut, Massey-Cooke, Cpt. A. Dickson, all of whom are now in Holland and Cpt. J. L. Davis, who escaped to England, have been removed from the Peterborough list, while the names of Geo. Logan and V. Henry have been added.

Hostile Artillery Shows Increasing Activity On The Western Battlefront

Enemy Raid North of Lens Was Repulsed--British Carried Out a Successful Raid on the Flanders Front--Indications Point to the Opening of Another Offensive

BRITISH AND FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORTS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 15.—German artillery fire increased this morning near Morlancourt, south of Albert, and in Flanders, north of Kemmel, the War Office reports.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

A raid attempted by the enemy last night north of Lens was repulsed. We carried out another successful raid north-east of Robecq, Flanders. The hostile artillery was active during the night in the valleys of the Somme and Ancre north of Bethune, and in the Forest of Nieppe sector. This morning the enemy's artillery activity increased south-west of Morlancourt and north of Kemmel.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, May 15.—French troops yesterday evening attacked German positions near Hailles, on the front below Amiens and captured the wood on the west bank of the Avre River, it is announced officially. The Germans made a counter attack and were beaten off with severe losses. During the night there was a violent bombardment north of Montdidier and between Montdidier and Noyon.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

During the night there was a violent bombardment in the region north of Montdidier and between Montdidier and Noyon. Late yesterday French troops made a vigorous attack on German positions south of Hailles and captured a wood west of Avre, notwithstanding determined resistance by the enemy. This morning strong German counter attack was delivered. After a spirited engagement our troops remained in entire possession of new positions. They inflicted very serious losses on the Germans. The number of prisoners taken is seventy, including one officer. Another enemy egori south of Rollott, south-east of Montdidier, which was made after a heavy bombardment, met with a complete check. North of Chemin Des Dames, the French repulsed a raiding enterprise directed against our posts in the region of Laboville. There is nothing to report elsewhere on the front.

A Message To Canadian Mothers

Canadian Press:

(By W. A. Willison.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, May 15.—"It is really you, our mothers and our homes for whom we are fighting. When the giant of freedom is ours, then we will come home and lay it reverently at your feet, for it will be hallowed by the blood of our comrades. Pray for us that this high and holy vision may never fade from our minds ,and that we may have courage and patience to finish our task. What glorious home-coming there will be."

ON MOTHERS DAY.

This is the message from Canadian sons on the Flanders battle front to their mothers in the homeland far across the Atlantic. It was sent on Mothers Day by thousands of boys here, on cards supplied by the Y.M.C.A. officials of that organization who report an unprecedented demand for stationery on and around that day.

While the Canadian guns continue hammering the enemy night and day, our patrols infantry, outposts continue active. The weather has been very wet.

PARLIAMENT WILL MAKE EFFORT TO CONCLUDE BY MAY 22ND

Some of the Members Are of the Opinion that a Fall Session Should be Held.

LAST MINUTE RUSH

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, May 13.—Business is being hustled through Parliament with the most feverish rapidity. What cannot be hustled through is being shelved or dropped. It was expected that the session would close at the end of the week, but it is now believed that even by dint of rushing tactics and of the session lasting from eleven in the morning until after midnight it will hardly be possible to get through until the 22nd.

Fall Session.

In fact there are members who think that the Parliament should adjourn to meet again in August and the opening session of a new parliament assembled at a time when there is much pressing business both war and domestic, and should not they believe be prorogued until all that business has been disposed of. However, the question of a fall session has not been very definitely considered and a compromise may be reached whereby the November openings may again be adopted.

Rejected Motion.

AMSTERDAM, May, 15.—The Prussian Lower House rejected the motion for equal suffrage in the Prussian Franchise Reform bill by a vote of 236 to 185.

THREE BOYS WERE TERRIBLY BURNED

LIT PAPER COVERED WITH GLYCERINE

KINGSTON, May 13—Boys who are truants from school wandered down to an old shack in a quarry on the Petawawa Military Grounds and when the rain began to fall they gathered up papers to start a fire. As soon as they touched the matches a great explosion followed and all the lads were terribly burned. With blazing clothes they plunged into a pool of water and started home. In a pitiful state they were found and moved to the Pembroke hospital, where they are now suffering intensely from burns aggravated by the water plunge. The boys were Maurice and Edward Cloutheir, sons of Jos. Cloutheir and Ged. Courth a stepson of Andrew Weinke. The boys set fire to paper covered with glycerine and which had been used for blasting purposes.

Mr. Morgan, Perrytown, the chairman made a few remarks, and the programme was proceeded with. Mr. Gould delighted the audience by his selections on the organ. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston sang as acceptably as ever, and Jinx and Mr. Hamill contributed a duet in most pleasing manner. The feature of the evening, however, was the address by Rev. Captain Spence, recently returned from overseas, after an absence of three years. For over an hour he held the unflagging attention of his listeners, as he portrayed life and conditions generally over there as he found them. His address will not soon be forgotten. An offering was taken for the Y.M.C.A., and realized $23.00, which was forwarded to headquarters, Toronto. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to all who contributed to the enjoyment of the evening. EMPEROR WILLIAM HOPES LITHUNIA WILL PARTICIPATE

Canadian Press:

AMSTERDAM, May 14.—Emperor William has issued a proclamation concerning Lithuania in which he says it is assumed that Lithuania will participate in the war burdens of Germany.

AMSTERDAM, May 14.—In the proclamation the "independence" of Lithuania, allied with the German Empire, is recognized.

The proclamation says further that it will take the interests of the German Empire into account equally with those of Lituania and that Lithuania will participate in war burdens of Germany, which secured her liberation.

The Vorwaerts of Berlin, said recently that strong opposition was developing among Lithuanians to transforming their country into a German semi-Federal State.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards —Receipts, 48 cars, with 157 cattle, 116 calves, 2,623 hogs, and 28 sheep and lambs.

There were but 157 fresh cattle in the market for yesterday, and these, with a few odd lots held over from Wednesday, were quickly cleaned up at the week's prices. All classes of cattle continue in good demand, and the market holds steady and firm at the recent prevailing high record levels.

Stockers and feeders stand firm at the new high prices, "sky-high," as one of the dealers admitted. Probably owing to the present high demand of the sellers the stocker trade was on the quiet side yesterday.

Hogs have weakened. Packers today lowered their quotations 25c. to 50c, and predict a sharper decline for next week. Prices yesterday were $20.50 to $20.75, fed and watered, except for guaranteed lots.

Servian Army Drums.

A curious custom connected with the Servian army is the manner in which most of the regiments carry the big drum. It is not, as in most countries, slung in front of the man who plays it, but is placed upon a small two wheeled cart drawn by a large dog, which has been so trained that it keeps its place even through the longest and most tedious marches. The drummer takes up a position behind the cart and performs on the instrument as it moves along.—London Answers.

A Bride on the Minute.

It was a most ludicrous mistake. She imagined her wedding day was Wednesday, when in truth it wasn't to take place till the day after.

"Just like a woman. And everything went awry, and the bridegroom gnashed his teeth, I suppose?"

"Well, hardly. In fact, everything turned out beautifully. By making the error unconsciously she was dressed in time, and the ceremonies were pulled off according to schedule."

Volunteers Wanted

To Aid in the Work of Registration of the Men and Women Power of the Dominion of Canada

The Government has ordered a registration with the above object of the whole population of the Dominion of the age of sixteen years and over. And to be completed on Saturday, June 22nd, next. Persons will be required to fill in papers and afterwards to receive a card, or certificate of registration to be kept and carried on the person for reference when required.

The work involved is much more extensive than that of a Dominion election, for instance. Instead of from fifty to seventy voting places in the West Riding, (which includes the city) over 250 will be required. And the Government asks loyal men and women to come forward and make the registration a voluntary work for the good of the Commonwealth.

Volunteers are required, indeed imperatively needed. It is not a call for money but for service. Service that can be given at little personal deprivation to those who participate. There are thousands of people who can assist. Why not volunteer? Men and Women.

You are asked to pledge that you will give your time on Registration Day and, where it can be made use of, on as many as from two to five evenings during the week, that is the week beginning with June 17th. Say on the days of the week from 4 to 6 o'clock. In others from 4 to 6 on to 9 o'clock. As the work will be planned and apportioned.

The pledge is a written evidence of your willingness to serve, and will be so recognized by the Central Board. The card is an individual statement for service, instead of a signature on a sheet of paper with other signatures. Will you be one?

City Hall.
Madill's Drug Store.
Post Office.
Y. M. C. A.
J. I. Turner & Sons.
J. T. Braund.
McDermid & Jury's Drug Store.

Sullivan's Drug Store, E. City.
The City Post Office.
The Public Library.
Lynch's Drug Store.
Moncur's Drug Store.
E. L. Payne's Drug Store.
The Warne Drug Co.

Following is the form of Pledge Card:

Volunteer's Pledge Card

1—Will you act as Dep. Registrar, or Asst. Dep. Registrar, without pay, on Registration Day .....

2—Registration Day is to be divided into three shifts, of 5 hours each. Will you serve for two of these shifts ..... If not for two, will you serve for one ..... And which .....

3—What evenings in the week previous to Registration Day, (17th and to 21st June) will you serve .....

4—Will you serve for any part of the days previous to Registration Day ..... If so, what part, and on what days .....

Name ..... 'Phone, (if any) .....

Address, (home) .....

It may be explained that "Shifts" mean that the hours of registration have been arranged as follows, in order that the taking of the record may be continuous during all of 15 hours of Registration Day.

From 7 a.m. to 12 noon, 12 noon to 5 p.m. 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. So that each place will have to be equipped with sufficient number of persons to relieve one another and let the work go forward continuously.

All cards must be turned in from all places by May 20th.

Full and further instructions will be given so or as the Volunteer's Roll is completed.

All Must Carry Papers In June To Avoid Arrest

Men Not in Class One Must After June 1 Have Papers to Prove Status—Amendments to M. S. A. Make It More Difficult to Evade the Draft

MAY BE JAILED OR MADE SOLDIER

A far-reaching amendment to the Military Service Act that covers every man in Peterborough and throughout the Dominion, under the order-in-Council, passed on April 30, has been received by the military registrars.

The order states that, beginning June 1, all persons who claim not to be in Class One under the Military Service Act must carry papers at all times with the proper certificates of proof that they do not come within Class One. The identification papers must either be a birth certificate or a marriage license. The Act previously covered only the men of Class One and has now been stretched to take in all classes.

"Arrested on Sight.

And if the proper certificates are not carried by a man he is open to arrest and a job in the army. The amendment states that any person who has not such papers on him shall be presumed to be a person at the time liable for military service, classed as a deserter or absentee without leave. He is also liable to a fine of $50 and imprisonment for one month or both, and such person can be taken into custody, detained, and compelled to do service in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces or perform duties as long as he is required.

For carrying any misleading or false certificate a man is liable to a $500 fine or six months' imprisonment.

Another important addition to the Act is that any officer, or N.C.O., may if he has any reasonable ground to suspect that an absentee or deserter is being harboured or concealed in any premises, make demand for admission to such premises and if admission is refused he has the right to forcibly break into the place and make a search. The right of habeas corpus, for a man who has been arrested under the Military Service Act, is now and hereafter denied, and in fact the man arrested may be held in custody without bail or inquiry until released by the direction of the Minister of Militia.

Must Notify Address.

A penalty is also now provided for the person who fails to notify the registrar of change of address. Such person is liable to a fine of $100 and three months in jail or both for failing to notify the registrar. In the past those who did not notify the authorities surrendered the right to re-examination or application for exemption.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

WEEDS

It is a mistake to assume that cultivation stops when once the seeds are in the ground. As a matter of fact, the ground needs continuous attention and after rain it should always be gone over with the Dutch hoe, rake or hand cultivator.

For the amateur gardener weeds are really a blessing in disguise. They make him cultivate continually by hoeing or stirring up the soil and cultivation is more valuable than fertilizer.

The beginner is not always quite sure which is the weed and which the plant. Young onions, for instance, look very much like grass and amateurs have been known to pull up the whole crop in their zeal for getting rid of "weeds." The best guide for the amateur, perhaps, is to look across the fence at his neighbour's patch or consult with someone who has been in the gardening campaign before.

Persistent cultivation is one of the best ways to kill weeds and to allow air into the soil. Weeds rob the soil of plant food. They afford a haven of refuuge to countless numbers of insect enemies and plant diseases. They cost the country thousands of dollars a year. They are enemies that must be assiduously fought and it does not do for the amateur gardener to give them any leeway. They multiply fast and propagate their kind.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

George Is Pleased That Mrs. Ross Called

CHAPTER LXIX.

"Mr. and Mrs. Ross called, last night, and a Mr. Huntington came with them," I remarked at the breakfast table.

"That so! Well, Gerald Ross is a charming woman. I should like you to be friends with her."

"She is a lot older than I."

"I know that! It is one of the reasons I should like you to be with her. I don't care so much for Bert, but Gerry is all right."

"What is her name? You called her Gerald. I thought that was a man's name."

Her name is 'Geraldine.' We always called her either 'Gerald' or 'Gerry,' before she was married and most of us still keep it up. That young Huntington I don't care so much about. I don't know what ails young men, nowadays; they don't seem to have an idea in their heads beyond having a good time. He's rather of an ass, but has money enough to do as he pleases."

I was disappointed to hear George criticize Claude Huntington before I could tell him of the invitation to dinner at the gay little restaurant in the suburbs.

"He is going to give a dinner out at Craft's soon. He asked me if you and I would go."

"Perhaps, if I have nothing else to do," George replied carelessly, and I said no more—pleased to have even a tentative promise.

Warm Feelings Suppressed.

I do not think that anyone dreamed I was not perfectly happy, at this time, or that George was dissatisfied with me. But I felt that I had failed to meet his expectations as he had outlined them to me. He had married me not because he loved me, but because he saw my possibilities. He had preferred to mould a country girl, than to take a girl who would be more inclined to assert herself — her own individuality. This feeling of failure always made me very unhappy. I knew perfectly well when he said he hoped Mrs. Ross and I would be friends, that he said it not because he thought the friendship would be a pleasant one for me, but because he thought it would be improving.

I wonder if one who has not had the same experience will, or could, understand how such an attitude affected me. I continually felt belittled inadequate.

Then, too, I loved my husband. When I married, I thought him a veritable prince among men; he was so handsome, so courteous; and he certainly seemed to love me. I was a very happy bride —until we ended our honeymoon and went to Morelands. From that time, it had been a sort of struggle —a struggle to please him, a struggle to hang on to my happiness, and a struggle to convince myself that he still loved me when he continually found me so lacking in all that he believed went to make up the attractive, successful woman of the world.

It nettled me, too, that he always insisted upon having his own way — never consulting me or my inclinations. This, from the veriest trifles to the most serious affairs. I had protested, at first—had tried to persuade him to allow me to do as I pleased, occasionally. But I no longer even objected. He always insisted upon his way, with a polite coldness, a perfunctory manner, that chilled and frightened me.

A Remembered Conversation.

Once, when we had been married but a few months, I tried to remonstrate with him about something. I begged him to consider my feelings; I even tried indignation; then loving gentleness. But never did he give in to me.

"I am disappointed in you!" he remarked, at one of these times. "You are proving yourself a foolish, tiresome girl, instead of the kind I thought I was marrying."

He didn't really love me, I concluded, and wept bitterly over the thought. He merely wanted a housekeeper, a wife whom he could train to be dignified and unemotional.

I was changed. Often I wondered if it were for the better or not. From a loving girl, spontaneous and warm-hearted, I had become hard — reserved — and, at times, utterly wretched. Yet, he considered me a bit more capable, or as I put it in my thoughts, he was not quite as ashamed of me as at first. I felt frozen. George was so correct —so dignified —that even before the servants I was unnatural, stiff, lacking in that poise which had begun to loom as the one desirable thing in my existence, if I were to have my husband's respect (if not his love).

Then came the Mrs. Sexton episode to complete my self-abasement. And while I no longer felt toward her as I did at first, the thought still rankled that she had been hired to teach me things I should have known before I married.

Unexplored Canada.

It is believed that nearly 30 per cent of Canada is still undiscovered, and if Indian reports are to be believed there is in the basin of the Mackenzie river one of the largest areas of possible oil bearing country on the face of the earth. The Indians report the existence of lakes a hundred miles long in Yukon that no white man has ever seen, while even the Indians apparently know nothing of the as yet untrodden Mackenzie mountains.

Mistaken Contempt.

It was justly said by Emperor Charles V that to learn a new language was to acquire a new soul. He who is acquainted only with the writers of his native tongue is in perpetual danger of confounding what is occidental with what is essential, and of supposing that tastes and habits of thought, which belong only to his own age and country, are inseparable from the nature of man.—Macaulay.

TERRIBLE NEWS FOR MILLIONAIRE

Andrew Carnegie Finds He Is Not Growing Poorer.

CHEATED OF THAT HOPE

The World Has Been Astounded by the Riches of the American Plutocrats, Whose Income Tax Bills Reveal the Fact That It Would Be Impossible for Them to Get Rid of Their Money.

IT looks as if Andrew Carnegie were to be cheated of his fondest hope. Some years ago he resolved to die poor—not hurriedly, you understand, but eventually.

He was a rich man, and in order that he should die poor it would be necessary for him to devote years to the task of disposing of his riches. It was a large task; he knew the performance of it would take a long time, but he was willing to take the time—if heaven would lengthen his span enough to let him achieve his purpose.

We have often wondered how Mr. Carnegie is getting along in his efforts to regain that state of poverty which he knew in his youth. It was, of course, necessary that he should be cautious not to overwork himself at the task of losing his riches, else he might suffer a breakdown and fail of his purpose. He had to take care of himself, and nurse his strength if he were going to outlast his wealth.

But he does not seem to have made much headway. He has just paid an income tax of $6,400,000 to the United States Government, and his is the third largest tax bill of all the American plutocrats. John D. Rockefeller is first, with an income tax of $38,400,000, and Henry C. Frick second, with $7,160,000. Mr. Carnegie comes third in a published list of thirty plutocrats who pay the 63 per cent. surtax on incomes of over $2,000,000 a year. It is very discouraging to find Mr. Carnegie so high up in the list, because, so far as we know, he is the only American plutocrat who is trying to die poor.

On Millionaires.

Apropos of Mark Twain, Bruno's Bohemia printed recently the "Open Letter to Commodore Vanderbilt," which Twain published in Packard's Monthly for March, 1869, which he thereafter suppressed, and which is not to be found in Twain's collected works. Probably, after Mark got acquainted with more millionaires he thought the roast on Vanderbilt might be regarded as a slap to some of his new friends. One paragraph of the "Open Letter" is worth embalming here:

Poor Vanderbilt! How I pity you; and this is honest. You are an old man, and ought to have some rest, and yet you have to struggle, and deny yourself, and rob yourself of restful sleep and peace of mind, because you need money so badly. I always feel for a man who is so poverty-ridden as you. Don't misunderstand me, Vanderbilt. I know you own seventy millions; but you know and I know that it isn't what a man has that constitutes wealth. No—it is to be satisfied with what one has; that is wealth. As long as one sorely needs a certain additional amount, that man isn't rich. Seventy times seventy millions can't make him rich, as long as his poor heart is breaking for more. I am just about rich enough to buy the least valuable horse in your stable, perhaps, but I cannot sincerely and honestly take an oath that I need any more now. And so I am rich. But, you, you have got seventy millions and you need five hundred millions, and are really suffering for it. Your poverty is something appalling. I tell you truly that I do not believe I could live twenty-four hours with the awful weight of four hundred and thirty millions of abject want crushing down upon me. I should die under it. My soul is so wrought upon by your helpless papuerism that if you came to me now, I would freely put ten cents in your tin cup, if you carry one, and say, "God pity you, poor unfortunate."

How Glass Industry Shifted.

The ancient Roman glass works shipped to all parts of the civilized world; and specimens of their productions are today found throughout Europe, and even in Ireland. When Rome commenced to decline and her great people fled to Byzantium, they took with them their glass industries, and Constantinople became the greatest glass manufacturing city in the world. This prestige it held up to the tenth or eleventh century, and when it entered upon its decline and fall the glassblowers fled to Venice and there established what afterward grew into the celebrated Venetian glassware.

:: GOOD HEALTH IN WAR TIME ::

St. Andrews-by-the-Sea on Passamaquoddy Bay! Doesn't that sound alluring with its suggestion of old Scotland and the America of the Redskins? To the initiated thousands this hyphenated cognomen spells "Joyful Living." Bountiful Nature, supplemented by inventive man, provides pleasures in varied abundance for those who seek rest or amusement in Canada's most popular Atlantic resort.

In war time we all owe to our country the duty of making the greatest effort to enable her to emerge triumphant from the struggle. So now one of our first duties to Canada is to keep ourselves in the best possible physical and mental condition for without healthy vigor we are unable to aid to the fullest in the prosecution of the war. Working throughout the year, every day, and often at night patriotic people are liable to find themselves under considerable nervous strain, and thinking the matter over they say: "I am too busy to take a holiday, though I know that it is what I need." They continue to work, but with dwindling results. But if, instead of deciding on having no holidays they took a rest for a week, their health would undoubtedly be so improved that they would soon be able to make up for the time they were absent from work. Even engines made of steel cannot be kept incessantly on the run, and what steel cannot do flesh and blood cannot do. A healthy holiday in war time helps to win the war.

Canada is fortunate above all other countries in possessing bracing health resorts by the seashore or in the lakes and forests inland, or in the stupendous ranges of the Rockies. The Americans of the United States know this, and come here every summer in ever increasing numbers. Summer resorts, however, like prophets, are not always sufficiently recognized in their own country, and there are not a few who wonder why so many Philadelphians, and New Yorkers, and Bostonians should be so passionately devoted, for instance, to St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, in New Brunswick. Yet there is good reason for this. The blue waters of Passamaquoddy Bay offer splendid boating and sea bathing, two sports indulged in to the full by many of the visitors. The country about St. Andrews-by-the-Sea is ribboned by charming walks and drives. A delightful bathing beach welcomes the swimmer at Katie's Cove, and there is fishing and boating for all who have a mind for such.

One of the popular sport attractions is a Bowling Green. Enthusiastic bowlers, and interested spectators may be found upon it at all hours of the day or night. Being electrically lighted, the sport need not cease with the waning of the daylight.

Golf, however, is without doubt the game at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea. The links are famous far and wide. Hither at one time or another come all golf celebrities, for St. Andrew does not draw clientele from Canada alone. Every expert in golf knows that the Royal and Ancient Game can be enjoyed to perfection only on a seaside course, and the course at St. Andrews has this great advantage. It also has the advantage of a famous professional, John Peacock, who has so laid out the links that they are the most sporting of their kind in North America. By following the little white ball over that wondrous course laid out on Joe's Point overlooking the sparkling waters that lap these western sands and then slip back into the great sea to some day wash the sands of far-away France.

DOMINION CORD TIRES

The Supreme Achievement in Tire Building

TO those owners of stately limousines and costly touring cars, who want the utmost in easy riding, safety and sustained speed—we recommend our supreme achievement in tire building—"DOMINION CORD" TIRES.

The key principle of its construction is this—Tens of thousands of slender sinewy cords in many compact layers—each cord and each layer laid parallel one to another and each imbedded in pure rubber so they cannot touch—each separate cord and layer bringing its individual strength to the tremendous sum-total of power and resistance.

This construction makes a tire-structure and tire-wall so yielding and resilient as to absorb the shock of many road obstructions. There is the luxury of easy riding—a greater assurance of safety, and freedom of puncture and blow-out—the luxury of fine appointment—and finally the luxury of possessing the utmost in equipment, the finest tires in the world.

Built in the same Canadian factory, by Canadian workmen, who make—

MURDER ON HIGH SEAS.

Vivid Pictures of Murderous Submarine Warfare.

Vivid pictures of the murderous war waged by the submarine pirates in their invisible craft on our merchant service are contained in a series of depositions and statements which the writer of this article has been permitted to examine at the Admiralty. These statements are made by officers and men of torpedoed ships. For obvious reasons the names are "camouflaged."

Here is one deposition:

"At 3 a.m. got message Owl torpedoed. Began to zigzag by ordering the helm a-port. Almost immediately sighted a submarine right ahead coming from starboard past. It was a very big one, and there were four or five men around the conning-tower. I put the helm hard-a-starboard and tried to ram her, but missed her by feet, as I heard the men shouting aboard of her. As soon as I saw I had missed her I sung out to the gun's crew, 'Look out close on port side,' and I put the helm hard-a-port to bring the enemy astern.

"Almost immediately afterwards I heard the report of my gun, and on turning round saw a big bright flare-up in the water on the port quarter, like a big explosion. About ten minutes afterwards I noticed what appeared to be the wake of a torpedo passing along the port side. Observed the bow and stern wake of a submarine on the port quarter steering parallel to us and coming on at a good speed. Fired at her but made no hit. Order 'Cease fire,' as I hoped to escape in the darkness. At 6.20 torpedoed and sunk" (with heavy loss of life).

In this instance two submarines must have been acting in support of one another. No. 1, the vessel hit, was large, 300 feet long, with a big conning tower, two high masts and one large gun. No. 2, which fired the fatal torpedo, was 150 feet long, with raised centre, dark green conning-tower only 7 feet high, no masts, and officers of Austrian appearance.

In another case, after the ship had been torpedoed, about midnight the boats capsized. The narrator says:

"Swam to upturned boat. After we had been on the upturned boat for some minutes a submarine appeared, which came up close to the port boat and hailed us to come on board, but was told that it was impossible as the boats were capsized.

"The submarine came to the starboard boat after we had been in the boat about ten minutes, and came so close that we were touching the side of the submarine. We asked him to upright the boat for us, but no answer was given. The submarine then went ahead and put his helm hard over, with the result that the whole of the men on the upturned boat were thrown into the water, and the boat sent under. The submarine then steamed away. Those in the submarine must have heard that there was a man under the upturned boat, as they could easily hear him knocking."

In one case we find a submarine using a searchlight, the only such instance in these depositions. Six men from a torpedoed ship had struggled to an overturned boat. One of them states: "The submarine came close to us and flashed her searchlight on the boat and on those in the water, and after jeering at them made off towards the west. The submarine was signalling with her Morse lamp and was answered by flashes some distance away to the west."

Robbery of the British is common. After one vessel had been torpedoed at 2 a.m. "the master was searched and £22 5s., with clothes, watch, and matches were taken from him. An officer stated that no food was left in the submarine, which had been six weeks out from Heligoland. The commanding officer and No. 1 (his first officer) spoke very good English and mentioned that food in Germany was very short. The (British) master asked how Bremen and Hamburg were looking. No. 2 answered, 'Very depressed,' and that "We should not have been at war with England."

If here and there we find that colored crews or seamen showed signs of panic, so that some Filipinos preferred to jump into the water and perish rather than face the horrors of an open boat in winter weather, there is one recurrent note in these wonderful memorials of the merchant service: "All the crew behaved well and smartly"; "All hands showed courage." It is a great and glorious service, though it is still without the medals and the uniforms which it has so abundantly earned the right to wear.

Unusual Incentive.

My little niece was given two complimentary tickets to a moving picture show. So her mother told her to call me and ask me to go with her. When she called up I told her I was sorry, but I could not go. "Oh, please do go, dear auntie," she called over the phone, "because the seats are waiting."—Chicago Tribune.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS.

Can Only Be Secured by Understanding, Says German.

In rejecting unceremoniously the pan-German idea of freedom of the seas, Capt. Persius, the German naval expert, in an analysis of the question in the Berliner Tageblatt of March 2, reaches this conclusion:

"We can, in other words, gain freedom of the seas of advantage to us only by means of a peace by understanding. Every peace by force would seal the unfreedom of the seas for us also in times of peace."

From the captain's article it appears that there are two views of how Germany must secure freedom of the seas "for the future." The policy of force is that Great Britain must be defeated as a necessary preliminary, while the adherents of international treaties hope to gain the same end by applying to the seas rules of land warfare.

"Acquisition of the Azores," a pamphlet by Dr. Victor Hensel, of Kiel, is referred to by Capt. Persius. Dr. Hensel believed that German use of the Azores would prove a strong card in the German campaign. The following passage from his pamphlet is quoted by Persius:

"A German fleet, however strong, will not be able to prevent a breach of international treaties, for the enemy will always possess enough U-boats to disturb our commerce. If we could use the Azores as a base of support for our U-boats, there would follow, in case of the destruction of treaties, a mutual destruction of merchantmen, which necessarily would have to be avoided by both sides as sheer nonsense. That would lead then to the desired freedom of the seas."

Capt. Persius then says: "Even if the British sea power, which to-day dictates the conditions under which the seas are to be used, could be broken, hardly anything would be gained thereby. For, if the British fleet would have to cede its position to some other power, the latter would undoubtedly pursue, not a policy of sentiment, but one of materialism—to do what best serves its own interests. There will never be an undisturbed use of the seas in times of war.

"It should be clear to us that even if our army and fleet should achieve the greatest victories we could not force the other nations to trade with us and could not force them to exchange raw materials for our industrial products. If other nations are not willing to resume friendly commercial competition, then our merchant fleet would be of no advantage to us.

"Our enemies in the west hold in their hands a large part of our possibilities of existence. Having this in mind, Dr. Michaelis, the Chancellor, said in the Reichstag on July 17, 1917, 'We must safeguard the conditions of existence of the German people on the continent and abroad by understandings and compensation.'"

FACE NOTHING BUT RUNNING SORES FROM ECZEMA

No rest day or night for those afflicted with that terrible skin disease, eczema, or, as it is often called, salt rheum.

With its unbearable burning, itching, torturing day and night, relief is gladly welcomed.

There is no remedy like Burdock Blood Bitters for giving relief to such sufferers; no other remedy has done, or can do so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture. Apply it externally and it takes out the stinging, itching and burning, and promotes a healthy healing.

Take it internally and it gets at the source of the disease in the blood, and completely and permanently drives it out of the system.

Miss Mary V. Chambers, Anagance Ridge, N.B., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters for eczema. I had it when an infant, but it left me. Two years ago it came back. I used doctors' medicine, but it did good only while I used it. At last my face was nothing but a running sore. I saw in the paper what B.B.B. did for people. I took it, and to-day I am free from that terrible disease."

BULGARIA'S FUTURE.

Her Great Natural Resources Await Proper Development.

The principal wealth of Bulgaria to-day is in agriculture. The production of grain during the past twenty years has assumed such proportions that Bulgaria, small as it is, is eighth in the world's cereal producing countries. American machinery is in great demand for farms, and one sees everywhere American harvesters, mowers, windmills, traction engines and pumps. They are becoming as familiar as American sewing machines.

The greatest wealth of Bulgaria is in its forests and mines, but these have not as yet been exploited. Nowhere in Europe are there such forests of pine, hemlock, oak, walnut and birch.

Manufacturing is still in its infancy. Not more than $10,000,000 is as yet invested in manufactures, and the greater part of this capital is employed in the making of Bulgaria's one famous export — attar of roses, which comes from the region of Kazanlik. Only one-fourth of one per cent. of the population of Bulgaria is engaged all the year round in factory work.

Sofia and Varna are the only cities with tramways; but many cities are illuminated with electricity. Owing to its mountains, Bulgaria is possessed of tremendous water power, which is going to count in the future industrial and traction development. Except for her railways, the country is not dependent upon coal. Even these are beginning to use oil. Petroleum, coming from the adjacent oil fields of Roumania and by boat from Batoum, is plentiful and cheap.

The Bulgarians are noted for their industry, their ability to save and their foresight. Although naturally possessing many of the characteristics of the Turk, acquired through centuries of subjection and not to be shaken off in one generation, they have not his proverbial laziness. In working capacity they are like the German peasant, while in saving they are like the French. The wealth in the hands of the peasantry is an unknown quantity, for they have no faith in banks, but it must be considerable.

Among the bulk of the people the standard of living is still very much like that in Turkey, but education is spreading and prosperity increasing. If the Bulgarians secure an outlet to the Aegean Sea, the nation is bound to become one of the most important agriculturally in the whole world.

Let Preachers Preach

They deal with topics of the day clearly, forcefully and consistently. They reflect the Conservative trend of thought in politics without partisan bitterness. They give full and loyal support to British ideals of democracy, but contain nothing that could give encouragement to a Bolshevik.

Artificial Eyes.

The use of glass for artificial eyes dates back to about 1818. The Greeks in the fourth century before Christ had a false eye which was practically a thin band of iron which passed around the head and held in place a thin sheet of metal, covered with a fine skin, on which was painted an eye with its eyelids and lashes. About 300 years before Christ a metal shell somewhat like the half of a walnut shell, on which were painted the iris, the pupil and the white of an eye, was forced into the cavity and held very much as our glass eyes are held. The trouble with this older method was the tremendous weight of the metal, and, of course, the painting was necessarily more or less ghastly. Yet, so far as there is any record to show, there was no substantial improvement in these metallic and painted eyes until within the last century.

Keep the Mouth Clean And Avoid Disease; Prevent Pyrrhoea

An Important Duty That Will Result in Good Health

When a preparation of merit is placed on the market, it is a pleasure for reliable druggists to introduce it.

Pyroll is now recognized by doctors dentists and druggists as the best remedy to kill germs in the mouth and around the teeth which are the cause of many ailments.

Unless the mouth and teeth are kept clean, germs may gain an entrance and multiply rapidly.

If you use Pyroll even only once a day it will keep the mouth and teeth aseptic and free from germs.

Pyroll is sold at Kent's Drug Store, corner Hunter and George streets, and we have no hesitation in recommending it to our customers.

Other Pugilistic Slackers.

Readers will recall with what contempt Leslie D'Arcy, the Australian boxer, was hounded through the United States as a "slacker." During his ill-starred tour of the republic, whither he had come from under the Southern Cross in search of a fortune with which he could endow the declining years of his aged mother, he was target for scornful epithets and cold-shouldered rejections. Finally he went to a hospital, and, with a plea on his lips that he had intended to join the army after he had secured one big American purse, he died. Then came the sob-squad that had previously condemned him, and told everyone, as is the trick of human nature after a man is beyond the stabs of the dugger tongues, what a fine fellow D'Arcy was at heart. Everyone was sorry. Obituary notices should speak no ill.

Having the fate of D'Arcy in mind, it is not out of place to call attention to the negotiations for the Willard-Fulton bout. Here are two giants who have both gained fortunes in the prize ring. They could earn (?) enough money to live for the rest of their lives by a few months in vaudeville. But for months past they have been endeavoring to work up interest in a heavyweight battle. There has been no outcry over the bout in the American press. The two big bruisers, who might well take Canadian Jack Munroe as an example, have not been called slackers, as was D'Arcy.

Butter Made of Potatoes.

Potato butter is recommended by the British Ministry of Food as a cheap substitute for butter, being made in England at a cost of less than 10 cents per pound, as follows:

"Peel the potatoes and boil until they fall to pieces and become floury. Then rub through a fine sieve into a warmed basin 14 ounces of potatoes and add two ounces of butter or margarine and one teaspoonful of salt. Stir until smooth and then mould into rolls and keep in a cool place. To make the appearance approvable use butter coloring, and if intended to keep beyond a few days a butter preservative should be added."

Watering Plants.

A French botanist who has experimented with vegetable raising has determined the exact amount of water necessary for the best growth of various plants. In general, he found that a supply of water administered uninterruptedly drop by drop brought better results than even systematic drenching.

To Lock a Car.

Among the new locks to prevent theft of automobiles is one that secures the steering wheel after it has been turned slightly, enabling a car to be moved only in a circle.

NO LONGER OWN BOOKS.

Public Libraries Have Done Away Completely With Old-time Custom.

While the last decade has witnessed an extraordinary growth in the number of public libraries throughout the country and while no one denies that these libraries confer many benefits they are no such unmitigated blessings as many would have us believe, argues a western publication. In the first place they are undermining the good old habit of owning books. Not, of course, among the well-to-do, but the well-to-do make relatively small use of public libraries. The usual plea is that most people cannot afford to buy books. This is flatly untrue, the fact is that the ubiquitous library has killed the demand in this country for editions of standard books at really popular prices. In France splendid literature volumes are sold at a uniform rate of 25 centimes (four and a half cents.) In this edition one can buy Homer complete for 27 cents, Milton's Paradise Lost for 9, Descartes' Discourse on Method for 4 1-2, and the works of over 100 other authors at corresponding rates. In Germany one may buy nicely bound volumes of every conceivable branch of science and art at the rate of 19 cents a book. What a man can buy the works of a great philosopher for the price of a glass of beer it is arrant nonsense to say that the public cannot afford books.

We are simply doing our best to pauperize readers. They know that they do not need to buy books; a benevolent fate will provide them gratis; and so they go without. Our publishers find no real demand for editions at prices within the reach of every one, and naturally the editions are not forthcoming. The resulting evil is obvious. A man knows his own books as he can never know those of a library. The books he owns have a double value to him; he has paid for them, which creates the pride of ownership; and he has them always about him which breeds familiarity. No impending fine compels him to hurry when he wants to read slowly.

This pauperizing of readers is the greatest, but not the only evil connected with the indiscriminate use of libraries. We seem to think that if people read anything they are necessarily better off than if they do not. The main business of libraries, especiall of small ones, has come to be the circulation of "popular" fiction. Even in the large cities the demand for books of this class is demonstrated by the fact that most of them are listed as "five day" or "seven day" books. It is hard to see what good is accomplished by emptying this mass of rubbish on the heads of people for the most part unable to distinguish real literature from false. Were the libraries less active in discriminating useless and often demoralizing fiction, standard works would be far more widely read; but so long as every library in the land feels called upon to have the latest work, and often several copies of it, by the latest writer of trashy fiction, such books will continue to come out in their thousands and tens of thousands, and their betters will rest unread.

Why They Wear Them.

Several members of the House were in the cloakroom discussing the large number of officers on duty at Ottawa.

"Why is it," somebody asked, that so many of them are wearing purs?"

The Assistant King's Printer pricked up his ears.

Blood Poison Developed

As a Result of Accident—Nerves Break-Down After Three Weeks of Suffering—A Glowing Tribute to Treatment Used

KINGSTON, Ont., May 16. —Blood poisoning seems to become more common from year to year, and the dread of it is ever on the increase. In the case reported here the doctor did not seem able to get rid of it, and after three weeks of suffering the patient was almost a nervous wreck.

Mrs. Susie Thompson, Smith street, Kingston, Ont., writes:

"Early in the fall of 1916 I had a painful accident. I ran a sliver under my thumb nail, and neglected having it extracted. My thumb festered very badly, in fact my arm was fearfully swollen up to the elbow. It developed into blood poison, and I had the doctor lance it several times, but it failed to get better. With the intense pain and loss of sleep I became a nervous wreck. After following the doctor's orders for three weeks and not getting any benefit I wrote my mother about it. By return mail she sent me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. The very first application eased the pain, and I slept that night quite easily. I kept using the Ointment regularly, and by the fifth day all the swelling was gone, and also the inflammation.

"During this time I had become so weakened and run down that my whole nervous system seemed affected. I was very nervous and restless, appetite became poor, and I had frequent headaches. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and had the same splendid results from this as from the Ointment. Using the Nerve Food internally built up my system and made me strong, while using the Ointment externally healed my sore thumb. I am now quite well, thanks to your wonderful remedies —the only regret I have is that I did not begin using them earlier, and saved myself months of suffering, to say nothing of Doctor's bills."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Surely the Limit.

There seems no limit to the outrages on the king's English wrought by cinema theatre proprietors. "Featuring" was an abomination which moved to revolt all layers of our language; "picturization" was worse, but there, it was thought, atrocities would stop. But no. From the top of a picture-palace in South London flaunts in his letters the announcement that there is presented "the picturination of Sullivan's celebrated song, "The Lost Chord."—London Chronicle.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Beavers Have Many Relatives

THE lemmings (we read in Thomson's "Threads in the Web of Life"), on the Siberian tundras, migrate at the end of a season when food has grown scarce, because they have been more than usually abundant, and so have exhausted the available food. They march northwards in closely pressed ranks, but it is not an organized march after a leader; they simply pour straight onwards like a living stream, turning aside for no obstacle. If a mountain stands in their way, they go up one side and down the other, never attempting to go round. If a river crosses the path, they plunge in and swim to the other side.

Many are carried away. But those that are left plod steadily onward resting by day, and marching by night, eating every blade of grass and every growing plant as they go, just as the migratory young locusts do in southern lands. Eventually, in many cases, they reach the shores of the sea, but even that does not stop them. They plunge boldly in, and the waves sweep over them.

The lemmings' march cannot be called intelligent combination, but we can find good examples of this even among the rodents or gnawing animals, the order to which lemmings belong. The viscacha is very abundant on the pampas of South America. A number of these animals, usually from 20 to 30, make their burrows with the entrances close together, and often opening into a common trench. All the earth is carried out to a little distance and thrown into a heap, which forms a little mound, often about two feet high, in front of the "village." There are generally several such villages, within easy reach of each other. The inhabitants of each village sit on their own mound at dusk, and disappear into their burrows so quickly, at a warning cry from one of them, that dogs scarcely ever succeed in catching them. After sunset, the viscachas go a-visiting. Those of one village go to see their neighbors in another, and sit on their mound, chattering in friendly fashion. Narrow trodden paths, from village to village, show how constant this habit of exchanging visits must be.

One result of the friendly and sociable life of these little animals is that, though they do not stand very high in the scale of intelligence, they have a wonderfully varied "language." Their cries are varied a thousand ways in strength and intention, according to the age, sex, or motions of the individual." "I doubt," writes Mr. Hudson, the naturalist, to whose beautiful books we owe so much of our knowledge of the life of the pampas, "whether there is in the world any four-footed thing so loquacious, or with a dialect so extensive."

So strong is the attachment of the viscachas to their kind that if the burrows of one village be filled up, for this is the method by which the farmer tries to get rid of them, if they are too destructive, those from other villages will come by night and dig them out again. They are probably excited by the cries of the little prisoners and burrow their way down to them.

In the case of beavers (rodents of a higher type), the animals not only live beside each other in peace and friendliness; they unite together to do pieces of work which would be impossible for one, and so benefit the whole colony. Some of these works are so extensive that they may entirely change the features of the landscape. Beavers are still found in considerable numbers on the banks of the streams, in some of the western parts of North America and in Canada. They were quite abundant in Britain at one time, but had disappeared by the fourteenth century. Within the last few years, however, a colony of them has been kept and carefully protected in Sussex, and there they carry on all their usual activities.

Beavers are water-loving animals, and if the stream on the banks of which they live is shallow or liable to dry up, a colony always constructs a dam so as to secure a broad, deep, quiet pool. To make the dam, they gnaw down trees, often as much as 10 inches in thickness, eat off the bark, and cut the trunk into logs. These logs they convey to the place where they are building. If the ground is smooth and the distance not great, they roll the logs; but, frequently, they cut canals or waterways from their pool to the trees, and so move the logs more easily. They pile the logs together, filling up spaces with brushwood and clayey earth, trampled hard down, so as to make an almost solid wall, which only allows water to trickle gradually through.

We read of one dam three-quarters of a mile in length, and of this two-thirds had been made entirely by the beavers. The rest was natural bank which they had raised and strengthened with logs and stones. If the dam be broken, the beavers immediately repair it. One dam was repeatedly cut through, because it made a railway embankment unsafe. The beavers built it up again fifteen times, but then gave in and abandoned the place.

The homes of the beaver are very interesting. Sometimes they are mere burrows in the bank, with the opening under water, but more frequently the burrow has an oven-shaped structure of wood and earth above it. This "lodge," as it is called, is very comfortable, and is strong enough to keep out beasts of prey. As many as a beavers may live in a lodge for three years, with their parents, and, when the lodge gets uncomfortably crowded, they move off and construct new homes for themselves.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

A Duke's Sister Fined.

Lady Ella Russell, sister of the Duke of Bedford, Chorley Wood, was summoned at Watford for failing to cultivate land when called upon to do so by the Hertfordshire War Agricultural Committee. She was asked to plough up a field of 21 acres, but refused, and said that if the committee insisted she would sell her cows, shut the house, and go to London.

The defence was that the land was employed for the production of milk and butter, and that defendant ran the dairy at a loss, selling skim milk to children at 1d. pint.

The chairman and vice-chairman of the Local Food Committee gave evidence that in their opinion the land was better employed in being kept for cows. Other evidence was given the effect that the soil was unsuitable for corn crops.

The chairman of the Bench said that defendant had deliberately refused to obey the order. There would be a conviction, with the full penalty of £100 and costs.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

BLEEDING A KING.

Louis XIV., a Grasping Doctor and an Ambitious Surgeon.

In 1693, when Louis XIV. began to feel the first touches of age, his physicians ordered him to be bled once a month. That duty was of course intrusted to Marechal, his Irish surgeon.

There was at the time in Paris, says the British Medical Journal, a young brother of the craft who conceived the idea of making his fortune by bleeding the king. The enterprise was difficult, but he knew that the most solid doors can often be opened with a golden key.

Following the advice of Iago, he put money in his purse and sought an introduction to Antoine Daquin, the king's chief physician. The negotiation was conducted on a strict business footing. Daquin, who was known to love money, was told that 10,000 crowns were deposited with a notary who had instructions to transfer the sum to him as soon as the surgeon had got the job.

It was not an easy thing to manage, as Marechal never left the king. One day, however, he asked permission to leave Versailles for three days. Daquin seized the opportunity to introduce his protege, whom he had ready at hand for the purpose. Feeling the king's pulse one morning, as usual, he pretended to be alarmed at its trembling and volume and ordered the illustrious patient to be bled forthwith. As Marechal was away, the king hesitated, but fear soon made him yield to his physician's proposal. The young surgeon bled the king, and Daquin got his money.

In the meantime a message had been dispatched for Marechal, who was not far off. He returned to Versailles in haste and was much surprised to find that the king, whom he had left in the best of health, had been bled. He was not on friendly terms with Daquin, and he quickly grasped the situation. He went to see the young surgeon and forced him to disclose the whole plot.

When the king learned the truth, he flew into a terrible rage, ordered Daquin to be arrested and placed the matter in the hands of the council of state. That obsequious body, after a very short deliberation, unanimously voted that the physician who had trafficked in the blood of the king deserved death. The royal wrath, however, subsided to some extent, and he graciously spared Daquin's life, but deprieved him of his office and exiled him from the court to Quimper-Corentin. The too greedy physician did not long survive his disgrace.—London Standard.

All the Vowels In One Word.

There are but six words in the English language which contain all the vowels in regular order—viz, abstemious, arsenious, anenious, facetious, aqueous and tragedious. There is but one word which contains them in regular reverse order, and that word is duoliteral. Besides the above there are 149 English words which contain all the vowels in irregular order. Twelve of these begin with the letter a, seven with b, twenty-three with c, sixteen with d, fourteen with e, four with f, seven with g, one with h, six with i, two with j, two with m, two with n, two with o, thirteen with p, one with q, five with r, nine with s, two with t, fifteen with u and six with v.

One's Best Always Called For.

This is the golden time now to begin your life work—if you have not already done so. Age and condition—even health, are not as important factors as formerly. The Osler dictum of innocuous desuetude at forty is taboo as regards women as well as men. There is work for all ages and conditions, at home and abroad, and it behooves each of us to do our best in the task that falls to our lot.

Neat Way of Putting It.

Roland was usually put to bed at a certain hour every night, but almost always objected, not liking to own that he was tired and sleepy. On one occasion his mother was too busy to notice that for once he was ready to be put in his little bed. Not liking to own it, evidently, he edged up to her and, gazing wistfully into her face, he inquired: "Mamma, isn't you getting tired?"

THE SPRING DRIVE

Our boys are going "Over the top" and into "No man's land" this spring. No one has any doubt of their ability to get there. There will also be a spring drive on this side of the ocean, because March is the year's "blue Monday." It is the most fatal month of the year. March and April is a time when resistance usually is at lowest ebb. It is a trying season for the "run-down" man. But medical science steps in, and says, "it need not be"! We should cultivate a love of health, a sense of responsibility for the care of our bodies. Do not allow the machinery of the body to clog. Put the stomach and liver in proper condition. Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, to be had at most drug stores in tablet or liquid form, tablets fifty cents a vial, composed of native herbs. This puts the stomach and liver in proper condition. You may be plodding along, no spring, no elasticity, no vim, but as soon as you have put the body into its normal physical condition—oiled the machinery, as it were—you will find new vim, vigor and vitality within you. A little "pep," and we laugh and live. Try it now. Send Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y., or branch office, Bridgeburg, Ont., 10c. for trial pkg. The prime necessity of life is health. With spirit and energy you have the power to force yourself into action. The Golden Medical Discovery is the spring tonic which you need.

Fought and Destroyed Submarine.

Sighting a submarine, the armed guard of the United States navy aboard the steamship Silver Shell was ordered by its commander to haul up the American flag and wait. The order was given by Chief Turret Capt. William J. Clark. The guard obeyed and 60 shots were exchanged in a running fight lasting an hour and a half. The enemy was sighted at about 2,000 yards. As the German approached, the vessel, with Stars and Stripes flying and her men at the guns, fore and aft, opened fire. The submarine responded at once with her deck guns, and a sea duel of remarkable fierceness on both sides was started and kept up with no stop. It was taken on the run. In all the submarine fired 85 shots and the armed guard 25. Here, however, is where the sustained gunnery of the American man of war's man outdistanced his foe. He had the last shot. It struck the submarine, raising her out of the water. The Silver Shell held her position for a while and the U-boat not coming to the surface it is believed she went down. Clark is an enlisted man and has been in the navy 12 years. His home is at Peabody, Mass. Recommendations have been made for his promotion.

Record for Canada.

Sir Robert Hudson, chairman of the executive committee of the British Red Cross Society, and the Order of St. John, in a letter to his Excellency the Governor-General, expressed the hearty appreciation of the parent body to the people of Canada for their generous contributions of £475,000 sterling to the funds of the societies, which has enabled them to render valuable service to the sick and wounded of the Empire and her allies. Sir Robert Hudson requests the Duke of Devonshire to tender the profound gratitude of the societies the people of Canada, and to say that their munificent contributions to "Our Day," 1917, has been recorded.

SCENES IN A REST CAMP

HOW THE BOYS RECUPERATE AFTER BATTLE "OVER THERE."

The Billets Are Well Made and Everybody Shows Signs of Being Happy and Comfortable—A Correspondent Carries Away a Splendid Impression of the Canadian Army.

IN France there are a thousand pretty villages that make ideal rest camps, winding roads where the mud never gathers deep, whitewashed cottages that hold out welcoming hands to the strangers, trees that have not been blighted by shell and shrapnel, barns with dry floors where a soldier curls in his blanket and sleeps as he never did in his Canadian bed, estaminets always bright and cheerful—and a host of pretty French girls who appreciate the lads who came across the seas to fight for them.

Into one such village I went to visit a famous Canadian battalion at rest after a long period in the front lines. There were the funny stores with the undressed windows, but fronted with business signs in English, the clay sheds that are erected while you wait and remain many, many years after you are blotted from the page, the quaint church that dates from untold centuries ago, the ornate cemetery behind the low stone wall, the barns hugging the streets—no sidewalks, no outstanding business centre, no public buildings but the church.

A group of officers stood before an estaminet discussing the latest drive up north. The O.C. came riding down the street and stopped to welcome us. In a dozen busy clusters soldiers were working with horses, camp equipment, canteen, stores and billets. On a nearby level a company was at drill—not severe or long, but enough to keep them in shape—and shooting practice was under plan for the morrow.

It was a scene of the pleasantest military life I have ever looked on, with no aggressive trace of discipline, yet no license, no fever of hurrying, yet no loafing. The drilling company trooped in from the field, straight and trim, and dispersed before its billets, military to the last moment. It was dinner time. Over in a shed two field kitchens, clean as when they were made, were roaring with fires and surrounded by busy cooks and orderlies. They proudly showed me something of what they had for the men, and I was prepared to regret that I was timed to dine with the O.C. Soup that smelt full and meaty, and very hot; an appetizing mixture of carrots, turnips, and potatoes, which was welcomed by the soldiers with shouts; and bully beef, that was no more bully beef in its metamorphosis than pork tenderloin is cheap sausage. Now it was Hamburg steak; and not content with that, the cooks had mixed it in two ways, so that there was a choice. The recipe was not offered me, but one was made with flour, the other with oatmeal—one light in color, the other dark and, they told me, more popular. I tasted both. Why don't butchers in Canada sell bully beef, I wonder—and provide an army cook to prepare it?

I looked in on the boys as they ate. The company I saw was billeted in a barn—not a nasty, smelly place, dark and dismal, but a lofty-roofed building, with lots of light, a dry floor, some straw, and the companionship of a cheery couple of hundred. They paid no attention to the visitors. Dinner was too good for attention to be deflected by anything short of orders. And as they ate they talked, lightly as at a dinner table, shouting across the room to their friends, making plans for the evening and the morrow.

The officers were billeted in farm houses. The O.C. was established in the cure's house, with a blazing grate at one end and the reverend gentlemen's library alongside—a cosy little room, where the work of the battalion went on under suitable surroundings.

A round of the camp revealed the detail of its equipment and comfort. In a lean-to the canteen was set up, with its variety of pretty nearly everything a soldier might desire to add to the provision made for him elsewhere without cost. The stock was sold with a small profit, 5 per cent. of which went to the purchase of extra vegetables and other luxuries for the privates. The canteen is a battalion institution which the members appreciate.

About the entrance to the stores was an orderly line of soldiers awaiting their turns at the counter. Inside was an array of tunics, breeches, shirts, underclothing, boots—all that is given the soldier. After a long siege in the trenches few require no refitting, and the battalion in question had just passed through an unusually extended period of German-baiting.

The pride of the battalion was the transport. The 55 horses kept for that purpose were rolling fat, as velvety as an Axminster carpet, and as clean as a lapdog. The attention to their well-being was not only to the advantage of the battalion in the matter of facilitated transport, but it gave new interest to the life of the unit. Every member of it was as delighted as the grooms themselves at the continued success of the sleek animals in the horse shows that are organized at the front to maintain the calibre of the equine section. "That's Bob," explained my guide, patting a specially soft-haired horse that playfully put back its ears and turned to nip. And not to know Bob is to be ignorant of what counts at the front. He was the all-round champion at the shows, or something like that. Grooms seemed to be always on their coats, while others industriously polished the harness. It must almost break their hearts that the rules of war do not permit brass instead of the dull steel and iron. About the horse-standings all day long stood a group of admiring fellow-members of the battalion — and there is no insult in the term of fellowship. Here and there was pointed out an original member of the transport column that had withstood the life for three years. And the men who should know declare that the later drafts do not equal those hand-picked ones that came over on the first boat of equipment from Canada. The veterans of the transport column are the snobs of equinedom in France.

Continually the officers were making their rounds, attending to the daily details of the battalion management, inspecting equipment and work, but even more carefully seeing that every possible comfort and convenience was provided for the boys—their billets properly comfortable, their meals well cooked and plentiful, their wants supplied. It was a pleasant relationship between officers and men, accounting largely for the content of both.

In the evening the pleasures of the rest camp were more fully enjoyed. Tommy would emerge from his barn billet, lean a bit of mirror on a jagged piece of wall beside a pool of water, and commence his cleaning-up process. Indeed, many a mirror stood all day in a protected corner beside a water supply as the mark of its owner's washroom. A shave, a hair-comb, a brush-up, a readjustment of cap, and Tommy was prepared for the joys of estaminet or Y.M.C.A. The village I visited was but a transitory location for a rest camp, and estaminets provided the assembly rooms for the boys. There were three or four of them, all cleans, bright and roomy. There sing-songs were held, games played, stories told. They were Tommy's Clubs for the moment, and the fact that pretty French girls presided over them did not lessen their attraction or destroy their usefulness. The bit of home life opened up to the soldiers by these estaminets, with their polished stove of strange design, their oil-clothed floor, their grateful chairs, their steaming kitchen just beyond the open doorway, their group of solicitous and merry French women—mothers and daughters—fills a niche in war life in France, especially where the Y.M.C.A. huts and the army theatres are not available.

And after a cosy evening groups saunter away to their barns, singing snatches of the songs they have shared in the estaminet, and snuggle down in their blankets to a depth of slumber that awakens them next morning in a glow of health seldom known in peace time, prepared, as only a fit body can prepare them, to resume the expulsion of the enemy from allied soil. The rest camp may not be a period of unbroken loafing, but it is something better for the stamina and condition of the soldiers, and a necessary time of recuperation for future advances.—Lacey Amy in the Globe.

Praise for Varsity.

Lt.-Col. Adami, of McGill University, writes in the British Medical Journal as follows:—"For as he was a soldier by birth, medicine has been his life's work, and for sixteen years he had been associated with the staff of McGill Medical Faculty, first as pathologist and later as lecturer in clinical medicine. In his chosen profession the place he had gained is indicated by the fact that he was one of the eight or so Canadian members out of the six score who constitute that most select body, the Association of American Physicians. Apart from his great personal charm, he was admirably equipped to become a leader in the profession. Although belonging to the rival university, I willingly admit that in the late eighties and early nineties, for those capable of taking advantage thereof and electing to pursue further studies elsewhere after graduation, the University of Toronto afforded the finest medical education in North America. The clinical opportunities at the time were not of the very first order, but the preliminary training in science was singularly full and thorough. The combination of Ramsay Wright's stimulating and thought-compelling lectures in general biology, with A. B. Macallum's practical course in physiology, developed a set of men who to-day are leaders in American medicine: Llewelys Barker, of Baltimore; Thomas McCrae, of Philadelphia (John's elder brother, who also for a time was lieutenant-colonel of C.A.M.C. and head of the medical service of a Canadian General Hospital); W. S. MacCallum, of Columbia, and now again of Johns Hopkins; T. Futcher, of Johns Hopkins (also lieutenant-colonel of C.A.M.C.); Oskar Klotz, of McGill and Pittsburg, and John McCrae. No school of this generation in North America can claim quite so brilliant a band of physicians and pathologists as original alumni. John McCrae had been fellow in biology at Toronto at the conclusion of his course in arts before coming to me as fellow in pathology at McGill after graduating in medicine."

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

"IT WAS LUCKY DAY FOR ME," SHE SAYS

Mrs. Hewston is Glad Her Neighbour Advised Her to Take Tanlac

"It was certainly a lucky day for me when my neighbor, Mrs. Langford, told me how Tanlac had relieved her sufferings and said if I would only try it she believed that it would do as much for me; for I took her advice, and it has done all that she said it would," recently declared Mrs. Emma Hewston, of 322 Ryding Avenue, Toronto.

"I had suffered from a general run-down condition and stomach trouble for four or five years," she continued, "and my appetite was so poor I could not relish a thing. Everything tasted alike and after eating I had such a tight, puffed up feeling about my stomach and chest that I could hardly get my breath. My heart acted strangely and hurt so bad at times I could hardly stand it, and often I felt like I was going to suffocate. My nerves, too, were in very bad shape; I would roll and toss on my bed half of the night trying to sleep, and when I would get up in the mornings I felt so tired and worn out and miserable that I would almost drop in my tracks.

"After I started on Tanlac I began to feel stronger and better right away, my appetite picked up, my indigestion was relieved, and I soon got so I enjoyed everything that I ate. That tight, smothering feeling is gone; my heart never worries me like it did; I have gotten completely over my nervousness, and sleep like a baby all night. Tanlac has given me so much strength and energy that I can now do all my household work without a bit of trouble".

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle and Son.

Learning.

Learning, like money, may be of so base a coin as to be utterly void of use or, if sterling, may require good management to make it serve the purpose of sense and happiness.—Shenstone.

Enduring.

"I suppose you and your wife can remember your first quarrel," said the meddlesome person.

"Remember it!" returned Mr. Growcher. "I should say so! It isn't over yet."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Review of Odds and Ends

By VINCENT G. PERRY

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

As he jerked the copy from his typewriter, Grandon Houston jumped to his feet with an exclamation of relief. He had finished his "Weekly Review of New Books" and it was ready for the composing room. Never before had the work seemed so tedious as it had that week. The reading had all been heavy and even a reviewer of books gets tired of heavy reading sometimes. But the books were valuable ones and he gathered them up to place them in his bookcase. What a lot of books he had there and not one of them had cost him a cent—in fact he drew a salary for reading them. As he put the last book in place among the others he looked at the title and gave a gasp of annoyance. Somehow that was one he had overlooked and it was necessary to write a review of it before the day's work was completed.

"Oh, I can slip it in among the reviews next week!" he exclaimed, as he opened the cover to take a peep inside, but the first thing that faced him was a note from the editor, pinned to the title page, requesting a review for that week. He took out his watch as he sat down at his desk again—it just lacked thirty minutes of the time he had arranged to meet Marguerite. Could he review the book in thirty minutes? He looked it over and decided that he could.

To begin with, the title, "Odds and Ends," did not impress him very much. The authoress, Winifred Shelton, was unknown to him—it was her first book, no doubt, but that didn't soften his heart. The publishers were well known, but they had published failures before. He skimmed over the pages, drinking in snatches of the plot as he went. He had passed his decision before he was half through, but there was nothing for it but to read to the end. As he closed the book he looked at his watch. Twenty-five minutes of the time had passed and it would take him the other five to write the review. If he hurried perhaps he could do it in less time than that he thought, as he pushed some paper into his machine. Adverse criticisms always took less time to write than favorable ones and more could be said in a few words of sarcasm than in many of praise. He did not write enough about "Odds and Ends" to make it necessary to re-read his copy, so when he finished he put it with the rest of the reviews and sent it down to the composing room. The thought that what he had written would bring pain to the new writer did enter his head, but he laughed it aside. If she had talent a little discouragement would merely stimulate it, and if she hadn't then she would get discouragement sooner or later anyway, he reasoned.

After climbing up three flights of stairs, hurrying to arrive as near the appointed time as possible, Brandon panted his way into the reportorial room of the Daily Star. Thank goodness, Marguerite had waited for him! One look at her, though, told him his hurry had been unnecessary. She was busily typing and there was a stack of notes before her that looked like an all-night's job.

"I'm sorry, but you'll have to wait," she explained as her fingers moved like lightning. "I've just got back from a vacation. If I leave my story to write until the morning I'll have to neglect my page and I wouldn't do that for anything. If the convention had closed an hour sooner I would have been able to get this in for the morning, but it will have to go over now."

Without a word of complaint Brandon sat down and watched her admiringly. He knew what it was to work overtime himself.

"There, I'm through!" Marguerite rose with a triumphant smile and gathered up her copy. "I've written three times as much as I should have, but the convention is worth it."

"It is too late to go any place now," Brandon smiled good-naturedly. "We'll go home then and I'll make a little supper for us. I made some muffins this morning and I have some fresh ground coffee. You know the kind of coffee I can make."

"Don't say another word. I'll cave in with hunger before we get there if you do," he warned.

"You'll probably die of indigestion when we do get there," she laughed, as she took her coat and turban from her locker and prepared to leave.

It was a cozy little supper they sat down to that night in her cheery room and they both were hungry enough to do it justice.

"Won't it be lovely when we can have a supper together every night?" Brandon ventured as he devoured the last muffin.

"Yes, when we do," she answered, vaguely.

"Why do you talk as if it were so far away?" he asked, without his usual smile.

"Isn't it?"

"I hope not. It is useless for us to wait any longer. I can more than afford to keep a wife and I hate to see you plugging away at the Star."

"But I love my work," she answered. "I want to be a great writer some day."

"Wouldn't you be satisfied with being a great writer's wife?" he asked in a jocular way.

"Yes; if the great writer would admit that his wife could write, too."

"But I do admit it."

"Because you know it is my work, but deep down in your heart I don't believe you think I have any ability at all."

"That is unfair. That is just a little notion you have got into your head. I think your writing is fine. You have never given me a chance to tell you what I really think about it."

"Perhaps I will some day soon," she answered with a shade of mystery in her tone, but she changed the subject so quickly he did not notice it.

When Brandon was taking off his coat before retiring, later on in the night, a piece of paper fluttered to the floor. He must have gathered it up with his coat when he took it from the chair in Marguerite's room, he decided as he stooped to pick it up.

It was a letter to Marguerite, and when his eyes lit upon one sentence he could not refrain from reading the whole thing.

It was from a publishing house, one of the best-known ones, and it concerned a book they had published for her. "'Odds and Ends' is one of the best books we have published this season and we think you were unwise not to have it appear under your real name," was the sentence that caused him to gasp. He finished the letter, then dropped it with a groan. The paper had gone to press a half hour before and his review on "Odds and Ends" would be waiting on Marguerite's desk the next morning.

He didn't get much sleep that night. He couldn't remember just what he had put in that review, but he knew it was terrible. He presented a haggard appearance at the office next morning, and it was with shaking fingers that he opened the paper to read his column. He scanned the page in vain. The review on "Odds and Ends" had been left out!

"You nearly made an awful mess of things last night, Houston."

Brandon turned to face the editor. "How?" he asked.

"Why, your review of 'Odds and Ends.' That story was by a local girl—in the city and I'm trying to engage her for our woman's page. Lucky for me I happened to pick up your copy in the composing room last night."

"I should say it was!" Brandon grabbed the editor's hand. "Why, man, you've saved my life! I'm engaged to be married to the writer of that book and I would have lost her sure if that review had got in."

"She'll be great for our woman's page!"

"She'll never write a word for it," Brandon laughed as he rummaged among his books for "Odds and Ends." "After she reads the review I am going to write on this book, she'll become Mrs. Brandon Houston or I'll miss my guess."

Would Wake Up Smothering

The terrible smothering and choking up sensations and sinking spells, the feelings of dizziness and faintness that come over those whose heart and nerves are deranged causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

Mrs. A. M. Powell, Norval Station, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I suffered five years with my heart and nerves, but the last two years I have suffered terribly. If I went to bed I would wake up as if I were smothering. I did not get one night's sleep out of seven. I got so very weak that the doctor was called in, and he said it was my heart, and that I must take great care of myself. I saw your advertisement in your almanac for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and said I would try them. I have only taken two boxes of them and I feel a new woman. I will recommend them to anyone afflicted with heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"A Little Girl's Pride.

When I was a youngster I was anxious to wear glasses and insisted that my eyes were weak. My mother took me to an oculist, writes Mrs. G. M'D., in the Chicago Herald, and I noticed after he had tested my eyes he and my mother had a consultation. I went home with the glasses, with the instruction I was to wear them to school the next day for the first time. I obeyed the instructions. On the way to school I met several of my chums who, of course, remarked about the new addition. I was quite proud of them and said:

"Oh, yes, I can see so much better now."

Giggles went around the class and finally the teacher came to see what the trouble was. Then she too laughed. She asked me why I had to have such thick, heavy glasses. Taking them off I discovered only the frames and no glass in them at all!

The explanation was that I didn't need glasses and mother had leagued herself with the oculist to cure me of the foolish desire.

How They Do It.

"What chances actors take!" you may exclaim when you see a motion picture showing a man and a lion, with a none too pleasant expression, in a hollow log together, each apparently unaware of the presence of the other. It seems a pity to spoil the effect of such a good thriller by telling the truth about the filming. The lion alone was taken during one exposure of the film. When he had bowed himself out of the log and back into his cage the man was allowed to take the center of the screen, or rather of the log, and was photographed in proper relation to the lion, on the second exposure of the same film. But on the screen, of course, they both appear in the log at the same time.—Popular Science Monthly.

Haunted Canteen.

The old naval canteen is one of the sights of Wei-hei-wei. It was originally a Chinese building, and is still decorated with Chinese carvings and tiling, and haunted, according to the coolies, by the ghost of a Chinese admiral. In the Chino-Japanese war, the antiquated Chinese fleet was blown to pieces by the Japanese. The commander of one of the lost vessels committed suicide in the building that is now the naval canteen, to expiate what he considered his disgrace. The mast of his sunken flagship can still be seen projecting bare and stiff in the waters of Wei-hei-wei harbor.

Don't Be Like Her.

There are any number of pitfalls waiting the girl who is always setting her mother right, and who bemoans the fact that her parents are "so old-fashioned." And there is no better safeguard against the world's evils than confidence in a girl's heart that mother knows best.—Exchange.

Lamps for the Eyes.

A new optical instrument consists of a high-powered incandescent lamp which can be taken into a person's mouth to illuminate his eyes through the retinas, enabling them to be examined through the pupils.

Tools and the Man.

The proper epic of this world is not now "Arms and the Man;" how much less, "Shirt Frills and the Man;" no, it is now "Tools and the Man;" that henceforth to all time is now our epic. —Carlyle.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Something New, Something Helpful: The B-H Color Scheme Adviser

WOULD you like to "see" your house in its new coat of paint, before you paint it? You can. The Brandram-Henderson "Color Scheme Adviser" enables you to try out different color combinations before deciding on the color scheme most pleasing to your eye.

This unique device consists of a transparent outline of a house, behind which you place color cards of every known shade—one color for the walls and another color for the roof. With the transparent sheet, there comes a set of 40 cards each of a different color. First you try a white card on the walls, in combination with a green card for the roof. Then you try a brown card behind the wall section of the transparency, along with a red card for the roof. And so on, until you have exhausted the possibilities of every known color combination.

We have one of these "Color Scheme Advisers" and will be pleased to let you experiment with it before you select your

Our store is the B-H Store—which means that this is paint headquarters. The outstanding reputation of this brand is based on its superior covering-capacity and exceptional durability—both of which features we know to be due to the combination of Brandram's Genuine B.B. white lead and pure white zinc, which the makers of B-H "English" Paints maintain in spite of the repeated advances in the cost of these ingredients.

The Borrowing Woman.

Day by day an Ontario housewife saw her household and kitchen furniture slowly disappear, according to the Argonaut. One morning, when Tommy, son of the borrower, appeared at the back door with the statement: "Ma wants the wash-boiler," the housewife determined to act.

"You can tell your ma that when she brings back what she has already borrowed I will lend her the boiler."

In a little while Tommy reappeared. "Ma wants to know what she borrowed." "There is a pound of flour," began the other, "a peck of potatoes, a cup of sugar, a can of coffee, a half pound of lard, some onions, and butter, and spices, the screwdriver, the hatchet, a pair of scissors, and"—she paused reflectively—"three spools of thread, a paper of needles, and"—— But Tommy was gone. Presently he rapped on the back door again. "Ma says for you to write them down. I forgot some of them." Whereupon the housewife sat down with a pencil and patiently made an alphabetical list of all the articles she could remember. Tommy took the list and disappeared. A half hour later he once more appeared at the back door and announced: "Ma says if you will lend her the wash-boiler to carry them in, she'll bring them home."

Sulphur Bottom Whales.

Probably the largest of the whales, as well as the most gigantic of all living creatures, is the sulphur bottom. It attains a length of nearly or quite 100 feet and a weight of 150 tons. One individual measured 95 feet in length, 39 feet in girth, with a jawbone 21 feet long; baleen (whalebone), 4 feet long; weight of baleen, 800 pounds; weight of entire whale, 147 tons, and it yielded 110 barrels of oil. The sulphur bottom seldom bolts, as the whalers term the action of leaping diagonally from the sea, or breaches, as perpendicular springs are called, but when it does perform in this manner it presents a truly wonderful sight.

Swiss as They Talk.

Many of the Swiss regard themselves as great linguists. I asked one gentleman the reason for this, but he refused to tell me. He seemed, for some reason, to be offended at the question. Another native I met told me he spoke seven languages; to me it seemed as if he spoke them all at once. I know a little of German myself and was quite interested in listening to him. For some reason he put me in mind of a patchwork quilt trying to talk—one of those crazy ones.—Wide World Magazine.

Made For Concealment.

Stick insects, which are so called because of their resemblance to dry sticks, have two forelegs, which they hold over their eyes when disturbed and evidently think that in so doing they are lost to view. The eggs of these insects take over six months to hatch. They are only one-tenth of an inch in their widest part, yet an insect which at hatching is three-quarters of an inch in length is packed into them. The stick insects destroy the weaklings by eating their legs.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

ONE IS ENOUGH FOR SOME THINGS

Just because a wheelbarrow gets along with one wheel is no reason for a man to be satisfied with vision in one eye. Many people do not know how much better the vision of one eye is than the other, and go on making the good eye do all the work. Dr. Fowler corrects this condition with his "Peblo" glasses and makes both eyes do equal duty perfectly.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MAY 17, 1918

THE GERMAN ARTILLERY FIRE IS INCREASINGLY ACTIVE

Intense Aerial Fighting on the Western Front

Deputy Fire Marshall Opens Enquiry Into Two Peterboro' Fires

Fire in Private Residence at 168 Hazlitt Street, Forms Subject of Investigation.

THE EVIDENCE

Deputy Fire Marshall George F. Lewis this morning held an enquiry at the City Hall into the cause and circumstances of the fire on April 5th that destroyed the house at 168 Hazlett street, owned by Walter H. Suddards.

Chief Grange recalled a fire alarm on Friday, April 5th, at 12:25 a.m. in a house at 168 Hazlett street. "When we got there the whole building was in flames. The wind was from the northwest, blowing the fire, which had started at the rear, into the main part of the dwelling. The roof was blazing. We estimated that 25 minutes elapsed before an alarm was sent in. The house had been vacant 36 hours. Mr. Chas. Edwards had occupied it, renting it from Walter Suddards. He is a brother-in-law of Suddards. It was said that there had been trouble between them that led to Edwards moving. There was no rubbish in the back kitchen. Neighbours next door could give no explanation of how the fire started.

Detective Newhall.

'Suddards told me he had had some trouble with his brother-in-law," Detective Newhall, the next witness said. "I interviewed Mrs. Bedding who lived next door, and when I saw Suddards again he took back all he had said about Edwards, and added that Edwards was above suspicion."

Detective Newhall stated that he had carefully examined the back kitchen where the fire started and noticed a little pile of ashes of what appeared to have been paper and straw. "It looked like a 'plant,' and there was no doubt the fire started in that part of the building. Suddards had made an arrangement with Mr. Bedding to help clean up the house and gave him a lawn mower, shovel and other articles. He said there was straw in the shed left there by Edwards, but afterwards he changed his story saying tha tthe straw was in the cellar. I couldn't find a wisp of straw there, and the fire didn't reach the cellar. Suddards told me on the Monday preceding the fire that he was leaving the fire deaprtment. He also said, that day, that he and Edwards had had a wrangle, and he intended to get him out.

Mrs. Bedding.

"Edwards was put out because he hadn't been paying the rent," said Mrs. Annie Bedding, of 178 Hazlett street. "He was supposed to pay $9 a month, but Mr. Suddards brought Mr. Brown who was going to take the house for $12 a month."

Mrs. Bedding said that the reflection of the fire had awakened her husband. He went to send in an alarm but didnt' know how to send in the call. He got a neighbour to operate the alarm box. The fire was in the wood shed.

Mr. Bedding, the next witness, said that Suddards had asked him to go over an see how Edwards had left the house. He had a coal oil lamp and must have brought it with him. That was the night before the fire. I got a lantern. In the wood shed there was a lot of newspapers, straw and other stuff. Suddards said he was coming up the next night and would clean it all out. He had an auto delivery truck and took away a sofa and cupboard that belonged to him. He said that Edwards hadn't paid any rent all winter. When Suddard went away, he said he would be back the next night and I volunteered to help him clean up. I was around the garden, but didn't see a sign of him. I went to bed at 9 o'clock.

Hun Aeroplanes Accounted For Thirty-Seven Euemy Machines Were Brought Down by British Aviators

STATIONS BOMBED

Canadian Press.

LONDON, May 17.—In spite of determined opposition by German airplanes British aviators on Thursday, dropped bombs on factories and railway station at Saarbrucken, in German Lorraine, starting a fire on the railway. After bombing the town, the Britishers turned on the enemy and in aerial fighting destroyed five of the enemy machines. One of the British air planes was lost. In intense aerial fighting on the seven German airplanes were accounted for by British aviators, while eleven British machines are reported missing.

Suddards Held For Perjury After To-day's Fire Probe

Walter H. Suddards was arrested this afternoon on a charge of perjury on the order of Deputy Fire Marshall Lewis at the close of his enquiry into the cause of the fire at Suddards' house on Hazlitt street on April 5th.

This morning Suddards had declared that on the night of April 3rd he had taken a cupboard from the Hazlitt street house for the purpose of delivering it to Mrs. Rollo, to whom he said he had sold it for $1.50.

This afternoon, when Mrs. Rollo, who lives at 238 Antrim street, and boarded at Suddards' on Aylmer street until April 28th, was called, she stated that she didn't know that Suddards had anything to sell.

After the fire, she said, she had seen the sideboard in the shed of the Aylmer street house.

"I asked Mr. Suddards if he would sell it to me, and he agreed. That was the first time I saw it or knew he had the sideboard."

Mr. Lewis—"Did he bring it there for the purpose of selling it to you?"

Mrs. Rollo—"No."

The witness was positive that it was after the fire on Hazlitt street that she offered to buy the sideboard.

It is understood that Suddards is held on two charges of perjury.

THE MISSION BAND WILL MEET TO-NIGHT.

The Mission Band of the Murray Street Baptist Church will meet to-night at 8 o'clock to open the mite boxes. A short programme is being prepared. The parents and friends are invited to be present.

LAWYERS MUST SERVE, RULES APPEAL JUDGE

OTTAWA, May 17.—That membership in the legal profession does not constitute a reasonable ground for exemption is the declaration made by the Central Appeal Judge under the Military Service Act in a judgment just rendered. The application for exemption was made by Lorenzo Camirand, who was granted exemption by Mr. Justice Desy, of the appeal tribunal. From this judgment the military authorities appealed.

ARTILLERY ACTIVITY

Heavy Enemy Fire Was Concentrated on Front Lines This Morning —No Infantry Actions

GAS SHELLING

(Special to Examiner)

United Press.

(By William Philip Simms) WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 17.—German artillery fire was concentrated on the front lines and approached east of Hinges and Pacaut wood at 3 o'clock this morning. The British positions were fairly heavily dosed but there was no infantry action as the British guns slammed home a few rounds and cooled any inclination the enemy might have had for an attack.

There was some gas shelling in the Givenchy, Vimy and Avion regions.

The weather is unusually warm and brilliant sunshine brings out the aviators in swarms. Aerial combats continue almost unceasingly. Heavy bombardments are indulged in nightly by both sides.

French Man Power Proposals Were Declined

(By Carl D. Groth)

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The war department has declined to acceed to French proposals whereby some of the French army would be released for agriculture or industries.

This was learned today-to be the out come of recent discussion of man power.

On the other hand the Government feels that both French and British should increase rather than diminish their military forces and that they should not expect the United States to furnish soldiers to release allied soldiers for industry.

Further Increase

The recent revelation in Maurice Lloyd controversy tell the govt., authorities the significant fact that British had not really increased her army in past year. They believe she should have done so and they think she and France should prepare to make further increases while the United States proceeds with its increase in overseas forces.

War department plans contemplate getting 1,500,000 to 2 million men overseas this year, but it is pointed out that inn time the American shipments are likely not to exceed the replacement needs.

When the United States army reaches 2 million it is likely not to go beyond that figure for some time unless shipping facilities are much improved. In view of this situation Army men say that England and France ought to appreciate that the task is a united problem wherein every body must go forward not content with merely fending off Teuton blows.

CASE OF RABIES ON ALBERT STREET

A bad case of rabies was found by Dr. Johnston, V.S., who on Wednesday night was called to the home of Mrs. A. Lemmon, 469 Albert St., where a hound was acting strangely. Dr. Johnston accompanied by Dr. Richards, Dominion Veterary Inspector, found the dog to be in the last stages of paralysis which condition is an infallible proof of rabies. Dr. Richards immediately conversed with Dr. Johnston's diagnosis of the dog's condition and P.C. Lawrence was called. The animal was put out of danger and its own misery by one shot.

Dropped Dead While Preparing Evening Meal

Wife of Mr. Herbert Hawley Died Suddenly at Her Home

Almira Ostrom, wife of Herbert Hawley, 351 Charlotte street, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock at the family residence. She had been in her usual good health at noon time and had prepared dinner for the family. At five o'clock, however, she dropped suddenly dead in the act of preparing tea.

Mrs. Hawley was born near Belleville 64 years ago and came to the city in 1904 to reside. Through her connection with the Methodist church, in which she was an active worker during her life, she had made a place difficult to fill, and leaves a host of sorrowing friends.

There are left of the immediate family besides her husband, two children, Arthur of Peterborough and Mrs. (Rev.) Neville, of Bobcaygeon; also one brother, C. A. Ostrom, Misshawakee, Indiana.

Funeral to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery, Rev. Mr. Wilson officiating.

SUDDEN DEATH OF G. J. CHALMERS

Last evening death came with startling suddenness to Mr. George J. Chalmers at his home, 587 Homewood Avenue. The deceased had been working around the house a few minutes previous to his death, and was in his usual good health. Shortly after eight o'clock his wife heard a heavy thud in an adjoining room, and rushed in and found her husband lying dead on the floor.

For some time Mr. Chalmers has led a retired life. For a number of years he was a valued employee of the Examiner. About twenty years ago the late Mr. Chalmers owned and operated a lumber mill at Young's Point. Mr. Chalmers was married to Miss Bellwood, of Bowmanville. He is survived by his widow, one son, Alexander, of Newbury, Michigan, and two sisters, Mrs. William Fair, of Toronto, and Mrs. William Armstrong, of Hamilton.

Huns' System Of Fiendish Warfare

Thousands of Women and Children in France Have Been Maimed and Murdered

SPIRITS NOT BROKEN

Special to the Examiner:

NEW YORK, May 17.—Germany's system of warfare is based on the theory that the killing of four children out of five will induce the mother to implore her Government to stop the war so the fifth may live, Henry P. Davidson, of the Red Cross, declared here to-day. "This policy of 'peace by terror,'" he said, "has resulted in the murder and maiming of thousands of women and children in France and Italy," said Davidson. "The 'fieldish policy' of Germany has not broken the people's spirits as the Teuton hoped."

"Efforts to terrorize the women and children and old men at home are still being made," he said, "but they are failing."

Davidson has just returned from an inspection of conditions in the war zone.

No Blame Attached To A Plunkett

IN CONNECTION WITH THE KILLING OF MR. JOHN PACKARD.

COBOURG, May 16.—The inquest to enquire into the death of the late John Packard, who was killed at the east toll gate on the Cobourg Road was held in Cobourg last evening, and after hearing the evidence the jury brought in the following verdict:

"That John Packard came to his death from shock as a result of the collision with Mr. A. J. Plunkett's automobile; that Mr. Plunkett used every effort to avoid the accident, and that the jury exonerates Mr. Plunkett from any blame in connection with the same."

Mr. Frank Field appeared for Mr. Plunkett and Mr. D. H. Chisholm for the Packard family.

AMERICANS WILL BE READY NEXT SPRING

If Sudden Crisis Arises Anywhere Along Western Front It May Be Necessary to Use Americans

FOR MAJOR OPERATIONS

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

New York, May 17th.—Expectations that there will be 1,500,000 American soldiers in France at the end of the present year, indicate that the most favorable time for America's great effort against Von Hindenburg, will be next spring.

The decision of the military authorities to train Americans in actual conditions of warfare by brigading them with the French and British, before sending them to fight as separate units, means that a considerable period must elapse after the American forces arrive in France before they are used for an independent offensive. If a sudden crisis arises anywhere along the western front, it may then become necessary to employ Americans for major operations, regardless of their period of training, but not otherwise.

Since General Foch has shown an inflexible determination nor to be tempted into wasting his man power by minor assaults, it is to be expected that he will do everything possible to prevent a premature use of the American armies. Pressure, however, will probably be exerted very soon for the organization of an American offensive in the effort to end the war by a military decision this year. This pressure will be due to certain impediments and impatience with the long periods of preparatory training which exists in every country.

Should General Foch be forced to submit to so dangerous an influence, an American offensive will occur this summer. Otherwise it is reasonable to expect that only limited operations will be conducted by the allies during the summer months, principally for the purpose of training the Americans and keeping the Germans in a state of pervous expectation.

Whether by this autumn enough trained Americans will be in France to warrant a complete assumption of the initiative by General Foch cannot now be definitely foretold. A strong reason against the autumn offeneives is that they may be interrupted by winter weather at critical times.

NEXT SPRING.

But there is no doubt that next spring the American troops in France will be equal to accepting the responsibility for conducting an offensive on a gigantic scale. By next spring, the Central powers will have gone through another devasting winter under reduced food rations. Their morale undoubtedly will be lower than it is now. They will thus be subjected to the greater reaction from the effect of an American advance into German territory towards the Rhine. The strain on the allies for continuing the war through another year will of course be great. But if there is any expectation of the war being won by a new and sustained offensive, with America playing the principal part, there must be patience until spring comes again. Not until then can the allies be certain that all the conditions will be favorable.

SITUATION IN IRELAND

Irish Parliamentary Party Addresses a Message to the American People

CHARGES ALLEGED

Special to the Examiner:

DUBLIN, May 17.—The Irish Parliamentary party has adopted a resolution against conscription, and has appealed to America to urge Great Britain to apply to Ireland the principal of self-determination set forth by President Wilson.

The resolution asks Americans to listen to statements from Irishmen, and charges that Great Britain has been conducting propaganda in America to "blacken Ireland." It declares that the British Government has no intention to establish Home Rule in Ireland, but promises reform just to deceive the British and American people.

McAuliffe Farm Is Not Under Quarantine

Two Dogs Were Shot on the Wayside.

Contrary to general impression, the McAuliffe farm at Emily, upon which the man was bitten by a dog with rabies, is not under quarantine. Dr. Richards, Dominion Veterinary Inspector, who went to the farm on Tuesday, found that the dog which had rabies had been tied up, and had not bitten any of the stock on the farm, thus rendering quarantine unnecessary.

The Doctor and Poulson, who drove him to the McAuliffe farm, found two dogs across the road which had been in contact with the McAuliffe dog, and immediately shot them as a precaution against any further spread of the disease, as these dogs, the McAuliffe one being a sure case of rabies, would undoubtedly develop the disease in the course of a few days.

AERIAL ACTIVITY ON THE WEST

Canadian Press.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 17.— The ideal flying weather yesterday on the British front in Flanders constituted a record for the air service on the British front. Up to three o'clock in the afternoon the British destroyed fifteen German planes and drove six others down out of control, according to unofficial figures which the correspondent learned, and at least five other machines were sent crashing down. To-day is another perfect day and it is certain to see many battles in the air.

A SPLENDID EXPLOIT.

The exploit of the Italian naval forces in penetrating the Austrian defences and torpedoing an Austrian battleship in the harbour of Pola, was one of the most dashing and successful feats of its kind recorded in the war, and elated as the people of the British Empire are over the audacious raids of the British navy on Ostend and Zeebrugge, they will unite in paying tribute to the success of the Italian sailors. To make their way through the enemy mine fields and gun-fire and actually enter the strongly-guarded Austrian harbour, was a notable exploit on the part of the Italians, and the sinking of one of the most modern Austrian battleships, combined with the fact that all our ally's ships returned safely, means that the raid was effective as well as audacious.

WHY IS IT WITHHELD?

Members of parliament are beginning to ask why the report of the Cost of Living branch of the Labour Department on the profits of Canadian flour mills has not been made public. It is stated that the report has been in the hands of Hon. T. W. Crothers for over two weeks but for some reason or other the Minister has shown no signs of enlightening the public as to the result of the investigation. It is information that the people of Canada are entitled to, and no doubt there will be a strong demand in the House to have the report tabled as soon as possible.

An Ottawa despatch intimates that there is some interesting comment contained in the finding of the Cost of Living Department in regard to the Canada Food Board's action in fixing a maximum profit of 25c. per barrel. Apparently this maximum does not affect the profits at all, for it is claimed that never have the mills made 25c. per barrel profit and that with a 15c. limitation they could still make ample profit on their investment. The taxing of the net profits on the total investment for each year, as is being done in the case of the meat packers is suggested as a remedy.

At all events there does not seem any reason why the head of the Labour Department should indefinitely withhold from the public the interesting findings of the Cost of Living branch.

THE NEW REGULATIONS.

The object of the Finance Committee of the City Council in restricting the hours of the local restaurants on Sunday, is of course to stop as far as possible the practice of selling ice cream and soft drinks on the Sabbath day by merchants who merely take out a restaurant license because of the other privileges they secure under its provisions. There can be little complaint with the intended purpose of the restrictions inasmuch as they affect the ice cream parlours, but the new regulations are severe in regard to the legitimate restaurants, who are restricted from selling food only at regular meal hours on Sunday. Naturally much of the business done by restaurants comes between these regular hours, and the effect of the changes made will be felt not only by them but by the public, especially by Sunday visitors, who will be somewhat amazed to find that in a city as big as Peterboro it is impossible to secure anything to eat after 7 o'clock on Sunday evening.

There should be some way to prevent the operation of ice cream parlours on Sunday under the protection of an eating house license, without interfering with the bona-fide restaurant. The former make no pretense at serving food—a piece of pie is the nearest approach to a meal that can be secured—and the restaurant license is only camouflage to allow the selling of ice cream and drinks. On the other hands proper restaurants are an accommodation to the public, and under the new regulations much of their usefulness is interfered with.

The decision to abolish stalls in the restaurants will be generally applauded and a long-suffering public will hear with delight that the player pianos, which have been accustomed to grind out rag time music all day Sunday, are to be stilled on the Sabbath. It was always a shock to church goers to be greeted with the lively strains of a fox trot issuing from the open door of a brightly illuminated ice cream parlour on Sunday evening, and the committee is to be commended upon putting a silencer on the music—if such a title is not a misnomer. Sufferers who are obliged to live in the vicinity of such institutions will be glad, too, to learn that after ten o'clock each week night there shall be no music in these places, so that the citizen who obeys the old adage and retires early, will have a much better opportunity of getting to sleep.

If the new regulations are adopted by council, Peterboro will be about the only town or city in Canada where the operation of a restaurant after 7 o'clock on Sunday evening is forbidden. It would be well for the council to consider the question carefully, with a view of seeing whether there is not some way of eliminating the fake restaurants without interfering with the genuine eating houses.

ANOTHER CONVERT.

The "ginger group" has gained another journalistic supporter. That galaxy of hard-shell Tories, headed by the long-winded Col. J. A. Currie, of East Simcoe, and including in its membership Capt. J. H. Burnham, has hitherto had to struggle along aided only by the Toronto Telegram, to whom it owes its title, and to whom also it looks for praise and encouragement. Now, however, the Peterboro Review has evidently decided to line up behind the "ginger group," whose chief ambition seems to be to cover as many pages of Hansard as possible. The members of the Telegram's pet circle are opposed to the Civil Service Bill, especially to the taking away from the local member the power of making appointments. Col. Currie has almost shattered the windows of the House in condemning the measure. Capt. Burnham announces that he will oppose every section of it, and other "gingerites" have taken a similar stand.

"The bill in its present form simply means a transfer of the patronage privilege. The fine Italian hand of those who have inspired it is easily discernible."

The bill was, it is announced, introduced by the Union government to implement a pledge that the patronage evil would be done away with, and the Review, which has boasted of its unswerving loyalty to that government, and scolded every newspaper which ventured to criticize it, greeting each complaint with jibes about the "party press," "copperheads," and so forth, flatly condemns this measure. What is the mysterious allusion to the "fine Italian hand of those who have inspired it"?

Our contemporary should be more explicit on this point. It has only said enough to make people curious.

Meanwhile the Review's self-praised loyalty to the Union government seems to be elastic in its nature and depends largely upon Capt. J. H. Burnham. As long as that doughty member swings along with the government, the Review swings, too, but now that Capt. Burnham has joined forces with the Toronto Telegram-Col. Currie clique of wind jammers, the Review meekly toddles along in his wake, and insinuates there is something rotten about the wonderful Civil Service Bill. If it intends to follow the member for West Peterboro in all his political wanderings, our contemporary has a busy session before it.

VOLUNTARY RATIONING.

The announcement by Mr. H. B. Thomson, chairman of the Canada Food Board, that each province in the Dominion of Canada, is to have a standard for the amount of food to be consumed by each person, and Mr. Thomson's expressed belief that the people would loyally live up to such standard, shows a very commendable faith in the Canadian people, and it is hoped that the confidence of the Food Controller will be justified. There will be no general system of compulsory rationing. The only victim who will be on rations is the unfortunate individual who has no home of his own, and has to eat at a restaurant, hotel or boarding house. He is forbidden to eat a number of things and continues to pay big prices for a smaller quantity of food. The people who live at home are to be allowed to eat what they like, at least what they can afford to buy, and waste or save, just as they please. The Food Board will draw up a nice little schedule of the food supplies they are supposed to use, and upon their patriotism depends how strictly they shall adhere to the menu.

That the people of Canada eat too much wheat and beef, as stated by Mr. Thomson, cannot be gainsaid. It is to be hoped that now the responsibility of conserving the necessary supplies, has been thrown directly upon each individual, that there will be loyal obedience to the standards as laid down for each province. If not, compulsory rationing will have to come as a matter of course.

"What we propose to ask you to do is this: We are going to ask each province in the Dominion of Canada—you all have your Provincial committees, and you in Ontario have your Ontario Resources Committee—we are going to ask them to call the committee together and draft a standard of voluntary regulations for the homes of Ontario. We are going to each committee in each province of the Dominion, and ask them to do the same thing, because when we started to do it ourselves we realized what a task it was. Along with other things, we always have to consider, before putting reglations into force, the whole of Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"We feel that the people of Canada, and I know that the people of Canada do not want any arbitrary regulations. They don't want any direct orders as regards the rationing of their homes. What they want in Canada to-day is a standard for their province to live up to. Therefore, we have asked the committees of each of the Provinces of Canada to establish a standard for the homes in that Province. We are going to circulate these standards, and we know full well the people in the Provinces will loyally live up to them."

PETERBORO' COUNCIL OF WOMEN DEAL WITH REGISTRATION QUESTION

Women Welcome the Scheme as a Medium Through Which the Labour Situation Can Be Equalized--Committee Appointed—Ice Cream Shops Open on Sunday.

ADDRESS ON CITIZENSHIP

Arrangements for the co-operation of women in the National Registration, June 17-22, were made yesterday, at the regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women. A month ago the Council, which is composed of representatives from the different societies in the city, was asked to assist in this work, as it was realized it could be a satisfactory medium through which a large number of women could be reached.

Mrs. W. R. Morris had received information from Mr. Dobbin, who realized that the Local Council could be of use in educative work, which work would be easy by way of the many affiliated societies of women. Mr. Dobbin has already been active with the clergy, who will assist in obtaining registrars. The schools are doing their part. 90 teachers having volunteered their services, and Normal School students have also enrolled.

WHY REGISTER.

Registration has been instituted that in order to follow the policy of the war the resources of Canada must be known. Men and women being the most important resources of a country it is necessary to know where they are and what they are doing. Mrs. Plumtree assures the public that contrary to the general impession, registration is not a step towards compulsory service, but tends towards rearranging labor. If the government, through registration finds a large number whose labor can be diverted into work more profitable to the pursuance of the war, it will probably rearrange such.

1,000 WORKERS NEEDED.

Mr. Dobbin has called for 1,000 workers and to assist in obtaining these, the presidents of the affiliated societies took pledge cards to distribute to those willing to become registrars. Any who receive these must be intelligent. All will be sworn in and will not under penalty divulge any facts given by the person registering

COMMITTEE FORMED.

A committee of Mesdames Eastwood, Coulthard, Kendry, Matthews, Morris, Mowat, Shields, Harstone and Neal; and Misses Dixon and Rush; was formed to work in conjuncton with Mr. Dobbin, so as to understand exactly what the Board desires.

THE SUGAR QUESTION.

A resolution from the 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E., deploring the fact that candy kitchens flourish while the sugar situation is so serious, brought up a discussion on condiions in the city.

Miss Davidson reported that two new candy stores have been opened during the past few weeks.

Mrs. Morris explained that the manufacturers are using substitutes for sugar in their confectionery.

Mrs. Neal spoke of the fact that on Sunday evenings ten or twelve ice cream shops are going, which is contrary to any endeavor to conserve the food.

Miss Rush said that the restaurants had not yet been notified of the new regulations concerning the sale on Sundays.

Mrs. Mowat objected to the fact that a second helping of bread in the restaurants is still continued, contrary to the food regulations.

URGED TO CONCUR.

Mrs. Harstone urged all as a personal obligation to concur with the food board and save in every way to aid in the national crisis; also to serve in food production. She said that Mr. Kitney, the secretary of the Market Gardeners, had written asking to have girls sent to aid in the market gardens, and asked the ladies to suggest girls who would undertake such work.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

The treasurer reported $8.66 in the bank.

"CITIZENSHIP," BY MRS. BOUCHER.

After the business had been transacted, the large number who attended enjoyed a most able address on Citizenship, by Mrs. Baucher.

Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Gardiner were named as representatives for the annual meeting of the Council in Brantford on June 11th.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN NORTHERN FRANCE.

(Canadan Press.)

May 17. — Announcement was made here to-day that American troops have arrived in northern France in the zone occupied by the British forces.

Relations between the British and American officers and soldiers are extremely cordial.

The increased cost of fine teas has tempted some to try cheap, inferior teas to their sorrow. It is a real economy to use Salada Tea, since it yields a far greater number of cups to the pound and besides has that unique satisfying flavor.

OMEMEE SECURES SUPPLY OF OIL FOR THE STREETS

Omemee, May 16.—Reeve Parsons has received word from Lady Eaton of Toronto, that a carload of oil is on the way to Omemee for the purpose of oiling the streets. This will be a welcome message to our citizens, as many other places have been unable to secure oil.

A very pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dick on Friday evening last when a number of their friends gathered together to show their esteem to the young couple. The choir, of which they were both members, gave them a clock, while the adult Bible class presented them with a beautiful brass jardiniere.

Not in many years has Omemee been as much alive as it was on Monday evening when the boys left for Kingston. People were there for many miles around and although it was a solemn occasion for some, yet there were many smiles and a cheerful good bye from others. About forty boys left from our village and vicinity and we hope a goodly numeber may return.

MONTREAL LABOUR MEN FAIL TO EXPRESS CONFIDENCE IN CROTHERS

MOTION CARRIED

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, May 17.— After passing a resolution last night calling for the appointment of a Deputy Minister of Trade and Labour, resident in Montreal the Trades and Labour Council of this city unanimously passed a resolution disapproving of the published statements of Hon. Mr. Crothers, Minister of Labour, that he possessed the confidence of the leaders of organized labour. Ex-Alderman Vigeant was the mover.

Delegate Francq protested against such a motion being passed as it would seem like a party motion.

Motion Carried.

President Foster was sorry that it had been introduced, but since it had he was not willing to have published through the country that it had been defeated, as that would sound like a vote of confidence, and he did not think the machinists, the fur workers, the carpenters, and many other crafts were willing to express confidence in him. Neither did they think the "chloroforming" of O'Connor one of the most active and useful officers at Ottawa, an act deserving of confidence. The motion then passed.

LIEUT. BIRNIE LEAVES HOSPITAL

Peterboro Lawyer Now on Crutches After Recovering From Fifteen Wounds.

LONDON, May 17.—Lieut. Birnie, of the Canadian Field Artillery, an old Collingwood athlete who was engaged in legal practice at Peterboro when war broke out, emerged from a Manchester Hospital on crutches yesterday for the first time since his escape, which was one of the miracles of the war. To use the phrase of one of his old college colleagues, "Birnie collected the biggest part of a German shell." Profuse bleeding from an early wound first aroused his consciousness of the injury, but he had in reality fifteen other wounds all more serious. It was first thought that amputation of a leg was necessary, but this was avoided. Birnie was captain of the Osgoode Hall senior hockey team some years ago.

Marning Mrs. Kareful

And it's yerself that's not lookin' well this morning.

Oh! Mrs. Smart! It's a turr'ble shock I've just had. I found out I lost about a hundred and twenty-two dollars and two cents.

Oh glory! Marm, that's cert'nly bad, but praps if you puts an ad in you'll get it back.

Oh, Mrs. Smart, that's just the worst of it, we can't get it back, 'cause we've been an chewed it up an swallered it, me an the ole man and the kids and the boarder.

Eh! what! You chewed and swallered all that money? Why you'll all die of conjugation of the innards. You ought to get the doctor or the fire brigade with the pulmotor.

Well, you see, Mrs. Smart, we ain't actu'lly swallered it, but it's the same as if we had, 'cause it's gone down our crops.

Say, Mrs. Kareful, d'you know what you're talking about, 'cause I don't, first you say you have, then you haven't.

Well, Mrs. Smart, you see it's like this. I been hearin' about that feller Paskins and the cheap prices for more'n a year, but I didn't take much heed. But I was coming by there to-day, and thinks I I'll look in and see if I can get more sugar for a quarter than I been gettin'. Well, you believe me, marm, when I saw all the tickets with the prices on 'em, I fergot all about the sugar. And I noted some of the prices down and went home and reckoned up how much I could've saved in a year by dealin' there, and I found it came to $122.02. So I feel we chewed and swallered it.

Lor! now! What a turn you give me. Course it serves you right, 'cause I told you about it, and what you could save by going to A. W. Paskins, on the corner of Hunter and Aylmer. Well, I'm going there now to get some bacon and some plants for the garden, so we might's well go together.

Sure! Come on.

Brave Belgian Boy

The bravery of a young son of the village blacksmith of Louvain, Belgium, in his recent attack upon a German general — Von Gluck—resulting in fatal injury to the Hun commander, is the talk of this and surrounding communities.

The boy, a mere youth, openly showed his hatred of the Germans, who were occupying his home village and angered at the constant speeches of the general threatening death for any attack upon the troops, succeeded in inflicting injuries upon the German general that resulted fatally.

The boy disappeared, last seen being pursued into his father's blacksmith shop, by a German officer with a drawn sword. This scene among many show the depredations of peaceful, inoffensive Belgium by the German hosts, included with sensational exposures of the Kaiser himself, in his private life, in Rupert Julian's remarkable screen chronicle, "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," to be shown at the Grand Theatre, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 23, 24 and 25.

Splendid Singing In "Bohemian Girl"

Toronto Press Enthusiastic Over the Performance of Joseph F. Sheehan and Other Principals

The Toronto Star has the following to say about "The Bohemian Girl," which comes to the Grand on Monday night next:

"Joseph F. Sheehan had a birthday yesterday, and though he had sung an exacting role in 'Il Trovatore' on Monday night, he celebrated his birthday by singing the role of Thaddeus, the Polish exile, in that fine old romantic opera, 'The Bohemian Girl,' at the Princess Theatre last night. He put a fine passion into 'When the Fair Land of Poland,' that made the audience think how the 'hoof of the ruthless invader' was even now plowing through Poland. Mr. Sheehan's tenor was also heard to advantage in 'Then You'll Remember Me.' Mr. Arthur Deane's big baritone voice did justice to 'The Heart Bowed Down,' and Miss Hazel Eden, who played Arline, sang 'I Dreamt that I Dwelt in Marble Halls' in a beautiful soprano, and the audience insisted that she repeat the solo. Miss Elaine de Sellem played the gypsy queen with rare dramatic ability and showed a fine contralto voice. Mr. Francis J. Tyler was the Devilshoof, whose buffonery makes considerable of the humor of the piece, and his bass voice roused the audience to enthusiasm. Paul D. Edwards played Florenstein capably."

America Must Prepare For Further Great Sacrifices

(Special to Examiner.)
By Robt. J. Bender.
(United Press Service.)

Washington, May 17. — America must prepare for further great sacrifices to meet the demands of a gigantic effort now assuming definite shape in the war government to frustrate Teutonic designs on the world. This will be the message of President Wilson to-morrow night when he opens the Red Cross drive in New York.

TACTORS AT COST FOR CANADIAN FARMERS

OTTAWA, May 17.—The Canadian Food Board has completed arrangements with the Henry Ford & Son Company, Inc., to continue to furnish tractors at cost for the use of Canadian farmers.

Deserves Its Fate.

(Hamilton Herald.)

Having practically invited the Huns into their territory by throwing down their arms and disbanding their armies and making peace with the enemy, the poor silly Bolsheviki now cry out to the world, "Captures of our territory are in violation of peace with Germany." What they say is quite true. It is undoubtedly naughty of the Germans to capture the territory of a nation with which they are at peace. But a nation which voluntarily throws away its weapons of defence in the face of danger is deserving of almost any fate which may befall it.

PETERBOROUGH BOY MARRIED IN ENGLAND

Wounded Soldiers Formed An Archway With Their Crutches

The following item is taken from the "Bury Times," Lancashire, England, dated March 20, 1918. It refers to the marriage of a Peterborough soldier, Corporal Arthur Skilleter who, prior to enlisting, resided at 308 Mark street, East City.

(Bury Times.)

"Much interest was centred in a marriage which took place at Birtle church, Bury, on Wednesday morning, when the contracting parties were Corporal Arthur Skilleter, of Peterborough Ont., and Miss Alice Bertenshaw, daughter of Mr. John Bertenshaw, of Barnsley, Yorkshire. The bridegroom came over with the Canadian Mounted Rifles and served about two years in France, where he was twice wounded. For some time he was a patient at the Jericho Military Hospital at Bury, where he made the acquaintance of the bride, who was a nurse in the hospital. Having been invalided the bridegroom is now drill instructor in the south. A large number of wounded soldiers, many of them wearing large 'buttonholes' composed of daffodils, and nurses, many in their uniforms, and Mr. Bailey, Supt. of Hospital, were present in church. The Vicar, Rev. C. E. Renshaw, officiated. The bride wore a dress of cream serge and veil and spray of orange blossom and carried a sheaf of arum lilies. Miss Kitty Jones, a nurse was the bridesmaid, being attired in a white voile dress, and wearing a white tagel hat trimmed with pink ribbon, and a gold brooch, the gift of the bridegroom, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations Mr. Wilfrid Beardsall, brother-in-law of the bride, acted as best man. As the bridal party were leaving the church, one of the wounded soldiers played the 'wedding march' on the organ, and the other wounded soldiers and nurses lined the path leading from the church, some of the soldiers making an archway of their crutches, under which the bridal party passed. The wedding breakfast was served at the Military Hospital, and afterwards Corporal Skilleter and his bride left for the honeymoon, which is being spent at Southport (Lancashire) and Folkestone.

GERMANS SAY THAT A FIFTH WINTER OF WAR IS INEVITABLE

(Canadian Press.)

Berne, Switzerland, May 17. — Via the British Admiralty, per wireless press. — In a speech before Wurtemburg (Dieut) Herr Hausemann, one of the leaders of the progressive party, said a fifth winter of the war was now inevitable. The Germans must make up their minds to face disappointment, he said, instead of obtaining the victory hoped for during the summer.

Enemy Torpedo Boat Destroyed

Italian Naval Forces Made a Successful Raid.

Special to Examiner:

ROME, May 17.—Italian naval forces torpedoed and sank an enemy torpedo boat and steamer at Durazzo on the eastern coast of the Adriatic Sunday night, it was officially announced to-day. Italian airplanes bombed and set fire to military works in Lisza and Durazzo Tuesday. Lisza is on the island of that name north of Durazzo.

Board Appointed To Deal With The Winnipeg Strike

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 18.—A board of arbitration to deal with the dispute between two hundred and fifty members of the Civil Employees' Federation and the City of Winnipeg, has been appointed by Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour.

This arbitration board will not deal with employees who are members of other bodies and are now on strike such as Firemen, Electrical Workers, Water Works Employees, and Chauffeurs. A general strike of all organized labour is threatened in Wnnipeg.

LOSES FOUR SONS.

Quebec Farmer Has Two Sets of Twins in Draft.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 17. — Henri Besant, a Quebec farmer, has the distinction of having four sons who will be affected by the Government's order cancelling exemptions to men between the ages of 20 and 22. Mr. Besant is the father of two sets of twins, all boys, the first being 22 years old and the second 20. He was present with the deputation that waited on Premier Borden on Tuesday, and while his personal interest in the outcome was greater than that of any other farmer in Canada, he accepted the result philosophically, consoling himself in the fact that he has nine other children left at home.

ONLY ONE CASE OF TORPEDOING

Significant Fact Reported In An Interview By Admiral Wilson

PARIS, May 17. — "There was only one case of torpedoing on waters in which American warships are operating during February, compared with 34 in October, and in April there was none," Admiral Wilson declared in an interview published in The 'Matin,'

INDIA RENEWS PLEDGES.

Re-Affirms Loyalty and Decides to Recruit Immediately Half a Million Men.

SIMLA India, May 17.—As a result of the Delhi conference, the Provincial Governments have held meetings, unanimously re-affirming the resolution of loyalty and promising all possible aid. The Goverment of India has already decided to immediately recruit over half a million men and organize central Provincial publicity bureaus.

FYLER FATALLY HURT.

Kingston, May 16. — About 6 o'clock last evening an airplane fell near Anderson church in Lennox county, with an instructor and a cadet. Doctors from Napance were rushed to the scene of the accident and rendered first aid, but the instructor Flight Lieutenant Murray, died before reaching the hospital at Deseronto.

BOYS OF NINETEEN FORMALLY CALLED

TORONTO, May 17.— The official proclamation calling upon the youths of 19 to register for military service dates from May 4th. That is, every man resident within Canada, who is a British subject, who had attained his 19th birthday on or before May 4th, and who was unmarried or a widower without children, will be required to register in the military district in which he is regularly resident on or before June 1st, though there is a special guarantee clause assuring all who register in this manner that they will not be asked to report for service before July. In addition to the youths of 19, the official announcement states that all British subjects in Canada born on or since October 13, 1897, and who are unmarried or widowers without children, must also report for service, which simply means that those who have attained the age of 20 since the issuing of the first proclamation on October 13th last, are also asked to be included.

FARMERS WILL STICK ON JOB AT OTTAWA.

Employ Permanent Officials to Keep Tab on Government.

OTTAWA, May 16.—The United Farmers of Ontario have decided to retain at Ottawa permanently certain of their officers, whose duty it will beg to look after the interests of the farmers and keep tab on Government legislation affecting agriculture. It is believed that the farmers of Quebec will also co-operate in the move, which will probably also be taken up by the Western farmers' organization.

CITY OF HALIFAX TO BE VACCINATED.

Stringent Measures Taken to Prevent Smallpox Spread.

HALIFAX, May 16.—The city Health Board yesterday decided to order a general vaccination in the city. This, health officials say, is purely a precautionary measure. The smallpox epidemic appears to be well under control. There are now forty-two cases as compared with seventy-two some weeks ago.

MYSTERY GUNS GO BACK TO THE KRUPP GARAGE.

GENEVA, May 17.—Two of the German long-distance guns, which have been bombarding Paris, have been removed to the Krupp plant for repairs, the Constance Zeitung states. Such huge guns, the newspaper adds, cannot be fired indefinitely without timely repairs.

Greatest Blow Of The Conflict

A Climax to Four Years of Accumulative Effort.

Special to the Examiner:

GLASGOW, May 17.—"As a climax of four years of accumulative efforts upon us, the Germans are about to deliver the greatest blow of the war," General Smuts, former Boer leader, declared to-day in accepting the freedom of the city. "The enemy is determined to split the French and British armies and seize the Channel ports, realizing that if the British army is beaten the war will be over." Smuts won fame by his successful campaign against the German forces in East Africa during the present war.

STREET CAR AND AUTOMOBILE COLLIDE.

Traffic on the George Street car line was tied up for a few minutes this morning by a collision between an automobile from Fulkinghorn's livery and a street car. The street car was coming up George Street, and the automobile, heading east up Simcoe Street, was caught broadside. As both vehicles were going slowly no damage, outside of a bent fender on the street car, was done.

SUPER-WHEAT INVENTED BY LUTHER BURBANK.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., May 16. — A "Super-Wheat" containing 14 per cent. gluten has been evolved by Luther Burbank, the California horticulturist, after experiments extending over 11 years, it was announced here to-day.

The wheat may be grown from Hudson Bay to Patagonia.

The new wheat is said to be of the winter variety, hardy and producing a white flour. It will average a yield of 40 bushels to the acre, Mr. Burbank said.

FINGERLESS OBJECTORS.

They Are Under Observation Now at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, May 17.—Lieut.-Col. Belson, O.C. of the C.O.R. here, stated that a number of cases were under observation of young men who had chopped their trigger fingers off to escape service. Some of the conscientious obectors, he said, were really religious fanatics, but there were others just as yellow as the chaps who had mutilated themselves. The colonel pointed out that the loss of the trigger finger would not save them, as they would be used in construction battalions overseas. He said the real Christians are the men who are fighting the Huns in France and Belgium.

SWISS SEE SUPERIORITY.

Germin Aviators Operating in Alsace and Along the Rhine Have Become Scarcer.

GENEVA, May 16.—Swiss troops stationed along the frontier have noticed during the past three months an increasing superiority of the Allies over the Germans in the air over the territory under Swiss observation. The German aviators operating in Alsace and along the Rhine have become scarcer, while the Allied aviators are circulating freely in those regions. The front further north, it thus appears, is demanding the services of the best of the German aviators.

Deputy Fire Marshall Opens Enquiry, etc.

Bedding said he had seen about a half a bale of hay in the cellar, which Detective Newhall had said was bare when he examined it. Witness recalled that McCoy, a neighbour, had taken the hay for his pigs. When Suddards called on the night after the fire he seemed very much upset.

"Did Suddards take the oil lamp away?" Mr. Lewis asked.

"I'm not sure. I don't think he did. It was blown out and left on the cellar floor when I brought the lantern."

Elmer Fowler, 240 Murray street, employed by Cooney, baggage transfer, said he drove a Ford car truck. "I was at Suddard's two nights before the fire. We went over for a sofa and bureau. We got the lamp at a place on Caddy street. Mr. Suddards carried it over. I think he gave the hay in the cellar to Mr. McCoy. He took the lamp back to the Cady street house when we were leaving. We took the articles to his house opposite the fire hall.

Edwards, the Tenant.

Chas. Edwards the last tenant in the house, said that Suddards had owed him $26 for putting in a cement foundation wall. "I took it out in two months' rent, and he hasn't paid the balance yet. He wanted the rent in money. We moved out on Wednesday morning and that night I took him his key and left my bill for the balance of the cement work."

Witness denied that he had had any hay in the cellar. It wasn't there when he moved out. He swept up the shed and left the rubbish in a corner. Witness denied that he had left his new home at Downer's Corners on the night of the fire. The first he heard of it was from a milkman on the morning after.

"Did you know that Suddards blamed you for it?"

"I read in the paper that he did."

"Didn't you threaten to burn the place?"

"No, I didn't say anything and I never got mad at him."

Mr. M. Carton stated that Suddards had bought the house from him for $1,096.76 and had paid $476.30, the interest, taxes and insurance. There remained unpaid $620.46. Mr. Carton said he had forty pieces of property in the city.

"Suddards was a splendid man to sell a house to. He kept it paid up well, paid the insurance and improved the property."

"At the expense of another man," said Mr. Lewis.

Mr. Carton said that on the day before the fire Suddards had told him that Edwards had not paid up his rent. He added that he was going to move back to the house and live in it himself.

Edwards, having been recalled, said that he had bought one hundred pounds of straw. When he left it was not in the cellar, but in a hen house at the back of the lot. Witness said he was positive on that point.

Walter Suddards.

Walter Suddards, the buyer of the house, said he was about a year behind in his payments to Mr. Carton.

"Has he been pressing you," Mr. Lewis asked.

"He thought I should try to pay a little more, but he was nice about it."

Witness said he had improved the house considerably, putting in a large cellar cement foundation, new fence and other works.

Were you discharged from the fire hall?

No. I left on my own accord to work outside.

Suddards said that Edwards paid the rent for October, November and December.

The concrete foundation was built by Suddards while he lived in the house himself. Edwards and his brothers had helped.

"We had an agreement about it. I didn't owe him anything when he moved out.

Mr. Lewis caught up the witness in his narrative concerning a man named Jack Brown, who was mentioned as a prospective tenant. He was a millwright at the Quaker Oats plant.

"He was only a blind to get Edwards out of the house?" suggested Mr. Lewis.

Suddards said that Brown declined to take the house. Then there was a man from the Matthews factory who was going to take the place.

"I went to the Matthews factory in the afternoon and he told me he was two days gone in another month and had to pay a month's rent. So he couldn't come. I then made up my mind that I would move in."

"And you told Mr. Carton you were going to move in."

"I don't recall seeing him that day. I saw him the day after the fire."

Suddards said he would get the man from Matthews and have him come to the inquiry.

"What did you tell Bedding on the night of the 3rd. Did you say you were going to move in?" Mr. Lewis asked.

Yes. I said I was going to move in."

"You see how you're lying."

Suddards added that he told Bedding he would be back next night, but he was too tired and didn't go.

He went to bed about 10 o'clock on the night of the fire.

"Did you tell Chief Thompson that the fire started in the basement?"

"I told him I thought it did. It looked like that to me."

"Why did you say that?"

"From the fact that the cellar stairs were burned."

"You told Detective Newhall you had trouble with Edwards, and now you say you hadn't. Didn't you tell him that you suspected Edwards of starting the fire?"

"No, sir."

"And then you went to Detective Newhall trying to retract the accusation?"

"I don't remember going back to him."

"Did you tell Detective Newhall you were at that house on the night the fire occurred?"

"No, sir."

"Well how did the fire occur. Didn't you have a "plan" there.

"I wasn't there."

Suddards said that the insurance policy was payable to Mr. Carton. He wasn't sure whether it was $700 or not.

"Edwards says there was straw in the hen house and none in the cellar."

"What do you think was the cause of the fire?"

"I couldn't say."

"Do you think it was set?"

"It didn't strike me that way."

"Didn't you tell Chief Thompson it started in the wood shed and cellar, and that you suspected some one set it?"

"I didn't say I thought some one had started it."

"It looks to me as if you were responsible for that fire," said Mr. Lewis.

"Why did you move out the cupboard on April 3rd when you told Mr. Bedding and Carton you intended to move in?"

"I intended to sell the cupboard to Mrs. Rollo for $1.50, and we were going to burn the couch.

"But the gem jars? You took them home to clean them, although you intended to move in. Does that sound reasonable?

"That was my wife's idea."

"Did your landlord on Aylmer street know that you were going to move?"

"No."

"When was your month up?"

"On the 1st of the month."

"And on the 2nd you hadn't given your notice. Your whole story has not been compatible with truth," said Mr Lewis at the noon recess.

Chief Thompson took Suddards into custody while the story about the Matthews-Blackwell man and the proposed sale of the cupboard to Mrs. Rollo were investigated.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Hens and Garden.

(Guelph Herald.)

The roaming chickens are a menace to increased production, and much as it is desired to see the eggs output developed, it is important that the wandering "biddy" be confined to a limited area or else its scratching days ended forever. Hens that visit the whole neighbourhood and are rarely to be found around their own premises, are the cause of many an estranged neighbourhood. As hens and vegetables don't synchronize, the order to fight Fritz through our back yards is going to be a huge joke if the feathered intruders are not promptly checked in their ramblings.

A Kaiser's Man.

(Hamilton Herald.)

The Hearst papers are under legal ban in Canada. It would seem that they are under a moral ban in the states—else why should G.A.R. veterans at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., gather all the copies of the New York American they could get from the newsstands and solemnly burn them in a public square. His own countrymen are onto Hearst. He is spotted as a Kaiser's man.

Plenty of Free Speech.

(London Free Press.)

Mr Asquith is quite right when he says too many inquiries are made in Parliament touching the conduct of the war. The British Parliament is a regular information bureau for the Germans.

The Coming End.

(Springfield Republican.)

Does the Kaiser remember the anecdote of Napoleon? "The British seldom win battles," said a visitor. "But they always win the last one," answered Napoleon.

Cheap Smokes.

(London Advertiser.)

A western editor brings it to the attention of all young men who object to paying the present high prices for smokes that these can be obtained much more cheaply at army canteens provided the purchaser is in khaki. That's an incentive that may bring results.

Not Pleasant.

(Toronto Globe.)

The United States newspapers were exercised, very naturally, over the War Office telegram to Ottawa asserting that American troops were not immediately needed. It is not pleasant to be compelled to assure them the message was a piece of War Office stupidity or intrigue.

The Way of Democracies.

(New York Tribune.)

After all, we—Britain, France and America —are democracies. We have to go before the public and to the people from time to time to explain things that it would be pleasanter to avoid explaining. It is an inherent weakness in democracies in times of war, but it is no less an element of strength in times of peace and a guarantee of safety at all times. It is one of the prices we pay for our form of government and we have to pay it.

France's Way.

(Buffalo Courier.)

France gives spies a fair and open trial, but if they are found guilty she lets no sentiment as to sex or other reason stand in the way of a swift and stern punishment.

Commends the Farmers.

(London Advertiser.)

Warm commendation is due the farmers of Canada for the way in which they have taken the rebuff administered by Premier Borden. They have proved their patriotism by deciding to return to their homes and to get as much out of their land as possible in spite of the handicap imposed. Farmers and soldiers have much in common; among other things both have seen pledges given them by the Government broken.

SAVE MONEY ON BLUE BOOKS.

House Debates Will Soon Be Printed on Cheaper Paper.

OTTAWA, May 17.—The joint committee of both Houses on printing, adopted a recommendation of the editorial committee, transmitted through Sir George Foster, to reduce the weight of paper used for blue books, official debates, and parliamentary documents, generally from 60 pounds to the realm, to 50 pounds. The effect will be a saving of $28,000 per annum.

OF "THE KAISER THE BEAST OF BERLIN"

"Remarkable—daringly startling—more powerful than strongest of recruiting speeches. The great world melodrama adapted for the screen."—New York Evening Sun.

Thrills with patriotic fervor, and manhandles the German Emperor in fashion that satisfies—the mightiest detestation of the Hohenzollern monster. Unusual frankness of title typical of the work itself. Entire company an excellent one. Grips the heartstrings irresistibly."—New York Globe.

"A vivid picture of the personal life of the German ruler. German atrocities of the war, the inhuman treatment of the Belgians."—New York Evening World.

"Well acted and handled in a highly effective manner. His Imperial Majesty meets a just fate. Startling incidents in his private life." — New York Evening Mail.

'PHONE EMPLOYEES JOIN WINNIPEG STRIKERS

800 Girl Operators in Government Department Walk Out in Sympathy

Soldiers Are Kept in Barracks Ready for Any Trouble.

WINNIPEG, May 17.—Employes of the Manitoba Government telephones went on strike beginning at civic strikes. Eight hundred girls went out, and the city's communications are tied up. The sympathetic strike is called as a protest against what the telephone workers term the "unreasonable and unfair attitude adopted by the City Council towards the city's employes."

Mayor Davidson issued a statement asking the citizens to watch fire alarm boxes to prevent the strikers turning in false alarms. The city has placed watchmen beside every box. All the soldiers in Winnipeg are confined to barracks until further order, and on no excuse whatever is any man allowed out. Officers must leave instructions saying where they may be instantly found after leaving barracks, it was announced.

Many Seek Positions.

These orders were issued by Major-Gen John Hughes, general officer commanding this military district, and has been made so that soldiers may assist the depleted fire department in case of serious conflagration, and incidentally, to preserve order in case of any strike disorder Scores of men are now applying for permanent positions on the fire department. Seventy-seven men are now in charge of equipment, and fifty others, the chief expects, will be taken on to-morrow. Two hundred and fifty are required.

Alderman F. O. Fowler, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, states that fifteen fire halls will be manned sufficiently by loyal firemen and civilians by night to protect the city. Regular men are located at down-town halls.

Want Conciliation Board

Events connected with the civic strike situation moved rapidly last night and opened a way for the appointment of a conciliation board to deal with dispute.

The controllers on the advice of Corporation Counsel Hunt, asked four labor unions if they, in conjunction with this city, are willing to apply for a concilliation board, as suggested by the Minister of Labor.

The city's letters will be considered by union executives this morning.

Descended Pole After A Shock From 2,400 Volts

William J. Hillman, 47 Dennistoun Avenue, employed in electrical construction work with the Quaker Oats Company, hung helpless on the top of a pole north of Murray Street, at the north end of the company's property, this afternoon, shocked by a current of 2,400 volts.

Wm. A. Ahearn and other men working on the ground near-by, noticed Hillman's body sprawled across the top arms of the pole, and shouted to the foreman, who quickly called the London Street power house to shut off the power. When the wires were dead, Hillman regained control of himself as if he had been loosed from some powerful force, and managed to descend. He was cared for by the men who had hurried to help him. In a few moments Chief Grange with the city's pulmotor and Dr. McNulty, arrived, having been immediately called. Despite the 2,400 volts which, it was stated, had poured through him, Hillman escaped with a burn on the hand. Dr. McNulty advised that he be taken to the Nicholls Hospital, but Hillman maintained that it was unnecessary.

He was unable to account for the accident, which occurred about 3 o'clock.

Amendment Ruled Out Of Order

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, May 18. —Returned soldiers and ladies will not be specially represented on the Civil Service Commission. This was made plain when the third reading of the Civil Service Bill was brought up in the House of Commons.

Colonel Currie brought an amendment along these lines but it was ruled out of order. Premier Borden said that if further representation on the Commission was found necessary it would be arranged for later.

236,490 LBS. FOOD WASTED.

Ottawa, May 16.—The results of the Food Controller's investigation of reports that 236,490 pounds of food were destroyed in Toronto between April 4 and April 29 last, are contained in a return tabled in the Commons to-day in response to a motion by Edmond Proulx of Prescott. The investigation indicated that the loss had been due chiefly to freezing of foodstuffs during shipment.

Eleven thousand pounds of onions were frozen en route from New York and a quantity of apples from Nova Scotia arrived in Toronto unfit for consumption.

The warehouses in Toronto are now being regularly inspected and steps are taken by the inspectors to place on the market any food in danger of being wasted. At present the Food Board is placing on the market 800 barrels of apples in storage in Toronto.

Women! Here Is A Dandy Thing

Your high heels have put corns on your toes and calluses on the bottom of your feet, but why care now?

This tiny bottle holds an almost magic fluid. A genius in Cincinnati discovered this ether compound and named it freezone. Small bottles of freezone can be had at any drug store for a few cents. Apply a few drops on your tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you can lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! You get rid of a hard corn, soft corn or a corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses, without suffering one particle. Millions of women keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let corns ache twice.

GRAIN MARKET

Winnipeg market yesterday evidently acted upon the strength of reports from all parts of the Province of Manitoba, that severe frosts had caused a tremendous amount of damage to the growing crops. In the option market C.W. oats immediately took a strong upward movement, May closing 2c. above Thursday's close, and July 1 1-4c. up. Cash quotations, C. W.'s at Fort William advanced 2 1-4c. on No. 2 and 2c. on all the lower grades. But while Winnipeg was going up Chicago oats went down, with continued reports of perfect growing weather over all the grain-growing area south of the line. Reports from the Albert Province received yesterday also tell of beneficial rains, and in some places a good covering of snow protecting the growing crops. All the fun, however, seems to be confined to the options markets, for, locally, at least, there is still nothing doing in the cash grain business.

CATTLE MARKET

Strong markets for all grades of cattle continued all through the week, and previous high records were again passed. The most notable of these was the fancy Durham heifer shipped in by Henry Wade of Pickering, and sold by C. Zeagman, jr., at $18. It was pretty generally agreed that this baby heifer was the best specimen of careful finish and feeding perhaps ever seen in this or any other market except at prize shows. Other high records made during the week were for straight loads of choice butcher steers, selling up to $16, the highest price yet paid for straight loads. Besides these special sales the general run of the week's markets was a steady and strong demand for everything offering in the butcher cattle line, and for good stockers and feeders. Prices for the latter have now reached unprecedented heights, and the steady demand even at these high levels is a pretty good indication of opinion as to the continuance of high markets for some time to come.

Calves generally hold steady to strong for anything of quality.

Sheep and lambs continue very strong, but with extremely highest offerings.

Hogs ruled strong up till the closing market when there were signs of weakening, and packers were quoting prices on a 25c. to 50c. lower basis, except for hogs already contracted for at the former price of $21 fed and watered.

THINNING.

In some parts of Canada the very early vegetables may now have reached the stage where it is necessary to thin them. This, too, is one of the ticklish problems that confronts the beginner. No gardener is able to get good results unless he does some judicious thinning. Although there are some general rules to the distances at which plants should be left in the row, yet definite rules need not bother the amateur so long as he does a reasonable amount of thinning. Every housekeeper does not know that the tenderest and most delicious vegetables she can have for early pickling are the young vegetables thinned out, and often—through ignorance—thrown away.

Beets should be thinned until they are from four to six inches apart in the row. It is profitable to thin them out gradually. Lettuce should be four inches apart, onions three inches, peas three inches, and carrots and parsnips, from four to six inches.

270 GERMAN COUNTS KILLED IN ACTION

Von Arnim Family Has Lost Twenty-one of Its Members.

AMSTERDAM, May 17.— The gaps torn in the ranks of the German nobility by the war are emphasized in the current issue of the German Adelsblatt, a periodical devoted to genealogical research. It enumerates among the killed 270 counts, of whom seven belonged to the House of Dohna, and seven others to the House of Finck Von Finckenstein, and 633 barons, of whom thirteen were of the House of Wangenheim.

In addition to the foregoing, the Old Nobility, as it is known, has lost 43 members, while what is classed as the later nobility has suffered 836 losses, the largest being those of the family of Stonwedel, 22 members, and Von Arnim 21.

The Dominion republic has legally adopted the metric system of weights and measures.

WINTER KILLING OF FALL WHEAT PARTICULARLY SEVERE

Large Amount of Wheat Winter-killed Since 1909—Hay and Clover Meadows—Progress of Spring Seeding

CONDITIONS IN THE WEST

OTTAWA, May 18.—The Census and Statistics Office has issued the following report on the area and condition of fall wheat, the condition of hay and clover meadows and the progress of spring seeding, as compiled from the reports of crop correspondents at the end of April.

Winter Killing and Condition of Fall Wheat.

The winter killing of fall wheat in Ontario is reported as especially severe. It is estimated to amount to 56 p.c. which reduces the acreage under this crop in Ontario from 630,200 acres as sown last fall to 277,200 acres, the area to be harvested. This is the largest proportion of fall wheat winter-killed in Ontario and the lowest acreage left for harvesting since the records were begun in 1909. In Alberta the precentage winter-killed is estimated at 10 p.c. In Alberta the percentage winter-killed is estimatd at 10 p.c., thus reducing to 55,260 acres the area of 61,400 acres sown last fall. For the whole of Canada the area sown, viz., 711,000 acres is reduced by 51 p.c. to 348,670 acres. The condition of fall wheat on April 30 is also the lowest on record, viz., 52 p.c. of the standard for Ontario and 50 p.c. for all the fall wheat provinces. Converted into a standard of 100 as representing the average condition on April 30 for the nine years 1909 to 1917, the condition of fall wheat for Canada on April 30, 1918, indicates a yield per acre of 77 per cent. or 29 p.c. below the average of the past nine years.

Hay and Clover Meadows.

About 11 p.c. of the area under hay and clover is reported as winter-killed as compared with 9 p.c. last year. The condition in percentage of the standard representing a full crop is 84 for all Canada as compared with 86 last year. For the provinces the percentages are as follows: Maritime provinces 92-96; Quebec 86; Ontario, 78; Manitoba, 70; Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia 90-93.

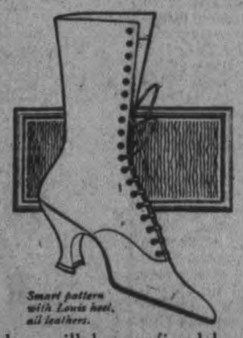
Progress of Spring Seeding.

With an early spring, excellent progress has been made with seeding. For spring wheat in Manitoba 94, in Saskatchewan 85, and in Alberta 92 per cent. of seeding was estimated to be completed by the end of April. These proportions are higher than in any recent year, excepting 1915, and compare most favourably with last year, when for the prairie provinces the proportions only ranged from 5 to 27 p.c. For the six provinces to which the report applies, viz., Quebec, Ontario, the prairie provinces and British Columbia, the proportion of spring wheat seeded by April 30 is 66 p.c. as compared with 13 p.c. last year, 27 p.c. in 1916 and 94 p.c. in 1915. Good progress has also been made with the seeding of oats and barley the proportion for the six provinces being for oats 24 p.c. as against 12 p.c. in 1917 and 8 p.c. in 1916, and for barley 20 p.c. as compared with 9 and 3 p.c. in 1917 and 1916. The following telegram from the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture was received to-day (May 14): "Wheat seeding is completed; 40 p.c. of oats seeding done. No lack of moisture except in parts of west central district. Ten to fifteen p.c. increase in spring ploughing. High winds but no damage to crop."

Fashion Authorizes

The Tailor-made Shoe for Women

DAME Fashion has decreed that the proper shoes this year are to be conservative in both patterns and colors. The fashionable leathers will be kid and calf—and black finished footwear will be worn more extensively than heretofore.



Smart pattern with Louis heel, all leathers.

Colors will be confined largely to white, gray and brown. Not only in Canada but in all fashion centres these will be the accepted colors.

It may be said further that Dame Fashion has for once not had undisputed sway in her decrees, because in the United States the Government called upon the manufacturers of shoes in that country to co-operate in the conservation of material, labor and money by the standardization of shoe styles as far as possible.

This does not mean that this year's shoes are less smart or attractive, because, as a matter of fact, they are not. They are simply without the former extremes in pattern and variety of color combination.

As a matter of fact, the new designs really have advantages in comfort and economy over the more exaggerated styles of former seasons — because, as they are on the whole somewhat plainer and sturdier, they are more substantial and will give longer wear.

Standard Last Pattern—Cuban heel—all leathers.

In their capacity as shoemakers to the Canadian Nation, Ames Holden McCready are in a position to determine with some authority the movements affecting style changes. We maintain a most important department devoted to studying, analysing and determining shoe fashions. This fact, combined with the great experience we get in making a tremendous number of shoes in more than eight hundred styles, is your assurance that A. H. M. shoes represent the latest and most attractive fashions.

You will find our trademark, "AHM," stamped on the sole of every shoe we make. If you have been in the habit of buying our shoes, you already know that they represent splendid value. But in future—on your next shoes—look for the trademark on the soles

A Request to Call.

pe I may call on you soon
he remarked as we glided the room, "I want to be good with you."
e will be glad to see you," I barrassed.
" he repeated. "I don't want to particularly, if your lord and master is to be at home. He doesn't care much for me. I think he sort of looks down on me. I suppose he thinks I am not intellectual enough."

"Oh, no, I am sure you are mistaken!" I exclaimed flushing. I thought how different Claude Huntington and Merton Gray were, yet I rather liked Claude. He was young, so was I. That meant a great deal to me at that time.

I had it in my mind to tell him that George thought him too rich for his own good—that it took away his ambition to succeed in business. I was very glad, afterward, that I had not done so. I was prevented by Kurts Reeve.

"Aren't you going to dance with me, Helen?" he asked. "We are all jealous of Huntington. He has monopolized you. Your husband looks like a thunder cloud," he said so low that none but I heard.

I turned anxiously toward George. He looked bored and, yes, cross. I laid my hand on Kurts' arm and, as we danced slowly past George, I said:

"Whenever you want to go, George, I am ready. But please dance with Evelyn first. She says you are a perfect dancer, and I know she feels hurt that you haven't asked her."

"You're very clever," Kurts said. "In what way? Do tell me, it will be good news."

"I'll tell you something else: beware of Huntington. He's a gay boy, and he has made more than one man jealous."

Dressing to Please Her Husband.

I expected George to scold me, on the way home, but he didn't. He scarcely spoke. I told him my clothes were ready to be fitted, and asked him if he wanted to drop into the dressmaker's the next morning to see them.

"I won't have time. I am very busy—shall be until we leave for the summer. If you and Madame followed my instructions, your things will be all right," he then, again, relapsed into silence.

During these days before we were to leave home for the summer, I dressed always to please George. As each consignment of clothes came home, I tried them on for him, and obediently lugged them back if he found any fault with them.

I tried in other ways, too, to please him, to win his approval. I consulted with Mary, and we tried to have all the dishes George liked. I had heard the old joke about the way to a man's heart being through his stomach, so often, that I determined to find if George had a road between the two places. So I spent many hours thinking of elaborate menus—often only to have the meal carried away almost untasted. George would telephone he was not coming home, and I could not force myself to eat my solitary dinner.

As the days passed, I couldn't see that all my efforts amounted to anything; yet, I would not give way to discouragement.

"Rome wasn't built in a day!" I would say to myself, and then try harder than ever to win a word or glance of approval. Not that George was often actively unkind. He wasn't! Sometimes I would feel that life would be easier, less complicated, if he were. Often he was carelessly pleasant, or quietly indifferent. But he seldom gave me a loving word or a caress unless I asked for it—not always then.

Tomorrow—Helen is Frightened.

SUFFERED TWO YEARS WITH PIMPLES

Child Could Not Sleep Till Cuticura Healed.

"My little brother suffered for about two years from tiny red pimples. They appeared constantly on his body but he had the greatest trouble under his ears. The skin was red and very sore and at the least touch he would give a howl of pain. After a few seconds he would have to scratch, and he was not able to sleep.

"A friend advised me to send for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I noticed a change, and I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Ointment when he was healed." (Signed) Louis Frank, 746 City Hall Ave., Montreal, Que., February 2, 1918.

TROUBLED WITH CONSTIPATION

From 16 to 20

If the bowels are properly looked after there will be no constipation, jaundice, sick or bilious headaches, heartburn, coated tongue, sour stomach, floating specks before the eyes, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will keep your bowels so regulated that in no time the constipation will disappear entirely.

Miss Emma E. Melanson, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I am now 20 years of age, and since I was 16 I have been greatly troubled with constipation, so much so that at times I would be in bed 3 or 4 days a month. I tried all the old-fashioned remedies, castor oil, cascara, etc., with only temporary relief, until my sister-in-law gave me some of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. From the first they seemed beneficial, and I gave them a fair trial. This was two years ago, and with an occasional dose I have kept entirely free from constipation for the period mentioned."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HAREM SYSTEM OF MOROCCO.

Cruelty and Oppression Almost Beyond Human Imagination.

Remarkable revelations of the extent of the Moorish slave trade and of harem life were made recently by Mme. Legey, a French doctor, who lives at Marrakesh, Morocco. That place is the centre of Morocco slavery and there is a great slave market authorized and controlled by the Makhzen, the Moorish parliament, thousands of men, women and children are bought and sold like cattle. Babies are frequently torn from the arms of sobbing mothers, who never see them again.

"None can form an idea of the Moorish harem and the number of women concealed behind the walls," says Mme Legey. "I have seen a single harem of more than 500 women. Monogamy, in Morocco, is non-existent, even men of small means possessing sometimes more than 20 wives.

"The Sultan's harem surpasses the imagination. Besides the women he possesses at Fez, he has at Marrakesh in reserve more than 3,000 females. The royal harem at Marrakesh has a special organization of its own. Each town and each tribe has its debt to pay in women to this modern Minotaur. The women are classed according to their place of origin. They live in groups in separate pavilions under the control of female wardens. This enormous female population is constantly added to by the contributions from Kaids who have offended the Sultan and wish to propitiate him.

"I can personally testify to the silent misery of the poor creatures who swarm in the Moorish harems and the revoltingly cruel treatment they undergo for the smallest offences. They have absolutely no real protection from the most savage treatment. They have no work to do except in the case of domestic servants, and in accordance with Moorish traditions, receive no education. There lives are one long round of unbroken monotony, wherefrom, to my knowledge, they suffer cruelly. It is the duty of France as soon as possible to abolish slavery in Morocco. Then the harems will be deprived of the supply of women and will disappear gradually, as was the case in Algeria."

Greedy Dogfish.

A story is going the rounds in which four anglers were occupied with one fish, a big mackerel. It took the bait of one of them and then proceeded to entangle the four lines, so that it seemed there were four fish. I dare say it came in for some hard sayings when the truth was made manifest. But it is not uncommon for fish to take two different baits. I have known it to happen with both perch and pike. Dogfish, of course, will often do it. In fact, I doubt if there is a limit to the number of baits a dogfish would take if you only gave him the baits and the time and the opportunity.—London Telegraph.

A Rapid Heart Beat.

Along with many other discoveries of greater or less importance scientific men have proved the law that the rapidity of the heart beat is in inverse ratio to an animal's size. Thus in a man it is about seventy-two to the minute, whereas in the elephant it is only thirty, and in the horse forty. The dog's pulse, on the other hand, counts about ninety beats to the minute, and the rabbit's over 150. Most remarkable of all, the heart pulsations of a mouse have recently been counted and recorded by an ingenious machine and found to number nearly 700 every minute.

How Can You Explain A Corn?

Fully half the people one meets nowadays never suffer corn aches.

How can you explain a trouble so easily avoided?

A corn means this:

You are treating it by paring, just to get brief relief. Or you coddle it by padding. Or you use some old-time, inefficient method of removal.

The proper way to deal with corns is this:

Apply a Blue-jay plaster, then forget the corn. It will never pain again.

In two days, usually, the whole corn disappears. If it doesn't, just apply another plaster.

No corn pains twice with people who use Blue-jay. And no corn stays.

That is how millions keep free from corns. Let it keep you free. See how it acts tonight.

B&B Blue-jay For Corns

Stops Pain Instantly—Ends Corns Completely

Large Package 25c at Druggists
Small Package Discontinued

How Blue-jay Acts

A is a thin, soft pad which stops the pain by relieving the pressure.
B is the B&B wax, which gently undermines the corn. Usually it takes only 48 hours to end the corn completely.
C is rubber adhesive which sticks without wetting. It wraps around the toe and makes the plaster snug and comfortable.
Blue-jay is applied in a jiffy. After that, one doesn't feel the corn. The action is gentle, and applied to the corn alone. So the corn disappears without soreness.

A CURIOUS COURT

It Is Held Annually When France Pays Tribute to Spain.

PRICE OF AN ANCIENT PEACE.

After More Than Five Centuries Three Calves Are Still Humbly Presented Each Year to the Haughty Descendants of the Victorious Spaniards.

Every year there takes place in the Pyrenean highlands a remarkable fete. It is held at the boundary stone of San Martin, which separates the French valley Bareton from the Spanish valley of Roncal. Every year the representatives of the French peasants assemble there in order to pay the Spaniards a tribute, which consists of three calves of the same age and the same color, and the delivery of the calves is accompanied by ceremonies which sufficiently indicate that the old inhabitants of the Roncal valley were once victorious over their neighbors.

At 9 o'clock in the morning the mayors of the various villages in the Bareton valley, bravely adorned with their blue, white and red scarfs of office, march up to the boundary stone. In front of the column walks a lad, with a pike, from the point of which flutters a little white pennon as a gage of peace. The three calves, tare dragged in the rear of the procession at the end of long ropes. Calves and scarfs take up their position by the stone and await the arrival of the Spaniards.

They are soon visible in the distance. In front walks a man clad in sheepskins, who waves a red pennon at the end of a pike as a sign of war. Behind him walks the alcalde of Isaba, the principal village in the valley of Roncal, and following him come the alcaldes of the other villages, their staffs of office in their hands. The bulk of the procession consists of shepherds, stern looking fellows armed with old sabers and matchlocks.

The alcalde of Isaba is all glorious to behold in a long black garment fastened by gold buttons, a tall white ruff, tight fitting knee breeches, red silk stockings and buckled shoes. A sombrero covers his head, and in his hands he holds the staff adorned with silver knobs, the emblem in Spain of magisterial dignity.

As soon as the Spaniards reach the rendezvous the alcalde of Isaba steps to the front and addresses them in solemn ceremonial style:

"Are you come to pay tribute and swear friendship according to old custom and tradition?"

"That is the reason of our coming," answer the French.

Then the two standard bearers approach the boundary stone and lay their pikes crosswise upon it. After a few moments the Spaniard takes his up again, sticks it into French soil and then places it as before on the stone. On the cross formed by the two shafts the representatives of the two valleys swear to keep the peace with loyal mind.

Then follows the delivery of the three calves to the Spaniards. They are examined by a veterinary surgeon and accepted, after which all present take up their stations under a shady oak, and, following the example of the good St. Louis of France and Alfonso the Wise of Spain, the alcalde of Isaba enthrones himself among the guarled roots of the oak and proceeds to act as a magistrate.

Shepherds and neatherds pass before him and prefer their international complaints. The judge listens to both sides, bids them bring forward their witnesses and delivers judgment without delay, inflicting a fine on one, awarding compensation to another, punishing one and affording satisfaction to his victim.

After all the quarrels are settled the alcalde undertakes the appointment of the pasture guardians for both valleys, so that he enjoys even greater authority in the township of Bareton than the president of the republic himself.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Conquered Dyspepsia and Restored His Health.

MR. ROBERT NEWTON.

Little Bras d'Or, C.B.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation for years. I had pain after eating, belching of gas, constant headaches, and did not sleep well at night. I lost so much weight — going from 180 pounds to 136 pounds — that I became alarmed and saw several doctors, who, however, did me no good. Finally, a friend told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'.

In a week, there was improvement. The constipation was corrected; and soon I was free of pain, headaches and that miserable feeling that accompanies Dyspepsia. I continued to take this splendid fruit medicine and now I am well, strong and vigorous". ROBERT NEWTON.

many, they all betake themselves to Spanish soil, where a Homeric feast is set out, and till late in the night the banquet goes on, the descendants of the old warlike mountain peoples drinking together in brotherly unity in commemoration of the conclusion of the peace of 1375 and the installation of the above ceremonies.

About 300 years after this treaty had been made the French began to refuse to pay the tribute, but after some negotiations they consented to continue it in more modern times they tried to get the tribute commuted to a sum of money, but the Spaniards declined, but agreed to forego the firing of guns in the direction of France as being a wound to French amour propre.—London Spectator.

Chaplains for French Navy.

It will be news to most persons that the French navy has no chaplains afloat, although a moment's consideration would bring to remembrance the fact of the complete divorce between church and state in France. The subject is brought prominently into notice by a petition signed by a great number of the mothers or widows of the sailors who were victims of the accident on the Gloire or the Liberte. The petitioners are to be found in the Midi, Brittany, Var and Finistrre, and they pray the Senate for the reappointment of chaplains on warships.—London Globe.

She Understood.

A young man who had a strong liking for poetry, but a rather mediocre talent for writing it, deluded himself into the belief that the world was determined to keep him down. He continued writing for years, confident that he would win fame in the end. Once in conversation with a clever girl he started in on his pet theme.

"Like the rest of the world," he said, "you don't understand me. But I can afford to laugh at present neglect, for I'm writing for posterity."

"Oh, I understand you now," replied the girl. "So that's the reason your poems are not published during your lifetime!"

All Over!

Billy and his mother had been to the movies one afternoon to see "Jack, the Giant Killer." During supper a discussion arose between his two older brothers as to whether they should go or not. Billy listened awhile and then spoke up: "There ain't no use you boys talking 'bout goin' to that show tonight. Jack killed the giant this afternoon."

"Wool" From Cork.

The department of overseas trade has been informed through a reliable channel that a Spanish firm is manufacturing "wool" from cork, which, it is claimed, may with advantage be substituted for natural wool in the manufacture of mattresses, pillows, quilts, etc. This material is stated to be cleaner and lighter than wool.

Bond Mere Matter of Form.

The secretary of the treasury is not required to give a bond, but the treasurer of the United States, a subordinate office of the department, is required to do so because he is the custodian of public funds. The treasurer is required to give a bond of $150,000, which is insignificant compared with the sums he handles.

Gone, and Forgotten.

"And this tumbled-down cottage?" "Was the home of a poet. He's dead now." "The path to the door is overgrown with weeds." "Yes. It has been some years since the postman quit delivering returned manuscripts at the poet's door."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

AN OUTLAWED CANINE.

Timid by Day, Coyote Can Fight Well When Cornered.

Skulking along the hillside or sneaking through the canyon, the coyote is a lonely, rather pitiful figure in the light of day, hated and humiliated, despised and despoiled, hunted and shotat, with a price upon his head, an outlaw without redress. But when the darkness of night has settled over the land, then does he gather courage as he prowls along the trails or through the brush. Taking his station on a hilltop, he yelps and howls defiance at the ranchman's answering dogs, at the ranchman himself and his men, and all whom in the light of day he has so feared, but whom he now challenges and mocks in the safety of the dark night hills. So vociferous, so multifarious, so penetrating is his clamor that the listener is apt to believe that there is a dozen or more of him voicing his independence, his contempt and his resentment, instead of one lone, solitary animal who but a few hours before feared to raise his voice above a whisper.

The coyote is a species of wolf, evidently a link between the wolf and the dog. He has the cunning of the wolf, the intelligence of the dog, and in spite of his reputation of a coward, he has the courage to put up a good fight when cornered. He is exceedingly fleet of foot and seems to realize and appreciate the fact. On it he depends for safety, pursued by dogs, knowing his superior pedal advantages, he seems to take pleasure in tolling them on. He will lead them a merry chase through the brush and over the hills, and when weary—or likely long before— will stop in some spot where the view of the chase is good, and wait and watch his pursuers with a smile of contempt and derision on his face. The time comes for some of his pack, however, when the dogs get him at a disadvantage, but thus cornered he will make a gallant fight with teeth and claws, and some, if not all, of the dogs will learn that they have no mean adversary to contend with.

At one time, some years ago, the coyote was hunted by horsemen and hounds, as the fox is hunted in other places. Packs of fine greyhounds were kept for that purpose, though foxhounds were also used. In recent years the cutting up of a great deal of territory into small ranches, and the building of towns and villages has put an end to organized coyote hunts with horses. Near the towns the coyote stays well back in the hills during the daytime and only descends into the valleys when darkness has obscured the land and he may in its friendly shelter enter the precincts of man unnoticed. Then is he stealthy, making no noise, for he realizes his danger, and knows that if he would be safe he must be quiet.

A Storm From Above the Clouds.

The view of a stormcloud from above is one of the most interesting sights ever beheld by mortal man. A storm viewed from above the clouds has the appearance of ebullition. The upper surface of the cloud is bulged upward and outward and has the resemblance of a vast sea of boiling, upheaving snow. Immediately above the stormcloud the air is not so cold as it is in the clearer atmosphere above or in the cloud itself. The falling of the rain can be distinctly heard, making a noise like a waterfall over a precipice. The thunder heard above a stormcloud is not loud, and the flashes of lightning appear like streaks of intensely white light on the gray colored mass.

Pandora Range Reservoir is and does—

One thing a hot water reservoir should do—heat water. And one thing it should be—easy to clean.

The Pandora flue system does the one—heats the water by carrying a continuous steady volume of heat to and along the length and depth of the reservoir.

The Pandora reservoir is easy to clean because it is seamless porcelain—enamelled white, with round ends. It can be lifted out with ease and washed as readily as a vegetable dish.

Different from the old-time, dark, built-in metal "tank" that had to be emptied with a dipper and cleaned by guess.

But the reservoir of the Pandora Range is modern, convenient, sanitary and good to look at, just like the Pandora is in every other way.

General Sir Henry Wilson Has Unrivalled Knowledge Of Western Battle Line

SIR HENRY WILSON, K.C.B., D.S.O., who has been appointed Britain's military representative on the military secretariate which will advise the superior war council on strategy, has at length achieved a position commensuate with the expectation of his friends. He is but little known to the public. In fact, it is probable the average newspaper reader first learned of his existence from communiques which announced his presence in Italy with the representatives of France and Britain who met Italian statesmen and soldiers in the momentous conference at Rapallo. Then the public perhaps laboriously came to the conclusion that he was there in the capacity of liasion officer between the French and British armies, a post which he had only lately relinquished. But soldiers knew that he was there on his merits as a soldier and rumors quickly followed of his pending appointment to a very high position indeed.

In military circles it is regarded as surprising that so little has been heard of Sir Henry Wilson in view of his striking abilities and of his now sudden elevation to a supreme position. He has an unrivaled knowledge of the Western front, for he always forecasted that German militarists meant to make that sudden rush on the west which startled the world in 1914, and therefore he took special pains to study it. He cycled or walked every mile of it repeatedly every year, it is said, and not seldom got into trouble with the French authorities, from which his Irish charm and wit always extricated him. He it was who, with Viscount French, carried on the "conversations" with the French general staff which are recorded in the white papers dealing with the origins of the war and during which the various possibilities of a war with Germany were surveyed. During the great and terrible retreat from Mons, when the Old Contemptibles gathered the spears of the Prussian legions into their breast and in perishing saved Europe, Sir Henry Wilson proved himself a tower of strength. His unique capacity for divining the enemy's intentions, his coolness and resource in keeping the broken British regiments together, his ingenuity in devising plans, his unfailing sense of proportion, his cheerfulness and confidence when the night was darkest, when utter disaster was reckoned by great soldiers to be a certainty and British statesmen were told to expect the worst, enabled him as Viscount French's deputy chief of staff to render services to his country whose value cannot be measured. That is the verdict of his friends and of those who know his work in these tremendous days. He was certainly rewarded for his services with the command of an army corps, but it was not its fortune to take part in the main fighting which subsequently followed.

Early in 1915 he went to French headquarters as chief liaison officer, where he certainly won the complete confidence of his French colleagues from Marshal Joffre downward, and no doubt contributed in large measure to that mutual good-will and understanding which has characterized British and French co-operation in all theatres of war. At the close of last year he went with Gen. de Castelnau to Russia, but the fruits of this mission were not fully reaped owing to the revolution. From there he returned to his liaison work, was promoted to the backwaters of the eastern command in Great Britain as commander-in-chief. By this time, however, Mr. Lloyd George, who had frequently consulted him, had formed a very high opinion of his capabilities and his presence in London at the critical moment in the Italian disaster led directly to his present appointment.

To complete the record the various stages of his career may be mentioned here. Sir Henry is an Irishman whose Irish spirit has given him, like all big men, his share of enemies, just as his charm of manner and other personal characteristics have gathered to him devoted friends. His military career began with a lieutenancy in the rifle brigade and he saw fighting and was wounded in the Burmese campaign two years later, 1886-8. His ability marked him out for staff work and in 1894 he graduated with honors from the staff college. A further short spell of regimental work followed by a staff captaincy at the War Office from June, 1895, to September, 1897. He went out to the Boer war as brigadier-major of the light brigade in Gen. Sir Redvers Buller's corps and immediately marked himself out by his work as a man with a future. It is said that his work was in no small degree responsible for the raising of the siege of Ladysmith. Lord Roberts, at any rate, took note of him, appointed him D.A.A.G. on his staff, and he rendered important services both with him and with Kitchener. He helped Lord Roberts to wind up the business of the South African war at the War Office, and among subsequent appointments he held was that of commander of the Staff College at Camberley till July, 1910.

From there he returned to the War Office as director of military operations, and was invaluable to Lord Haldane in organizing the expeditionary force. While at Camberley, like Sir William Robertson, he did not go in for orthodoxy, but developed and taught a definite theory of war of his own. Of the continental system he was a complete master. These appointments paved the way to the position he held at the outbreak of the present war.

It will be seen that Sir Henry Wilson has had varied experience to reinforce his undoubted qualities of intellect, in the high position now given him. The exact scope of his duties has not yet been specifically defined, nor has his relation to the Imperial General Staff. This much may be said. For the first time, if Mr. Lloyd George has his way, there is to be real unity in the direction of the war. The supreme war council of allied statesmen will in future regard the allied front as one, as though there were no British or French or Italian troops engaged, but only one allied army, operating on a single front. The points of defensive action and all other military operations will be determined from the standpoint of defeating the enemy as quickly as possible, without reference to the particular aims or desires of any member of the alliance.

NEW SYSTEM OF WRITING.

"Print" Method Adopted In Some of the London Schools.

Several London schools have introduced a new system of writing known as "manuscript," or "print" writing, which replaces the former vertical or Spencerian systems. In the new system the children imitate the form of printed characters, and it is claimed that the task of learning to write legibly is greatly shortened and simplified by the leaving out of the unnecessary connecting upstrokes.

The new system was first introduced in military establishments for convalescent soldiers, originating in the desire to find a method of writing which could be learned quickly by soldiers who had lost the use of the right hand. Its advocates claim that the "print" writing is easy to learn, neat, legible and speedy, and that it removes the great disadvantage of two kinds of letters with which the child has to contend in learning to read and to write.

In a pamphlet issued by the Child Study Society of London, Dr. L. C. Kimmins, chief inspector of the London Education Department, calls the new system "the writing of the future."

The English Language.

The war is spreading the English language throughout the world. If there were any people who did not formerly realize the importance of acquiring some knowledge of it sufficing for trade relations, where are they now to be found? It has succeeded Latin as the language of scholars, has succeeded French as the language of courts. It is the language of the expanding race which is inheriting the earth, the language which primitive and backward people everywhere find it promotive of their welfare to learn. On all the coast line of the world pidgin English brings the commingling races and tribes into touch. Who ever heard of pidgin German? There is no such thing. Natives do not take naturally to that language as they everywhere do to English. They have little need to learn it and no desire to do so, largely for the reason that the people who use it, the Germans they contact, are arrogant in their dealings, brutal taskmasters and insufferably odious to them. The time is evidently approaching when men, wherever they may be, who find it needful or desirable to acquire a language in addition to their birth tongue will choose the English language.

Better Than the "Verses."

Children, as a rule, have a natural sense of courtesy too often misunderstood or depreciated by the unthinking adult. For some strange and incomprehensible reason the child who is brusque and blunt is apt to be dubbed "natural," while the budding man or woman of gentle tact and sweet politeness sometimes is discouraged by the prevailing belief that such conduct must be insincere. Yet the simplest "little citizens" not infrequently rise to an unexpected or trying situation with surprising, but quite untutored, gifts and grace. A pretty little tale is told, for instance, of the time when the present Dowager Queen Margherita of Italy was the lovely young bride of the youthful crown prince.

Her majesty, passing through one of the hill towns, was accorded the usual reception by the residents. A little boy was to present the usual bouquet, and he, coming of fine literary family, had been taught a brief poem offering graceful praise of the princess. But when the moment came for delivering flowers and verses the little fellow, overcome by nervousness or some similar emotion, stood mutely gazing at the great lady, saying never a word. After a few moments the sympathetic princess, seeking to relieve the situation, extended her hand for the flowers.

The little fellow, waking to life suddenly, yielded them gracefully, explaining confidentially the while:

"There were verses to be said, but you are so beautiful that I can't remember a line!"

GOT WET FEET TOOK AWFUL COLD

COULD NOT SLEEP FOR COUGH

A bad cold accompanied by a distressing cough that keeps you awake at night is most aggravating, and unless it is attended to at once may develop into something very serious.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you should take. It heals the mucous surfaces, relieves oppression and tightness of the chest, removes the accumulation of phlegm, quiets the most obstinate and distressing coughs, and secures rest and sleep at night, not only to the sufferer, but to others whose rest would be otherwise broken.

Mrs. Ezekiel Acker, Lake Pleasant, N.S., writes: "I got wet feet and took an awful cold; could not sleep at night, and would do nothing but cough. My husband got me a bottle of medicine, but it was not worth bringing home. I was going to call the doctor in when a friend asked me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told her I had little faith in it, but she urged me to get a bottle. I did, and I must say that of all the medicine I ever took, it is the best, and relieved me the quickest of anything I ever saw."

"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Paint That Costs The Least

is the Paint that covers the greatest surface—that takes the shortest time to apply—that wears the longest. Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint does all three. Here's the proof. "100% Pure" Paint covers 900 square feet of surface per gallon.

Hand-mixed-lead-and-oil, and cheap prepared paints, cover only about 500 square feet.

The greatest cost of painting is for labor. It takes less time to apply Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint because its fine, even texture spreads much easier.

MARTIN-SENOUR

"100% PURE" PAINT

(Made in Canada)

is guaranteed to be exactly as represented. The purity of the White Lead and Zinc Oxide—the high quality of the Linseed Oil—the minute fineness of the grinding by powerful machinery—insure a paint that gives years of protection and beauty to your home.

Why use cheap paint—that is expensive to put on—when Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint wears nearly twice as long?

CAMPBELL & BEST

A HINDU IDOL.

Its Strange History Caused Mme. Carnot to Order It Destroyed.

When Mme. Carnot, widow of Sadi Carnot, died and her will was read a clause in it caused considerable comment. This was to the effect that a certain small Hindu idol carved from a hard stone which would be found among her property must be taken out and crushed until completely destroyed. Many marveled at this apparently singular request, for the idol seemed a harmless, ugly little thing, but her instructions were carried out to the letter.

The idol had been presented to Sadi Carnot years before he had ever thought of the presidency of France by a friend who had brought it from India. Later he learned that there was a legend attached to it which asserted that whosoever would retain it in his possession would rise to the fullest height of power in his chosen profession, but die of a stab wound when at the zenith of his career.

M. Carnot traced the history of the idol and found that for 500 years the rulers who had possessed it had all died either in battle or by assassination from stab wounds. Yet he laughed at the story, called the facts adduced by his search a mere chain of coincidences and retained the idol. He died by a dagger in the hands of an assassin; hence Mme. Carnot's strange request.

A Good Stove Lining.

A good stove lining, one that will last two years or more, can be made from blue clay. Brick clay or one that does not contain much sand, is good also. Clay found in salt water marshes is one of the best for stove linings. The clay must be reduced to a paste about like putty. The bed for lining should be brushed clean and moistened before the clay is applied. Put on with hands, smooth with a trowel or thin piece of board.—National Magazine.

RUSSIANS FIGHT IN PICARDY

Loyal Troops Inflict Casualties—Recapture French Village.

PARIS, May 17.—Some of the old fighting ardor of the Russians, which characterized the early days in the Caucasus and Carpathians, re-appeared this week on the western front, where a regiment of loyal Russians delivered a heavy attack against the Germans and re-captured a village which had been lost to the enemy. A regiment wearing uniforms of the Russian army and led by its own officers participated in some of the hardest fighting in Picardy. In its last encounter it lost 180 men as against several hundred losses inflicted on the enemy. A French army citation speaks in the highest terms of its fine conduct and unusual courage.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Double Wish

By ELIZABETH SCHOEN COBB

"Philopena," rang out a merry chorus, and bright dancing eyes were fixed upon Dale Armstrong and the lovely fairy by his side who was his apportioned companion for the evening, Doctor Wilton's daughter, Idalia.

Dale recognized intuitively that something was expected of him, but he knew not what. Idalia, with a smile and questioning eyes, manifestly propounded an unspoken inquiry. He had never heard the word before and he looked puzzled.

"Have you forgotten," half whispered a young fellow at his side, "or aren't you city-bred people familiar with our old-fashioned games?"

"I'm all at sea," confessed Dale.

"Well, you've just cracked an almond and found two meats in it, haven't you?"

"Why, yes. I notice it now."

"Then you offer one to your lady, and take the other, and while the two of you are eating, both of you wish your dearest wish!"

"Oh, I see," nodded Dale, and quite agreeably, and he was glad of the circumstance that afforded him an opportunity of a closer acquaintance with the young lady whose pretty ways had attracted him.

"And she must give you her hand, and you must look straight into each other's eyes while you wish," joined in pert, but popular Netta Rainey.

Idalia chose to be sedate and Dale looked solemn as they went through the ordeal prescribed, but he could note the flutter in her delicate throat and she felt his hand tremble. Then, his glance falling upon a dark, scowling face opposite, the momentary exultation was lessened as he knew that he had a rival. He saw that Idalia shrank, too.

Page Driscoll, the owner of the sullen face, swaggered up to Idalia and her escort half a dozen times during the evening. Dale detected the taint of liquor on his breath and was tolerantly polite. Idalia was disturbed. Finally Driscoll almost forced his attentions upon her and gained permission to have a waltz with her further on, if she was not too tired out.

Idalia was not a particle tired out. Dale noticed, until it neared the time for fulfillment of her promise to Driscoll. Then she told Dale that she was going home, and very deftly arranged it so that they made their adieus to the hostess and out of the house without attracting general attention.

"I have kept the shell of that almond which held such precious contents," he told Idalia laughingly.

"Precious?" she repeated.

"Don't you hold it so?" he rallied. "Here we are, two mutually interested in wishes beyond compare. Of course I am judging from the basis of my own."

"And we must never divulge our great secret," reminded Idalia playfully.

"Until the wishes culminate," added Dale, and there was a slight tremor of the dainty hand on his arm, and Dale thrilled and wondered if after all the years he was destined to fall in love with this sweet wayside flower of innocence and beauty.

Twice during the week Dale called upon Idalia and felt the magic influence of her witcheries strengthen. He came in contact with Driscoll, who passed him with a scowl. Dale discerned the lurking hatred and jealousy of a disappointed and reckless man.

Dale had driven Idalia over to a neighboring town and they were returning along the well-graded curving river road when shouts and singing echoed from ahead. Before Dale could shut off the power a machine containing half a dozen riotous fellows dashed into view.

Driscoll, red-faced, reckless-eyed, was at the wheel. At the sight of Dale he deliberately took the middle of the road and began tooting the horn of the machine.

"Oh, Mr. Armstrong, it is that man, and he is intoxicated!", gasped Idalia.

The road was narrow and a collision was certain unless Dale turned aside. On one edge was a slight grade, but studded with heavy brush and trees. Quick as a flash Dale directed the automobile in that direction.

A hideous series of yells rang out as the Driscoll machine shot past the other automobile, tearing off a rear fender. Dale's machine took the grade, partly slowed, struck a tree with a crash, recoiled, came to a stop and sent Dale headlong through the air.

He lay prostrate on the grass as Idalia gained his side, frightened and crying. She dropped beside him and, dipping her handkerchief in a spring nearby, bathed his brow, sobbing incoherently.

"Dear Idalia!" fell a wandering murmur from his lips and he smiled, and Idalia, despite his closed eyes, felt a sudden joy at this evidence that he was not seriously hurt. She could not help it, for love impelled her—she bent over him and kissed him on the lips.

"The culmination—and now we can tell!" he cried, sitting up and clasping Idalia's hands.

"We can tell," she fluttered, drawing back, scarlet and overcome.

"Yes, for my wish has been granted. The philopena—don't you know? My wish was that some day we might kiss one another, and now, oh, darling Idalia, may I?"

"It was my wish, too!" whispered Idalia, and again her sweet lips met his own.

A Curious Church.

The most singular church in the world is probably St. John's, at Davos Platz, in Switzerland. Davos Platz is over 5,000 feet about sea level and is famous as a winter resort for consumptives on account of its great purity of air and protection from high winds. St. John's Church is a very small building, but nevertheless it has two steeples. One of these is much larger than the other, towering high above the church and presenting a most singular appearance, being twisted after the manner of a corkscrew. The steeples contain some fine chimes, which in ancient times were used to sound the alarm when there was a threatened invasion of wild animals.

"it's all right!"

The Heat of the Sun.

Why is the air generally much colder a mile above the earth than near the ground? The heat of the atmosphere comes from the sun, but by a somewhat indirect process. The incoming sunbeams are only slightly absorbed by the dry air at high levels, and so have little effect on its temperature. In the lower regions of the atmosphere there is always a considerable amount of water vapor (water in the form of gas), and this substance has a relatively large capacity for absorbing heat from sunshine. Lastly, the earth absorbs all the heat that falls upon it, and then gives it back, by radiation or conduction, to the air above it. Thus the atmosphere is mainly heated from below and not from above. Air heated near the ground tends to rise, but it cools rapidly in rising. As it reaches higher levels the pressure upon it is less; it expands, pushing away the surrounding air, and it uses up in this work some of the energy that it originally possessed in the form of heat. This process is referred to by scientists as "adiabatic cooling."

Good Way to Preserve Potatoes.

The natives of the Andes have method of preserving potatoes, which consists of alternate freezing and thawing until all the moisture is removed. The resulting product is known as chuno, and it can be stored for month and even years, with fear of deterioration. Pressed into little balls shaped pieces, chuno is universally offered for sale in the market, and is one of the chief foods of the native population.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago," writes Mr. G. E. Root, a well-known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief, so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cured me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c. and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

SERVIA AS A NATION.

It Originated in the First Half of the Seventh Century.

The birth of Servia as a nation, settled in or near its present home, may be dated in the first half of the seventh century. About 600 A. D., when the Avaric empire of desolation was established on the Danube, two tribes, the Croats and the Serbs, retiring before the ravages of the Tartar horsemen, settled in the countries now known as Croatia, Bosnia and Servia.

They were Slavs, but the Croats perhaps had, like the Slavs of Moesia in after years, adopted the name of a Tartar tribe. Both, fleeing from the Avars, were naturally hostile to them, and it is possible that they settled in the empire with the consent or even at the invitation of the Emperor Heraclius I. At any rate, they appear to have been considered as vassals of the empire. Their first settlements lay rather westward of the country now called Servia, the Drave, the present western boundary, being the dividing line between Bulgar and Serb in the eighth century. Here the Serbs dwelt more or less uneventfully for three centuries. They generally formed a loose confederacy under chiefs called zupans. They were commonly, in a loose fashion, loyal to the eastern empire mainly through fear of their dangerous neighbors, the Bulgarians. About 840 they united under a chief named Vlastimir to repel the latter.

The country rose to great heights under Stephen Dushan, the czar of the Serbs, but after his death Murad I. conquered the country, and it was not until 1815 that the Serbs partially threw off the Turkish yoke.—Exchange.

PRECIOUS MUGS.

The Crucibles Used in the New York Assay Office.

In the government assay office on Wall street, New York, there is a corner that looks very much like a mug rack in a country barber shop, where every customer has his individual mug highly decorated in gilt letters.

On this rack are perhaps fifty crucibles for melting down gold. The crucibles are decorated with crude initials and numerals and are the property of the biggest gold mining corporations in North and South America.

The reason for the individual mugs is that the clay of crucibles takes up a considerable quantity of gold in the process of smelting which otherwise would be lost to the customer bringing the gold to the government to be refined. After two or three smeltings the clay is saturated and takes up no more gold. When it is finally succeeded by a new crucible it is returned to the customer to be broken up for its hidden gold.

Mugs that are used for melting down random lots of gold are carefully preserved by the government refiners and sold. Uncle Sam pockets the proceeds, as in these random lots there is no way of computing to what amount each of perhaps twenty customers may be entitled. It is only the smelting concern that sells the government enough gold at one time to monopolize a single melting that obtains the right to a mug on the rack.—New York Tribune.

Ice Cream and a Nerve.

Why do we sometimes get an ache in the nose when eating ice cream. There is a nerve running along the back of the nose which doctors call the anterior palatine nerve. This has a branch running along the base of the nasal cavity and another branch running along the palate. The ends of these branches join through finer branches which run through openings in the palate near the front teeth. When we get some ice cream in the mouth and keep it in front for a moment so that the irritation produced by the cold reaches the fine connecting branches the sensation may be carried to the branch in the nose. Irritation of this branch produces the sensation of pain. We get the same sensation when breathing very cold air.—New York American.

Making Our Own Indigo.

Indigo is now being made from coal tar in this country. At Midland, Mich., 1,000 pounds of 20 per cent paste are produced daily. All the tariff bills of this nation, commencing with the tariff of March 3, 1883, and including the tariff of October 3, 1913, placed indigo on the free list. Not until September 5, 1916, was a bill passed putting a duty on it. It was the first schedule that braved the anger of the German dye makers.—Popular Science Monthly.

Appendicitis Operations Not Always Necessary

Internal Bathing Relieves the Cause.

Your physician will tell you that Appendicitis is an inflamed condition of the little sack called the Appendix at the lower right-hand corner of the Colon or large intestine. By cleansing this Colon with purified warm water by the "J. B. L. Cascade" this sack is cleansed and the inflammation subsides. Hundreds of operations have been avoided by using the warm water cure for Appendicitis. Mr. Jas. McLaughlan, 91 Evanston street, Winnipeg, writes:—

"I had spent over fifty dollars with doctors trying to cure Appendicitis. Finally the doctor said I must go to the hospital at once for an operation. Your advertisement interested me. I bought a "J. B. L. Cascade," which relieved me at once, and am now completely cured. Never felt better in my life; all pain and soreness gone, and I eat and sleep like a boy. I am grateful to Dr. Tyrrell for this wonderful health-giving invention."

95 per cent. of all human ills are caused by accumulated waste in the Colon. Internal Bathing with the "J. B. L. Cascade" keeps this large intestine as free from all waste and as clean as nature demands it should be for perfect health. Ask Warne Drug Co., Peterboro, for booklet called "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." It is free. They will also be pleased to show and explain the "J. B. L. Cascade" to you.

Ancient Silver Coin.

A coin which is regarded as the most ancient in the world was recently discovered by an archaeologist during his explorations in North Syria. It is a coin of pure silver, bearing a perfect Aramean inscription of Panammu Bar Rerub, king of Schamol, who reigned 800 years B. C. Up to the time this coin was unearthed the Lydians had always been regarded as the inventors of money, but this find showed that the Semitic Arameans who lived two centuries before the Lydians, are the oldest known makers of money.

SACRED MOUNT ATHOS

WOMEN ARE BARRED OUT OF THIS CURIOUS SPOT.

Historic Retreat of Seven Thousand Lonely Monks Is a Place of Exquisite Beauty and Is Full of Mystery and Charm—The Existence of the Celibate Inmates Would Not Appeal to Most Persons.

Among the possessions of disrupted Turkey in Europe there is none to which the Greeks have greater claim than the holy Mount of Athos, the most easterly prong of nature's trident—the three similarly shaped peninsulas that extend into the Aegean Sea a few miles east of Salonica. Among the inhabitants of the sacred mount, some 7,000 in all, the greater part are Greeks, men who have withdrawn, most of them voluntarily, from life to eke out a lonely existence among the rocky defiles of the peninsula, dividing their time between the cultivation of heaven and earth.

Mount Athos, situated at the extreme southern point of the peninsula, rears its snowcapped summit 6,350 feet above sea level. It looks for all the world like one of the pyramids of Egypt transplanted to a colder clime, and its history is replete with as much mystery and charm. Stand on the plain of old Troy—to-day swallowed up in the name Anatolia—and you may see the hoary peak of Athos against the setting sun. Or climb to the heights of Olympus, in old Thessaly, and there, among the once sacred groves which to-day are infested with bands of thieves who fear neither God nor man, you again see Athos. These two peaks, one famed as the abode of gods who are to-day but myths, and the other the abode of holy men, are soon to become Greek again, if Greek diplomacy can so turn the wheel of fortune.

Nothing perhaps is more interesting of the many peculiarities of Mount Athos than the fact that women and even female animals are barred from setting foot upon it by a decree issued about the middle of the 11th century, although now the rule has been modified to permit the Queen of Greece to visit the place, which probably will be ceded by Turkey to the Kingdom of the Hellenes. Lonely man lives there his miserable existence—for miserable it must be where no woman has a part—and dying disappears. Young monks come from the outside world to take the place of those who in their own belief, or merely "translated," but the name of this or that monk remains but a memory. Life there is the downhill stumble to old age and the grave. Never a gay laugh and seldom a smile—that the sun shines on this God chosen spot in vain.

There are twenty monasteries on Mount Athos, all belonging to the order of St. Basil and twelve affiliated monastic communities where live lay brothers. Others of these religious devotees occupy hermitages far distant from each other, their goings and comings guided by the ascetic principles of St. Athanasius.

Of the monasteries the largest is Russian, there are two Serbo-Bulgarian and the rest are Greek, so that the latter race is largely in the majority, and thus dominates the community and the Assembly which governs it. To this Assembly each monastery sends one representative.

The monastery libraries are vast storehouses of information, containing until comparatively recent times many priceless relics which the monks, their intellectual development having been left to its own devices, cared little or nothing for. Many of these documents tell in the language of Xenophon of the glories of a Greece that was. Indeed much of the history of the east is locked up in these dust-filled coffrefortes in which from time to time this or that wanderer has come across a priceless relic to carry off to the museums of Europe.

One of the most notable finds was a papyrus containing the fables of Aesop in Coliambic verse. But so many curio collectors, attracted by the fabulous tales of voyagers, have taken passage for Mount Athos that the monks have become suspicious and now refuse entrance to nearly all strangers. The larger part of the monastic valuables, however, are in safe and more worthy hands.

The Turks destroyed much of the valuable papyri in the monasteries in making cartridges during the war of the Greek independence in 1820-29. Other valuable documents were torn up by the monks themselves for fishing bait. Such is the value of historical documents to these monks who spend their time apart from their religious devotions in fishing and tilling the land.

In 1749 an attempt was made to establish an academy on the mount. For a time it flourished, drawing the flower of the youth of the east, but the teaching was so primitive that the academy became deserted and to-day is a mass of ruins, over which tangled vines, lizards and other crawling things hold sway. When the star of the Byzantine empire was at its zenith Mount Athos was a chosen retreat for those in court disfavor. Many others, wealthy and noble, had their fling at life and then banished themselves to Mount Athos.

Viewed from the sea in the fall of the year Athos is a mountain of exquisite beauty, with its shades and tints of dying foliage. High up on the mountain the monasteries can be seen clustering in the niches scooped out by nature. They are all strongly fortified and with the exception of Rossikson, the Russian monastery, their architecture is a quaint representation of the Byzantine period which had so much influence on the sacred mount on its inhabitants. On the isthmus which separates the mount from the mainland traces can still be seen of the canal dug before the invasion of Greece in 480 B.C. It is the story that Xerxes dug the canal because he feared lest he lose his ships in doubling the cape.

LURE OF THE MISTS.

Curious Experience in the Clouds in an Aeroplane.

It was at Manchester. Aeroplanes were sweeping the skies in the circuit of Britain race. Vedrines had landed, and impatient at the rules that made him wait ten minutes before taking up the race, went about jabbering in French. One of the officials asked him what kind of a trip he had had. Vedrine's answer was to hold up his hands expressively.

He was quiet for many seconds, then he said:

"I was blanketed in clouds so that I could not see ten meters beforg me. Below me was nothing but rolling mist that gradually took on all fanciful shapes and colors. I caught myself wanting to descend, to drop suddenly into it and see what it was like. To escape this feeling I flew higher and higher, until, venturing to look down again, I saw wonderful lights and shadows that never before had been revealed to me from the sky. I saw a dreamy city, a wonderful mirage, and I believe I would have forgotten everything but those exquisite colorings, released my levers, and"— (He laughed.) "But I was fortunate, for I became sick—as sick as a dog—away up in the clouds."—Edward Lyell Fox, in Harper's Weekly.

Beware of Cousins!

Cousins are not as simple as they seem. The very fact of being a cousin, or having a cousin, is complicated. The laissez faire of cousinship is both eluding and deluding. Cousins will be cousins, even if you did not choose them. They can borrow money from you, visit you without being asked, tell people they belong to your family, contest your will, even fall in love with you—and a cousin once removed is twice as apt to. Never completely trust a cousin. Never depend on his not doing any of these things. Never take him for granted. The "cousinly kiss" may or may not mean what it means. And cousins always do kiss. It's part of being cousins.

(Not that cousins need necessarily prove perilous. Once in a blue moon they invite you to Europe or leave you money, but that almost always takes an aunt or an uncle.)—Atlantic.

THE SINN FEINERS HAVE BEEN IN DIRECT COMMUNICATION WITH HUN GOVERNMENT

Several Important Arrests Have Been Made--Proclamation Issued This Morning.

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 18. — A German plot has been discovered in Ireland. There is evidence that the Sinn Feiners have been in direct communication with the German government. General French issued a proclamation at daybreak to-day calling on the people to stamp out conspiracy.

Although there have been many rumours concerning events in Ireland recently, news received from Dublin early this morning of arrests made in Ireland and of Lord French's proclamation that certain of the King's subjects have entered into treasonable communication with the German enemy, created a sensation. Some days ago Sir Edward Carson, the Irish Unionist leader, said in a letter to the government that he knew certain persons in Ireland had been in communication with the enemy, but it was generally taken to mean some unimportant individuals connected with the man who was captured after landing recently on the Irish coast in a collapsible boat. The nature of arrests, taken in connection with the posting of Lord French's proclamation, however, indicates that persons referred to are heads of the Sinn Feinn movement and that the government possesses evidence against them.

THE PROCLAMATION.

DUBLIN, May 18.—A proclamation issued to-night says a German plot in Ireland has been discovered. In the proclamation the Viceroy, Lord French, calls upon all loyal Irishmen to defeat the conspiracy.

The proclamation, signed by Edward Shrott, chief secretary for Ireland, asserts that certain persons in Ireland have been in communication with Germany, reflectig on Ireland's fair name. The proclamation calls upon all loyal subjects to aid in defeating the manoeuvres. It urges voluntary recruiting so that compulsion may be avoided.

The proclamation of the Lord Lieutenant reads:

Whereas it has come to our knowledge that certain subjects of His Majesty, King, domiciled in Ireland, have conspired to enter and have entered into treasonable communication with the German enemy, and whereas such treachery is a menace to the fair name of Ireland, and its glorious military record, a record which is a source of intense pride to the country whose sons always distinguished themselves and fought with such heroic valor in past, in the same way as thousands of them are now fighting in this war, and whereas drastic measures must be taken to put down a German plot which means will be solely directed against that plot.

Now therefore, we the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and Governor General of Ireland have thought fit to issue this proclamation, declaring as follows:

That it is the duty of all loyal subjects of His Majesty to assist in every way His Majesty's government in Ireland to suppress this treasonable conspiracy and to defeat treacherous attempt of Germany to defame the honour of Irishmen for thtir own ends.

That we hereby call upon all loyal subjects of His Majesty in Ireland to aid in crushing such conspiracy and so far as in them lies to assist in securing an effective prosecution of the war and the welfare and safety of the Empire.

That as means to this end we shall cause still further steps to be taken to facilitate and encourage voluntary enlistment in Ireland in His Majesty's forces in the hope that without resort to compulsion, the contribution of Ireland to these forces may be brought up to proper strength."

"FREMAN'S" COMMENT.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 18. — Commenting on the proclamation by Lord French, Dublin "Freeman's" Journal says: "Conscription is to be launched in Ireland under cover of revelations connected with an alleged German plot, that appears to be the meaning of this rather strange proclamation which is Chief Secretary Shortt's first word to the Irish prophets. Of course it is not impossible that a few foolish men in Ireland may have been interested in conspiracy to invoke German aid, but the Irish people have never been pro-German, and notwithstanding all provocation received from the English Government, they are not pro-German to-day."

A Complete Surprise.

DUBLIN, May 18.—The arrest of the Sinn Fein leaders and the issuance of Lord French's proclamation came as a complete surprise here. In Dublin arrests were made by de-

Fine Weather On West Front

Guns Thunder Lazily—Aeroplanes Clash on All Sides

ROUTINE WORK

(By William Phillip Sims.)
(United Press Service.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 18. —Summer weather shimmers across the battle fields, while guns thunder lazily as if about to doze off completely. Now and then they wake with a sudden jump and blaze furiously for a few minutes, then nod again. The sky has turned from a deep blue to a sizzly grey, making the grey bellied airplanes well nigh invisible but their everlasting drone floats to earth, while on occasion a terrific air battle with machine guns proves the sky raiders are on the job, though practically out of sight. Air fighting has been very heavy during the past three days, the infantry doing little outside of routine work.

There is an occasional raid or a clash with patrols which get through, breaking the otherwise complete mobility.

Action Has Been Taken Against Paper Company

MONTREAL, May 18.— The financial Times say: "December last the Financial Times published particulars of the peculiar development of the pulp and paper trade between Newfoundland and New York. We showed that shortly after the arrival of Lord Northcliffe in the United States, arrangements were made by which the accumulation of pulp and news print at Northcliffe's Newfoundland paper mills could be drawn upon for United States' consumption. To facilitate this service, the Publishers Papers Co. was formed, comprising some twenty leading publishers in New York, and apparently there was no difficulty in securing the ship bottoms for the shipment of about 17,000 tons of New Founduand pulp during a three months' period when shipping facilities were so scarce for European requirement. The Financial Times made a vigorous protest and as a consequence the English papers reproduced our articles on the subject and the whole affair was ventilated in the British House of Parliament.

Washington has at least taken action, though in an unexpected manner. The United States' Shipping Board has presented a claim against the Publishers Papers Co. for $400,000 as damages for diverting shipping from the very important war requirements.

Boys Let Off On Suspended Sentence

The four small boys who, yielding to childish temptation broke into several summer cottages at Bobcaygeon, were convicted before Magistrate Langley at Hall's Bridge yesterday.

All the boys' homes are in or near Bobcaygeon and the representative of the Children's Aid Society for Victoria County was present. After consultation with him, the Magistrate, Mr. Langley, let the boys go on suspended sentence. The parents of the boys had previously paid all expenses incurred by the breaking in and deposited sums of money with the High Constable to cover any expenses sustained by the owners of the cottages, besides which all the boys were bound to keep the laws, with a surety of $500 each. On one of the charges three of the boys were acquitted, as the Magistrate felt there was not sufficient eivdence to prove any guilt.

Otonabee Chapter Held A Dance

The dance and card party given by the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., last night at the Conservatory was a most enjoyable affair, and attended by about 50 couples. Owing to the intense heat of the night, the attendance was not so great as was expected. However, the Chapter is thoroughly satisfied by the results in general. The music, which was ample proof that Peterborough need not send out of town for absolute satisfaction in this end of an entertainment was supplied by Mr. Asa Huycke and Mr. Walter Fitzgerald.

Prize-Winners.

The winners at cards were awarded an exquisite bouquet of sweet peace, each given by Mrs. Chris. Graham. Mrs. R. R. Hall carried off first honors; Mrs. Maxwell, second.

French War Office Report

Enemy Raids Were Repulsed—The Night Was Calm

ATTACK ON PARIS

Canadian Press:

PARIS, May 18.—(Official.)—There were violent bombardments at various points on the front north and south of Avre. German raids near Massiges Champaigne and north of Four De Paris, Argonne were without results. Everywhere else the night was calm.

German airplanes attempted to bombard Paris last night, but did not reach the city. Bombs, however, were dropped on outlying suburbs.

The French have brought down 322 airplanes during March and April, as compared with 96 French planes lost.

Whiskey Plant On Lafeyette Avenue Cost Owner $109.75

The biggest cargo of alcohol the police court has seen in many a long, dry day, made a strange array of kegs jars and bottles as they were lined up before Magistrate Dumble this morning. They were collected by Detectives Newhall and Meagher at 6 o'clock yesterday evening from the home of Homer Bourgon, Lafayette avenue. The haul included three five-gallon earthenware jars, two five-gallon kegs, four one-gallon jars, bottles of what seemed to be home-made whiskey, and a big earthenware vessel, open, at the top, containing a "brew" in process of fermentation. This concoction contained wheat, raisins, sugar, yeast, potatoes and water, and although it was but newly started, already carried a live "kick." The police stated that when the preparation gathered full strength pure alcohol or high wines were added making an extremely potent drink that could be had in two colours, white and clear, or red like circus lemonade, but infinitely more fiery. The Lafayette street "still" was gaining a wide reputation, according to the authorities, who allege that numerous drunks had been traced to that place and that there were two visitors drunk in the house when the raid was pulled off. Corby's high wines and alcohol in Hiram Walker containers were used to mix with the brew after it had fermented and been strained and boiled.

Bourgon was charged before Magistrate Dumble with having in his possession, at his residence, 45 Lafayette avenue, rectifying or other apparatus and wash suitable for the manufacture of spirits. The charge was laid under the Inland Revenue Act.

His Worship tipped up a bottle and tasted its content, declaring that it might be worse.

Bourgon said that this was his first attempt to make whiskey. When asked to elect for trial he said he preferred a summary hearing saying that he wanted to get back to work. Bourgon, with a French accent, said he had tried to make the stuff for fun.

"Yes, for the fun of those who got drunk," said His Worship.

When fined the minimum of $100, he said, "I'll pay it right away. have you a blank for cheque."

The total was $109.75.

Farmers' Market Largely Attended

Potatoes Sold at $1.75 a Bag—Prices Were Easier.

The warm weather brought a large number of farmers to the city this morning and as a result there was a large market. Potatoes were being sold in large quantities at $1.75 a bag, with seed potatoes at $1.50 a bag. Cabbage were sold for 15c each and oniodns for 40 a peck, while in the section butter was 50c a lb. and 40c a dozen was asked for eggs. There were a few fowl chiefly consisting of chickens which sold for $1.75 to $2.00 each.

AMERICANS INCREASING

A Steady Stream of American Troops is Pouring Into France —Will Be An Anxious Summer

WILL MAKE GOOD

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, May 18.—"A steady stream of American reinforcements is flowing into France faster and faster, swelling the Allied reserves. The Germans pretend to belittle American aid, but we do not think the German General Staff does—otherwise they would not be hazarding their entire future on this big attack." This statement, made to the United Press by a representative of the British General Staff, authoritatively represents the view of that body. "The Americans must buy their experience like everyone else," continued the officer. "But they are good business men and will buy it at the cheapest market and sell it at the highest prices to the Germans. The Americans will make good. They will never let go until they win. During the past week in France, a series of minor operations have been in our favour. Whenever the Germans broke in we drove them out. This is satisfactory because the Germans are extraordinarily good at holding and improving positions, due to the good training of their regimental officers, subordinates and staff.

Air Fighting.

The air fighting resulted satisfactory to us. From May 10 to 15 seventy-one German airplanes were brought down, while only nineteen of ours were missing. Our military situation is infinitely better and was considerable in halting the first phase of the German offensive. The Germans are now oiling up for a real effort. The longer they wait, more troops they can put in.

If they wait a little longer they can renew offensive on as big a scale as they began it—a fifty-mile front.

However, the longer the Germans wait, the more time it gives us to prepare.

"Regardless of changes in territory possession, the situation will be very anxious all this summer."

Returned Soldiers in Montreal Are Arrested as "Idlers" Under the New Act

WERE BAILED OUT

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, May 18.— Great indignation is felt by the public in Montreal over the continued arrests of returned soldiers as "idlers" and their detention in jails till the case is disposed of or bail provided. Three men, two of them returned and one supporting a soldier's family, were amongst those collared yesterday. Through the efforts of the Great War Veterans' Association, not only was it shown that the police had been at fault as to identity in one case, but these men produced discharge and other papers, which are accepted as legal documents sufficient to clear them. These were ignored. "We are quite willing to co-operate with the police," said T. Brown secretary of the G. W. V. A., "in the carrying out of this order. We have no desire at all to shield any man, soldier or civilian if he is really an idler, but we demand that they should turn to the proper authorities to inquire about a man's character before humbling him by public arrest and detention in jail pending trial, if he cannot furnish bail. In yesterday's cases are three men who had been arrested Saturday and held in jail until Monday, when I bailed them out."

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE

Presbyterian General Assembly Will Convene For Important Business —Moderator to Be Elected

THE PROGRAMME

LONDON, May 18.—Subjects of especial war-time interest marked particularly by a reflection of the effect of semi-political and econ mic currents upon church life, are scheduled for the consideration of upwards of five hundred commissioners from all parts of Canada when the Presbyterian General Assembly convenes at St. Andrews Presbyterian church here June 5 to June 13 inclusive.

A Moderator

The programme includes the election of a moderator to succeed Rev. Dr. John of Toronto. This will produce a contest in which the demand of Rural commissioners for greater recognition and the claims of laymen to occupancy of this highest honor in the church in Canada, will be possible determining influences.

Special Board

2—The report of a special board on "War and after-the-war problems" appointed by the last General Assembly, will bring under consideration, social service problems and especially the introduction of women in greater numbers into industry and the alleged inclination of employers to award such workers dangerously meagre wages.

3—The "Feminist movement will manifest itself in the demand of the women for greater voice in the management and direction fo church affairs and in consideration of plans for reorganization of staff of the deconnest institute Toronto, that girls may be trained to preach from the pulpit instead by the withdrawal paigns to secure recruits for the

Close Colleges

4—The proposal to close perhaps half of the eight colleges in Canada which train clergymen because of the fact the war has seriously reduced attendance.

5—Special stress will be laid upon "The forward movement" to raise funds for the propogration of Presbyterianism and to organize camministery and for deacons work

Added to this striking agenda will be the customary subjects such as Home and foreign missions, which have for years furnished them the major discussions.

Church Union.

Even with church union not of the way coming assembly is destined to be one of the most notable in the history of the Presbyterin Church in Canada.

More than six hundred commissioners half of whom aer clergymen and the remainder lay elders are entitled to attend but present indications are that the delegates will not number more than five hundred. The decision of the fares of commissioners could only be paid one way will it, is feared seriously affect the attendance.

FRANK HOURIGAN

Of the Scotland Woolen Mills Clothing Co., Hunter street, was explaining to-day how he could possibly book orders for a 20 ounce indigo blue serge suit for $32 to one of his customers, who wanted to know if Frank was advertising the truth.

"What you say is quite true, my son—twenty ounce indigo blue serge can't be even looked at to-day for less than $7.00 a yard. Now, it takes three and three-eights yards to make you a full suit; add your trimmings, the cutting, fitting and tailoring, and the profit flees away. But the Scotland Woolen Mills Co. are not in the habit of buying their serges or other woolens, from 'hand-to-mouth.' Oh! no—if we did, Scoland Woolen Mills would have to charge you $40 or $50 for your suit, just like the merchant tailors do. Your suit will come to you from 'mill to man.' Lucky for you and all our other patrons we had a nice pile of good old reliable serges laid away in cold storage for the war times that sure comes. That's how you have your suit to-day at the old prices, not the new. Do you get me? Pass it on."

Mr. L. H. Ingram Goes To The Quaker Oats Co.

Mr. Louis H. Ingram, assistant city clerk, severed his service with the city to-day to accept a position with the Quaker Oats Company. His resignation was placed before the Council nearly a month ago. He had proved himself by his diligence and initiative a valuable assistant to City Clerk Armstrong, and his place will not be easily filled.

German Navy Is Getting Busy

Von Hindenburg Believes German Victory Would Be Impossible With a Sea Fight

FLEET MOBILIZED

(By Carl D. Groat).

WASHINGTON, May 18. — Von Hindenburg is trying to impose his will on the rest of the German war lords and forcing them to send out the High Seas Fleet so that his land operations may be a success, according to the Navy Department. He succeeded in completing the mobilization of the fleet, which is under steam at the base. The navy's information tends to disclose he has the whip hand, and will wring some more desperate action from the fleet unless the Allied sea power strikes first. Hindenburg's theory, according to advices, is that even though he were to take the channel ports by land, a German victory would still be impossible without first beating the British Navy.

American Navy officers believe confidently that if the German Army master winds his contention he will only sacrifice the German Navy vessels and lives. With the United States, France, and perhaps Japan in on the play, the enemy would be unable to cripple the Entente, it was said.

Increase In Price Of Meat

New Prices Will Take Effect in Peterborough on Monday.

Monday will see an increase in the price of beef in the city of 2 cents a pound on the best cuts. This increase is due to the increased cost of cattle, which in the past three weeks has been raised $43.25 on each 600-pound beast. Most of the cattle is at present being shipped overseas to the front, rendering the situation acute for securing any home supply. Mutton at present is practically off the market, the wholesalers asking in Toronto 33½ cents per pound.

The Prices.

Dating from Monday the prices will run:

Round steak, 40c per pound.
Sirloin steak, 42c per pound.
Porterhouse steak, 40c to 42c per pound.

Pork remains steady and veal about the same as before.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday was the warmest day we have had up to the present time, the thermometer reaching the respectable figure of 83 in the shade. The temperature over the western section of the country is gradually rising, and it looks as if the "good old summer time" were here.—W.P.

German Prisoners Reveal the Nature of the Orders Given by the Hun Commanders—Drive Was Stopped in Time.

VILLAGES SACKED

(United Press Service.)
(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 18.— Declarations made by German prisoners render it quite apparent that had the allied armies not checked the German advance the world would have witnessed one of the most sanguinary campaigns the war has produced. So intent were the Germans on their form of satisfying their lust for conquest and domination that orders to pillage were given as soon as they reached Noyon, despite the fact that the village had been sacked to the last mouthful of food. Articles of value, small stocks of food and household furniture which the inhabitants had received through American charities since Hindenburg's retreat in March, 1917, were not spared.

Typical Declaration.

A typical declaration on this subject, of which many have been made by German prisoners, is the following from a soldier of the seventh German reserve division:

"The moment we had passed St. Quentin the pillage began," he said. "All of the abandoned houses were ramsacked and entire stocks of provisions were carried away. In many places old men and women still remained and these pleaded that they not be allowed to die of starvation. But the soldiers pushed them back and carried away all food, breaking everything else that could not be taken away with them. Clothing was torn and wardrobes and tables and furniture were smashed, while mirrors and pictures were snatched from the walls and destroyed. In the cellars and wine caves all wine that could not be drunk was poured out on the ground.

Gave Order to Pillage.

"Captain Detener, commanding one of the battalions gave the order to a number of soldiers to go to Noyon for the purpose of pillage. They returned with a huge amount of booty, including thousands of cigars and cigarettes, marmalade, preserves, wine, chocolate, butter, potatoes, handkerchiefs, soap and many other things.

Each soldier received for his share twenty English cigarettes, 30 to 4 hundred grammes of soap, three or four cans of marmalade for each squad and three or four cans of condensed milk. The under officers received a great deal more. Potatoes were turned over to battalion cooks. The officers kept for themselves all the best things to eat and all objects of value.

"In other battalions, the men were given permission to go to Noyon singly and pillage as they liked." The condensed milk referred to consisted of large stocks brought to Noyon by Baron Henri De Rothschild and a number of American charities, for distribution among babies and sick persons in the devastated district.

SUNDAY SERVICES IN MARK STREET CHURCH

In addition to the musical program Mr. Asa Huycke will sing.

In the evening the Rev. Benj. Greatrix chairman of the district of Peterboro and popular pastor of St. James Methodist church will preach. Everybody will be welcome.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, MAY 18TH, 1918.

THE MINISTER'S BOAST.

Hon. T. W. Crothers' boast that he possesses the confidence of the leaders of organized labour in Canada, has received a rather rude jolt at the hands of the Montreal Trades and Labour Council, which has unanimously passed a resolution condemning a statement to this effect. The feeling of the Montreal labour men is indicated by the discussion which preceded the vote on the resolution during which reference was made to the "chloroforming" of W. F. O'Connor by the Minister, and also by the statement made by the president of the council that he was sure many of the unions represented would not want to express confidence in Hon. Mr. Crothers.

The Minister's claim about the confidence labour leaders had in him has so far shown only one thing—that Mr. Crothers has confidence in himself.

NO MORE COLLECTIONS.

There has been an agitation for some time that the Government should take over the operation of the Canadian Patriotic Fund. The decision arrived at by the National Executive of the fund that after the end of the present fiscal year, that is after March 31st, 1919, there shall be no further campaigns to secure funds, seems to bring the step advocated by the War Veterans and other organizations, near to consummation. Instead of collecting more funds from individuals or from municipal and provincial bodies, it is proposed to ask the Dominion government to grant the necessary money to carry on the work. This will undoubtedly lead to an increased pressure by the bodies who advocate government control that the Dominion authorities shall completely taken over the Fund and administer it, as well as finance it. The reason given for the suspension of the Patriotic Fund campaign is the usual sources from which the revenue has been collected, have been largely monopolized by the War Loan and other government purposes.

THE FIRE WASTE.

There is much food for thought in the report of the special committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which has been investigating the question of fire waste and assurance rates. The finding of the committee is an indictment of municipal methods, much of which would seem to be justified. "At present practically the entire responsibility for the prevention of fires, if any responsibility exists," says the report, "is vested in the municipalities."

Councils everywhere should carefully consider the charge that they stand too much on their dignity in regard to fire protection matters.

"The municipalities," the committee states, "appear either unable or unwilling to extend their views beyond the range of fire extinguishment. If a small proportion of the money now spent on fire extinguishment were utilized for fire prevention, the results would be both immediate and very marked. The municipalities are apparently so jealous of their authority that they resent any suggestion that the responsibility for the prevention of fires should be taken out of their hands, although they have practically proved themselves unfit for the responsibilities involved."

Several suggestions are made by the committee as to factors in fire prevention. One of these is an efficient system of inspection of all manufacturing and mercantile premises. In this respect, however, Peterboro needs no advice for Chief Grange is carrying out just such an inspection at the present time.

The Manufacturers' Committee has come to the conclusion that until the whole business of fire insurance is taken over either by the Dominion or Provincial governments it is doubful whether much real progress will be made.

DOWN TO BUSINESS:

The announcement of the drastic amendment to the Military Service Act, by which all men, whether in Class 1 or not, must carry papers to show the officials where they stand in regard to the Act, will be welcomed as a sign of getting down to business. The onus is now placed directly on the individual. After June 1st he must be prepared to prove that he is married or outside of the age limit for Class 1, and therefore all men not in Class 1 should lose no time in providing themselves with a marriage certificate or a birth certificate. The amendment enacts that if such men cannot produce proof that they are not in the first class under the Act, they may be drafted at once into the army in any capacity their physical condition enables them to fill, and, furthermore, they are liable to a fine of $50, or imprisonment for one month, or both. There is also a penalty provided of a $500 fine, or six months' imprisonment, or both, for any man who carries false certificates.

The new regulations will simplify the work of the Dominion Police, and should not prove a hardship to any one. The person who is not in the first class under the Act should be able to prove it easily, as he has only to show that he is married or over the age of thiry-four. The men affected should lose no time, as the amendment comes into effect on June 1st, and the matter of obtaining a birth certificate sometimes requires considerable time. After the first of next month men without these proofs are liable to be arrested at any time and to be treated as defaulters under the Military Service Act.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is officially announced that American troops have arrived in northern France, along the line held by the British. The Tommies and the Sammies will get along nicely together.

The man who lives at home and who is able to raid the pantry before retiring probably thinks the closing of the restaurants at 7 o'clock on Sunday night a good thing, but what about the other fellows?

Farmers will be interested in the announcement that Luther Burbank, the famous horticulturist, has evolved a "super wheat," containing 14 per cent. gluten.

The report from the west that rains have been general, is one of the best bits of news to-day. The moisture was badly needed.

The Ottawa Journal aptly remarks that if some of the M.P.'s who keep haggling over the Civil Service Bill, would come out and say they are in favour of patronage, perhaps their efforts would be more honest.

Sarnia is the latest Canadian city to adopt the war chest plan; $75,000 to cover all patriotic purposes for the year, is to be raised in one day.

You will agree that a satisfying cup of tea is economical at five cups for a cent, yet that is all the genuine Salada costs. Low priced teas actually cost you more, for they yield far less in the tea pot, and of course have not that delicious flavour.

"TEN WAYS TO CONSERVE"

1—Cut the bread at the table and as required.

2—Save the crumbs from the bread board. You will be surprised to see how many there are.

3—Take a little less butter than you think you will need. It will probobly be the right amount.

4—Eat one more potato and one less slice of bread.

5—Eat one more spoonful of porridge and one less half slice of toast.

6—If you need (?) sugar in tea or coffee take what is required to sweeten it. Do not leave a teaspoonful in the bottom or your cup.

7—Fat is scarce to-day. Do not leave the soap lying in the water.

8—Do not eat more than you need. Eat what you require, you will feel better and do better work.

9—Leave a clean plate.

10—Eat slowly. Food well masticated supplies more nourishment to the body, consequently less food is required.

Add one of these suggestions to the various ways you have of conserving. Never lose sight of the fact that it is the individual who must save the situation.

LOOKS FOR PEACE THIS YEAR.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR IS OPTIMISTIC REGARDING OUTLOOK FOR END OF WAR.

Amsterdam, May 18.—"I am still optimistic enough to believe we shall have peace this year," said German Chancellor Count Von Hertling, in an interview. "I cherish firm confidence that further events in the west will bring us nearer a speedy end of the war."

"If the world should one day unite in an international peace league," added Count Von Hertling, "Germany would unhesitatingly and joyfully join in it. Unfortunately, present conditions give very little hope of that. Our desire is to win and preserve peace."

The Nicholls Parks Trust

A Commission That Works Silently But Effectively in Supervising the Parks Given to the City by the Late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls

In happier days when public-spirited citizens used to bethink themselves of the city's needs they occasionally planned to establish a Parks Commission. It was an expansive and an alluring subject that stimulated thought and invited action, and many an hour was spent in the pleasant fancy of making the city beautiful. But then, even as now, the public was seemingly unaware of the existence of a parks commission that was rendering, and still renders, a fine service to Peterborough. It was comparatively unknown because it neither sought public aid nor desired public notice. And there is no special occasion for referring to it now, but that a forgetful people should sometimes be reminded of its splendid inheritance of parks, as rich as it has been all too rare.

This unobtrusive commission is the Nicholls Parks Trust. It is composed of Mr. Richard Hall, chairman, Mr. E. H. D. Hall and Mr. John Crane, and the parks of which they are the trustees are the Nicholls Oval, Inverlea Park and Jackson Park, bequeathed to the city by the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls.

And the loveliest of these is surely Jackson Park. Its natural charm never fades and never cloys. Its colors change with the seasons, but its appeal is always fresh and soothing. Just now it is revivified by the magic touch of spring, and spreads a rolling web of mingling greens in which the vivid elms and maples, the saffron shaded poplars and the fainter shades of the birches are woven in a wonderful pattern into the dark background of the pines and cedars. All the colours of the young year gladden the heart and uplift the spirit. Green is the dominant tone, underfoot and overhead, with great patches of the azure sky softening the brilliance of the scene. And in this picture the slender, white birches, that seem never to grow old, flout the stout, stately pines whose sombre mien would conceal the comfort that nature is ever young.

It is impossible adequately to describe this lovely spot in all the vigor and gaiety of its new life and the lilt of the birds that find there a sanctuary. The crows answer the croaking of the frogs, the cat bird lilts a strange medley, the blue bird and the oriole add their reedy notes to the chorus, the "high hole" breaks in with his stridant call to his mate across the lake, and many other tiny voices give depth and volume to the music like the strings and wood instruments in a great orchestra. And through it all the brook babies incessantly, the counterpart of dull, unappreciative auditors to whom Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" is mere sound and perhaps fury.

This is not over-painting the riches of Jackson Park, which a thoughtful old lady left to her townspeople and their descendants. It is right at the city's door, a resting place for the citizens, a spot that is more beautiful in its autumn hues than ever in spring. It is always neatly kept, but its caretaker's hand has been judiciously restrained, leaving nature to shoot forth its flowers and shrubs, but not its tares and thistles. In the same sense it is open to the public, but the vulgar and the hooligan will find no welcome.

This, then, is one of the evidences of the Nicholls Park Trust. The city's indebtedness to Mrs. Nicholls can never be repaid, but it can be recognized by giving her a warm place in the public memory. The three parks were not the greatest of her benefactions, and a people all too manifestly spoiled by her generosity have not even erected, in any of the parks, a memorial tablet.

Of the work of the Commissioners the public knows very little, but the care the parks reveal is ocular evidence of the fidelity with which the trustees have performed their duty, and of an innate interest and attachment that was obviously, and fortunately, a personal quality that inspired their stewardship.

The Making of a "Davis" Cigar

A man who looms large in Canadian Political Life strolled over to the cigar stand in the Chateau Laurier, and asked for Noblemen Cigars. He got them.

A western rancher pulled up his horse in front of the Royal Café in Yellow Grass, and asked for Noblemen Cigars. He got them.

And every man got the same blend of cigar. Whether you buy it in the East or West—from an environment of mahogany fittings or of general groceries, a Noblemen, mellowed with age, is satisfyingly rich and friendly to the nerves.

AS a rule, a cigar is its own recommendation. You like it, or you don't like it; but Davis Cigars differ from all others. Find the Davis blend that suits you and you can always duplicate the quality. There is no variation. One Noblemen cigar is like every other Noblemen. There is no choice between two unopened boxes of Perfection Cigars. You KNOW what you will get on a repeat order. The secret of this uniformity is in the Davis factory and in the exact methods that are maintained on its many acres of floor space. Let us take a mental tour of the Davis factory.

HERE, then, at the foot of Mount Royal, stands the spotless, sun-lighted, wide-windowed home of Davis Cigars. The pure, fresh air blows straight across the fields, but to make assurance doubly sure, it is forced through pure water and washed before it enters the factory.

DID you ever stop to think that the cleanliness of the factory, the cheerful, conscientious, skilled workmanship of contented employees and the almost unending supervision and inspection of leaf and finished cigar, enter vitally into your enjoyment of the Havana weed? On this vast floor, bales upon bales of selected leaf are arriving from Cuba, Sumatra and other proven cigar soils. The tobacco, moistened so that it can be handled without breaking, is freed of every particle of the bitter centre stem. The leaves are sorted and graded so conscientiously that the top leaf in a bundle is an exact index of the whole bundle.

NOW, then, for the curing—a slow, leisurely process in the Davis factory. Six months, nine months, a year—the rule here is to take all the time required. Thorough curing means "body" brought out in a mild cigar, a satisfying smoke. You can readily see what this long process entails, when it is stated that the Davis investment in leaf being cured is never less than $600,000.00.

Every Davis Cigar is hand-made, made by skilled hands. Twenty foremen and inspectors check up every detail and every process before Davis Cigars are finally packed and sent to the Humidor for the final seasoning in the wood, before the boxes are sealed in wax paper, the last protection that ensures Davis Cigars reaching the tobacconist or the country store in prime condition.

Infinite care is the price of perfection. It is this infinite care that gives force and substance to the most sterling recommendation known to the Canadian cigar trade and the public—"It's a DAVIS CIGAR."

A Few of the Davis Brands:

Noblemen—	Full of quality, rich, satisfying, mellow	15 cents.
Promoter and Perfection—	Both mild enough for an all-day smoke	10 "
Grand Master—	Mild, mellow, of fine aroma	3 for 25 "
La Plaza—	Made to suit the Western taste	15 "
Davis Panatela—	Known from East to West as an after-dinner smoke.	10 "

It's a Davis cigar!

Inspector Is Pleased With Local Situation

Mr. F. W. Massop Is On An Official Visit to Eating Houses in Peterboro'

Mr. F. W. Mossop, of the Food Controller's Department, has been in the city on an official visit to the hotels, restaurants, cafes and boarding houses, and in his own words he has found the proprietors of the above-mentioned places of business "above the average and willing to meet the newly imposed conditions having in view British interests and the purpose for which they are intended." This in brief summarizes Mr. Mossop's view of the local situation.

"I don't say that about every place I visit," said Mr. Mossop. It is also one of Mr. Mossop's duties to interpret the law for the benefit of those concerned.

Increase in the Insurance Rates

KITCHENER HAS A SIMILAR EXPERIENCE TO PETERBORO.

In the past there have been some members of the city council who were inclined to view the underwriters' inspection of Peterboro's fire fighting facilities as sofething of a joke, and the recommendations that would follow were usually buried in the civic archives. Th appended cipping from the "Daily Telegraph," of Kitchener, Ont., indicates that the western town had a similar exprience, which has borne fruit in the form of increasd insurance rates. The item follows:

It has been learned that the recent increase in mercantile fire insurance of 15c on th $100, is not general throughout Ontario, but is particular in Kitchener. This raise in the rates has taken place all over the province but the advance has been varied in various cities and towns. Kitchener suffered the heaviest of all the cities in Ontario in the new rating.

A letter from the secretary of the Underwriters' Association, states that the large advance was made in this city due to the deficiencies that different inspections have shown in fire preventive appliances. The increase means that from mercantile insurance about $4,000 extra will be paid out yearly in premiums. The factories will also be rerated.

HARD WINTER ON STREET SERVICES.

REPAIRS TO BROKEN MAINS MEAN MORE HOLES IN THE PAVEMENT.

Judging by the appearance of George street, Peterboro might be preparing to resist an invasion. Every few yards a gang of men may be seen tearing up the pavement and throwing up an embankment around the excavatio. It has been said that the past winter was a particularly severe one on the various services that rest under the pavement with the result that numerous excavations have had to be made to repair broken pipes nd make other adjustments.

WOULD ABOLISH HANSARD.

Ottawa, May 18.—Senator William Dennis has given notice that he will move that Hansard be abolished. He has reached he conclusion that the Senate Hansard serves no useful purpose commensurate with its cost, and that at a time when every dollar counts in the national war effort, it should be abolished.

Personality Counts in the Air

WAR in the air as it is waged to-day recalls the olden times, when knights rode forth to battle and won honor and glory by their deeds of personal heroism.

The life of an aviator is full of romance, action, adventure, opportunities for glorious achievement, everything that could stir the imagination of a valorous young man.

Men with nerve, courage and sound physique, are needed to maintain the supremacy of the air. There are hundreds of Canadians now training for Commissions in the service.

Young men in good health, and of fair education, are invited to enroll as cadets. While training they receive $1.10 per day.

Men who come within the provisions of the M.S.A. are eligible only after having joined their Depot Battalion, when they may, with the consent of their Commanding Officer, be discharged for re-enlistment in the R.F.C.

The Peterboro' Registration

Many volunteers for the registration work are coming forward. As it is practically impossible to personally answer and recognize each kind offer of assistance, a general acknowledgment is made. And will be communicated with, further on, and so soon as the registration places are determined, will be advised where the service can be utilized.

The 'phone numben of the Registrar's office is 261. Send in inquiries, Any time between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., and often in the evening.

A general meeting of the Central Registration Board of the city is called for Monday night at the City Building, (Patriotic Fund Room). It is expected that members of the Board who have been making enquiry as to places available for use will each report that which he has found. Once permission is given steps will be taken to prepare the places for use. Some reasonable discretion has to be used in the selection.

Men only, can go in any old blacksmith shop, laundry or back shop, and vote or register. They have accepted such things as a matter of course. But when it comes to the ladies such places are not seemly. So some care has to be exercised to secure proper places.

The principals from the schools and Collegiate Institute have loyally lined up to assist. Already all teachers have agreed to take in the work and have signed up, as the expression is used. All are now members of the Registrar's Assistants Union, for record purposes only. Returns have come in from nearly all the schools and a meeting is announced for Tuesday night, at the Registrar's Office, City Building, of the principals, at which the work of planning out the service in the schools will be handed over. From three to four places will be made and manned and womaned on the day of registration.

This afternoon employers have a meeting for instructional purposes of the registration to be undertaken in factories. Members of the staffs to whom has been delegated the responsibility come together and size up the proposition. Employers after consideration have decided that the advantages of registration on their own premises will be a convenience to the hands and will ensure all being registered with a minimum of inconvenience.

An appeal to the women has brought forward many drawn from the local Societies of Women, and the service that will be given will lack nothing of thoroughness and efficiency. Further details of the part that women will play in the registration will be given so soon as arrangements have been brought into shape.

The appeal to the teachers of the local schools to lead in the volunteer movement has resulted in enrolling almost every teacher in the city whose duties and engagements will permit. With prospective examinations and writings for various examinations at Toronto coming on in June, teachers have cheerfully taken on the additional work from a sense of duty in a patriotic object. No such undertaking was ever projected to practically enroll the entire population of the Dominion by volunteer assistance.

Two Splendid Things

PETERBORO' HOUSEHOLDERS TAKE KINDLY TO NEW RESTRICTIONS

Grocers Have No Complaints to Make—Most of the Dealers Are Aware of the Customers' Needs—Sales Keep Up

Peterborough householders have taken kindly to the new restrictions concerning the hoarding of sugar and flour and have, during the past few months, made very little attempt to lay by any supply. A number of leading grocers interviewed this morning all reported the same conditions existing, that since the shortage of sugar which dates back to last fall, they have made few or no sales of over $1.00, the majority of purchasers have been satisfied woth 25 cents' worth.

In only one case, Porter S. White's store, flour, and only one bag has been brought back by a conscientious customer.

Advanced Price.

Mr. E. F. Mason said that at his store some sugar has been returned and he has paid the advanced price for such. He has had no cases of hoarding of flour, but has seen evidences of a panic amongst the people, where non-regular customers have obtained a limited amount from different stores. To such as are not regular customers he has only sold 25 cents' worth of sugar. Mr. Connal and Mr. Hamilton both reported very few attempts to obtain any quantity of sugar, and such attempts at their stores would have proved futile as the dealers themselves had a limited supply with, which they tried to supply every customer fairly.

During the past few weeks the sales have not fallen off but a regular custom on small sales kept up. Each grocer said that he knew pretty well what amount is regularly needed by their regular customers, and none have endeavoured to overstep the mark. There will, judging by the grocers' reports, be little work for the police in confiscating any over-supply of flour or sugar in the city.

Peterborough County Farmers Are Very Optimistic Over This Year's Crop Outlook

"The Crops Haven't Looked Better in Fifteen Years" Says Mr. J. A. Wilson of Otonabee--A Number of Farmers Are Putting Their Potatoes In.

FALL WHEAT PLOUGHED UP

The concensus of opinion among the farmers in Peterboro couny is that the crop outlook is excellent, and is away ahead of last year. Most of the farmers in Peterboro county is that and some have even started to plant the root crop. Almost every farmer says the old meadows are poor, the fall wheat a total failure, the clover about a quarter of a crop, and the hay not up to expectations.

OUTLOOK GOOD.

Harry Clark, of Springvile, says he has all his spring crop in. Last year he had 40 acres sowed but this year he will have over 45 acres. He says the outlook is good in that part of the country. He has just started to put in his root crop which will be considerable. The meadows on his farm are very poor. He sowed eleven acres but will reap only three, having lost in all 8 acres.

GREATER PRODUCTION.

D. H. Wood of Cavan, completed his spring sowing yesterday. He is going to plant three times as much ground this year as last. The root crop has not been started yet although he expects to start next week.

"At present the crop outlook is good. We can not complain of the lack of rain. Yesterday's heat was a big help. Everything has a rosy hue at the present time," said Mr. Wood. His fall wheat and clover was a failure.

PLANTING POTATOES.

T. Slattery of Otonabee township, has the biggest part of his root crop in. To-day he is planting potatoes.

"I plowed all my fall wheat up; it was no good. There was very little clover and what there was is very poor."

"TOO EARLY."

"It is too early to predict," said Mr. P. Westlake of Smith Township, when asked about the crop outlook. Mr. Westlake has all his spring crop in but will not start his root crop until the week after next. He says the old meadows are "just average, and nothing to blow about."

All his fall wheat was killed and had to be plowed up.

50 PER CENT. BETTER.

"The crop outlook is 50 per cent better than last year," said Mr. J. A. Wilson, of Otonabee.

"They haven't looked as good in 15 years."

Mr. Wilson's fall wheat was very poor. He put in 25 acres of wheat, and got only 9 acres.

IS OPTIMISTIC.

Mr. Alex. Sanderson of the Communication Road, said that nearly all of his fall wheat was killed out, as was also the clover. "The crops look better than last year at this time. "I think we farmers can afford to be optimistic."

Mr. Sanderson is now planting potatoes and will soon start the rest of the root crop.

A Number Of Interesting Letters From Driver Kerneghan

Peterboro' Soldier Meets a Number of Local Boys on the Western Front.

A BUSY TIME

Mrs. C. H. Kerneghan, 497 Aylmer Street, has received the following interesting letters from her son, Driver S. C. Kerneghan, in which the writer refers to a number of well-known Peterborough boys who are now in France. The letters follow:

April 18, 1918.

Dear Bro. Max,—Your letters came some time ago, but have been so busy that I have hardly had time to eat. I am fine and my bus is fairly well, but badly in need of a complete overhaul.

We have been some busy, and its troops, ammunition and supplies, and work night and day. I ran across Charlie Kingan, and he was just going into the line, and I met Clarence Henry—he is a Lieutenant in the Mechanical Transport, and he was sure glad to see me. Walter Head came in the other day, and it was like old times. Saw Ross McColl to-day, and he is fine. Pearle Eastwood is at Shorncliffe Military Hospital, and has a good job. Doc Kelly is still away over from me, and he is fine. Bill Thornton is around some place and Milf Hardill. So you see it is like home. You seem to be having some swell shows, and, gee, I wish I could see one and get home for a few days. Well, brother, I must close for now, and be sure and write often and tell me all the news.—Yours as ever,

Bro. Stan.

April 26, 1918.

Dear Mother and Dad and Max,—Just a few lines to you to let you know that I am fine and having a fair time. We are having some fair weather, but it is cool, and that makes it very uncomfortable when it rains, but, cheer up, can't complain about the weather on this job. Received your letters of March 29th and April 2, 1918, and sure was pleased to hear that everything is fine.

Well I must close for now and write to sister, and then go to bed and have a sleep, so that I can be on deck in the morning. Shep. is back from the hospital and he is fine now. Mac is fine also. Well, goodbye, with heaps of love, from Stan.

Dear People at Home,—Your parcel all O.K., and sure was very pleased to hear that you are all well, and that things are fine, and I am glad to say thot I am the same way. I was certainly glad to receive the eats, and I sure did enjoy them, and I was very glad, and you can bet that a parcel is a welcome from home, and especially at this time. I sure wish I could sit down with you all and tell you of my experiences and other fellows, and you can bet they are exciting, but the boys are doing their part and are giving Fritz an awful run for his money, but no army can stand such odds as he has, but they cut him like grass. Well, this is Sunday evening, and I certainly do wish I could get home to spend one with you all, but no such good luck, but hope to some day, and then I will be jake. Had an afternoon off to-day, and went down to a big town behind the lines and heard a lovely band concert by a French band, and it was swell. I sure felt lonesome. I am still waiting for Shep. to get his papers back, so we can go to the Flying Corps together, and hope they soon come, as this life is getting monotonous. But some day I will be there and taking my chance like the rest of the boys. I have seen crops of fall wheat here 6 inches high, and a mass of holes and ruined the same day, and then the Froggie goes real wild, but he has to suffer some; you can never realize it. Imagine what 500 shells a day would do to our town! Well, some places get that every day in the week. There sure is a war on now, but the Canucks are right there, and so are the Yankees. Fritz is paying dearly for his gains. The boys sure do mow them down, and a machine gun sergeant said to me, "More fun than shooting pigeons." There was a Fritz in a dug-out, and he said "I am a Christian, don't shoot me," but he had a revolver in his hand, and looked as if he was up to some trick, so a big Irishman said, "If you are a Christian like that, be-goa-rah you are dere for promotion." Well, exit Fritz.

BUILD UP THE BLOOD

You Cannot Have Health If the Blood Is Weak and Watery

It is a hopeless task to try to restore your health while your blood is deficient in quantity or quality. The blood circulates through every portion of the body. It takes nourishment from the food and distributes it to the various organs and muscles; it takes also and medication that is administered through the mouth. The blood is the only means by which medicine can reach the nerves. Hence if the blood is poor the body becomes weak and the nerves shaky, and the victim may be subject to headaches and dizziness, poor appetite, indigestion, a constantly tired feeling or perhaps to rheumatism, sciatica or neuralgia. Poor blood is the forerunner of nearly every ailment to which mankind is subject, and you can only enjoy robust health by keeping the blood rich, red and pure. To keep the blood in this condition no medicine yet discovered can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new, rich, blood which carries new health and new strength to every part of the body. When one becomes weak and pale Dr. Williams' Pink Pills restore the blood, bring the glow of health to the cheek and make weak, ailing people energetic and strong. Mrs. Stephen H. Williams, Kitchener, Ont., says:—"Some years ago my health started to fail. The doctor said my blood was thin and watery, but the medicine I took did not do me any good. My joints and limbs would ache and swell, until it was almost impossible for me to get up and down, and no one knows how much I suffered or how discouraged I was. Reading of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills one day I decided to try them. I got a couple of boxes, and by the time I had taken them felt an improvement. I then got six boxes more and before I had taken them all felt like a new woman in every way. I could do my housework without feeling tired, and in fact I was enjoying better health than I had done for years. You may be sure I will always strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all other sufferers."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or my mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"THEY SHALL NOT WANT"

In a moment of inspiration an advertising man recently hit upon the above four words as epitomizing the desire and determination of the people of Canada that the Armies of the Allies and the suffering peoples of the Allied nations of Europe shall be supplied with all that Canada can possibly furnish of the food stuffs necessary for their support in the energetic and successful prosecution of their struggle for the defeat of tyrannical Prussian aspirations.

Compressed in this little sentence is more real throbbing meaning than most full pages of printed matter contain. In sixteen letters it expresses the determination of a people that a great cause must be sustained at no matter what personal sacrifice.

"They shall not want."

How aptly these words also express the attitude of the NORMAL, HEALTHY-MINDED MAN towards, those who under our social system, naturally look to him for support and protection. As he thinks of the wife who has entrusted her future to his care and of the children whom he has brought into the world, his thought and determination is "THEY SHALL NOT WANT."

This is always the attitude of the normal, healthy-minded man who is willing to sacrifice, if need be, to attain this noble end.

A policy in the Sun Life of Canada provides the safest and most economical means of fulfilling this noble desire and determination and incidentally, if fortunately in time this mode of protection is no longer necessary he may himself reap the benefits of his savings and thrift.

Thus virtue has its own reward.

The Log of the Test Car Fleets

"Linear Miles, 1,044,686. Tire Miles, 4,178,744."

Thus runs the log of the SIX FLEETS as it turns up the leagues on leagues traveled by the Goodrich Test Cars in their country wide tire-testing cruise of 1917. That grand total marks the mileage high tide of tire making. Read in it the dawn of a new understanding of the service, the rise of a new standard which includes all other standards—The TESTED of—

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

The cold figures of the log underwrite the lasting strength of Goodrich tires; for no tire could hide a weakness in that multiplied mileage. Those records and the tires stand surety for Goodrich Tires of 1918.

For 1918 Goodrich Tires—look at their generous, masterful size at any Goodrich dealer—took the bulk of the rough going. They measured up to all the Goodrich Tire qualities, and added new virtues.

BLACK SAFETY TREADS, and SILVERTOWN CORDS, challenged every handicap of road and weather, and defeated them with steadfast dependability and durability.

You make the test your guarantee of pure food and pure gold. Make it your guarantee for tires, and gain economy, comfort and freedom from tire mishaps. Demand "Canada's Tested Tires."

WILL COLLECT PHONOGRAPH RECORDS IN PETERBOROUGH.

A movement has been inaugurated in Toronto to collect phonograph records of all kinds for use in military hospitals. It has been decided to start a similar movement in Peterborough, and Mr. Douglas Carlisle, of the A. W. Cressman Company, will be glad to receive any old or new records that may be useful for such a purpose. The Cressman Co. have kindly consented to allow their store to be used for the collection of such records.

For Overseas.

Doctors and nurses in military hospitals agree that nothing can equal the sweet strains of music for soothing the nerves of wounded and broken men during their convalescence.

From among those received a number of sets will be made up into packages. One set will be sent to each local military hospital and convalescent home. After they have been provided for the balance will be distributed to various hospitals overseas for the use of wounded soldiers in England and France.

Old phonographs will also be acceptable.

CARTRIDGES TURN UP IN GARBAGE TINS.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton has a new and serious difficulty to contend with in the common practice of careless people of throwing cartridges into the garbage cans. Only by chance a large number of these were found this wek, which otherwise would have blown up the incinerator plant. The garbage men know where these come from and should the practice continue the parties will be dealt with by the authorities.

Severe Pains In The Back

Told of Kidney Trouble—Was Unable to Work, But Finally Found a Cure by Using This Well-known Medicine

Gananoque, Ont., May 18. — There is plenty of enthusiasm in this town for Dr. Chase's Medicines, and many people ready with good reports of cures effected.

There seems to be no treatment for kidney derangements which proves effective in such a large proportion of cases as does Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is because the liver and bowels are usually involved as well as the kidneys, and this medicine overcomes the disease because it acts directly on these organs.

Mrs. W. Higgins, John St., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "My husband has made use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the last thirteen years. Previous to that he had several attacks of kidney trouble, accompanied by severe pains in his back. He became so bad that he was unable to work. Finally he started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the results were splendid. He quite recovered, and by using an occasional Kidney-Liver Pill he wards off recurrent attacks, and has never had any trouble since. We also use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home and find it an excellent salve."

Mrs. James Bishop, Stone St. N., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our home for some time, and find them an excellent remedy for pains in the back. They seem to help the stomach and kidneys to do their work more effectively. We are pleased to recommend them to others."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Look for portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box you buy.

Blotchy Skin

OVER 40 YEARS ON THE ROAD

The name of W. G. Reid of Hamilton, Ont., is a familiar one to thousands throughout the Dominion. For over forty years Mr. Reid has seen service as a commercial traveller. A letter recently received from him indicates how he suffered from Rheumatism, and at last found relief.

Read this letter:

Hamilton, Ont.

"About four years ago I wrote you of my condition from Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble and my efforts through travel and change of climate to rid myself of these unwelcome guests, and how I only found relief in Gin Pills after spending a lot of time and money in foreign lands.

Since then Gin Pills have been my sheet anchor. I find in advancing years a tendency of the kidneys to get out of order more easily than formerly but a few doses of Gin Pills puts them right and wards off other and more serious trouble. I feel it not only a duty but a pleasure to recommend Gin Pills for Kidney and Bladder Troubles to my thousands of personal friends throughout Canada to whom I am well known as a commercial traveller of over forty years' service."

Yours truly,

OPEN EVENING HELD IN QUEEN MARY SCHOOL

Successful Event Was Held Last Evening Under the Auspices of the Parents' Circle of the School

THE PROGRAMME

Perhaps one of the most successful events in the history of the schools in the city was the "soiree" held last night at the Queen Mary School, under the auspices of the Parents' Circle of that school. Encouraging in every way to the ladies who have persevered in making the Circle a most progressive and firmly established club, the evening passed off without a hitch, and the hundreds of visitors were deeply impressed by what such an order can do towards the welfare of a school. The evening was given to give the public an opportunity to look over the inner workings of the public schools.

Programme Unrehearsed.

The programme was presented solely by talent from the school, and was an eye-opener to the visitors of what a pleasant evening could be given by the talent every school embraces. No rehearsal was given, and no time diverted from the regular course of studies to prepare the really splendid numbers presented. The choruses, which were splendidly trained by Miss Stewart, were prepared without a piano. Special mention might be made of the charming little vocal duet (soprano and alto) by the two tiny Blade children.

The Programme.

Gave Save the King.
Selection by an orchestra of six of Miss Laura Logan's pupils who attend the school and Baden Green.
Address—Inspector Mowat.
Piano solo—Margaret Johnston.
Chorus by the Senior Pupils.
(This chorus was the same as presented to the Vicsregal party).
Piano solo—Doris Ferguson.
Address—Dr. Neal.
Violin solo—Baden Green, accompanied by Mildred Green.
Piano solo—Irene Breckenridge.
Selection—School Orchestra.
Piano solo—Margaret McKeen.
Duet (instrumental) — Lillian Green and Jean Wilgar.
Vocal duet by Mrs. Percy Blade's children.
Address by Mr. Fraser.
Piano solo—Margaret Widdess.
Piano solo—George Huffman.
Chorus—School Pupils.
Piano solo—Isabel Connelly.
Piano solo—Margery Turner.
Piano solo—Bruce Copping.

The Speeches.

Mr. Mowat gave an able address on education and its great value and the need of technical education in the city. Dr. Neal spoke on the value of supervised playgrounds and the health gained by well-ordered outdoor life and play. He also stated that most cases of rejection in the army were due to the neglect of some small illness in childhood before 10 years of age. Mr. Fraser spoke on the value of co-operation between teachers and parents.

First-Aid Kit.

During the programme the school which was thrown open, afforded great interest to the visitors in the really remarkable work of the children in art, etc. The first-aid kit supplied by the Parents' Circle was an object of great interest. The teachers were in their own rooms, ready to show all work and points of interest to the visitors.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood, and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds, and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Sinn Feiners Have Been in Communication

tectives, acting in co-operation with the military, while in the provinces they were carried out by the Royal Irish Constabulary. So far as has been ascertained, no formal charge has yet been preferred against the prisoners. They were taken into custo-day on warrants issued under the Defence of the Realm Act.

Many Arrests Made.

(By the Associated Press).

DUBLIN, May 10.—The Irish "Times" to-day says the Government has not acted a moment too soon, as all signs pointed to another outbreak of armed violence, possibly in connection with the landing of German troops on the Irish shores. A considerable number of arrests have been made in Dublin and throughout Ireland, according to a despatch to the "Times."

Professor Edward de Valera, President of the Sinn Fein; Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein; Countess Markievicz, Dr. Dillon and William Cosgrave, Sinn Fein M.P. for Kilkenny, have been arrested.

Additional arrests in Ireland reported in a Times despatch from Dublin include Dr. Hayes and Darrell Figgiss.

The Irish Question.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 18.—Signatures are being invited in Ireland to a proposal that the Irish question be submitted for adjudication to a competent International Tribune, says a despatch to the "Times" from Dublin. Such a tribunal, adds the despatch, might consist for, example, of the United States and the neutral Powers of Europe.

WONDERFUL REMEDY EXTRAORDINARY MERIT

Extract from an article dated Nov. 20, 1915, on the Adulteration of Food and Drugs, by United States Food Specialist.

SWAIZEMA is a blood purifier and tonic builder of extraordinary merit. There came to my notice while in Kitchener a case in which a most miraculous cure was effected through this wonderful remedy. A gentleman whose injured leg, caused by a simple "bark of the shin," as he termed it, had developed into a running ulcerated sore. For two years eminent specialists had treated at enormous expense the injured limb, without success. He was induced to try SWAIZEMA, which resulted in an absolute cure, and this with the purchase of two bottles only. The case in question coming as it did under my own personal observation, warrants me in telling readers of this page of one of the most remarkable "short cuts" to health that I have ever seen. (Name on request.)

Guaranteed and sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd. If your dealer cannot supply you, write to C. E. Swaisland, Mfg. Chemist, 32 Front Street West, Toronto.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES PRACTICALLY STAMPED OUT IN PETERBORO.

Contagious diseases in the city are practically stamped out and the town is in a more healthy condition than for many years at the same season. Scarlet fever has been reduced from six cases to four; two cases on the east side of the river and two on the west.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton reports very little disease—measles and typhoid being practically over, and very few cases this year.

Interesting Letter From a Peterboro' Boy Now Overseas

Lieut. J. C. Killoran Enjoyed the Trip Over

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Killoran 499 Albert street, have received the following letter from their son, Lieutenant J. C. Killoran, of the Royal Air Forces. Lieut. Killoran was formerly employed in the test department of the C.G.E.:

On Irish Sea, April 27, /18.

Dear Mother,— Am writing aboard ship. We expect to arrive to-night and I will mail this as soon as I know what my address will be. We had a real pleasant voyage and there was nobody very sick. I was not sick at all, at least I never missed a meal. I wrote to you from Halifax and hope you received the letter O.K. The Germans gave us a little excitement today and yesterday, but our gunners made short work of them. The service on board is excellent. It is English of course, and we have a large number of English stewards in the first class part of the ship (in officer's part). We've only got to push a bell to have anything we want. The meals are English too, and very ceremonious, but I do not like the English cooking nearly as well as American. However, I guess I will get used to that. We have had the best of everything and plenty of it.

Our part of the ship is a little palace, but eleven days on the water is a long time and I am glad that we will be soon on dry land again. We had two or three stormy days, the ship rolled around a bit, but I was not sick. However it is very uncanny when you are in a room to have it tilting and swinging and see your soup running around on your plate at meals.

I will write again as soon as I get time, after I arrive.

Your loving son,
JOE.

Munition Plants Well Supplied With Materials

Volume of Business Coming to Canada From American Sources

Dealers in steel in Canada are looking for some form of price control, apparently anticipating action from Ottawa, says Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News this week. As a general rule prices in Canada are well above the United States prices, in some cases working to the decided disadvantage of Canadian manufacturers.

The business of supplying plants on munition orders with material does not show any signs of dropping off. The great quest at present is to secure machine shop capacity to turn out the special war purpose machinery that is being so insistently called for. New plants for war business are being put in at Montreal and Toronto, while others are tooling again to change from 6-inch to the 9.2 orders, these plants having previously been engaged on this class of work.

Volume of Business.

A satisfaicory volume of business is coming to Canada from American sources, but the publicity which certain Canadian papers continue to give to this class of work makes it harder for the Canadian War Board at Washington to work to advantage.

Production is satisfactory at American mills and great success is attending the effort to catch up with war demands. The demand for scrap metal is insistent both in United States and Canada. As a general thing yards in this district are almost bare.

The drafting of men from the coal areas of Sydney is being watched with some interest. It is estimated that production there will fall at least 25,000 tons a month.

The trading in non-ferrous metals continues to be about the same, no new features appearing. Canadian dealers claim that on entering the United States fixed market they have to pay well over the fixed price in order to secure supplies. Small lots of Chinese tin come through at intervals, but it is very scarce, irregular and high in price.

Canadian dealers do not anticipate changed copper prices on June 1, when the present schedule expires. They point out that it is easy to secure supplies. The agitation for a higher price is being carried on by the mine group.

The waterfall coiffure is said to be coming back to crowd out ear muffins.

Higher Prices For Hardware

A Number of Lines Have Touched New High Levels—Hardware and Metal Markets

Another advance of 20c per pound has featured ingot tin during the week, and to-day's price on this metal is almost prohibitive, says "Hardware and Metal" for this week. Scarcity still predominates the situation, though Eastern reports indicate some licenses are being granted. However, it is further stated that all coming under said licenses is sold. Another increase in the price of solder has followed in the wake of the advancing market on tin. The results of various embargoes placed on shipments to this country are showing in badly broken stocks, with opportunities for replenishing remote.

Ten-gauge sheets and plates are reported in a very firm position, and that higher price levels will be established is indicated as a possibility within the near future. Two or three gauges of black sheets have shown an easier tendency during the week, but this, it is felt, will be shortly overcome in view of the uncertainty of securing further supplies.

Wire Nails.

The position of wire nails is one of extreme firmness. Importations of wire rods from the United States, which have been comparatively light during the past few months will, it is thought, be restricted even more in view of the Government demands on mill output. Whether Canadian mills will be able to supply the demands of the makers contains an element of uncertainty. Government intervention in operation of steel industries is, under existing conditions, always a possibility, so commercial requirements cannot be contracted for with definite assurances of fulfillment. These are factors which must enter into the determining of any new prices, and that higher levels may be reached in nails is not looked upon as uncertain.

New Prices.

Canadian manufacturers of builders' hardware announce new prices on their entire line of goods, the advance ranging from 8 to 10 ten per cent., immediately effective. The lines affected include door locks, door knobs, lock sets, sliding door locks, hat and coat hooks, casement fasteners, sash fasteners, etc.

Many important changes are noted in miscellaneous lines, malleable and cast iron fittings going higher, as well as advances in nail hammers, barn door hangers, chain pipe vises and tongs, post hole augers, steel squares, hammock chains, oil heaters and stoves being named. Business on seasonable lines continues in splendid volume, reports as to trade being very optimistic.

PILES ENTIRELY CURED.

Mr. Wm. Woodell, 207 St. John St., Carleton, St. John, N.B., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching, bleeding piles, and as a result have been entirely cured. For years I was a great sufferer from this distressing ailment and can say that three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me. You may use this letter for the benefit of others."

GREAT BRITAIN'S NEW TANKS INFLICT VERY HEAVY CASUALTIES

German Tanks Come Off Second Best In Battle of Cruisers—Ran From Hole to Hole, Completely Disorganizing the Foe's Preparations

CLEANED OUT MACHINE GUN NESTS

London, May 20. — German tanks, which made their first appearance on the western front during the recent German offensive, came off second best in their encounters with the more powerful and better managed British tanks. Full accounts have just reached the British general staff here of the first pitched battle between German and British tanks in which a squadron of six German tanks were routed completely by the British. The battle occurred on April 24 near Villers-Bretonneux, south of the Somme, in Picardy.

Six German tanks appeared in front of the British line shortly before noon and started to roll up the flanks of the British infantry positions. A call for help was sent to the nearest British tank camp and a squadron, including both "male" and "female" tanks, shortly appeared on the scene. A rough and tumble combat ensued.

BRITISH USE "WHIPPET TANKS."

The British female tanks, which appeared first, were outfought, but the arrival of the heavier male tanks completely changed the situation, and the Germans fled after receiving a bad beating.

Meanwhile the British had brought up seven of the new fast cruiser type called "whippet tanks," which debouched and attacked the enemy's infantry positions on a ridge, rolling up the German line from the north. It developed that this ridge was held by a line of machine gun posts, while beyond the crest a huge German force was massing in the open for an attack. The whippets ran from shell hole to shell hole, inflicting terrible casualties and completely disorganizing the enemy's preparations for attack.

INFLICTED OVER 400 CASUALTIES

These seven tanks each with a full crew of twenty men, inflicted more than 400 casualties on the enemy in this engagement, while the casualties on board of the tanks were only five men. The tanks left their base shortly before noon and were back at their base again by three o'clock in the afternoon.

An officer of the general staff, commenting on these engagements, to the Associated Press, said:

The British tank has justified itself—the Germans have adopted them but there is yet no evidence that they have any large number available. With the start which we have in tank construction, we should be able to preserve our superiority without any difficulty. The results of our employment of tanks are most encouraging in view of the man power question, and we ought to derive still more benefit from them in the future."

WAR BREEDS GERMAN MILLIONAIRES.

As an example of "how the war breeds millionaires" the Berlin Socialist paper Vorwaerts states that in 1913 there were 103 millionaires in Kiel, whereas now there are 202, while multi-millionaires have increased from 15 to 47. It takes only $250,000 to be a millionaire in Germany.

"The War Will Be Lost For Germany" Says Hun Socialist

Pessimistic Reflections Upon Germany's Future—"The World Coalition Must Be Dissolved"

THE BURDEN OF WAR

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Pessimistic reflections upon the future for Germany by Socialist Deputy David, writing in Schwaebische Tagwacht, are quoted in an official despatch to-day from Geneva. "If Germany does not succeed when peace is concluded in dissolving the world coalition, the war will be lost for her," the deputy says. "For in this case one could not call it a veritable peace. It will only be an armistice whose burdens caused by armaments will bring us to a state of total exhaustion. We cannot forever hold the entire world under domination. The situation of our country is most serious in spite of the success we have won and those we shall obtain in future. It is impossible to be mistaken when one cooly considers face to face the resources which our adversaries have at their disposal. A peace dictated by the military authorities has been concluded in the east and we are already beginning to feel the effects of it."

NEW PLANT OF THE QUAKER OATS COMPANY

The main building of the newly constructed plant of the Quaker Oats Company. To the left of the picture is an unfinished section of the mill. The foundation in the foreground will carry the new warehouse when completed. It will be another month or two before this portion of the mill is complete. Milling operations are under way and a number of the Company's employees have been brought back from Sudbury to work in the Peterborough plant.

Seed Prices Soared Almost Out of Sight

Turnip and Mangel Seeds Are Five Times As Dear As Before the War

COMPARATIVE PRICES

Vegetable and flower seeds have doubled, tripled, even quadrupled in price in some lines during the four years of the world's greatest war.

Canada is not a seed producing country. It may develop that line of industry, but so far the attempts made to get good seed crops in the Dominion have not been signally successful. Some seed-gathering has been done around Leamington and in the Okanagan Valley in British Columbia, but California is the corner of this continent where the seeds come from. The season in Canada is not long enough.

France and Germany were in pre-war days two of the chief seed-producing nations of the world. Things have changed since Mars began his rule. One French firm informed a Toronto dealer that it had lost 800 workers by the war. In consequence its output was almost entirely cut off.

Restrict the Export.

The neutral countries which produce seeds, Denmark, Sweden, Holland, all have restrictions on their export and the dealers there cannot send to England or America anything like the amount of seed they are asked for.

This explains why when the average man goes to a seed store to lay in a little stock of seeds with which to turn his back yard into a vegetable garden he pays two or three or four times as much as he would have for the same amount of seed in the golden days of peace and plenty.

Poor crops in some lines have had about as much to do with raising prices as has the war. Peas, for instance, were a failure last year and whether prices go still higher or become normal again depends on this year's crop.

Cauliflower Costly.

Cauliflower is one line that has soared terribly in ptice, and the seed is hard to get. It is up as high as $40 a pound now, and before the war $15 was a good price. The cauliflower seeds comes from Denmark and Holland mostly, and the Danes and the Dutch have put the screws on the export business with the result that there is a great shortage here.

Prices of turnip and mangel seed have mounted up like eagles, and this hits the Ontario farmer straight between the eyes. The prices are five times what they were before the war.

Beets come from Europe and so beet seed is sky-high. Carrot seed, the best of it at least, is French, and France is not sending much outside its borders now.

Buckwheat is one of the easiest crops for the farmer to handle, but the price has gone up from 50 cents two years ago to $1.90 now. Nevertheless the farmer can get a profit of $35 an acre, it is said, from a buckwheat crop. Also it is a late crop. If his fall wheat is a failure he can plow up the land and sow buckwheat.

Seed Wasted in Canada.

An expert seed man said that people in Canada are masters of seed. They lack patience to plant the seed properly. "The trouble is that they are in too big a hurry and they just drop the seed out of a dish or something like that, using three or four times as much as is necessary. Then they have to thin the roots out later on. Let them take their time as the Europeans do, drop the seeds one by one of necessary, and they will make it go much farther and also they will have far better crops."

Though the five cent package is still on the market, it is declared by some dealers that the amount of seed in it has been reduced. One big seed firm, however, prides itself on the boast that its five cent package remains the same as it always was, though it has risen about 150 per cent. in cost. "We have been selling it at a loss," said one member of the firm. "The bulk seeds are away up of course, but the package has stuck."

One of the seed dealers gave the following comparison of seed prices covering the years of the war (1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918), the figures being the price per pound:

Onions—$1.50, $1.50, $2.00, $3.00, $4.00.
Beets—50c, $1.00, $1.50, $1.75, $1.75.
Corn—10c, 15c, 15c, 20c, 25c to 30c.
Beans—15c, 17c, 20c, 25c, 25c to 30c.
Carrots—$1, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3.
Cabbage—$1.50, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50 to $4.
Tomatoes—$2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4.

Will Establish Permanent Lobby In The Capital

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, May 20.—Farmers of Canada have established a permanent lobby committee of the capital. They think if they can keep a committee at Ottawa all the time to watch the legislature and support their interests, and use influence with members and the government, they will get more concessions. Three of the leaders of the deputation which saw the government this week will remain in the capital to press the farmers claims. They are J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, C. W. Gurney, Paris, and J. Kernighan, Guelph. They will place all members on record, and where their answers are unsatisfactory to farmers, resigns.

Food And Health

ARTICLE III.

In the next few articles, I purpose bringing to your attention the value to the child of the different common foods used in the home, and giving one or two recipes illustrating each.

1. Value of Milk in the Child's Diet.—No food has the value of milk to a child. One and one half pints to one quart should be taken in a day by the average child. Milk contains all the five food principles and, therefore, does not need to be supplemented by other foods. However, every child will not drink this amount of milk every day in the natural form. It is not wise to give it all that way even if he cares for it well enough to do so, because there is danger of the child taking a dislike to it.

The child will get the full value of milk if it is combined in milk soups, or used in milk puddings. The cereals also can be cooked in milk instead of water. This gives a wide and varied rang of menus for the child.

In cooking milk it is better to cook it over hot water rather than over direct heat. If milk is boiled, a scum forms on the top, and this removes from the milk part of its food value.

The following recipes may be of value. Each one is an individual serving and large enough for a child.

Cream of Celery Soup.

C-Cup.
1-4 c. chopped celery.
1-2 c. boiling water.
1-4 c. milk.
1 teaspoon butter.
1 teaspoon flour.
1-8 teaspoon salt.
Pepper (very little.)
Onion juice.

Cook celery in water until soft. Press through a strainer. Melt butter, add to it the flour, salt and pepper and mix well. Add this to the celery stock and cook fifteen minutes. Then add milk and when hot serve.

Other vegetables may be used in place of celery—potato, carrot, etc.

Bread Pudding.

1-8 cup stale bread crumbs.
1-4 cup scalded milk.
1 teaspoon egg.
1 teaspoon sugar.
Salt.
1-2 teaspoon butter.
4 drops vanilla.

Soak crumbs in milk until soft. Add sugar and salt to egg, then combine the two mixtures and add butter and vanilla. Turn into a buttered cup and bake in a slow oven.

Chocolate may be added to this to make a little variation.

One could use cooked oatmeal instead of bread crumbs.

How To Ascertain If You Have Catarrh

Look for Symptoms of This Treacherous Disease in the Following List.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Is your voice raspy?"
"Does your nose stop up?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Do you spit up phlegm?"
"Has your nose an itchy feeling?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to sneezing fits?"
"Do your ears roar and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrhozone," a direct breathable cure that places antiseptic balsams and healing medication on every spot that's tainted by catarrhal germs.

"No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrhozone," writes T. T. Hopkins, of Westvale, P. Q. "I had for years a stubborn case of bronchial catarrh, ear noises, headache, sore eyes, stopped-up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrhozone cured quickly."

The dollar outfit last two months, and is guaranteed; smaller size, 50c., sample size, 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, the The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Beau Brummel's Superstition.

A coin with a hole in it is said to be lucky. Beau Brummel traced the beginning of his ruin to accidentally giving his lucky coin (a sixpence with a hole in it) to a cabman. To the close of his life he maintained that "Rothschild or some of his rascally set got hold of it."

Sewing Machine Aid.

Take a board that will fit easily in the machine drawer and drive finishing nails in it at regular intervals about two inches apart. Put your spools of thread on these nails, with numbers up, arranging white thread on one side, colors on the other and silks at the back.

Dwarf Trees in Small Gardens.

Dwarf trees are suited to small gardens, they occupy little space, are easily cared for, bear sooner than standard kinds, and they are easily shaped into bushes and pyramids, or can be used in espalier forms, trained on buildings, fences or trellises.

Winnipeg Travellers Get Chance to Study Hinterland

New Ontario's immense forest resource and seat of Provincial Colonization Scheme of Great Interest

The traveller nowadays wants something more than formal seat space, and the well established service of the Canadian Northern to Western Canada affords ample opportunity for thought. The immense stands of merchantable timber, the untold wealth in water power, and the great commercial and agricultural possibilities of Northern Ontario should be matters of common knowledge to Canadians. Modern trains of standard and tourist sleeping cars and coaches leave Toronto Union Station at 10.00 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, connecting at Winnipeg for all points in Western Canada.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

HELEN IS FRIGHTENED

CHAPTER LXXI.

Claude Huntington called. It was one rainy afternoon soon after the dinner party. He brought me an exquisite bunch of violets, and was so gay and chatty that I really was enjoying his call. He was still flattering, and said such extravagant things about my beauty my taste in dress, and my well appointed home, that I blushed with embarrassment and—I confess it—pleasure.

We commenced to talk of the different people I had met, and I must have shown my feeling against Madge Loring. I did not realize it, at the time; but in the light of what came after, I concluded I had let Claude see more than I intended.

He had been with me about half an hour when I heard George come in. I called to him:

"I'm in here, George," but as he made no reply, I went to the door and said: "Mr. Huntington is calling. Won't you come in?"

"No—I shall go directly to my room."

I was embarrassed. I knew that Claude must have heard. But, more than that, I was frightened. George looked so stern, so almost angry. Was he provoked because Claude had called? Was he, could he be, jealous? Anyway, I was so uncomfortable, so ill at ease that Claude went almost immediately.

I ran upstairs with a determination to have it over. I was so frightened that I trembled, and could scarcely stand. George was by the window looking over some papers.

Do Stop Asking Questions.

"Why wouldn't you come in, George?" I asked.

"Because I didn't care to."

"I thought maybe you were provoked at me."

"What for? A guilty conscience"—

"No I thought perhaps you didn't like it because Mr. Huntington called."

"That whippersnapper! If you were entertained and admire his type, why should I care? You certainly are old enough to know your own mind. Please don't ask me any more questions. I am busy."

"But, George, what made you look so cross?"

"Eh—"

"What made you look so cross when I asked you to come in?"

"Do stop asking questions! will you never learn to give up that habit! you are a perfect question mark. And it is very annoying."

I said no more. Anyway, I had no reason to be afraid. I smiled to myself—a rather grim sort of a smile—as I thought I had imagined George jealous. He didn't care enough to be jealous of me.

Thinking of this brought to my mind that, in one way and another, it had been made clear to me that he had spent a good deal of time with Julia Collins, of late. If he wasn't jealous of me, I was of him. And every time I spent a long, lonely evening, I now wondered if he were with her. But that was one thing I dared not question him about.

Try to be a Brave Woman.

The next morning Evelyn came over.

"I just met Julia Collins, and she looked stunning," she commenced. "But for goodness' sake, Helen, I can't see why you are jealous of her. She is a good ten years older than you are." (I had confided my jealousy of the handsome widow to Evelyn).

"I know Evelyn. And if she were like other women, an ordinary type, I don't think I should be a bit jealous. But she says and does anything she likes, and yet is so popular. She is so fascinating, too. I hate her, yet she fascinates me. I can't help feeling that she is dangerous—her beauty at times is almost unearthly."

"Diabolical, rather."

"I believe she is in love with George. I believe Mrs. Sexton thinks so, too. And, Evelyn, she doesn't care a straw that he has a wife."

"Oh pshaw, Helen! don't be so silly. Why, Mr. Howard has known her for years. If he had cared for her, he would have married her."

"That's just where you are mistaken. He wouldn't! He wanted a wife he could make over to suit him. Do you suppose he, or any other man, could make Mrs. Collins over, or make her do anything she didn't want to? I believe that is why she fascinates George. She must! He spends so much time with her."

"Don't get unhappy over her, Helen," Evelyn said, but I thought her eyes took on a sympathetic look. "Such women are never happy unless they have a man dangling after them. But Mr. Howard has too much sense to leave a young and pretty wife, like you, for a woman older than he himself (and so much older than you), no matter how fascinating she was!

"But, Evelyn, I am so afraid he will. I can't please him! he won't spend any time with me. It is terrible to feel that he prefers her to me—his own wife."

"Now, Helen, stop right away. Try to be a brave women, not a silly child."

To-morrow—A Guest for Dinner.

FORTUNE WAS WITH AVIATOR

Otherwise His First Attempt to "Loop the Loop" in Air Would Have Been His Last.

It took many days of nerving myself up to the point and many steep dives before I decided to "flip her over," Phillip Dwight Rader writes in Sunset.

The sun was high above me and I had attained an altitude of about 5,000 feet when I felt I was ready to take the plunge. To this day I am grateful to the maker of the machine because he constructed it so good and strong. If the plane had had a flaw, the manner in which I took that first loop would have landed me in the cemetery.

When the impulse came over me, I felt around to see if my belt was secure. It was. Bracing myself for the ordeal, I gave her full power and shoved her nose straight down. Straight for the earth I went, the combined force of gravitation and of the wide engine giving the plane a fearful speed, the stays shrieking in the wind and the control columns vibrating in my hand with the enormous pressure.

Steadily, firmly, I pulled the controls back. As if by magic the earth vanished from sight and my feet pointed toward the sun. It lasted only for a moment. While my ears were still deafened by the rush of blood to the head, the earth hove into sight again, at a queer angle and my head seemed to be pushed back between my shoulders. In another second the earth resumed its accustomed position. I had looped the loop!

But oh! what a loop! Later experience taught me to throttle a little on the dive and to dive much less, or with just enough speed to put the plane on its back and then let it fall out of the loop. In that first loop of mine I must have had a speed of 150 miles an hour and how the plane stuck together with that terrific pressure has always been a mystery to me!

Lively Wedding Festivities.

Wedding festivities were turned to rioting in Natal, the other day. The daughter of a native chief had been married to another chief, Sabindi. After the wedding a dance took place about a hundred yards from the kraal. Sabandi having made his speech of thanks, he inquired as to the appearance of an "army" under the bridegroom, which had not been present at the ceremony. The party began to mock at, and some threw stones at the spectators. A melee ensued, some of the spectators taking refuge in the kraal. Up to this time no assegais had been noticed. However, Nzanyana, one of Majuzi's men, was stabbed with an assegai behind the right shoulder, and killed. Other casualties were stabs and injuries to the head and sustained by seven natives, all serious, but none fatal up to the present. As a result of the affray about 400 natives will probably be charged.

Potatoes for Ducks.

Ducks, as well as humans, must eat substitutes.

Small potatoes, too small, in fact, for the farmer to have paid any attention to ordinarily, are said to have solved the problem when mixed with carrots and other materials, minus wheat.

"No wheat is to be used for duck feeding," said W. B. Ayer, Oregon food administrator. "Substitutes must be found, and I am told that patriotic owners of duck lakes have discovered a remedy and have applied it. They are paying high prices for small potatoes, which in former days would not have been dug at all. These they are mixing with other materials and the ducks are thriving on them."

OIL WELL IN ENGLISH TOWN?

Undoubtedly Fluid Is There, but From Whence It Came Seems to Be Matter of Mystery.

Polluted well water of long standing at the market town of Ramsey, near Peterborough, England, prompted one well owner to dig for the cause, says an exchange. He struck oil in short order and created a boom and a mystery. Another well also yielded oil. Pumpings from both, averaging 500 gallons a day, sold on the spot for 2 shillings the gallon and burned in lamps like ordinary illuminating oil.

Speculators jumped at the find rather cautiously. They lacked the sporting spirit of Kansas and Oklahoma boomers. One ventured a £5 note for a share in a well and asked £1,000 for his interest next morning. Nothing doing. The game wasn't ripe enough for plungers.

Official tests of the oil deepened the mystery. They showed the oil was already refined, carrying a specific gravity of 8.0, which is the gravity of refined oil. One of the testers, whose opinion was flouted, offered a bet of £500 that the oil was not natural oil. No takers.

The present conclusion seems to be that the oil is due to leakage from some unknown source. There are no oil tanks in Ramsey or Peterborough town and the source of the leak, if such it is, must be at a greater distance. Lucky well owners are not worrying about the source. With all the zeal of gold diggers they stick to the pumps and rake in the shillings from eager buyers of the fluid.

WHALE PAYING FOR ITS SINS

Descendants of Big Fish Are Now Being Swallowed by the Descendants of Jonah.

We rise to a defense of Jonah. He was not a bad sort. In fact, he had always been a good citizen and a friend of the poor; but because he balked at going on a political mission to a bum town the political machine hired a gang of pirates to pitch him from the hurricane deck and compel him to swallow a whale—or was it the other way round? It was a mean trick and Jonah knew it, and he made it so hot for the whale that the latter spewed him out at Long Beach, in which city, for his own safety, he feigned repentance and delivered the message with which he had been intrusted. However, ever since that time the sons of the prophet have had it in for the whale and at last the time has come to get even. Today whale steak is being sold in great quantities at the butcher shops. It is cheap meat and is almost as good as mutton or veal. Take a whale steak half an inch thick, drop it in boiling water for a minute, adding a pinch of soda, then take it out and place it in a hot, greased pan, sear it quickly on both sides, fry it for three minutes, add butter, pepper and salt, and you have a dish fit for a king. Verily the sins of the whales are visited upon their children.

Peanut Bread a Success.

A baking company in Gainsville, Fla., working in co-operation with B. F. Williamson, a chemist of that city, has put peanut bread upon the market and is securing wide distribution for it in that locality. The peanut flour used is made from peanut cake left after oil extraction. It contains a satisfactory percentage of fat and is said to have almost twice the nitrogenous food value of dried beef—44 per cent for peanut flour, against 25 per cent for dried beef.

One-fifth peanut flour to four-fifths wheat flour produces a balanced ration, supplying necessary ingredients furnished by bread and meat in human diet. Peanut flour is said to be readily digestible, wholesome and palatable, and the Florida concern believes it will be able to market it at a price below that of wheat flour, pound for pound.

A Thing of Beauty.

The plume of the ostrich is like nothing else in nature. The nearest resemblance is to be found in an ephemeral thing—the foam of a breaking wave. It must be unthinkable ages since the wings of this bird subserved any use but that of beauty; their function in the matter of covering the eggs during incubation is quite secondary and could easily be dispensed with. The perfectly even barbs are soft as gossamer and, contrary to the rule among birds that fly, quite disconnected and independent one of the other. The quills, from their point of emergence from the socket, become increasingly flexible and lithe. The plumes convey suggestions of luxuriant duerility, of effortless grace, of sumptuousness, and above all, of purity.—William C. Scully, in Atlantic.

Fine Paint Made From Tar.

The Revue de Chimie Industrielle notes that a brilliant black paint which dries well and is far superior to mineral varnish may be made by mixing equal parts of coal tar with benzine or coal oil. Spread thinly with a hard brush, it penetrates the wood, which it preserves from decay, and it adheres well to metals, at the same time preventing them from rusting.

VINOL MAKES GOOD BLOOD

Positive—Convincing Proof

Many so-called remedies for anaemia are only so in name. Their makers are afraid to prove their claims by telling what their medicines contain.

The only way to be honest with the people is to let them know what they are paying for. Here is the Vinol formula. When the doctor knows what a medicine contains, it ceases to be a "patent" medicine.

Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates, Iron and Ammonium Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycerophosphates, Cascara.

Any doctor will tell you that the ingredients of Vinol, as named above, will enrich the blood and banish anaemia and create strength. When the blood is pure and rich and red, the body is strong and robust.

You can prove this at our expense because your money will be returned if Vinol does not improve your health.

AND THEN THEY UNDERSTOOD

Mention of Popular "Movie" Hero Enlightened Children as to Meaning of Word "Famous."

Class 1, second grade, was reading. Tom came across the word "famous," which had to be sounded out. By the blank expressions on the children's faces the teacher knew that they had no conception of the meaning of the word. She explained its meaning in language so simple that the seven-year-olds might comprehend. Then to illustrate, she asked, "Have any of you ever heard of Madam Schumann-Heink?"

One little boy of German parents said: "I have. She sings."

Then the teacher inquired: "Have you heard of Fritz Kreisler?" Silence followed. Then one little black-eyed girl volunteered: "People on the stage are famous."

"Yes, sometimes," the teacher assented. "You no doubt have heard of Sarah Bernhardt." Not a light of recognition in a single eye appeared at the mention of the "Divine Sarah."

Suddenly Tom's face beamed and he madly waved his hand in his instructor's face as he explained: "Oh, I know who is most famous of all—Doug. Fairbanks!"

If Mr. Fairbanks could have stepped into that room at that moment! Such frantic ejaculations of joy as emitted from the mouths of those youngsters! Such is the glory of being famous!

Not a Total Wreck.

"What have you done with your play?"

"It didn't go as a farce, so I had some music composed and tried it as an opera, but it fell flat. Then I boiled it down into a vaudeville sketch, but nobody would touch it."

"Too bad. A total loss, eh?"

"Not total. There's one good joke in it; I can sell that for 50 cents."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TO SUFFER FROM HEADACHES

Makes Life Miserable

Headaches seems to be habitual with many people. Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually with the dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on.

The varieties of headache most common are sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, debility or indigestion and periodical and spasmodic headache, and undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that has been on the market for over 40 years, removes the cause of the headaches, and not only does this but also restores the entire system to healthy action and buoyant vigour.

Miss Emily Smith, 204 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. For two years I was greatly troubled with violent headaches, particularly in the morning. I tried everything to cure me until a friend recommended B.B.B. I tried it, and now I am completely cured."

THE FLY'S BALANCERS.

Without These Organs the Insect Would Tumble to the Ground.

The insects of the Diptera order, to which the common housefly belongs, have, as a rule, one pair of wings and rudimentary remnants of another pair in the form of a club shaped organ on either side of the thorax behind the wings. These organs are called "balancers" and, as experiments have shown, are indispensable to the maintenance of equilibrium.

A fly from which they have been removed cannot direct its flight, and if it tries to fly from the edge of a table will immediately take a downward course, dropping to the floor on its head about three feet away and falling over on its back. Similarly, if it tries to fly from the floor after succeeding in getting on its feet again it will rise in the air two or three inches and then again tumble, striking its head and turning over on its back as before, but only about four inches from its starting point. Horizontal and ascending flight becomes absolutely impossible.

The similarity between these artificially produced insect mishaps and many an aeroplane accident is striking, and a study of why the removal of the fly's balancers causes it to upset may go a long way toward solving the problem in aeroplane construction.—Westminster Gazette.

Lamb Steaks Recommended.

One item of waste in the meat trade of this country has been in the slaughter of lightweight lambs for fancy consuming demand, and the Butchers' Advocate calls attention to the fact that heavy lambs are the staple in England and Canada, and that butchers there make a practice of reducing hind quarters for leg of lamb to the size desired by the average family, cutting off lamb steaks for separate sale. If retail butchers in this country would handle heavy lambs in that way, building up trade for lamb steaks, which are considered fine meat, says the Butchers' Advocate, it would be possible to raise market lambs to greater weights, increase the meat supply, and probably bring better profits to the grower.

Oath Purposely Made Stringent.

The term "iron-clad oath" has no significance now. It was the name given to a very stringent oath of office prescribed by congress in 1862 and applied at the close of the Civil war for officeholders in the re-constructed states. It was intended to exclude from office all who had participated in the Civil war on the Confederate side, and really had that effect because they could not take the oath.

REFUSED TO LAUGH.

A Joke on Himself That Mark Twain Failed to Enjoy.

When Mark Twain was a resident of Hartford, Conn., he once called at the office of Dr. Swan, a local specialist of considerable repute, to consult him regarding a trivial ailment.

The physician was inclined to be rather arbitrary in his charges, was very independent and disliked exceedingly to be consulted in regard to minor ailments. In this instance he named a fee for his services that the economically minded Clemens thought excessive.

After a little argument Mr. Clemens declared that he would not pay any such price as the physician asked and rose to leave. Just as he turned his back on Dr. Swan a voice said distinctly:

"Go along home, you old fool, you!"

Instantly Mark Twain wheeled around, angry through and through. "What's that, sir?" he roared at the doctor. "What's that you say?"

With a smile that was cloying in its sweetness Dr. Swan pointed to a cage in the corner where his parrot was swinging and chuckling with birdish glee, and explained:

"That is the gentleman who spoke to you, sir." Somehow the explanation did not seem to reduce Mr. Clemens' anger very much, and he never entirely believed in Dr. Swan's innocence.—New York American.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

What the Clock Said

A Medieval Romance

By F. A. MITCHEL

In the year 1370 a holiday was proclaimed in the town of Strassburg. The occasion for rejoicing was the setting up of a clock in a tower built for the purpose, where all citizens could see it and note the time of day. This was the second clock of which we have any account, the first having been placed six years before in a tower in the palace of Charles V. of France. There were no pendulums to these primitive clocks, the regulators being flywheels. But since the flywheel was resisted by the air it acted imperfectly, as any one may see by watching a windmill which turns as fast or as slowly as the current that moves it.

Nevertheless the good people of Strassburg, who had been always obliged to regulate their movements by the sun, which rose very early in summer and late in winter, were delighted at now having something that would divide the day for them, telling them what time to go to work in the morning, when to have meals and when to go to bed. The day the clock was put into the tower they feasted from morning till night, and when the hands pointed to the hour of 9, though it was the month of June and still daylight, all said their prayers and went to bed for the first time in their lives knowing that they had turned in at a proper hour.

From this time forward everything was regulated by the clock. Before it was set up the mayor of the town had been the ruler, but now his authority was superseded by the clock. With its flywheel influenced by the currents of air that whistled through the tower it reeled along like a drunken man trying to get home, sometimes getting the people up an hour or more ahead of time in the morning or putting them to bed in the middle of the afternoon.

But, though knowledge often creeps, still it moves. The people of Strassburg, having made a beginning by setting up a timepiece, soon found a way to make it serviceable in other respects than by dividing the day. The mayor ordered that the clock be the calendar by which all public matters be regulated. If Frana Gotlieb promised to pay Carl Stengel a sum of money in thirty days it meant that when the hour hand of the clock had made the circle of its face thirty times the money would be due. If Hans Bunker drank too much beer and was sentenced for making an unnecessary noise to ten days' imprisonment it meant that the short hand on the clock must rotate ten times before Hans would be free again.

There lived in Strassburg at this time a maiden named Gretchen Borchert, whom everybody loved for her amiable disposition, her beauty and her piety. Gretchen loved Josef Breit, a young carpenter, roofer, mason, well digger—in short, one who did anything required in, on or about the homes of the people of the town. Unfortunately for Gretchen, another girl, Anna Huber, also loved Josef, and, finding that Gretchen was the winner in the matter of Josef's affections, she resorted to a devilish means of putting her rival out of the way. Anna went before the judge of the court and swore that Gretchen was a witch. The accuser named several persons whom Gretchen had bewitched. She swore that she had herself seen Gretchen standing over a well swallowing crooked pins and carrying water in a sieve.

Gretchen was brought before the court for trial. Every one of the persons named by Anna as having been bewitched by Gretchen was found to be a dangerous lunatic. Several witnesses testified that they had seen Gretchen riding over their houses on a broomstick, and a little girl of seven declared that she had seen the culprit sweeping cobwebs from the sky. All this testimony was admitted except that of the last witness, whom the judge considered too young to testify. However, there was quite enough without this to warrant the condemning of Gretchen as a witch, and the judge sentenced her to be burned at the stake. In order that she might have time to cast out the devil that was in her before going to her long home, the day of her execution was fixed at two weeks from her sentence.

Josef, strange to say, was not in the least influenced by all this overwhelming evidence to believe that his sweetheart was a witch. Indeed, he was sure that she was the same lovely girl she had always been. And he knew, Anna having tried her best to make him love her, that she had accused her rival of witchcraft, hoping that with Gretchen removed Josef could be won.

Those were superstitious times, as may be inferred from the trial and condemnation of this innocent girl. Josef turned to something more powerful than himself to save his sweetheart. As has been said, the clock had superseded the mayor and all others in authority in Strassburg, so the clock being the most powerful thing Josef had any knowledge of one night when every one was in bed he knelt at the base of the tower that supported it and prayed to it to tell him how to prevent Gretchen from being burned at the stake.

Whether or not it was the clock that put the idea into Josef's head—Josef did not doubt it was the clock—he certainly conceived it while he was on his knees before it asking for help. Rising, he went at once to the tower and, being an expert at climbing, made his way up to the clock. Once there he set the hands ahead a couple of hours.

The next morning all the people of Strassburg woke up to find that they had overslept themselves and some of them hurried to their daily work without taking time to eat their breakfasts. But not one of them thought of accusing the clock of being wrong. From that time forward for two weeks they found themselves at times getting out of bed too late, at times too early, but it was usually too late. Some of them believed that Gretchen had bewitched the town and they would not return to regular habits until she had been executed.

These persons sent one of their number to the mayor asking him to burn the witch at once without waiting for the appointed date of execution. The mayor told them that the law could not be interfered with. The culprit had been sentenced to be burned on a certain day and if she were not burned on that day the curse of heaven would fall upon the town.

Meanwhile the citizens of Strassburg were starting their day at all sorts of hours. But they were no worse off in this respect than before the clock was set up—that is, in cloudy weather, when the sundial cast no shadow—and when they once got started in the morning the clock pursued a steady course for the rest of the time they were out of bed.

The day before the execution came round a stake was embedded in the ground and fagots arranged about it in such fashion that they would make a hot fire. Most of the people were plunged in sorrow, for they loved Gretchen, and even if she were a witch she might have been bewitched by another, which would not have been her own fault. But all agreed she must not be permitted to bewitch others, and the only way to prevent that was to put her out of the way.

On the morrow of the execution the people awoke, according to the clock, at the proper hour, and it was generally presumed that the witch, in view of the early relinquishment of all power to harm human beings, had withdrawn from troubling them. Gretchen was to be burned at noon, and there was to be a holiday to witness the burning. The mayor of Strassburg went to his office early to give his final orders concerning the execution. He found waiting for him Josef Breit, who said to him:

"Most worthy mayor, I have a confession to make. On the night following the sentence of Gretchen Borchert I, believing her to be innocent, knelt at the base of the clock tower and prayed to the clock that if she had been wrongly accused to tell me how to save her, whereupon the clock asked me how many days would elapse before the execution. When I replied that fourteen days must pass, the clock told me to set its hands ahead twenty-four hours during the interval, so that a day would be lost. I did so, and know, O worthy mayor, that yesterday was the day fixed by law for the execution of the witch."

The mayor looked at Josef dumfounded, not speaking for some time; then he said:

"What right had you to tamper with the clock which regulates all our actions?"

"The authority of the clock itself. I have told you I prayed to it that if the girl were innocent it should tell me how to avert her execution. The clock then told me how, by moving its hands, I might lose the day fixed by law from the calendar."

The mayor at once sent for the chief citizens of the town and told them what had happened. Some of them believed Gretchen innocent and some believed her guilty. The former argued that by setting the clock ahead the day fixed for the execution had passed, the latter argued that it had simply changed the day from the one appointed to the one after, but no one contended that the moving of the hands had no effect on the calendar.

So it was that these two factions argued with each other, at first peaceably, each endeavoring to convince the other; then excitedly and with loud voices till at last they came to blows. They fought each other the rest of the morning. Finally Josef went out and, looking at the clock, told them it was long past noon, the hour for the execution. Then the mayor, who had waited to make the contest between the factions a trial of force, which was still in vogue in those days, to decide Gretchen's fate called them to order and said:

"There is every reason to assume that the girl is innocent. In the first place, Josef prayed that he might be instructed only if she were innocent; secondly, I am convinced that if I had permitted the fight to go on those who contended for her innocence would have won; thirdly, we have no wise man with us to tell us what effect the clock has had on the day of execution, whether the day was yesterday, is today or will be tomorrow. I therefore order that the culprit be set free."

Josef rushed to the jail to impart the good news to Gretchen, who, on receiving it, fell into his arms in a swoon. As soon as the order of the mayor arrived Josef led his sweetheart out into the light of day. Citizens who had heard of the turn the affair had taken stood at the door and lined the street to congratulate their favorite on her escape. They insisted that Josef's and Gretchen's progress be made a wedding procession, and the couple went straight to the church and were married.

As for Gretchen's accuser, she took to flight, fearing the vengeance of her rival's friends.

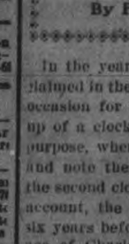
THIS WEAK, NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.



Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kep me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. J. WORTHLINE, 2842 North Taylor St., Philadelphia Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down, nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

Heart Beat So Fast

Could Not Sleep
HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it will burst. You have weak and dizzy spells, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

There is no other remedy will do you so much good, restore your heart to a natural condition, build up your strength and give you back vigor and vitality as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. Russell, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "At nights I could not sleep, and had to sit up in bed, my heart would beast so fast.

"When I went to walk very far I would get all out of breath, and would have to sit down and rest before I could go any further. I was advised to get Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had used two boxes I could sleep and walk as far as I liked without any trouble."

Had Headaches Was Always Tired

Sleep or Rest Was Impossible, For Nervous System Was Greatly Exhausted and Irritated

JORDAN, Ont., May 20.—As the result of Mrs. Thwaites' happy experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, many people in this district have put this great food cure to the test and proven its exceptional restorative powers.

This was an extreme case of nervous exhaustion and the cure effected was so thorough and radical that there could be no doubt of the value of this treatment. This is how Mrs. Thwaites describes her cure, and her statement is certified to by her pastor.

Mrs. Stephen G. Thwaites, Box 205, Jordan, Ont., writes: "For about a year I was troubled with nervousness, and took doctors' medicine, but it did not seem to relieve me. I could not sleep nor content myself to do anything. I had severe headaches, was tired all the time, and afraid to stay alone. I also tried several nerve medicines until almost discouraged. At last I discovered Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and found relief in this. I had only taken one box when I began to feel better. I continued using this treatment until my nerves were restored to perfect health. I think the Nerve Food splendid for nervous troubles of any kind, and cannot recommend it too highly."

Rev. S. F. Coffman, Vineland, Ont., states: "This is to certify that I know Mrs. Thwaites, and her statements are correct."

An attendant at a certain institute for the deaf and dumb was undergoing a pointless rapid fire inquisition at the hands of a female visitor.

"By ringing the dumb bells, madam," retorted the exasperated attendant.—London Answers.

FEARED APPETITE OF "SEAL"

One Time That Theodore Roosevelt, When Small Boy, Would Willingly Have Dodged Church.

Apropos the going out of existence of the Madison Square Presbyterian church, Madison avenue and Twenty-fourth street, New York, by its absorption into the "Old" First Presbyterian church, there is being told many a story of celebrities connected with this famous church. One relates to Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who was reared there, his father, Theodore Roosevelt, being an officer.

"Teddy" was a good boy and went to church every Sunday, even seeming to enjoy the long sermons of the late Rev. Dr. William Adams, who was pastor for 40 years. But one day there came a Sunday morning when the boy was not so zealous about accompanying his father.

After service on that fateful morning Mr. Roosevelt went up to speak to Mr. Adams. "Teddy" did not want to go. But his father insisted. Once by the pulpit the face of the child turned pale, his hand in that of his father's became cold, and the child clung closely to his father's coat.

Mr. Roosevelt looked down, scared, and asked: "My son, what is the trouble? I never knew you to be afraid of anything before in your life, and there is nothing in the church to harm you, anyway."

"Father, father," gasped the boy, "I am afraid the 'seal' will eat me, too."

The previous Sunday Doctor Adams had preached on a text from Psalms 23:9. "For the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up."

Daniel Boone's "Relegan."

Instinctively like answers the call of like, and perhaps the reason so many of us venerate the memory of Daniel Boone, great pioneer, explorer, hunter and surveyor, is that we have a similar gift for spelling. The Columbia Missourian reprints the following letter, written by Boone shortly before his death: "All the relegan I have is to Love and fear God believe in Jesus Christ do all the good to my neighbor and my self that I can and do as little harm as I can help and trust on gods marcy for the rest."—Kansas City Times.

Cheapest Ham Ever Sold.

Sometimes an error creeps into the published announcement of a big store, due to the negligence of the proofreader or to the compositor in the printing office of the paper. It is rarely funny in its results, although it may make humorous reading when first issued. One day a department store in New York advertised "Sugar-Cured Hams at 4c a lb." Rather cheap, you say? Well, 150 odd persons thought so too, for that was the number that asked for the ham at this ridiculously low price the morning the ad. appeared. It transpired that the printed proof O. K.'d by the grocery buyer and sent down to the newspaper office for insertion in the day's issue read "14c a lb." The first numeral had simply dropped out of sight; 125 sales were made at a loss of 10 cents per pound.—Woman's Home Companion.

Poetry and the Child.

Read poetry to the child. Read easy, simple verse, read nonsense verse, read real poems, read sometimes such poems as "Thanatopsis" and bits of "Paradise Lost." Of course the child will not understand the thought, but he will enjoy the sound, and he will unconsciously learn the words. Poetry was never meant to be read to oneself, but always to be read aloud or recited. It is harder than prose. The order of the words is often like our everyday speech, and the words themselves are frequently different. Here especially children need help. If they find it they learn to love poetry, and there are few things that so sweeten life as a genuine love for poetry for its beauties and for the helpful lines that come to one's mind in hard places.—Home Progress Magazine.

WEIRD TEUTONIC PLOT

GERMAN-AMERICANS DID PLAN TO INVADE CANADA.

They Drilled Men Near Detroit During Early Months of War and Had Accumulated Large Supplies—Their Idea Was to Embroil Britain and United States, Declares American Secret Service Man.

I HAD also to prevent the hatching of conspiracies on the Canadian border, says C. P. Wilkins, an American secret service man who, under the pen name of C. Pilenas, is writing a series of articles for the New York Tribune on the German intrigues in the United States.

Frequent warnings came from trustworthy sources that the Germans were planning an attack on Canada, their idea being that German-armed battalions striking across the Detroit river and Welland Canal would embroil the United States with Britain. Another part of the plan was to bring United States Germans flocking to the assistance of the invaders and supply them with arms stored on the United States side. These massed Germans were then expected to strike at both John Bull and Uncle Sam.

It was not a mere dream!

During the years 1914 and 1915 the Germans were very active from Detroit to Port Huron before my organization was established — smuggling at a terrible rate and getting ready. I sent agents to investigate —several times! I got a report from one set of agents, then sent another set over the ground and matched up reports. There was ample verification of the reported German smuggling and military preparations.

Although the Germans had planned and prepared big things to happen along the Detroit river, some of those plans were abortive, and others were frustrated by the activity of my agents. Undoubtedly they had meant business, and bloody business!

The topography was excellent for their purposes. The countryside for several miles back from the river was largely occupied by Germans—thrifty, prosperous farmers, who were outspoken in their allegiance to the Fatherland. They were amusingly suspicious of strangers, before whom they kept very mum; but among themselves they talked freely, with practically no attempt at concealment. Many sturdy Germans were brought into the district during the two years following the outbreak of war, and almost every farm had taken on some hands of the sort.

Owing to the large German population there were, of course, a number of societies, fraternal and social. The principal fraternal society was the "Arbeiters," formed a few months after the war started. It had over three thousand members, and they lived all the way from St. Clair to Algonac.

There was an abandoned building in Oakland, a little town adjoining St. Clair, and practically just across the creek from Marine City—an old salt shed that belong to a man named Albert Kaltschmidt, indicted in connection with a plot to blow up the Welland Canal. He was president of the Marine City Salt Co. and lived in Detroit. United States Government officers arrested him last April and took him before the commission at Port Huron on the charge of preparing a military invasion of Canada and for having dynamite stored in his house in Detroit. That is not all that is alleged against him, however. I mention his arrest here, although it occurred subsequent to the circumstances I am relating. He was a prominent man in the neighborhood, very pro-German, as his getting into trouble proved, and he spent a lot of money putting this shed into a good state of repair. His idea was to use it as a barracks, drill room and store place from which to send an expedition to Canada and to help invasion from Canada when the time was ripe, it was charged.

This shed was thirty feet wide by eighty feet long, very conspicuous by reason of the many repairs of new wood; it made a veritable beacon or guiding light for the boats travelling up and down the river.

It was in this shed that the Arbeiters were drilled. They were also drilled outdoors. They had neither arms nor uniforms — in sight — but they had a drillmaster. He had been sent to them by von Papen very shortly after the war started. He was the real German article, calculated to appeal to them sentimentally and martially. He was received by Kaltschmidt with every mark of appreciation, given a position as bookkeeper in the salt works and introduced to the pro-German leaders from Detroit to Port Huron.

In height about five feet eleven, weighing about 190 pounds, he bore himself very erect and had a most military air. In fact, he was a typical German officer, with the usual martial blond moustache and hair, and of haughty speech and bearing. His English was not fluent, but it was enough to serve a young fellow of thirty in such a pro-German community. His wife spoke no England at all.

The drilling of the Germans occasioned no surprise in the neighborhood. Following the outbreak of the war most of the businesses moved elsewhere, practically all except the salt business, in which the Germans were employed, so that there was scarcely an unfriendly eye to watch them. The Irish, of whom there were many in the vicinity, with branches of the Clan-Na-Gaels and other orders, one of which had about one hundred and fifty members, had not the least thought of interfering with them, in fact, the nationalities are shown in good accord by the local Church of the Holy Cross, a fine property, with school, rectory and convent for the twenty-two nuns who teach in the school. Here the pastor, the Rev. C. J. Turnes, is a German but he has an Irish assistant.

It is evident that Germans selected the vicinity of the Detroit river as strategic long before the war. In the first place, it offers such easy access to Canada, and in the second, it is an environment of pleasure places, hotels and health resorts where meetings are natural and not calculated to attract attention. Towns on the American side have small counterparts across the stream, with invariably a ferry connecting the two, and with countless river liveries and boats plying the river. During 1914 and 1915 the river characters made a great deal of money out of the smuggling of the Germans.

In addition to the unattached smugglers, the Germans maintained a smuggling organization of their own, with Marine City for chief headquarters and Algonac, a summer resort near Detroit and a great Sunday meeting place for Germans, next in importance. From Detroit to Port Huron they maintained connections on both sides of the stream for contraband goods and contraband individuals. They got arms across practically unhindered by boats and auto trucks. Almost at the outbreak of the war they got an island on the St. Clair river, with a fleet of motor boats and accessories that had formerly been used for hunting and boating parties, under a two years' contract.

But the smuggling on a large scale came to an end with the closing of navigation in 1915. Since then there has been little of it carried on. While the game was easy it was both fast and furious, thoroughly organized and directed from Detroit. Port Huron was most active for a time with a small fleet of boats and crews directed by a German.

Speaking in a local sense, the exposure of the conspiracies in connection with the Irish rebellion interfered with the German plans and delayed them on both sides of the river. Then they developed something like nerves over the fear that my men were on their trail. Von Haling, the count, confided to "some one" that he was sure the invasion of Canada would be ordered not later than July 1, 1916. He was also sure the Kaiser would attack the capital, and that he, von Haling, would shortly be recalled to Baltimore.

Surprisingly few of the big German plans came to a climax without miscarrying. They had a way of starting off to a brass band and ending up with a cracked fiddle, thanks, I believe, to our course of nerve trying, persistent circulation in their secret places and our disclosures that often brought them to ridicule!

A Veteran Printer.

Mr. H. Constable, who is perhaps the oldest working printer in Canada, celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday the other day in Woodstock. Mr. Constable still runs his printing business on Dundas street, Woodstock, being hale and hearty. He was born in London, England, in 1834, and came to Canada very early in life. It is said that he chopped cordwood at 25 cents a cord in order to earn money enough to supply himself with books to secure his education.

Mr. Constable found himself in Cleveland in 1862 working as a journeyman printer on the Cleveland Leader, alongside of Artemus Ward and Mark Twain. After some months he returned to St. Thomas, but being sent for returned to Cleveland early in 1864, the last year of the Civil War in the United States. Artemus Ward had then commenced his humorous writings in the columns of the Plaindealer of Cleveland, and on Mr. Constable's return to Cleveland he was requested by Ward to fill his place on that paper while he went on a lecture tour to California. Mr. Constable modestly claimed his inability to fill his place, but after much pressure accepted the situation.

On returning again to Canada Mr. Constable established the Ingersoll News in 1864. This paper had been run previously as the Ingersoll Plaindealer. In a fire which burned nearly all the business section of Ingersoll in 1873 Mr. Constable's printing plant was consumed, and he, too, was supposed to have perished in the flames, his obituary having been published in the London Prototype which afterwards became the London Free Press.

Mr. Constable left Ingersoll in 1875 for Ridgetown, where he established the Ridgetown Plaindealer, running it for a number of years. This newspaper he sold and went to Niagara Falls, where he established the Record. In Alexandria he established the first newspaper published there in the interests of the Reform party. Mr. Constable went to Brantford and established a job printing office there, which he conducted for ten years. He then went to Ayr, where he established the Ayr News and conducted that for some time. On leaving Ayr he went to Woodstock, where he has lived ever since.

For the Kaiser Only.

Germany had a little rubber in the early days of the war, but she soon became reduced to smuggling in what she could through the mails. Great Britain soon closed this channel, also the traffic in automobile tires which were being imported through Sweden. Now, only the Kaiser rides in an automobile boasting real rubber tires. Everyone else has to bump along on tires filled with cork, paper, or even rags.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Women Make Clever Spies

ARRESTED in New York as a German spy, Mme. Despina Davidovitch Storch died a few days ago on Ellis Island. She was a woman of unusual beauty, which had been employed since the beginning of the war in efforts to lure secrets from British, French and Italian officers, and later on from Americans. Whether she had succeeded in discovering anything of much importance is not known, but she seemed admirably suited for her part. It is probable that her sudden death saved her from the firing squad and the blank wall which dealt with another famous woman spy, namely, Mata Hari. A famous dancer, a clever actress and a woman of keen intelligence and great personal charm, she succeeded in getting some advance information about British tanks from an infatuated British officer. She made one trip too many, however, was arrested and executed by the French.

It seems that the Kaiser has found many useful spies in the theatrical profession, for it is recalled that a most dangerous agent of his was Mme. Elena Teudorina, a Roumanian singer, who was arrested in Milan last January through information supplied by the American secret service. Mme. Teudorina was a noted singer some twenty years ago, and achieved a triumph in Rome. Later on she repeated her successes in the United States and in South America. After the war began her frequent trips between Argentina and New York were noted, as was the fact that she had been seen in the entourage of the notorious Spurlos Versenkt Luxburg. She was watched and eventually was taken off a ship by a British destroyer. An examination of her luggage brought to light some commonplace-looking documents, but when tested they revealed cipher writings. The singer was then given an examination by women attendants, and her skin treated with chemicals. This revealed the fact that the key to the cipher was concealed on her shoulder. How she could conveniently employ a key thus located is something that rather "intrigues" the imagination.

Another woman of the stage is now under arrest in Paris on a charge of espionage. This is Sumey Depsy, formerly a member of Bernhardt's company. Her husband, Emile Guillier, had been employed by a manufacturer of artificial limbs and had access to all hospitals. What attracted attention to his wife was her frequent visits to Switzerland, which has swarmed with German spies ever since the beginning of the war. It is in Switzerland that the spies who have been operating in France and Belgium and Italy gather to make their reports and receive their instructions. If Mme. Guillier is found guilty she will be shot, as in time of war the sex of a spy is not considered. If it were it would not be the female of the species who would be treated with greater forbearance, since it has long been recognized that a woman spy is worth half a dozen men. She has opportunities that no man can ever have and has natural gifts of dissimulation that mere man can never hope to emulate.

It is said that Felice Schmidt was one of the most accomplished female spies in the employ of Germany when the war broke out. In 1915 she was ostensibly banished from the country as a suspicious character, and went to London, where her charms and her enthusiasm for the allies, as well as her eagerness to communicate whatever information was in her power to the authorities made her hosts of admirers. Her task in England was to cast a spell over Kitchener. She saw him once, took a good look at his face, and concluded that she would be more profitably employed in France or Honolulu, or somewhere like that. She next turned up at Marseilles as a patriotic apple seller, and again she created a furore. One day, however, she was found making a sketch of one of the big guns, and shortly afterwards her name appeared in the casualty list. A writer in the New York Times says that the German spy system had been so thoroughly extended in Europe, that at the beginning of the war it was discovered that a member of Mr. Asquith's household was a German agent.

The same authority calculates that Germany has 100,000 women spies in its employ, and that they are quite as desperate and abandoned as they were in the days of the Franco-Prussian war. At that time a German female spy was ordered to become the wife of a French officer. She did so, in order that she might be brought into contact with Gen. Ferre. She failed to make the general an admirer and was censured in Berlin for negligence, Berlin having no jurisdiction to censure Gen. Ferre for conscience. One of the present chiefs of the German spy system is Frau von Schroeder, who is said to be an exceptionally gifted woman, with a special knowledge of American politics, which she acquired from a cultivation of American correspondents before the United States entered the war. In view of the fact that German women occupy a position at home somewhere between that of a slave and an upper servant it is amazing that they are so eager to serve the Fatherland at the risk of their own lives. Or is it?

A Banknote 4,000 Years Old.

Banknotes have been current in Europe only within the last three centuries, but the Chinese have used them for over 4,000 years. The Asiatic museum at St. Petersburg has acquired a banknote issued in Pekin in the year 2800 B.C., in many respects similar to those now in use. It is of thick white paper, inscribed in blue ink, with the number of the note, the name of the bank and the date of issue, the cashier's signature and the value in words as well as in figures. In addition the following sage counsel is engraved round the border: "However much you may possess, strive to be thrifty."

The Spirit of '17.

The boy had taken from his pocket a pair of big, dark-blue, home-knitted mittens; on the palms was sewed red woolen to re-enforce them. He carefully drew them on, folding his hands, thumbs up, on his luncheon-box, edged to the front of his chair, and sat thinking with eyes fixed on the far-away places of his dream. He was going over it all again; there was no haste, no excitement, no foolish sentiment, but sure determination and the courage of youth suddenly turned to manhood. With a little start he came back to the present, and, rising said: "I guess I'd better be going. You said I could get a train in about half an hour?"

"Before you go, will you tell me, my boy, why you chose the infantry?"

"Well, when you read of anything real hard that has to be done you will notice that it is always the infantry that does it. They have to be strong, young fellows they can depend on for the real hard things. So I chose the infantry, sir."

There was a silence, which he broke with the quiet words, "I think I'll be going. Good-by, sir."—Mary Herrick Smith, in Atlantic.

President's Scotch Forebears.

When people meet these days the subject of war invariably crops up, and when one or more Scotsmen are in the party, the men from the land of the heather cannily swerve the subject to President Wilson, and throw their chests out as they attribute all of his best qualities to his Scotch ancestry.

They assert that the president is related to several prominent Scotch families, being descended from Rev. Robert Woodrow, the well-known historian of the Church of Scotland, whose name he bears. Another of the president's ancestors was Robert Williamson, a prominent Glasgow citizen, through whom he is distantly related to the archbishop of York.

Steel Glasses for Soldiers.

Steel spectacles are the latest addition to the equipment of the Netherlands army for modern warfare. The commander in chief has ordered that they shall be supplied to all the machine-gun sections of both infantry, hussars and fortress artillery, as a protection against splinters of projectiles flying chips of stone, and the like. Stocks of the glasses will be kept in readiness to serve out to infantry in case of war.

CHILDREN MUST BE PROTECTED

The children must be safeguarded, for, if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption. Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is admirably suited as a treatment for children. It is pleasant to taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account, as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MAY 20, 1918

German Artillery Activity is on the Increase

NUMEROUS TOWNS AND VILLAGES IN UKRAINE ARE IN FLAMES

Sinn Feiners Said To Have Supplied German Submarines With Fuel Oil

Government Will Publish Part of the Evidence Against the Sinn Feiners—Boatload of Prisoners Have Arrived.

MORE ARRESTS

Special to The Examiner:

HOLYHEAD, Eng. May 20.—Forty-six Sinn Feiners, including Edward De Valera, arrested in connection with the alleged pro-German plot in Ireland, have arrived here aboard a British warship. Seventy others are expected to-day.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 20.—(Via Reuter's.)—The "Times" says it understands the government will publish immediately part of the evidence against the Sinn Feiners arrested in Ireland and that its authenticity is unquestionable.

"It is very necessary that this be done," the Times continues, "if only to dispel the clouds of sensational rumour which gathered last week. The arrests are only preliminary steps, and the government will be well advised to disclose at the earliest time the substance of the evidence on which they were made and to follow them up with formal processes.

Conclusive Evidence.

"We understand the government has conclusive evidence," says the Daily Mail in regard to the Irish arrests. "The danger to the Allied cause should not be under-estimated. The Germans clearly hoped that at the supreme moment of the gigantic offensive which they are now preparing, the Sinn Feiners would hamper our forces and distract our efforts by a great insurrection in Ireland. The new executive in Ireland has moved so swiftly and courageously that we may hope the conspiracy has been paralyzed."

According to the Mail, it has been clear for months past that Germany has been using every artifice not only to foster a rebellion in Ireland, but also to use Ireland as a base of organized espionage and submarine operations against the Atlantic mercantile marine. It asserts that Germany sent money to the Sinn Feiners and that important information was conveyed to Germany and that German submarines received fuel oil from Sinn Feiners.

Quiet To-day.

DUBLIN, May 20.—With all leaders of Sinn Fein in custody or out of the country, all Ireland is quiet to-day, and the government seems to have complete control.

BELFAST, May 20.—Maud Gonne McBride, widow of Major John McBride, who was executed in May, 1916 for taking part in the Dublin uprising on Easter of that year, has been arrested.

NICHOLAS ROMANOFF WILL BE PERMITTED TO GO TO SWITZERLAND

GENEVA, May 20.—Nicholas Romanoff, former Emperor of Russia, and his family, according to reports printed in Vienna newspapers, have been given their choice of exile in Roumania or in Switzerland, and have decided to go to Switzerland. This concession, it is added, was granted by the Soviet Government on certain conditions, the principal being that he would refrain from making efforts to return to the Russian throne.

GERMANS HAVE CONCENTRATED 140 OF THEIR BEST DIVISIONS FOR RESUMPTION OF DRIVE

Five Great Armies Have Been Formed and There is Every Indication That the Coming Offensive Will Have the Same Objectives as the First

ENEMY WILL AIM AT CHANNEL PORTS

(United Press Service.)
(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 20.— In preparation for resumption of their offensive the Germans have concentrated 140 of their best divisions between the North Sea and the Oise. These comprise two-thirds of their entire army, and total in round numbers 1,820,000 men, including 1,120,000 infantrymen.

Five Great Armies.

The mass, which includes all the divisions the Germans were able to reorganize and reform after their March offensive, is divided into five great armies as follows: The Fourth Army, comprising seven divisions (84,000 men) between the North Sea and Ypres, commanded by Von Armin, the Sixth Army, numbering 27 divisions (324,000 men) between Ypres and Givenchy, commanded by Von Quest the Seventeenth Army between Bucquoy and Moreuil, commanded by Von Der Merwitz, and the Eighteenth Army, between Moreuil and Noyon, commanded by Von Hutier.

The last three armies, comprising 46 divisions (575,000 men), make a total of 82 divisions (984,000 men) in the front line between the sea and the Oise. Fifty-eight divisions (696,000 men) are stationed in reserve behind these for the purpose of feeding the attack, when once launched, and filling up the losses.

Similar Objectives.

There is every indication that the coming resumption of the offensive will have the same objectives as the first ,to threaten Amiens, to cut the AmiensClermont railway, to force the evacuation of the Ypres salient and to separate the main British and French armies, thus forcing an evacuation of Northern France and permitting the establishment of a new line from the mouth of the Somme to Noyon, by way of Montdidier.

The Germans thus would realize their long cherished dream of submarine bases on the channel, from which they could menace the Allies' maritime traffic.

Against this dream, the Allies' unified command has taken every precaution and is awaiting with supreme confidence the coming drive.

GERMANS MAY USE RUSSIAN FLEET IN THE MEDITERRANEAN

Enemy Made a Recent Attempt to Run Allies' Blockade at the Mouth of the Dardanelles

(United Press Service.)
(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, May 20.—The possibility that the Germans may attempt to use the captured Russian fleet in the Black Sea to raid shipping in the Mediterranean is presenting a naval problem for the Allies in the near eastern waters.

"When the Germans took possession of the Russian warships in the Black Sea they secured a fleet comprising at least three fully equipped dreadnoughts, with three others partly or wholly constructed; six old battleships and seven cruisers, together with about thirty destroyers, nine submarines, and a fair-sized flotilla of subsidiary craft. These vessels were built at Black Sea yards for permanent use there. In peace times Russia could not send warships through the Dardanelles and the connecting Turkish waters, and there is no other entrance into the Black Sea.

"As an ally of Turkey, however, the Germans are now at liberty to make use of Turkish assistance in sending the Black Sea fleet into the Mediterranean. The recent attempt of the Germans to run the Allies' naval blockade at the mouth of the Dardanelles, with the Goeben and the Breslau indicates that the idea of pressing the captured Russian vessels into service for a similar exploit will certainly be considered at Berlin. If the Russian warships succeeded in getting into the Mediterranean they could do much damage, momentarily, by running amuck among mercantile shipping. But the fleet is not strong enough to make a successful fight against the Allies for any length of time. The warships would probably try to reach the Austrian coast or attempt to re-enter the Dardanelles and failing that, would eventually be sent to the bottom or would have to surrender.

A Helpless Position.

"But, the loss of the warships would fall on Russia and not on Germany, and for this reason the project will appeal to German naval officers with the greater force. Against such exploit the argument is that the Black Sea fleets' use is wholly to protect the south Russian coast in a war against Turkey. The destruction of the fleet would place Russia in a helpless position in this respect toward the Turks, for the war is over. Such a condition would not be to Germany's advantage, particularly since the present German policy is to attempt to exploit Russia commercially through conciliatory means when peace comes.

New Plans.

"Another reason for hesitation by the German Admiralty is the strong possibility that the Russian fleet's attempt to emerge from the Dardanelles might be defeated by the Allies. The Goeben and the Breslau failed to make their exit, and if the Germans were connected with a second failure, their already declining prestige in Turkey would be badly shaken. Unquestionably the Allies are now strengthening their dreadnought strength at the Dardanelles, and are rearranging their naval plans in that area.

Changes In Law Regarding Flour

Farmers May Retain Supplies But Must Report Excess Quantities

Chief Thompson, directs the attention of the people to several amendments to the Canada Food Act, one of which is intended to relieve farmers of unnecessary inconvenience during the busy season of planting. Farmers are permitted to keep the flour which they have in excess of the quantity specified by a former regulation of the Canada Food Board. However, they must report to the miller who manufactured it or the dealer from whom they bought it, on or before June 15th, the excess of flour in their possession; and the miller or dealer must send such reports to the Food Board.

"It is also provided that any person holding or having in his possession not more than 25 pounds of flour made wholly or in part from wheat, or who held or had in his possession on May 17, part only of one original package in which such flour was purchased, though the amount exceeds 25 pounds, may retain the same. All flour held in excess of these amounts must be returned as required by the original order."

German Aeroplanes Fall To Pieces During Aerial Combat

Scarcity of Officers Compels Enemy to Send Up Privates as Observers—Mid-summer Heat Prevails on the Battle-front—Soldiers Appear to Be Having a Holiday

AIR FIGHTING IS VERY HEAVY

(United Press Service.)
(By Wm. Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 20.—Midsummer heat shimmers along the battle lines, where amazing calm prevails. I have seldom seen duller days, even during the slushy trench warfare of winter time. Beyond raids and an occasional row raised by the artillery, as though angry at being awakened, the soldiers appear to be having a holiday.

But war planes are constantly whirling over the lines and the air fighting is heavy. The week's total bag of enemy craft probably will come near the record.

I hear many enemy stories proving the statement made some months ago, that the German planes are now badly constructed. A captured pilot declared that the material is bad, both wires and tubing often snapping in mid-air, wrecking the planes.

I personally examined the famous Baron Von Richthofsen's machine in which he met his death. I was surprised to detect numerous crudities in his plane, which one might think would be extremely well made. The body was made of steel tubing, like that used in making bicycle frames. The joints seemed carelessly welded. German planes frequently fell to pieces during an aerial combat, when stunts must be resorted to in order to bring machine guns to bear on their opponents or to escape from a tight hole, as the case may be. A prisoner said the Germans are having great difficulty in finding airmen. Their casualties were many while training at the station where he learned to fly. He estimated that only thirty per cent. of the pupils ever reached the line. The rest were killed while learning.

The scarcity of officers now rendered it necessary to send up privates as observers.

Clergy Responds To Pope's Appeal

Special Mass Will Be Celebrated on June 29th According to Instruction

PRAYER FOR PEACE

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, May 20.—The Catholic clergy of the whole world has responded to the Pope's appeal, promising to celebrate mass on June 29, the feast of St. Peter, according to the Pope's instructions, the "Observatore Romano" declared to-day.

The Pope has issued to the Catholic clergy a special prayer for world peace, to be delivered on June 29.

All Persons, 16 Years Or Older Must Register

It cannot be too often repeated that all persons over the age of 16 years must register. Despite what had appeared in the paper referring to the limit of 60 years, it is imperative that all over 60 register.

The Central Board of the City Registration request that any person, or firm, or company that can make offer of places in which to carry on the registration do so.

The requirements are that, if possible, the place may be kept open during afternoons from 4 to 6, and in evenings from 7 to 10. So access to the place should be fairly easy.

If there should be tables and chairs or a counter or other facilities such should be mentioned. Drop a card by mail to the office of the Registrar, city building, or phone to No. 261.

Principals of the several Ward Schools, will please meet at the office, city building, on Tuesday evening, 21st. For general reports and arrangements. Notice was forwarded by mail, but a reminder will not be out of place.

Delay In Delivery Of Oil For Roads

Although the city's order for supplies of road oil were placed early, and was accepted by the Tarvia Company, there have been no shipments yet and City Engineer Parsons this morning sent a telegram on the heels of recent letters to find out why the oil was not coming forward. The dust has become a nuisance during the past two weeks, and the air is full of complaints. Deliveries have been patiently awaited, but the City Engineer is demanding something more material than assurances.

Four Raiders Brought Down

People in London Had Time to Reach Their Shelters Before Guns Commenced to Thunder

NIGHT WAS BRIGHT

LONDON AIR RAID.

LONDON, May 20.—Thirty-seven persons were killed and one hundred and fifty-five injured in the London air raid during last night.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 20.—A calm summer-like night tempted the Germans to try last night their first air raid on London since March 7, and four of the raiders fell before the defences of London. The moon was shining brightly when the raiders crossed a south-eastern point and headed for the Metropolis. The usual warnings were given promptly and people had time to reach shelters before the guns in the neighbourhood of London were heard. The firing was almost continuous for more than two hours and was unusually severe. Several bombs were dropped by the raiders. The number of enemy aircraft is not known, but they seemed to have been more numerous than usual.

VETERANS WILL MEET TO-NIGHT

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the new club rooms, George street. A full turn out of members is requested, as there is some important business to come up for discussion.

Mrs. Thomas Is President

In the list of officers of the Women's Missionary Society of George street church, published in the Examiner a few days ago, the name of Mrs. (Rev.) Thomas, who was elected president, was inadvertently omitted.

BOLSHEVIKI STILL FIGHTING THE TURKS

Casualties Are Reported To Be Very Heavy

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, May 20.—Bolshevik forces which captured Baku the great oil centre on the Caspian Sea, are still fighting with the Turkish forces, who are striving to retake the city. It is reported that the casualties there total 2,000 killed and 3,000 wounded.

NO LIMIT TO U.S. ARMY

President Wilson Declared That America's Forces Are Not Fixed at 5,000,000

WILL SUPPORT RUSSIA

NEW YORK, May 19.—To win the war the United States is determined to set no restrictions on the number of men to be sent to France, President Wilson declared here last night in a speech reaffirming the purpose of America to set no limit on its efforts.

As many men will go overseas as ships can be found to carry them, the President said, after referring to statements that have been made that five million should go.

The United States, is said, will not be diverted by insincere talk of peace from the Teutonic powers. Their proposals, he declared, spring from a desire to have a free hand in the East.

"I intend to stand by Russia, as well as France," he said.

The President said that all German peace approaches contained a reservation and required "a free hand" in the East.

He was cheered when he said that the United States intended to stand by Russia as well as France.

The President's words on the subject of the cessation of peace proposals were as follows:

"And we are not to be diverted from the grim purpose of winning the war by any insincere approaches upon the subject of peace. I can say with a clear conscience that I have tested those intimations, and have found them insincere. I now recognize them for what they are, an opportunity to have a free hand, particularly in the East, to carry out the purposes of conquest and exploitation. Every proposal with regard to accommodation in the West involves a reservation with regard to the East. Now, so far as I am concerned, I intend to stand by Russia as well as by France."

Of all the passages in the President's speech, the one most applauded was the following:

"I have heard gentlemen recently say that we must get 5,000,000 men ready. Why limit it to 5,000,000?"

There was some applause when the President said a little later:

"If they wish peace, let them come forward and lay their terms upon the table. We have laid ours and they know what they are."

HEADS OF THE LIFE UNDERWRITERS TO VISIT PETERBORO.

With the main object in view of extending the educational work of the life underwriters association of Canada, both among the representatives of life insurance and the public in general, two of the highest officers of the life underwriters, Mr. H. F. Wilson of Halifax, President of the Dominion association, and Mr. J. H. Castle Graham, secretary, who are returning from their visit west to the coast, will be in Peterboro on Thursday, May 23rd.

Interviewed at the Assiniboia Club, Regina, the other evening, Mr. Wilson said the association is the same to the life underwriters as the bar association is to the legal profession or the medical association to the medical men. We have our own ethics, and one of our great works at the present time is the training of the field men. It has long been realized that a great educational work can be carried on by these associations and one of the chief objects of our visit to the local association is to carry this idea into effect.

Two-thirds of ...soldiery have taken the ...clear conscience' in the ...profound conviction that they are defending their country, and in the firm belief that 'we' did not want the war."

"With this belief," Fernau explains, "they have been artificially and forcibly innoculated. German State papers have mis-stated the facts as to the events immediately preceding the war. The German Government has used barbarians, posing in the robes of scientific professors, and they have dispensed Imperialistic poison in the leading university lecture rooms."

The author expects the salvation of the German people through defeat. Germany will lose the war and the dynasty will be shorn of its power. The monarchy may remain—that, he thinks, is a secondary matter—but it will be a different kind of monarchy. There will be a revision of the constitution, franchise reform, ministerial responsibility to Parliament, and, "in short, a safeguarding of the sovereignty and will of the German people in all departments."

With the "democratization of the constitution of all the States" as a starting point, the path would be opened for further reforms—"an international court of arbitration for the adjustment of all conflicts arising between nations, special legislation against the bellicose tendencies of the so-called national press, nationalization of armament industries, conversion of standing armies into national militia, the publicity and parliamentary control of diplomacy, and the opening of an era of free trade.

USE MORE VEGETABLES.

A glance at the meagre portion of potatoes and other vegetables that are provided at Canadian hotels and restaurants these days, makes one wonder if the proprietors of these places have read the recent bulletin of the Canada Food Board on this subject, which is as follows:

There are still large supplies in Canada of vegetables, especially potatoes, carrots and onions, which should be used freely during the next few weeks to relieve the strain on our fast diminishing stock of wheat. No more patriotic service can be done by the housewives of Canada, and by proprietors of public eating houses, than by using in every possible way, vegetables and fish in order to save more wheat and meat for export. Both vegetables and fish, except the 'luxury' varieties, are moderately priced. In the United States a big 'drive' is being made on the surplus potato crop, estimated at at least 30 million bushels, it being pointed out that the eating of potatoes, because of their food value, and of the fact that they are very satisfying to the appetite, makes less likely the eating of bread. Fish and vegetable meals in Canada during the next six weeks are required by the food needs of our Allies.

So far there have been no evidences of the fact that this advice is being carried out by the proprietors of public eating houses. As a matter of fact the potato ration at most resturants has not grown any larger since the potato famine in the spring of 1917, when the portion per individual was reduced almost to the vanishing point. Last summer was a season of marvellous production in potatoes, and other vegetables, but the average restaurant or hotel meal shows little signs of the good crops. In view of the Food Board's counsel to use all the surplus supply of vegetables, to relieve the strain on the wheat stock, the proprietors would do well to consider the advisability of increasing the portion to customers. There is little justification for the spoonful of potato that is doled out under the present system.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The "Tsn't it hot!" form of greeting was in general use yesterday, one of the earliest appearances of the old summer standby on record.

Mr. H. F. Gadsby says: "The sore spot with the average member of parliament, brought up under the old spoils system, is that it's the government's friends that will be rewarded, and not his. The circle of friends has been greatly narrowed by concentrating choice at Ottawa. Burnham, of Peterboro, put it pithily when he said that if he could not recommend to office in his own constituency he might as well quit. There were other members who felt the same as Burnham, only they were not so vocal. It is true that the job hunter is a great nuisance to the average member of parliament, three-quarters of whose correspondence is devoted to stalling him off, but he is a nuisance who may be helpful at election times. He may be a cross, but Mr. Burnham and others like him shoulder him cheerfully. No cross, no crown—you remember the old motto."

The public is still awaiting for an explanation of "The fine Italian hand of those who inspired it" allusion.

A contemporary points out that the job hunter may be a cross, but he is helpful at election times. In other words, he then represents a cross on the ballot.

CHILDREN MADE FIRST COMMUNION

Fifty-three children received their first communion at St. Peter's Cathedral during the early mass which was celebrated by Rev. C. J. Phelan. They were addressed by Bishop O'Brien, who spoke to them of the importance of receiving communion frequently as a means to grace and a great help in leading good lives.

Sunday was the feast of Pentecost and was recognized by the celebration of Pontificial High mass at 10.30 o'clock. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien was the celebrant, and was assisted by Father Phelan as deacon, and Father M. O'Brien as sub-deacon. Father Phelan preached the sermon on "The Holy Ghost."

The forty hours' devotion was begun at the Cathedral yesterday, and will be continued until Tuesday evening. Rev. Father McCarthy, of Norwood, preached last night.

At 10.30 o'clock Rev. Father Maher celebrated his first high mass. He was assisted by his cousins, Rev. M. Gillogly, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Rev. V. Gillogly, of St. Augustine's Seminary. Rev. Dean McColl preached the sermon, his subject being "The Church and the Priesthood."

A large number of children made their first communion at the Church of the Sacred Heart. The early mass was celebrated by Rev. Peter McGuire, and Rev. Father O'Leary celebrated high mass at 10.30. The pastor, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, is expected home shortly from Kingston, where for several weeks he has been undergoing treatment for throat trouble.

Friday At Field

Christopher Fagan, whose home is on the Monaghan Road, was drowned at Field, Ont., on Friday, May 17th. The telegram received by his daughter, Mrs. S. Cadogan, of this city, conveyed the bare details that Mr. Fagan had been drowned following an upset from his canoe. He had gone up to Field about six weeks ago.

His son-in-law, Mr. Cadogan, left on Saturday for Field. Mr. Fagan was an old resident of Peterborough, and is survived by two daughters and one son. The deceased had been long connected with the lumber business, and although he had retired several times, returned to the work against the wishes of his family.

THE WEATHER

Saturday and Sunday proved to be very warm days, each having a temperature of 80 degrees in the shade. These figures are high for so early in the season, but perhaps Nature intends to make amends for the severity of last winter, and is beginning early. Needless to say, this is the highest figure to date.—W.P.

FRUIT AND FISH STORE.

NEAR COBOURG

While Miss Onehan was being driven to the home of Mr. James Maseie, east of Cobourg, three masker men suddenly appeared on the road just east of the "rustic" bridge and ordered the occupants of the rig out. In the scuffle which followed the bandits were beaten off and the young lady managed to escape to the home of Mr. Abbot, where the police were telephoned for. There were two other men besides the driver of the rig otherwise the highwaymen would have gained their purpose. They had as masks, white handkerchiefs tied over their nose and mouth.

WALKED FLOOR AT NIGHT FOR HOURS

Mrs. Langford So Nervous Least Noise Would Startle Her

Another remarkable statement to be added to the thousands already given testifying to the benefits derived from Tanlac is that made the other day by Mrs. Florence Langford, of 2436 St. Clair Ave., Toronto, who in telling her experience with Tanlac, said:

"I have been a sufferer from chronic indigestion for over ten years and was in such an awful condition that I just can't describe the agony I endured.

"Long ago," she continued. "My appetite left me and the little I forced down seemed to settle right in the pit of my stomach and form a hard lump and I would bloat up with gas till I felt as tight as a drum. Do what I would I just couldn't get rid of this gas, and a dull griping pain would start up in my stomach and extend through my side, all around to my back and make me so miserable I could hardly stand it. My nerves were in such a wretched shape that I could hardly sleep, and many a night I would get up out of bed and walk the floor for hours. The least little noise would startle me so I would tremble like a leaf and I felt as limp as a rag. I used to weigh a hundred and forty pounds but my troubles bore on me until I got down to only ninety-eight pounds and I became so weak and lifeless that it was simply torture for me to try to do any kind of work.

"This was just the fix I was in when one of my neighbors told me about how much Tanlac had helped her. But, I had taken so many kinds of medicines, and even tried specialists without getting any help, that I didn't have much faith left, however, on her advice I got a bottle, and before I finished it I felt so much better that I ordered another one. I have taken only three bottles so far, and have such a fine appetite now that I can eat anything I want and all that indigestion and pain and gas and bloating have completely passed away. My nerves are steady as a clock and I sleep all night like a baby and when I get up in the mornings I feel so well and strong that I can do all my housework without the least bit of trouble. I haven't weighed yet, but I know I have gained several pounds and have just written to my husband over in France to tell him all about the wonderful relief of Tanlac has brought me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Rev. Mr. Walton At St. John's Church

The Speaker is Performing a Valuable Work in the Ungava Missionary Field

TRYING CONDITIONS

The Rev. Mr. Walton addressed the congregation of St. John's church morning and evening, Mr. Walton also spoke to the Sunday school scholars at the Whitsun-Day Festival service at 3 p.m. Thirty years ago, Mr. Walton, a young man engaged in teaching a class in a Sunday school, attended a missionary meeting in Birmingham England to gather subjects of interest to his class of boys. A very strong call to missionary service resulted, and the young teacher became duly qualified for his life's work, such qualifications including a period of training in a London hospital. Just before sailing a telegram brought the news of his father's sudden death, but the vessel, calling at the last port in that northern region only sails once a year, so the youthful soldier of the cross looked not back, and it was six months before he heard any particulars from his family as to his father's sudden death. There are two posts in this Ungava territory recently added to the province of Quebec. The most northern post is visited from time to time (generally between Christmas and May) by Eskimo families, whose number are about eight hundred. The second post, farther south, is visited by about the same number of Indians, so that Mr. Walton's work for over twenty-six years has been among two totally distinct types of people. Such phases of the service in the frozen north, as could be briefly enumerated, were deeply interesting and some members of the congregation remained after the service to ask the best way to help Mr. Walton's work, and to hand over gifts of money for supplies. The gradual decrease in the number of fur-bearing animals, of the deer, and migratory birds has made the always precarious means of living for these sixteen hundred people an acute problem, and Mr. Walton came to Ottawa to ask the government to give some assistance so that the ever present danger of starvation, from which many of the people have died in recent years, may be guarded against as far as possible.

Is Going Back.

Mr Walton is small in stature, but all that goes to the making of a man is in inverse ratio to mere height, and he is going back, back to work among this roving people, to minister to them in body and soul, to add to his rendering of the four gospels and some hymns into a hitherto unwritten language, and while health and strength permit, to share in all the vicissitudes of the semi-starvation existence of his people. For these people are very dear to this missionary. There are still to be found members of our churches, living under dispensations incident to the western missions of St. Paul, who decry mission work generally and that on the borders of our far-flung empire in particular. Mr. Walton dismissed such sentiments by saying "they do not know."

The following incident is one of many related yesterday. A young girl was found badly mauled and bitten by dogs, part of the scalp having been torn off. The case appeared hopeless, but Mr. Walton persuaded the mother to let him take the child away, stitched up her fearful injuries, and under God's providence a complete cure resulted. She was taught the deaf and dumb alphabet and grew up to be a fine healthy, useful young woman. During one of Mr. Walton's long trips she was taken ill and died. Her last conscious act was to tell those around by means of her fingers that she was going "up there to Jesus." During an awful epidemic of measles (which in that region is as bad as smallpox), after nursing sixty cases without losing one, Mr. Walton's own child was stricken down and died.

A Long Journey.

One party travelled eight hundred miles hunting for their living on the way (the trip taking ten months) to meet the teacher at the post, to stay for two weeks to learn about the wonderful work of the Saviour. Women classes in the morning, men in the afternoon, altgether at night, for two weeks they eagerly learned the "old, old story," and the hymn "Jesus loves me" in their own language.

Very deep was Mr. Walton's gratitude to the Woman's Auxiliary for a timely gift of ninety-three bales of clothing, in answer to a special appeal some years ago, at a time of dire necessity.

"The love of Christ constraineth us," the W. A. motto, was quoted by Mr. Walton last night.

The Kaiser Shot

Life of German Emperor Taken By British Veteran of Boer War.

Career of Man Who Got the Kaiser With Movie Camera.

(Special to the American American).

The life of the German Emperor taken. The Kaiser "shot," to use the vernacular of the motion picture industry, Rupert Julian, a British veteran of the Boer War, and one of the most talented and popular motion picture actors and directors in America, has created one of the most startling, sensational motion pictures ever shown to the public, in his "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," which takes the spectator into the Imperial Palace and shows the Kaiser in his habits and mannerisms and repugnant egotism and brutality. The seven reel picture chronicles in vivid truthfulness Belgium and her inoffensive peoples before the invasion of the German hosts, shows in horrible but authetic scenes the treatment of the peasants by the Prussian barbarians as they plough through Belgium and its inhabitants.

Rupert Julian who has screened this sensational expose of the intimate life of the Kaiser; directed it and played the role of the German Ruler, is an Englishman, who has had a long and successful, as well as decidedly varied career on the legitimate stage and before the camera.

He was born in Manchester, England, and, at the age of seventeen years, was playing important parts of the English legitimate stage; supporting such famous stars as Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, George Alexander and Lewis Waller.

After his last season with Tree, Rupert Julian went to Australia under contract with J. C. Williamson.

With the firing of the first gun in the Boer War he enlisted, but his career as a soldier was shortly ended in his capture by Louis Botha, later premier of South Africa, and until the close of the war Mr. Julian lay captive in a Boer prison. Prior to this he had been captured and exchanged.

At the conclusion of the war he was sent back to England an invalid, but regained his health and resumed his theatrical work.

He subsequently returned to Australia and remained with J. C. Williamson for years, eventually coming to this country where he played with Lewis Waller in M. Beaucaire at Daly's Theatre New York. Then followed a season with Tyrone Power in "Julius Caesar," playing Marc Antony to Mr. Power's Brutus.

This was his last appearance on the legitimate stage.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

THE POTATO DRIVE

This is really the opening of Canada's most popular gardening week. Those who have put off getting to work on their gardens usually bestir themselves by the 24th of May, and the holiday finds an army of diligent devotees of hoe and rake. The chief concern of this week for the war gardener should be His Majesty the spud. In 1916 sixty-three million bushels of potatoes were grown in Canada. In 1917 seventy-nine millions were grown. In 1918 every home cellar should become a "potato elevator" to release the wheat for the fighters and keep down the cost of living.

Supposing your vacant lot is 30 feet wide. You might have 26 rows of potatoes. You have a wide variety to choose from. Perhaps the greatest favorites are Early Rose, Irish Cobbler, Mountain Green, Rochester and Delaware.

Directions were given last week relative to the condition the soil should be in at the time of planting. Great care should be exercised in the initial preparations. The potato trenches should be perfectly straight and evenly spaced at about 27 inches apart. Use a line to get the measurements accurate. For an early potato this is the ideal distance.

INTERESTING SERMON DELIVERED LAST EVENING BY REV. R. POGUE

"Is a Soldier Saved By Dying For His Country?" Formed the Subject of Mr. Pogue's Address.

"OVER THE TOP"

The foregoing question formed the subject of a very interesting sermon that was delivered last evening in St. Paul's Presbyterian church by the Rev. Robert Pogue, pastor of the church. Mr. Pogue took for his text the following scriptual passage. —"By grace are ye saved" Eph. 2:8.

The eternal destiny of men has always been a subject of keenest controoversy among theologians, said Mr. Pague. Widely different views have been held on the subject and that too, by men who looked to the Christian Scriptures as their final court of appeal.

The war has led many to reconsider their theological beliefs. It is thought by some that we will have a new bible at the close of the war, or that we shall have to revise the old one in the light of the experiences of these awful times. If, as it is claimed, a nation's theology is largely the product of its experience then we must expect the most drastic changes in men's beliefs as a result of this war.

Among the most insistant changes which men are putting to the church and the teachers of religion is this: "If a man die shall he live again?" And still another: "What about our soldier boys who die in battle, are they saved?" Where do our fallen heroes go at death?

We saw our boys training and admired their splendid physique and manly bearing. We followed them in imagination as they sailed overseas. Then we pictured them in the trenches and finally saw them go "over the top" into the jaws of death and lay down their lives on the field of battle. Is it not a natural question to ask then—'wither have our gallant men gone? How fares it with their spirits? Could there be any other destiny for men so splendid, any other reward for deeds so valorous, than the Father's presence. This is the atmosphere in which the eternal destiny of our soldiers is being considered today. The question therefore which is asked us; 'does the fact that a soldier dies for his country make his death both sacrificial and expiatory' is not merely a speculative one. It is not asked to provoke a theological dispute. It is asked because the hearts of bereaved parents and friends and loved ones cry out for an answer which our human feeling dictate or shall it be the answer of the word of God?

New Testament Doctrine.

The New Testament doctrine of salvation is that a man is saved through the sacrifice of Christ and not through the sacrifice of himself. "By grace are ye saved through faith and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God."

Rev. Mr. Pogue recalled several similar scriptural passages bearing on the same subject and confirming the bibical injunction that salvation must come through the Lord Jesus Christ.

"It is not a que tion whether God loves all men or not or whether He loves all our soldier boys or not, said Mr. Pogue. That question was answered over nineteen hundred years ago, when God sent forth His Son to be the Saviour of the world. The teaching of the New Testament is that a man is saved by the salvation of Christ and not by his own act. It is not a question as to the salvation of the Christian soldier. Many of those who first heard the call of their country and went forth and died for us, were members of the Christian Church before they left. Nor again is it a question as to what God can do for the man who may have led no profession of religion and who may have lived a careless and indifferent life, but who while waiting for the command to go over the top lifted his heart in silent prayer to God and committed himself to Him in simple trust for salvation. None of us can tell the thoughts of our soldiers in those solemn moments. And what is the teaching of His cry: "Lord remember me when Thou com'st into Thy Kingdom", and the Lord's reply—"Today thou shall be with Me in Paradise."

It is that salvation is not a slow evolution, but a swift revolution, a new creation and as such may take place in a moment o ftime.

Work in Vain.

There is one thing that I would say to you. If a soldier can atone for his own sin by giving his life in sacrifice for his country, then all that Christian chaplains have done, and all that Y. M. C. A., workers have done, to bring to these men the gospel of Christ as Saviour has been altogether unnecessary. All the efforts of our chaplains in this direction and all the money that you have given to support them in this work have been superfluous. And brethern, if this doctrine is true the Christian Church may as well as go out of business, the work of the Christian minister is to bring Christ's salvation to lost men. If men can save themselves then not only is our work in vain, but the sacrifice of Calvary was in vain. You and I do not believe any such thing. We believe what the Word of God teaches upon every page of it, that it is only through the infinite sacrifice of the Son of Good when on Calvary's cross he died for us sinners that we are acquitted before God and that we are saved. The Lord, and His apostles was, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." I know no other way which the Master has made for us and his own death.

Mr. McLean, tabled the supplementary estimates which total forty-seven million dollars, including three millions to assist government employees in the outside service receiving comparatively small salaries. Civil service servants of this class who received $1,200 per annum or less will get an allowance of $150, and those receiving between $1,200 and $1,500 salaries will get $100. The supplementary estimates provide for purchases of several small railways.

STRIKE SITUATION IN WINNIPEG

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, May 20.—Sir Robt. Borden, in the Commons this morning, intimated that persons engaged in sympathetic strikes, as in Winnipeg at present, would not be free from the penalties of the anti-loafing law as passed by the order-in-Council. The Premier assured the House that the government had done everything possible to effect a settlement of the serious affair in this western city, where business is practically tied up as the result of strike after strike, which was brought about by the civil fireman disputes with the city. He hoped, he said, for some early settlement.

A Record Saturday At M. Fine's Sale

There was a big business Saturday at M. Fine's removal sale. The store was crowded all day by city and country customers from all over the country, and parcels went out by the armsful. As predicted, the sacrifice made in prices of men's and women's wear, millinery and dry goods, attracted many who were shrewd enough to see the savings they could make. The sale is on all this week.

In the editorial columns of the paper appears the following:

"In our advertising columns it "will be seen that a large reward "of 10 pounds is offered for the "discovery of the man or men who "maliciously defaced and broke a "tombstone, the property of Alex- "ander McPhail. We trust that for "the sake of example and to mark "the public sense of violated re- "spect for the dead, it will be suc- "cessful in bringing the miscreants "to condign punishment."

Another editorial reads as follows: As the term of office of Lord Metcalfe is coming to a close the Gazette of 1845 hopes that the policy of Metcalfe will be continued by the next Governor-General, whoever he may be. It says:

"In addition to Earl St. Ger- "mains and Sir Henry Pottinger, "Lord Morpeth is now mentioned. "The report is said to come from "Sir Allan McNab who recently re- "turned from England. All three "are men of acknowledged ability, "and whichsoever is about to as- "sume the reigns of government, "we have no fears that the sound "and successful policy of Lord "Metcalfe will be discontinued."

Military News.

The following military news appears on another page:

"It is reported that leave of absence will not, for the present, be extended to military officers, serving with their regiments in Canada, unless in case of urgent business requiring their presence in England." —By Courier.

Notice of Incorporation.

Advertising of a very quaint character appears on the back page, and covers everything from "the sale of valuable property or will "exchange for carpenters" work to a notice, dated September 8th, 1845, in which it is recorded that application will be made by the "inhabitants of the town of Peterborough at the ensuing session of the Legislature for an act to incorporate the said town."

The paper is a two-sheet affair, and is replete with historical interest pertaining to the early days of Peterborough, when the advance of civilization had scarcely reached what was then a hole in the woods.

Constable Greenham Has Been Promoted

News From Havelock and Vicinity —Election in Belmont

(Havelock Standard).

A special meeting of the Belmont Council was held here, when the resignation of Coun. Gilbert Steenburgh was accepted and the Returning Officer instructed to hold a nomination meeting on May 20th, in order to fill the vacancy. In case a poll is demanded, the election will be held on Monday, May 27th. Reeve Griffith brought up the matter of payment of expenses of the deputation to Ottawa re exemption for farmers' sons, asking the Council to meet same, but after considerable discussion the Council decided not to do so, mainly because the deputation was organized and handled by the Farmers' Clubs throughout the province and that therefore the clubs should finance the scheme.

Constable Promoted.

C. P. R. Constable Geo. Greenham has left for Smith's Falls, to which place he has been promoted by the company. Constable Greenham has been a most efficient official while in Havelock, and his place will be hard to fill on the C.P.R. The best wishes of a host of friends follow him to his new home.

Division Court Case.

An interesting case at Division Court here on Thursday last was that of Bert Aboud vs. John Thomas and Mike Isaac, being an alleged account due the former of some $20 or more. The defendants denied the account, and the case was held over for argument by counsel.

Moving to Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dineen and Miss Marie Dineen left town on Tuesday to reside in Peterborough. A host of friends in Havelock and vicinity wish them every comfort and happiness in their new home and regret their departure from among us.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—The Review and Examiner are discussing patronage. Since the country press no longer has Hansard distributed to them, they are deprived, and through them the people are deprived, of any first-hand knowledge of things that transpire in Parliament. Therefore, let me give you an idea of what was to have happened regarding recommendations or patronage, if the good sense of the Government had not stepped in and come to its own rescue in time to amend the proposed Civil Service Bill. By that bill members of Parliament were to have been forbidden to make recommendations or to give any information respecting any office or other matter with which the Government had to do in their constituencies. This was so unconstitutional and absurd, however, and so degrading to the members, that it had to be dropped, and any information in future wanted by the Government from a constituency will be got from members and any others whom the Government sees fit to consult, just exactly as in the past.

The net result of the new Civil Service Act is, however, to centralize control of all appointments, purchases and recommendations in a Government more than ever, and it carries with it the opportunity for the Departments, that is, for the Ministers, of purchasing, not in constituencies, as has been the practice, at open market rates, in the past, but from favoured centres like Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Vancouver, and Calgary, from which they will be sent all over Canada. An instance will show what may happen in this particular under the new Act.

When the new wharf at Kawartha was to be built, the Government engineers furnished me with a copy of the estimates, and they were for a sum of about $2,000.00. The lumber, cement and labour was to be got near by at Young's Point and Peterborough, at, of course, the usual competitive prices. The officials of the Department, however, decided to inaugurate a new policy about this time, very much like that now brought in by this new Act, and they decided to cancel the former practice and to ship in the materials and labour from what they called central points. I demanded a new estimate, and found that this would have added about one thousand dollars to the expense, and, mind you, both labour and materials would have come from somewhere else. I remarked to the Department if it wanted to go on with this new scheme that it might look out for me at the next session. They did not go on with it in my constituency at any rate.

While the new Act has dropped its clause disfranchising and disgracing the people's representatives as sources of information, it is not so with the possibility to which I refer regarding the purchase of material and labour. It will be found in patronage, as it is called, and all other matters of public duty, that the sole protection of the people lies in the honesty of those administering their affairs and not in laws. It is a strange thing that after all the religion that we have had, the education and the big talk about civilization, an Act such as this is was to assume, and does largely yet assume, that members and the people of constituencies are a hopeless lot of rascals, whom it is no longer proper to consult except when the members meet in the House and talk at large. And now since Hansard no longer circulates, the people won't know even what is thought of them at Ottawa.

My contention is that if you do not try to get people to think of their duties, to act honourably, they never will learn, and I think that this Act is more dangerous in that respect even than in the others which I have pointed out.

What I refer to crops up in the truly alarming railway situation. What good are laws or government or elections in our great railway affairs so long as the vital principle of common honesty does not govern the chief representatives of the people in dealing with the people's money? Laws cannot stop dishonesty. Life would indeed have been made intolerable at one blow, if it were to become the assumption that members and their constituents were dishonest, as in the proposed bill. Think of it for a moment and see what it means. It is true that people in the mass have done many silly things at election times in the past, but surely they never would consent to say what the bill sets out, namely, that they were not fit to be trusted with the ordinary affairs of business or any representative they might choose. The Government brought up the bill because it had to give away to a sort of popular clamor regarding patronage, but, as I have pointed out, it is retracing its steps regarding members at least, when it became evident that the transfer of patronage did not mean the abolition of it, and as a matter of fact members and others cannot side step their responsibilities just as St. Paul could not, even when he prayed, to be delivered for his body of death.

Members must submit to punishment by their electors if they do not do what is right, and the electors should have the power to punish. To deprive them of this is to deprive them of the fundamental principles of the democracy of Home Rule so dear to the British heart.

The newspapers now no longer being provided with Hansard, the people will know very little about what is going on except from the centres, and yet some people are silly enough to call for the abolition of Hansard also. I have no doubt that the Government would agree to that because that would mean that nearly all criticism would be stifled, since no person would have the information to go on except a favoured few. So that if you stifle the press, assume the people are dishonest, give to the rich and powerful centralized power, and the disposing of all the appointments and funds, and with an non-elective Senate to which powerful interests can always succeed in getting their legal agents appointed (since the people have nothing to say about it), you have a nice country, haven't you It is against this sort of thing that I have been protesting, and I think you will agree with me that I am right.

The war, of course, outweighs everything, but we cannot afford to make serious blunders at any time.

J. H. Burnham.

. White, who has watched restle many times, offers a explanation of the deadly

"There are two prime factors in this hold to be considered in explaining its effect," said the doctor, "the pressure on the great arteries of the abdomen and the compression of the breathing apparatus. The explanation of the first is simple—is like suddenly plugging a high pressure water main; something has to give. Of course, this comparison is somewhat unfair, for the arteries and veins of the body are elastic whereas a water main is rigid. In the scissors hold the smaller blood vessels (capillaries) of the nose, mouth and ears are ruptured, for the heart is using the pressure necessary to force blood through) the entire body on about half its usual territory, hence the bleeding from these parts during the application of the hold. The scissors hold is dangerous in that the sudden raising of the pressure in the circulatory system can have a dilatory effect on the heart and larger arteries.

"The hold as set on by Stecher makes it impossible to breathe and all the appearances of asphyxia are present—in fact, he has a strangle hold without exerting pressure on the neck. Breathing in (inspiration) is brought about by movements of the chest and diaphragm which increase the capacity of the thorax (chest), and this lowers the pressure in the thoracic cavity. The pressure of the air in the lungs during their expansion is lower than that of the atmosphere and the air rushes in through the windpipe until the difference is equalized. Now, Stecher waits until his victim breathes out, then tightens his hold—the effect is that the abdomen and lower ribs are compressed—the diaphragm cannot raise through contraction of the interacostal muscles—in other words the capacity of the chest is not raised, the air in the lungs has the same pressure as the atmosphere and the victim cannot breathe. But by a supreme effort the wrestler can call upon auxiliary muscles, not normally used in breathing, to help him draw breath—not as much as he would like, but enough to keep him conscious. He can't hold the last breath forever, and when he breathes out again Stecher is ready for him—he tightens the hold and the air drawn in with the next breath is less, and so it goes on until the wrestler is exhausted. The exhaustion comes first through the great muscular effort expended, then through the lack of oxygen, which last virtually brings about smothering." All this aside from the general unpleasantness of the whole proceeding."

ENGLAND IS OPTIMISTIC SAYS LIEUT. V. EASTWOOD

Peterboro Soldier Returns Home After Strenuous Time Overseas.

WON MILITARY CROSS

After nearly two years absence, Lieut. Vincent Eastwood, M.C., who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, arrived in the city on Sunday morning on "invalided for further treatment" category.

England Optimistic

Lieut. Eastwood says that England at present although, constantly on the qui vive for what may happen next, is fairly optimistic about the out come of the war. Food he says is very tight and the civilian population while not complaining is certainly experiencing grave privation. The soldiers however are never in need—they get plenty of good wholesome food.

Draftees Well Received.

Asked how England received the first draftees, Lieut Eastwood, said that they were received with open arms as heartily as the first draft of volunteers in 1914. The draftees are considered a splendid bunch of men and already those overseas are much improved and have assumed military demeanor creditable to Canada. He said he had seen one movement towards returning over unfit for active service from England and that all such were in necessary employment.

Voyage Uneventful.

He said that the voyage overseas home was uneventful and quite free from subs and icebergs, but things happened of which he is not at liberty to speak. There were 38 officers, 4 nurses and about 540 men from the ranks in the ship returning all over Canada. The men who belong to the ranks including Douglas McDonald will arrive on Thursday.

Long Hospital Term.

Since November 10, 1917, when wounded at Passchendeale, Lieut. Eastwood has been in hospital until about 3 months ago when he came to England and has spent his time there in London and Manchester. In England he met Peterboro boys constantly and was glad to welcome Bob Langford overseas. He said that the Imperials need men, those up to 55 years of age are already called out.

Goes to Toronto.

After a short visit in the city, Lt. Eastwood will go into hospital in Toronto for further treatment.

Military News

(Kingston Whig).

Patients in military hospitals are to wear a blue band on the left sleeve of the great coat above the elbow. Convalescents are to wear a blue band with a white stripe. Waist-belts are not to be worn, nor puttees and leggings.

Must Return.

Officers selected to accompany drafts to England are to be considered as "conducting officers" only, and will on completion of their duty return to Canada unless their services can be utilized overseas.

Boys Stole Candy And Baseballs From Down Town Stores

Four boys, from seven to twelve years old, received their first lesson this morning in the ancient aphorism that the way of the transgressor is hard. For two or three weeks they have piled up a list of petty thieving cases that ran from candies to baseballs. They were two rich weeks. Aladdin's lamp couldn't have got them more than their own precocious methods in burglarizing. They entered Fanning's and Middleton's candy stores, from which they stole chocolates and a wide and inviting variety of sweets, with bananas and other confections. They also broke into Butcher's on Water street and collected baseballs with which to work off the energy the surplus sugar had created. The first theft took place two weeks ago, then on Friday and Saturday nights, and again on Sunday morning the descent from grace was rapid and accelerating. The police wring the story from the lads, three of whom were taken from school, and the other from bed this morning, and if they escape a touch or two of the cat they may count themselves extremely lucky.

LEADING LADY OF "BOHEMIAN GIRL" GIVES UP SUGAR

Miss May Carley Believes Americans Are Making Greater Sacrifices

Clad in the brightest of scarlet lounging robes and knitting industriously, Miss Alice May Carley, leading lady with the Boston English Opera Company, which plays to-night at the Grand, very interestingly described to-day her experiences on the stage.

Miss Carley, who was born in Idaho 28 years ago, has only been on the stage one year. Her life's ambition had been to go into opera, but she had trained directly for concert and church work which she undertook with, judging from press notices, the greatest success.

Gave Up Sugar.

Miss Carley is surprised at the non-conservation of food in Canada. In the States she had not seen white bread for months, and she herself had absolutely given up sugar, even on grape fruit. She thinks the Canadians could do with a little fewer luxuries!

Of the company five men have left the chorus during the past few weeks to join the army, and more will follow, as all are Americans, and feel the need of men. "If any one hinted a German sentiment in the troupe he would be eaten alive," she said.

Sang for Soldiers.

ENGLAND'S WAR ECONOMIES.

New York, May 19. — Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll, who is in London, writing to a friend in New York, says:

"You cannon imagine our war economies—one fire in one room in all the house, dark halls, one electric light in a room, paper lighters, instead of matches, a careful hoarding of paper, and piecing together of bits of twine, dry bread, unironed stockings, unstarched clothes, bare tables—(I don't mean food, I mean tablecloths—but we are used to mahogany at home); 40 per cent. alcohol whisky. This list is very long and it is astonishing how quickly one gets used to it all. The sad part is that, in spite of all this, it costs more and more to live each day. A hare costs $2.50, a bottle of gin $5, an egg a quarter, oranges 4 a dozen. It makes one's income look sick.

"My cousin's brother-in-law has a very large estate in Warwick, and he has some Hun prisoners assigned to him for farm work. One of the prisoners was praised for doing good work and he replied that he had done it for himself, as the land would be his in the autumn—that it had been allotted to him by his government."

LEADING LADY OF "BOHEMIAN GIRL" GIVES UP SUGAR

Miss May Carley Believes Americans Are Making Greater Sacrifices

Clad in the brightest of scarlet lounging robes and knitting industriously, Miss Alice May Carley, leading lady with the Boston English Opera Company, which plays to-night at the Grand, very interestingly described to-day her experiences on the stage.

Miss Carley, who was born in Idaho 28 years ago, has only been on the stage one year. Her life's ambition had been to go into opera, but she had trained directly for concert and church work which she undertook with, judging from press notices, the greatest success.

Gave Up Sugar.

Miss Carley is surprised at the non-conservation of food in Canada. In the States she had not seen white bread for months, and she herself had absolutely given up sugar, even on grape fruit. She thinks the Canadians could do with a little fewer luxuries!

Of the company five men have left the chorus during the past few weeks to join the army, and more will follow, as all are Americans, and feel the need of men. "If any one hinted a German sentiment in the troupe he would be eaten alive," she said.

Sang for Soldiers.

ENGLAND'S WAR ECONOMIES.

New York, May 19. — Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll, who is in London, writing to a friend in New York, says:

"You cannot imagine our war economies—one fire in one room in all the house, dark halls, one electric light in a room, paper lighters, instead of matches, a careful hoarding of paper, and piecing together of bits of twine, dry bread, unironed stockings, unstarched clothes, bare tables—(I don't mean food, I mean tablecloths—but we are used to mahogany at home); 40 per cent. alcohol whisky. This list is very long and it is astonishing how quickly one gets used to it all. The sad part is that, in spite of all this, it costs more and more to live each day. A hare costs $2.50, a bottle of gin $5, an egg a quarter, oranges $4 a dozen. It makes one's income look sick.

"My cousin's brother-in-law has a very large estate in Warwick, and he has some Hun prisoners assigned to him for farm work. One of the prisoners was praised for doing good work and he replied that he had done it for himself, as the land would be his in the autumn—that it had been allotted to him by his government."

COURT-MARTIAL FORMS CLIMAX TO DRAFTEES' JOKE

Alleged to Have Shot Two Toes Off Right Foot in Order to Evade Military Duty

TORONTO, May 21.—Pte. Mitchell Harvey Burrows, a Brampton draftee, who yesterday faced a district court-martial at the Exhibition Camp on the charge of having wilfully maimed himself by shooting two toes off his right foot on January 5, in order to evade military service, finds himself in an awkward position by reason of remarks which he is said to have made to his fellow-workmen in a Brampton factory months ago. Evidence was submitted that he had stated that he would shoot himself rather than put on a military uniform.

Accused, who was on crutches and pleaded not guilty, was represented by Daniel O'Connell. Lieut. T. F. Guy prosecured, and Lt.-Col. J. A. Macdonald, K.C., was judge advocate of the court.

No Duplicate Kept.

Lieut. H. E. Machell submitted a receipt from the post office showing that an order to report for service was mailed to Burrows on January 3, also shown was what purported to be the copy of the order to report on January 10. He was unable to produce a carbon copy of the actual order to report, but stated that two months ago the system had been changed at the office of the Ontario Registrar. Counsel O'Connell admitted that the order had been received by Burrows' father, but said Burrows himself did not get it until after his toes were shot off.

W. B. McCulla, assistant postmaster at Brampton, testified to delivering the registered letter to Burrows, Sr., "before dinner-time on January 5."

Chief Constable Called.

Andrew Herkes, chief of police at Brampton, testified that two days after the accident he called to see Burrows and mentioned that there were rumours that he had said that he would shoot himself rather than put on the uniform. "He told me it was only said in a joke," said the witness. "He told me his cartridges got jammed in his gun. They had got wet from some other time he had been out. He said he and his cousin, Walter Burrows, had been out rabbit hunting. He showed me the pump gun and the shells. I told him he must have got the trigger caught on something or it would not have gone off. The accused said he could not explain it."

The cartridges were rough and dirty at the sides and not fit to go in a gun.

"If a gun were jammed would you hold it over your foot in order to get it to go off?"

"I would not hold it over my foot."

Accused Demonstrates.

At the bidding of his counsel, Burrows showed the court how he held the rifle at the time of the accident. The Chief Constable admitted the explanation appeared quite plausible.

Andrew B. Ferguson had known accused for eleven years. He worked about two benches away from him in the same factory. "When conscription was first talked about, accused being the only single man there, the married men tried to 'get' him. He said, 'I will shoot myself before I go.' Once, when he said, "It won't be long before you get yours," Burrows, he said, "got pretty mad and said he would rather shoot himself. It was a joke around the factory for months afterwards, and I always considered it was a joke."

The case is proceeding.

GRAIN MARKET

A strong demand for cash oats at Winnipeg yesterday sent that market up 2 3-4c. to 2 7-8c. at the close. Oats in the Chicago market were also strong. May oats closing 1 3-4c. higher than Saturday, and July oats 1 5-8c. While the unsettled weather may have had something to do with the strength, it was generally believed that the Government buyers were in the market for all offerings in sight. Deliveries from the farmers continue very light, probably for the reason that there is little left to come out.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood, and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds, and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

SUPPLY OF BRAN AND SHORTS PRODUCED BY CANADIAN MILLS INSUFFICIENT TO GO AROUND

The Supply at the Present Rate of Production Would Give Each Animal Only One Meal in Every Two or Three Weeks —Two Classes of Animals For Which This Class of Feed is Adapted

CARLOAD DISTRIBUTION DISCUSSED

The supply of bran and shorts produced by the Canadian mills is limited. From returns of grind between September 1st and December 15th, 1917, it is known that the Canadian mills have been grinding wheat at the rate of about 8,000,000 bushels per month. That rate of grind cannot be continued for the whole season, because, there will not be sufficient wheat left in the country.

In grinding 8,000,000 bushels of wheat, not much more than 120,000,000 pounds of feed can be produced per month under the new standard flour regulations; which is at the rate of 4,000,000 pounds or 2,000 tons, per day. In Canada in June last, according to the Dominion Census and Statistic Department, there were the following numbers of farm animals, and it is understood that the campaign for greater production has resulted in increasing the numbers since that time:

Horses	3,412,749
Milch Cows	3,202,283
Other Cattle	4,718,657
Sheep	2,369,358
Swine	3,619,382
	17,322,429

Now it is evident that 4,000,000 lbs. of bran and shorts per day will not go very far towards feeding that number of animals. It would give June, so that only 1 out of every two or three weeks.

Two Classes.

The two classes of animals for which bran and shorts are most important are cattle and hogs, the bran for cattle and the shorts for hogs. Assuming that bran and shorts are produced in equal proportions, these are available 2,000,000 lbs. of each per day. A ration for a cow is, say, 5 lbs., and for a hog it varies with age but perhaps would average about 3 lbs. There were 7,920,940 cattle in Canada last June, so that only 1 uot of every 19 or 20 cattle could get one ration per day. If the bran was fed exclusively to milch cows, only 1 out of every 8 could get one ration per day. There were 3,619,382 hogs, so that only 1 out of every 5 or 6 hogs could get a ration of shorts per day.

Put in another way, 2,000,000 lbs. of bran is only 400,000 meals for a cow and there are at least 3,202,283 milch cows and 4,718,657 other cattle. While 2,000,000 lbs. of shorts is only 667,000 meals for a hog and there are at least 3,619,383 hogs.

Under these conditions it is mathematically impossible to make the bran and shorts go round. It is important, however, that the suply should be distributed as fairly as possible among those needing it most.

There has been a very general demand that the bran and shorts should be distributed by carloads direct to farmers or associations of farmers. Would the general adoption of carload shipments be practicable and would it work out fairly?

A carload contains 25 tons, so that there are only 40 carloads of bran and 40 carloads of shorts, a total of 80 carloads, produced in the whole of Canada per day. According to the census of 1911 there are in Canada 714,646 farms. If each farm was to be entitled to its share of carload distribution each would receive only one carload every twenty-four years. Excluding all smaller farms and counting only those of 101 acres and over, there were 361,168; which would give each farm one carload in about every twelve years. If distribution in carloads was confined to farms of 201 acres and over, there would be 132,931; which would give every farm of this class one carload every 4½ years. It would obviously be difficult to work out a satisfactory system of distribution by carloads to individuals.

Carload Distribution.

What about carload distribution to associations of owners of livestock? One carload per month would not seem much for an association of owners to receive, yet to entitled to one carload of bran per month, each association would have to own a total of 2,668 milch cows, and that would take all the bran that is made, leaving none for any other animals. Owners of 3,018 hogs would have to unite in one association to get one carload of shorts per month, and that would take all the shorts made. This is, of course, on the assumption that an equitable distribution was to be made in proportion to the numbers of milch cows and hogs in the country.

The same figures will apply to dealers. Unless a dealer has customers who possess among them a total of 2,600 milch cows or 3,000 hogs he is not entitled to as much as one carload per month, on strict proportional distribution.

In discussing carload distribution it should be borne in mind that 60 per cent of the mills in the country are of a capacity of 100 barrels per day or less. On the average it is taking a 100 barrel mill about 14 days to manufacture a total quantity of feed equal to a carload. If shipments were restricted to carloads such mills could not ship oftener than once a fornihi, and to do that could not sell any feed in small lots at the mill door. It would be impracticable for the majority of the mills to do any straight carload business at all.

It is clear that mill offals can furnish only a small proportion of the feed required in Canada and that very many orders for straight carloads cannot possibly be filled.

There is no export of Canadian bran and shorts so that the home market is getting the benefit of all that is produced.

Prices Fixed.

The prices fixed for bran and shorts make them so much cheaper than any other standard feeds that an artificial demand has been created and the difficulties of the situation greatly increased.

In October last, the Millers Committee represented to the authorities that the quantity of bran and shorts being manufactured could form only a small part of the feed required this winter, and suggested that a thoroughly capable man should take hold of the problem constructively and first figure out from the number of livestock the total bulk of feed necessary and then find out where supplies of all kinds of suitable feed were obtainable, in sufficient total quantity to meet the need, so that those requiring supplies could be directed where to secure them. The millers offered to co-operate in every practicable way.

Although every miller has from his regular trade more orders, and certainly more carload orders, than he can fill, the Millers Committee, on behalf of the millers, have offered many times to take up any special cases of need designated by the authorities and deal with them direct.

Few Drops on a Corn or Callus

This tiny bottle holds the wonder of wonders. It contains an almost magical drug called freezone. It is a compound made from ether.

Apply a few drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a hardened callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shrivelled and loose that you just lift it off with the fingers. It doesn't hurt one particle.

You feel no pain or soreness when applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin.

Just ask in any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. This will cost but a few cents, but will positively rid your poor, suffering feet of every hard corn, soft corn between the toes, or the hard calluses on the bottom of feet. Women! Keep a tiny bottle on the shelf and never let a corn ache.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A GUEST FOR DINNER

CHAPTER LXXII.

I was very much surprised when, a few days later, George brought Merton Gray home to dinner with him. I was delighted that Mary and I had agreed upon an especially dainty dinner, because I knew George would be cross if anything went wrong when we had a guest, even though an unexpected one.

"I am afraid this is an imposition," Merton said as she shook hands. "But Mr. Howard insisted."

"I am very glad to see you," was all I said, but I couldn't hide the pleasure I felt.

"Mrs. Howard has become a very efficient housekeeper. You will not disturb her," George broke in.

I was so pleased at his praise, and blushed with pleasure. But why had he never said this to me before? This repaid me, however, for all my efforts to please him. I was glad, too, that he had said it before Merton.

George was unusually jovial, and Merton was really gay. He complimented every single dish James served. And, really, the dinner was a success in every way. I thought happily, as we adjourned to the library.

A Wonderful Surprise.

"I have decided to have your portrait painted, and Mr. Gray has promised to take the commission," George said in his dignified way.

"My portrait!"

"Yes. Is there anything strange about that?"

"No—only—"

"You are surprised," he finished the sentence for me. You can have a few sittings before we leave town; and if more are required, Mr. Gray is to be at Bar Harbour and you can sit to him there."

I was so glad to hear George say that Merton was to be at Bar Harbour, that I lost most of my interest in the portrait. I had so hated the thought of going to the fashionable places George had selected, where I knew no one, and so I welcomed this news with delight. I would not be alone, neither would I be lonely, if I saw Merton Gray occasionally.

"I wish a full length portrait," George remarked.

"Yes, Mrs. Howard is so slight, her beauty is of so delicate an order, that she will make an admirable full length picture," Merton returned.

"She has a new gown which I think would be admirable," George said, his desire to arrange all details to suit himself uppermost. "I will ring for Celeste," he added, touching the bell and then telling Celeste to bring a certain gown which had just come home.

She brought it—a silvery, cloudy thing of tulle.

"Wonderful!" Merton exclaimed.

"Yes, it will make a wonderful setting," George replied, then as Celeste left the room, they talked of other things. I sat listening, happy and contented because I was allowed to do just that—to listen, instead of being left alone.

Music Hath Charms.

"I brought some new songs," Merton said, after a while, turning to me. "Would you like to try them? Or will it bore you?" he asked George.

"Not at all. I shall enjoy them," George returned politely.

I ran them over quickly. I saw I should be perfectly able to accompany him. He sang three of them, with a great deal of feeling, and perfect technique.

"Now please play something for me," he said.

I played for some time. Finally, when I left the piano, I heard Merton remark to George:

"You should be very proud of Mrs. Howard's playing. I have seldom heard an amateur who showed so much feeling, and such taste in expression."

"Yes, she does play well," George returned, one more delighting me by his praise.

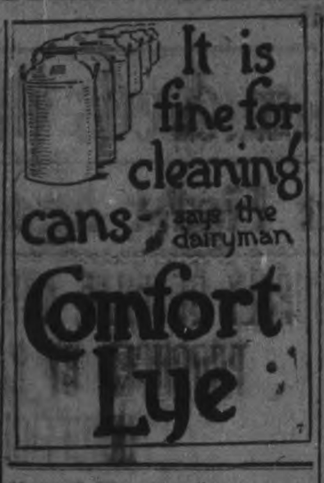
Merton remained until about ten o'clock. When he left it had been decided that I should begin my sittings at once. Celeste would go with me, and George would look in once in a while to see how the portrait was going.

"I feel honoured by the commission," Merton said, "And it is seldom I have so attractive a subject."

After he left, George and I talked genially for some little time. He was quite excited over the idea of my portrait. But I am afraid I thought more of the delightful chats I should have with Merton when I should be able to express myself without fear of criticism, than I did of pleasing George. I had not forgotten the delightful hour Evelyn and I spent with him the day he asked us to lunch at his studio.

I had no wish to have Merton Gray talk love to me—no slightest desire to have him flatter me as did Claude Huntington. Yet I never was so content, so happy, as when I was chatting with Merton, and listening to him.

To-morrow—My First Sitting.



FEARS INCREASE OF DISEASE

New York Physician Sees More Affection of the Thyroid Gland as Result of the War.

A marked increase in disease of the thyroid gland as a result of the war is predicted by Dr. S. P. Beebe of New York in the Medical Record. He bases this prediction on observations in Europe and on the fact that many of those who had suffered in the Kishineff massacre developed this disease after coming to New York; that their terrible experience in the Triangle shirt Waist company's fire produced the same trouble in at least three of the sufferers and a similar effect was observed after the San Francisco earthquake.

For hyperthyroidism, as it is called, is known to be an effect of intense emotion, fright, distress, worry and mental and physical exhaustion.

"The civil population will suffer from somewhat similar emotional disturbance," he continues. "The wives, sisters, sweethearts and mothers of the soldiers have had some foretaste of what is to come, and, unless all previous experience is to be contradicted, the incidence of hyperthyroidism will be markedly increased."

Doctor Beebe says the sufferers will need special care, and the disease must be recognized and treated at once if the cure is not to be tedously long.

Life of Man With Respect to Calls.

At first he is a child, and is taken to call by his mother, and he "just sits on a chair." But sometimes in that family there is another child—it may be a boy child or a girl child; and so, presently, he finds a little playmate, and begins to play, until his mother decides it is time the call was over, and she takes him home. Then he grows older; he makes calls all by himself; and so impressed is he (being at the impressionable age) by the satisfaction derived from certain of these calls that he marries the young woman, God willing, and makes the call permanent. After that, his wife takes him to call and he "just sits on a chair." But it sometimes happens, even as when he was a child, that he finds a little playmate; and then, when all is well and he has quite forgotten that he is making a call, his wife decides it is time that the call was over.

Agreed With Her.

After an all night session with the boys, a husband wended his way home, arriving there at about 5 a.m. He found his wife waiting for him in the dining room, the confusion of furniture indicated that she had been having an unhappy time.

"This is a nice time for you to be coming home!" snapped the wife.

"Yes," admitted the erring husband; "it's a lovely morning."

"I haven't sent a wink this blessed night!" with a severe look.

"Neither have I," said the husband.

Why a Cat's Eyes Shine In the Dark.

A cat's eyes shine in the dark not because they produce light, but because they reflect all the light that may reach them. If the cat is in a totally dark room one cannot see its eyes; it is only when there is at least a glimmer of light that these glow. The cat's eye is a powerful lens with a reflector behind. This gathers the rays and concentrates them in a horizontal beam. It is possible that these shining eyes exercise a sort of hypnotic fascination over mice and rats.

SEEMED ALL RIGHT TO HIM

But Possibly Mr. Soos Was More Interested In Cupid Than In Mere Matter of Spelling.

At last! The day, the hour, the minute, had arrived. Mr. Soos, the tall and handsome school inspector, stepped through the doorway of Alberta Blowy's classroom and bowed pleasantly to Miss Blowy. "Good-morning," he said, "I've just dropped in to see how well the children know their lessons."

Long had Miss Blowy awaited this moment. Long had she had dreams of Mr. Soos, enraptured at the perfect answers of her perfect pupils, falling in love with their teacher. And the children had been so good lately! They knew their lessons perfectly.

"James Tirwook, I will call upon you first," said Miss Blowy sweetly. "James, what is a blizzard?"

"It's inside of a chicken and it's good to eat when it's cooked," responded James promptly.

Miss Blowy swallowed hard. "Hem. Eloise Tibbs," she said weakly. "Eloise, spell 'unique.'"

"Y-o-u-n-double e-k, unique," responded little Eloise promptly.

Miss Blowy swallowed harder and collapsed with her head in the waste paper basket. "What is the trouble, my dear Miss Blowy?" asked Mr. Soos in perfect wonderment. "Your scholars seem to be very, very well informed."

He then rushed to extricate her and they married and lived happily ever after.

Children Had Whooping Cough

Whooping cough, although specially a disease of childhood, is by no means confined to that period, but may occur at any time of life. It is one of the most dangerous diseases of infancy, and yearly causes more deaths than scarlet fever, typhoid or diphtheria, and is more common in female than male children.

Whooping cough starts with spasmodic coughing, watering of the eyes, irritation of the throat, feverishness and cough. The coughing attacks occur frequently, but are generally more severe at night.

On the first sign of a "whoop" Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup should be administered, as it helps to clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phlegm.

Mrs. George Cooper, Bloomfield, Ont., writes: "It is with pleasure I can write and tell you that there never was a better cough medicine made than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Our children had whooping cough last winter, and that is the only thing that seemed to help them. It loosens up the phlegm so that they could raise it easily. I will never be without it."

"Dr. Wood's" is 25c. and 50c. a bottle; put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MISS' OR SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

Youth is in every line of this smart little bolero dress, No. 8793. The jacket effect makes it particularly appropriate for street wear with a fur. Serge, tricotine or gabardine, with a guimpe of white satin, or wash materials such as gingham or linen with the guimpe of organdie may be used. The sleeveless guimpe has a box plait at the front and the neck is finished with Peter Pan collar. The sleeves are long and close fitting, but they may be cut shorter if preferred. The straight skirt is in one piece, with straight lower edge, and it is gathered all around to the slightly raised waist line. The final touch is the very wide crushed girdle of dress material.

The miss' or small woman's dress pattern No. 8793 is cut in four sizes—14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Width at lower edge of skirt is 1½ yards. The 16 year size requires 3¼ yards 36 inch or 2¾ yards 44 inch material and 2 yards braid.

GERMAN TOYS MADE OF WOOD

Makers Forced to Use That Material Because Better Stuff Is Now Almost Unobtainable.

The German toy industry is showing the effects of three years of war. Simplicity is the rule in toy shops at present. Wood, which formerly was used only for cheaper sorts of toys, is now the chief material employed. The manufacture of new dolls is becoming impossible through the lack of flour (used with cement in making the bodies). Wax, which is employed for the heads of the better class dolls, is almost unobtainable; the same is true of the stuffs and lace used for making dolls' shoes, hats, dresses, stockings, etc. These are obtainable only at prices four times higher than before the war, consequently the prices of toys are higher.

The simple, cheap toys that formerly could be bought in the stores or from street venders for 10 pfennigs now cost 20 pfennigs or more. Jumping jacks of paper and cheap picture books no longer can be had except where old supplies are still in stock. Metal toys are few in number. The pretty toy trains and magic lanterns which used to be so common have been turned out only by those manufacturers who also were engaged in munition work and so commanded supplies of the necessary materials.

Toys which were intended for export, but which could not be shipped owing to the war, made a welcome addition to the supply for home consumption, large quantities of the better class of toys thus being put at the service of the home dealer. Great difficulties stand in the way of conveyance from the maker to the large towns, and only after long delay do toys reach the retailer.

RETURN TO ANCIENT METHOD

War Gradually Forcing Countries to Go Back to the Primitive Custom of Barter.

Predictions by some economists that the time may come if the war lasts much longer that money would cease to have any value, are gradually coming true, they contend. They point out that shipping deals being made by both belligerents are virtually a return to the old system of bartering goods.

As an illustration, the case is cited of the United States dickering with Japanese for tonnage to transport and maintain the 1,500,000 troops Secretary Baker expects to have in Europe by the end of this year. Ship plates for the Japanese have been held up in this country for several months by withholding export licenses. If the United States can obtain the tonnage the Japanese may get the plates on the basis of about two tons of shipping for one ton of ship plates.

In Germany the idea has been forced to a greater extent. In Erfurt and elsewhere it has long been the practice of doctors, dentists and other professional men to insist on payment in kind.

Cod Liver Oil From Sharks.

Shark spearing is a profitable industry in Malaysia, though attended by an element of danger and no little excitement. The chief value of the fish is its liver, which yields an oil that is refined in Europe and sold as cod liver oil. In October the ocean sharks come into the lagoon, between the barrier reef and the atolls, to pair. At this time they can be speared in large numbers by people skilled in catching them. There are several species of these sharks, and they ordinarily run from seven to fifteen feet in length. The liver of a shark of this size gives about five gallons of oil. The sharks are found in pairs, and the harpooners try to kill the male first, for they are then able to spear the female also, as it does not desert its mate.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

OUT of THE DEPTHS

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

Copyright, ..., by T. C. McClure

Cause and effect are your true endless chain. Thus because young Alanson brought good letters, the very best, to the rector and Squire Clark Mrs. Brown gave the garden party where so much else happened. Mrs. Brown had three girls to establish, and, as beaus were none too plenty, naturally it was a ruling principle with her to let no eligible young man get away from Eastbridge without a proper experience of their fascinations.

The fascinations were all very well until Amy Peters came. Amy was never accounted a beauty, but somehow she put all the set beauties out of court and countenance. Behold her at the party tripping airily about the lawn, with young Alanson at one side, Jock Hillman at the other and Billy Corliss tagging after like the faithful watchdog he was. This while the other young women had less than a beau apiece. You will admit it was aggravating. Kate Martin, Amy's best friend, spelled upon her fingers "P-I-G" as the train went past her. But Kate was not in the least angry or jealous. She had Bobby Shepherd all to herself, although Essie Brown had done her best to lure the gentleman away.

"Let me tell you about Miss Amy," Jock said to the stranger when presently Amy was safely enthroned in a garden chair, with her court still about her. "She's nearly the only girl in Eastbridge you don't have to court, whether or no you want to"—

"But you know you always want to, Jocky, dear," Amy said saucily. Billy Corliss laughed with the rest, but somehow the laugh did not get into his eyes. Young Alanson kept up the game bravely. "Can you imagine a live man not wanting to?" he asked of the world in general and Billy in particular. Billy put on his most reflective look. "There might be extenuating circumstances," he said diplomatically. Amy gave him a reproachful glance and said loftily: "I suppose, Billy, your extenuating circumstances wear frocks. Pray, does it happen by any chance that the most extenuating of them is named Clarissa Brown?"

"No," Billy said sturdily, shaking his head. "But that reminds me that neither Mr. Alanson nor I have more than said 'howdy' to Miss Clarissa. Jock, you stay here and keep this quicksilver young person out of mischief while we scramble through the decent thing."

"You may find us engaged unless you hurry back," Amy flung after them. Jock laughed aloud. "Let's hide," he said. "I know the very place. Won't it give Billy a jolt to come back and find us missing?"

"He needs one, good and hard," Amy said, tossing her head the least bit. "I have not told anybody else, Jock, but I'm going to marry Billy if I can ever make him show himself properly and humanly foolish. He's so abnormally steady going and sensible and settled I should not dare try to live up to him—unless I knew he had a nice silly streak somewhere."

"I suppose you wouldn't any way consider me. I'm pretty near all silly streaks," Jock said dolefully. Amy laughed and patted his arm, saying: "But you have good sense streaks, too, Jock, else why should you like me so well? We'll always be the best of friends, I know."

"Bet your bottom dollar on it!" Jock said, hurrying her along. He was making for a tumbledown summer house, thickly overgrown with vines, that nestled in the very farthest corner of the lawn. It had a damp floor, rotten and crumbly, and a dilapidated rustic bench along one side—a cool, deeply shaded nook, sweet with roses and honeysuckle. Amy sprang joyously inside it, with Jock at her heels. As they made to sit down low, hollow reverberations came up from below their feet. There was a dull crushing, a giving away, then before they could cry out a sliding down, down to dark, dank, unknown perilous depths.

Five minutes later Billy was asking anxiously of those about the garden chair, "Where is Amy?" Nobody could tell him. Presently he spied far out in the grass one of her little lace mitts. Running away from it were faint footmarks on the warm turf. Billy followed the marks, his face whitening fast. "Jock could not be so cruel as to take her near that old well house," he said to himself—then groaned aloud; he had come in sight of the well house, where the crumbled floor told him the tale.

"Jock! Amy! Answer me! Oh, God!" he cried aloud, peering over the crumbling rim into the blackness. No articulate answer came to him, but was it fancy that down in the deeps of earth he heard low, gasping moans? He sprang up with a shout that brought the whole crowd huddling about him. Mrs. Brown was at the head, weeping and wringing her hands. "They are lost, lost!" she moaned. "Nobody ever came out of that well alive. It's always half full of choke damp! That is why my father had it built over! Why didn't I think to tell everybody?"

Billy seemed not to hear. With giant strength he wrecked the rotten lattice, clearing the well mouth, then flung off coat and shoes, and prepared to clamber down. He had already sent for ropes. "No, I can't wait, with Amy dying," he said to those who tried to stop him. "I've got to save her or die with her. Stand by—listen close—and let me have ropes the minute you can."

The last words were shouted up the well mouth, whence already there came a faint earthy smell, half sweetish, half repulsive. Some of the curious were for crowding the edges to watch him, but wiser ones held them back. "Give him all the light and air possible, poor fellow; he needs both," Squire Clark said. Young Alanson, stripped and barefooted, sprang to the edge of the curb. "Who'll follow me?" he asked. "I'm going down, right behind Billy; we may make a live chain before it's too late."

"I'll follow! And I! And I!" came from all about. In a little, the human line was over the edge, creeping down, down to the dangerous deeps, noisome and cold. Billy heard it coming, and shouted up:

"In time, thank God! I hear moans!" Then he gave a great inarticulate cry. There, clinging to the rough rock wall, was Amy, five feet above the glimmering water, which lapped something dark and limp.

"Here, you! Take her up!" he cried hoarsely, husbanding his breath all he might. He had come to the thick, deadly damp. Unless he was quick and bold it would make an end of him, as it had possibly already made an end of poor, light hearted Jock. Clinging fast with one hand, his feet well braced across the well breadth, he swung Amy up with the other into young Alanson's hold. The others knew enough to pass her on up and out. Drawing a long, long breath, Billy leaped down beside the insensible figure at the bottom, caught it up and began a desperate ascent.

"Hold hard, Billy! I'm coming to help!" young Alanson cried, setting his feet firmly and bending until his head was almost level with them. Thus he gripped Jock's collar and somewhat eased the strain on Billy. Both were, however, so near to smothering their tense muscles gave down. Lights swam before their eyes; their heads were bursting; the subtle heaviness in chest and nostrils numbed them to the bone. Alanson felt himself almost failing when a rope struck his hand, flung with such force it almost drew blood.

"Send up, Jock! We'll pull you two out safe!" the men higher up cried in them and then, when they saw their plight, came down like Trojans to help. It was little short of a miracle that any of the three got out alive. But somehow, by the good God's mercy, they all came into reviving upper air. Jock had the face of a dead man. At sight of him Amy fell to sobbing. "He—he lifted me up and bade me cling," she said brokenly, "but stayed on the bottom himself because there was not room for two to hold in the crevice of the wall."

"He won't die for it," Dr. Payne said, looking up from his patient, Billy, lying spent and white upon the grass, beckoned Amy imperatively to him. "You must marry me right off," he said, patting her hand. "After this I dare not trust you with yourself."

"Nor I," Amy said, nestling to him. "You were horribly foolish to take such risks for me, Billy. It is only by staying with you I can make sure you will never do it again."

A Lord Chancellor at Play.

It is on record that the great seal of Britain has twice been degraded to kitchen uses. In 1834, when Lord Brougham, then lord chancellor, was staying as a guest with the Duchess of Bedford, some ladies of the house party in a frolic ventured to purloin the great seal from the chancellor's bedroom.

Trembling with anxiety, the great man came downstairs to proclaim his loss, but to his relief they told him of their joke and challenged him to find his treasure. Entering into the spirit of their fun, he at last dragged the emblem of his authority triumphantly from the coal box.

Still in merry mood, he led the party to the kitchen, where each lady made a pancake, with the great seal for a pan, pouring the batter between its disks.

This mad prank created so much amusement that Lord Brougham repeated it at Taymouth to give pleasure to the Marchioness of Breadalbane.—London Answers.

When the Plague Raged.

Sir Walter Besant in one of his books says of the author of "Robinson Crusoe" and "Journal of the Plague:" "De Foe was born in the year 1661. His father lived in Cripplegate, where, as we know, he had a shop. The child therefore, was four years of age in the plague year. A child of four observes a great deal and may remember a great deal. De Foe says: 'When any one bought a joint of meat he would not take it out of the butcher's hand, but took it off the hooks himself. On the other hand, the butcher would not touch the money, but put it into a pot full of vinegar which he kept for the purpose.' This must surely have been seen by the child and remembered. It happened in his father's shop before his eyes."

Pains Followed The Nerves

From the Feet to the Top of the Head — Could Not Attend to Business For Five Months—Gaining Strength Every Day.

Bowmanville, Ont., Feb. 16. — A great number of people in this district have been trying out Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results and none are more enthusiastic than Mr. Allen.

His nervous system had become so completely run down that he had to give up his usual occupation and he suffered keenly from neuralgic pains which would dart along the nerves, causing keen distress.

But he found a cure and does not hesitate to recommend it to others. This is his letter.

Mr. Samuel Allen, Coleman Street, Bowmanville, Ont., writes:

"Last summer I suffered from a severe attack of nervousness. I was laid up, unable to attend to my business, for five months. I would be taken with pains which commenced in my feet and ran right up to the top of my head. I had frequent dizzy spells, sometimes so bad that I would fall over from dizziness. At last I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and they proved of such benefit to me that before long I was able to return to work. I am still using the Nerve Food and gaining strength every day. I can heartily recommend them to any one suffering from nervous trouble of any kind."

This letter is endorsed by Mr. John Lyle, J.P.

AWARDED MEDAL OF MERIT

Philadelphian Honored for Invention of Best-Known Device for Counting Blood Corpuscles.

The Franklin Institute has recently awarded its Edward Longstreth medal of merit to Mr. Max Levy of Philadelphia, Pa., for his new form of haemocytometer. The purpose of this device is to provide an improvement in chambers for counting blood corpuscles. The specific improvement is in forming the entire chamber, with the exception of the cover glass, from a single plate of glass. Cross lines, one-twentieth of a millimeter apart, are ruled upon the glass base, thus dividing the surface into squares one-four hundredth of a square millimeter in area. The surface upon which these rulings are made is one-tenth of a millimeter below the under surface of the cover glass through which the blood corpuscles are counted with the aid of a microscope. The channels in this haemocytometer run across the slide, making it much easier to clean than the disk form. A modification has the rulings made on a separate plate, cemented into a transverse groove cut in the base plate, into which it is accurately fitted. The instrument is a decided improvement over those heretofore obtained from Germany.

A Clever Actress.

When drawing up lists of Canadian actresses the name of Lucile Watson is nearly always omitted, but she is a player of whom we may well be proud, as she possesses few rivals in her own particular line. She has a gift for the type of humor commonly called "dry," coupled with a certain assurance and sophistication, so that she is enabled to act the parts of clever society women in an inimitable manner. New York critics always expect Miss Watson to give a good performance and they are seldom disappointed. This season she is scoring a hit in "The Naughty Wife," a comedy that was first introduced under the much more attractive title, "Losing Eloise." Miss Watson was born in Quebec, her father being an officer in the British army, and she was educated in Ottawa. She went to New York to enter the Sargent Dramatic School and her talent for society comedy won quick recognition.

Many Changes In The Grocery Market This Week

The Sugar Situation is Somewhat Easier—New Vegetables Are on the Market

There has been some doubt expressed in the levying of the excise tax on tea as to whether dealers holding over 1,000 lbs. should pay the tax on the whole amount, or whether the 1,000 pounds would be an exemption and the tax levied only on the amount over and above his quantity says, the "Canadian Grocer" this week. A ruling from Ottawa indicates that the tax will be levied on amounts over the above 1,000 lbs.; that is, the first 1,000 pounds is exempt form the excise tax.

The War Trade Board, after consultation with the United States Department of Agriculture, announces that on and after May 6, 1918, exporters to Canada of corn to be used for any purpose will not be required indorsed by a Federal grain supervisor, as required in former announcements.

No Change

No change has been made in the rule requiring that all applications for licenses to export corn for any purpose to Canada must be accompanied by a Canadian import license permitting the consignee named in the application to import the quantities specified therein.

Exporters should not apply for an export license until they have received from the prospective importer such import license, which should be securely pasted on the back of the application for an export license.

Business generally shows considerable improvement over the previous week.

The sugar situation shows a somewhat easier tendency during the week as regards supplies. The demend as wet is far in excess of supply, but canditions are materially improved. As regards sufficient quantities being available for the preserving season the consensus of opinion was that every householder would be able to procure sufficient to carry her through.

Fresh imported vegetables are arriving in increasingly large quantities and enjoying a splendid sale. Wax beans, beets, carrots, onions, green peas are being offered and sold at high prices against stocks carried over this winter. This is notably true of onions, and would seem to explain in some measure why there are so many of this vegetable going to the incinerators.

Reports from California indicate a further setback to the orange crop, and Valencias have undergone a sharp advance. This will very likely be reflected here, though stocks at present are in fair condition, with prices on about the same basis as ruling for some time past. Ontario barreled apples are getting cleaned up pretty well, and last shipments of boxed are reported arriving. Grapefruit is in light supply, and pineapples hold firm, with stocks none too heavy. Strawberries have registered a substantial decline, though the market has strengthened somewhat over low figures reached towards end of last week.

Whereas there are a few points to get cleared up in reference to some of the items of new taxation, the trade has generally adjusted itself as far as possible to the proposed legislation. The demand on tea and coffee has been curtailed to some extent by the increased prices, but reports from retailers generally indicate that consumption shows little or no dropping off at present, and a resumption of normal buying activity may be expected as requirements develop.

FOR APIARY BEGINNER

Description of the Equipment Required to Insure Success.

CLUBS FOR THE FARMERS

Outline a Summer Program Now and Have Everything Well Organized —The Club Picnic Is a Very Successful Feature of the Year's Work.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

EXTRACTED honey production is the most satisfactory for beginners. Start with three colonies and sufficient equipment and then make the bees pay their way. One colony does not give the beginner an opportunity to right mistakes or accidents profitably. Three colonies can be managed by devoting one evening weekly to the apiary.

Avoid many troublesome pitfalls by starting with the right hive. The 10 fr. Langstroth hive has given the best satisfaction in Ontario. All beekeepers' supply houses carry this hive and its parts in their regular stock. Buy your first hives from a good manufacturer. It is very necessary to have all hive parts interchangeable so that they may be used in any colony in the apiary. Uniformity and accurate workmanship alone can ensure this need.

One complete 10 fr. Langstroth hive consists of:—

(1) A bottom board.
(2) A hive body with self spacing frames and wire.
(3) A telescoping metal roof cover.

In addition the beginner should provide for each colony one queen excluder; two extra hive-bodies complete with frames; and 7 lbs. of medium brood foundation, which runs 6 sheets to the lb., to fill the frames with a guide and foundation for the future combs.

It is advisable to commence with a 2-lb. package of bees and queen; a swarm or a nucleus. Less danger from disease attends the buying of pound packages than the buying of swarms and nuclei. Pound packages may be secured for delivery from May 1st to June 30th. Early packages will yield a surplus if carefully handled. Enquire of the Provincial Apiarist re disease in your locality before buying swarms, nuclei or colonies.

The accessory equipment for the beginner should consist of:—

(1) A veil of black cotton tulle.
(2) A standard bee smocker.
(3) A hive tool.
(4) A spur wheel wire embedder.
(5) An uncapping knife.
(6) An uncapping box.
(7) A complete set of Department literature, Bulletins 213, 233 and 256, and a good reference bee book.
(8) A small honey extractor.

With the exception of Nos. 6, 7 and 8, it is advisable to acquire the material needed from a supply firm at once. The uncapping box can be made at home, and the beginner could probably co-operate with another beekeeper in securing the use of an extractor. With the increase of colonies to ten, it would then be advisable to provide a storage can to assist in handling the crop.—W. A. Weir, Ontario Agricultural College.

A Successful Farmers' Club.

The history of some farmers' associations in Ontario has been brief and filled with troubles. Others have built upon the rock and have endured. Why the difference?

Perhaps a very short story will explain the former case. A farmers' club, organized by a district representative, got away apparently to a good start, then halted uncertainly and finally died a lingering death from general debility. When asked to explain the reason the representative gave one—promptly and with emphasis.

"The club died because the farmers didn't want it. The members were easily persuaded to organize but never took any real interest in it—they were never really convinced that it was a vital necessity.

"So far I haven't heard any proposal to revive it either, and I don't intend to attempt to inject any artificial stimulation into it. When the farmers in that district are really "sold" to the idea of the necessity of organization, then will be in a position to do some work."

That explains the first cause of most failures. Artificial stimulation serves to carry an invalid through a dangerous pass, but as a steady diet for a healthy body it is foredoomed to failure. A farmers' association must not be an invalid; when outside stimulation has to be given, it is a safe bet its days are numbered.

But many others have succeeded. Work — doing things — is the secret of their success. They make every member conscious of the value of organization in the community. The executives are enthusiastic, they have developed progressive policies and they work to make them successful. And work honestly undertaken and wisely directed will always make a club or association successful if it has the right kind of material to work with.

In the summer, the club ought not to be allowed to lose its grip. How about a herd testing scheme—has your club taken that up yet? Perhaps those members needing drainage can have surveys made of their fields, purchase tile co-operatively, secure a traction ditcher, and if need be, borrow provincial funds to pay a large part of the cost. Endless ways present themselves to make the farmers' association a real force in every month. Above all, don't forget the farmers' picnic—a little fun makes the work more efficient.—Justus Miller, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

GERMAN FACTORIES IDLE.

Textile Workers In Desperate Plight, Says Reichstag Deputy.

AMSTERDAM—Herr Kraetsig, a Socialist member of the Reichstag, asserted in the debate on the appropriation for the Imperial Economic Department that four-fifths of the textile industries of Germany were completely paralyzed and that the position of the idle textile workers was rapidly growing desperate.

He demanded that adequate provision be made for them, so as to keep skilled textile workers in readiness for a resumption of the industries after the war. At present, he said, they were being compelled to accept menial employment from the authorities at starvation wages.

Herr Kraetzig also complained that attempts were being made by a small group of capitalists, with the knowledge of the Government, to monopolize the cellulose industry, which promised to be extremely important in the future. He attacked Dr. Karl Helfferich, formerly Vice-Chancellor, saying that Helfferich had a "mania for creating syndicates, which was fatal to industries and calculated especially to ruin the textile industry.

MAN WORKING 100 ACRES RECEIVES CALL TO REPORT.

Hibernot, May 18.—Truman Ward, of concession 10, Lobo township, who has sown a big crop, was one of the men called for military service who had to report to-day. As he is working 100 acres alone he is wondering who will look after his crops. There is a chance that he may get leave, as he has a brother serving at the front.

SO GOOD AS MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels and will tone, renovate, and purify the liver, removing every result of liver trouble from the temporary, but disagreeable bilious and sick headaches, to the severest forms of liver complaint.

They are small and easy-acting, do not gripe, sicken or weaken like the old-fashioned, nauseating, griping purgatives.

Mrs. A. Kirk, 53 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have tried and tested Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and have received good results, for which I am very thankful. I took them for liver trouble. I came out of the hospital on May 3rd, last, after having had a serious operation which might have been saved had I taken your remedy sooner. I have given some to my sister for biliousness and sick headache, and she has found great relief. A lady who lives in my house has started to take them. I will do my best to recommend them to all my friends."

Bashfulness.

Bashfulness is natural to youth. "Modesty is the graceful, calm, virtue of maturity; bashfulness the charm of vivacious youth," and unless a young man takes advantage of opportunities of entering society he will retain "an air of bashfulness, which is in reality the want of habitual intercourse with the world" (Waverley). As long ago as 1570 Ascham wrote that "if a young gentleman be bashfull and soon blush they call him a babishe and ill brought up thyng." Deficient social education is therefore a cause of bashfulness.

Habit also predisposes to it. A mere indisposition to exert oneself, indulged in for too long a time, may eventually result in confirmed bashfulness. This indifference may be due to a want of sympathy with the surroundings or may have its origin in unalloyed selfishness—for many bashful men are extremely selfish—or may be due to vanity.—Cassell's.

Duty and Beauty.

"Dip your fingers in strong alum water to harden them," advises the beauty expert of a Western contemporary. "Then apply vaseline over night and in the morning after washing in soap suds, polish them with talcum powder." Just to combine duty with beauty and as an item of helpful preparedness, those who follow the suggestions might use the soap suds that appear in the dish water, Bouncing the suds vigorously over the dishes.—Providence Journal.

Bread From Acorns.

Acorns are commonly thought to be fit only for feeding hogs, but many kinds of them are either sweet enough to eat or can be made edible from an Indian standpoint and have been used as food, particularly when other foods were scarce. The Indian custom was to pound or grind the acorns up and by treating the pulp with water leach out the tannin, which makes most sorts unfit for eating as they grew. The resulting flour, which contained considerable starch, was made either into a porridge or baked in small cakes. Indian acorn bread is dark in color and to most of us would not seem palatable. As a rule the acorns of the various white oaks having less tannin are the ones best suited for food, but Indians also used those of the black oaks, even though they contain much tannin. The acorns of the basket or cow oak, the chinquapin oak, shin or Rocky mountain oak, live oak, and of several other species, are sweet enough to be eaten like nuts.

The Fourth Bridge.

There is an amusing story going round the British grand fleet; just the kind of joke which Jack Tar likes to give and take with his friends. It is quite seriously affirmed that when an American squadron consisting of the U. S. S. Delaware, New York and Wyoming, with destroyers and other craft, came up the Firth, the British flagship signaled to them: "You are to anchor west of the Forth bridge." But the Americans passed under the bridge and sailed on. Shortly the British admiral made another signal: "We signaled just now that you were to anchor west of the Forth bridge; why don't you stop?" And the American flagship immediately signaled the reply: "Well, I guess we have only passed one bridge as yet!"

Should Be Accommodated.

(New York Herald.)

"I would rather stand against a wall and be shot than serve the United States," remarks a person who has been taking advantage of the protection given him by the laws of the United States to consort with anarchy. Why not accommodate the gentleman? And when the shooting comes, let it be straight shooting.

British Improved Positions Northwest Of Merville

BRITISH IMPROVED POSITIONS ON WESTERN BATTLEFRONT

Heavy Enemy Bombardment Was Crushed By British Artillery and Machine Guns—Prisoners Taken

BRITISH OFFICIAL REPORT

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 21.— Northwest of Merville, in the Flanders salient, the British improved their positions last night, the War Office announces. Thirty prisoners and six machine guns were taken by the British in this operation. A counter attack on new positions, launched this morning after a period of heavy shelling, was crushed by British machine guns.

THE STATEMENT SAYS:

A successful local operation was carried out by troops of the Surrey Battalion yesterday evening north-west of Merville. A re-entrant in our line in this sector was closed up and 30 prisoners and six machine guns were captured by us. Early this morning a hostile counter attack against new positions, delivered after a heavy bombardment, was broken up by our artillery and machine gun fire.

HOSTILE ARTILLERY.

We carried out a successful raid last night south-east of Arras and brought back a few prisoners and a machine gun from the enemy trenches. During the night hostile artillery was active in the Albert sector, about Hebuterne, between the forest of Nieppe and Metzeren, and more active than usual between the Scarpe river and Hill 70, north of Lens. The gas shelling, reported to have taken place yesterday south of Bethune, was heavy.

Four Houses Gone From New Property Acquired By C.G.E.

The last of four houses on the Canadian General Electric Company's property on Albert Street were removed this morning. Three of them were old and dilapidated shacks, two of which were demolished for the lumber they contained. All four houses were secured from the company by Mr. R. C. Braund. One of them has been moved around to Chamberlain Street, and set up for further use. Two of them were pulled to pieces, and the last and best of the four was moved across the street to-day, and will soon be ready for re-occupation.

The four gaping cellars and piles of debris, and the fruit trees cut down, are somewhat suggestive of ruined towns in France. The customary high red fence that encloses the company's property will doubtless soon be extended around these lots, and the old houses will be forgotten in the new buildings the C.G.E. intends to erect.

CASUALTIES IN COLOGNE AS RESULT OF AIR RAIDS

Special to The Examiner:

AMSTERDAM, May 21.—Incomplete lists of the casualties recently inflicted by Allied air raiders in Cologne, published by newspapers in that city, show 25 dead and 45 injured. It is believed that many bodies are still in the debris.

Twenty-three bombs were dropped in the heart of the city, it is said, wrecking several big buildings and causing great panic.

The Cologne Volks Zeitung says it believes the raid was made in reprisal for German raids on Allied cities.

Local Veterans Ask Their Delegates to Bring Matter Before Provincial Council at Hamilton—Equality of Pensions is Also Advocated

MANY NEW MEMBERS

If all the other branches of the Great War Veterans Associations have as many matters to bring before the Provincial convention at Hamilton, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, as the Peterboro branch, there is a very busy time ahead of the big meeting of the Veterans.

At the regular meeting of the Peterboro branch last night, a number of resolutions were passed and the four delegates who will represent the local Veterans at Hamilton, were asked to bring them before the convention.

Briefly, the meeting decided in favour of the equality of pensions as between officers and the rank and file; of the government taking over the coal question and of the increasing of the day's pay of men called to Kingston for examination by the Pensions Medical Board, from $1.10 to $3 per day. The delegates were also instructed to ask for a decrease in the per capita tax paid by branches of the G.W.V.A. to the Provincial and Dominion executives, and to call attention to the fact that the pensions paid to men who have been on active service at the front, are inferior as a rule to those of men who have been discharged without reaching the firing line.

The meeting also favored a resolution asking the government to authorize the manufacture and sale of five per cent. beer, and authorized the Peterboro delegates to bring the matter before the convention.

They were also instructed to endeavour to secure the next provincial convention of the G.W.V.A. for Peterboro.

The delegates from Peterboro to the convention are President H. J. Staunton; Secretary S. Whatley, Comrade R. H. Muir and Captain J. H. Burnham, M.P.

One of the Veterans at last night's meeting, asked for information as to what the last named delegate intended to bring before the convention. "Capt. Burnham hasn't been at any of the meetings recently," he pointed out, "and we don't know what he is liable to say at Hamilton. He might explode, like he did one night here not long ago."

However, the assurance was given that Capt. Burnham would be governed by the advice of the other delegates.

17 NEW MEMBERS.

The membership of the Peterboro branch received a record increase at last night's meeting when no fewer than seventeen new members were admitted. As there were fourteen added at the meeting two weeks ago, the branch has made a record of thirty-one new members in the past four weeks. Those who were admitted last night, the majority of whom have seen service in France, were H. Holbrooke, R. Killingbeck, George Kent, W. P. Johnston, John Cornelius, E. Toms, John Latta, H. L. Johnston, J. C.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS MADE CLEAN SWEEP

Eighty-four Sinn Fein Leaders Arrested—Will Repudiate Leaders If Government's Evidence of German Plot Is Conclusive.

ALL QUIET TO-DAY

(United Press.)
(By Webb Miller.)

Dublin, May 21.—Dublin to-day is outwardly still very calm. The streets are thronged with groups of men discussing the blow which fell upon the Sinn Fein when more than a hundred arrests were made. It is evident that the government's swoop made a clean sweep of the rebel leaders in every community. It seems to have left the Sinn Feiners guidless and uncertain as to what acton to take next, although they immediately appointed Aldermen Kelly and John McNeill to replace De Valera and Griffith. Kelly and MacNeill are of the milder element and are expected to counsel moderation and no violence. In their street talk the Sinn Feiners defy the government to show proof of a German plot for an Irish uprising, and demand the proof be quickly produced.

The more rabid ones savagely and openly avow that talk of German influence is a plot by England to kill Sinn Feinism. They declare that if the government fails to show proof of German handiwork, they will "do something." But they seem uncertain about what they will do. The majority of the delegates describe themselves as being anti-English, pro-Irish and not pro-German.

REPUDIATE LEADERS.

"If the government has got the goods," they say, "then we will repudiate our leaders and get others; however, we do not believe that so many have been connected with a German plot."

Those who know Ireland best refuse to predict what will happen. One said, "I don't know whether it is a powder mine awaiting the spark or not."

Sinn Fein headquarters have reopened. Officials announced that 84 leaders had been arrested, and that they expected more arrests.

INTERIOR CALM.

The interior of Ireland is calm. The evening papers demand the government produce proof of its German claims, and charge that the government announced the alleged plot simultaneously with the visit of the American labour delegates so as to blacken Ireland in the eyes of the Americans.

The American labour men have met Lord French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and John Dillon, M.P.

All Sinn Feiners are deeply interested in what effect will be produced on the United States by the events now transpiring.

The anti-conscription fund it was learned to-day, is now nearly one million.

OFFICIAL EVIDENCE.

London, May 21.—Official evidence of the complicity between Sinn Fein leaders and Germany, will be made public shortly, it was learned to-day.

UNUSUAL AERIAL ACTIVITY ON THE WEST FRONT

Air Along Somme Line is Buzzing With Aerial Fighters—Weather Is Ideal—Hindenburg is Ready to Strike.

SHOCK TROOPS

(By William Philip Simms — United Press).

10 O'clock Despatch:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 21.—General Mackensen is widely reported to be on the Western front, ready to strike the moment Field Marshal Hindenburg finds an opening.

I calculate that a hundred divisions of shock troops (1,700,000 men) are awaiting Hindenburg's order. Forty of these are fresh, not having been used in this season's fighting. The other sixty have been out of the line long enough to be rested and doped up morally by Germany's professional spirit boosters.

Hindenburg's forces on the Western front have reached the exact figure given to me in Switzerland in February as the maximum ultimately at his disposal, without a radical change being wrought in the relations between the Central Empires. Therefore, without prophesying what will be the nature of his next blow, or blows, this effort naturally ought to be his final or semi-final attempt.

Prisoners Returning.

From now on, all prisoners returning from Russia, together with the 1919 class, returned wounded and the rest, probably will barely suffice to keep his active divisions up to anything like their intended strength.

The Kaiser may undertake elaborate feints here and there, but the indications are his main thrust will be against the British or the French and British combined.

My information is that the Germans will hamper the British with the bulk of their army, simultaneously spreading propaganda to the effect that the British do not fight as well as the other Allies in order to create friction among the Entente nations.

Meanwhile, prisoners admit that German mouths are still watering for Amiens and the cool, green valley of the Somme, stretching toward the sea.

Thus, with double objectives, one impudent and sinister, the other daring and desperate, Hindenburg may be expected shortly to set the Western battle front ablaze.

Considerable Shelling.

In the meantime, events out here are proceeding as usual before an offensive. There is considerable shelling by high explosives, and jockeying for the high ground that furnishes the advantage of position. The air along the somme is buzzing with German and Allied planes, the aerial fighting being of unusual scope and intensity.

The finest fighting weather of the war continues. There has been only one shower since a week ago, and this was insufficient to settle the dusty, bone dry roads. The trees lining the roads are covered with a fine white powder, while motorists resemble dust-covered heroes in the third act of Shenandoah.

Above the battle lines, sizzling under the brilliant sun, you can see the waves of heat rising and shimmering, like a July day in Georgia.

The fields are a delightful green right up to the trenches. Both the Somme and Lys battlefields look semi-tropical, more like Louisiania than Northern France. Overhead the pale blue sky seems faded by the light and heat.

It would be strange if Hindenburg allowed such weather to be wasted. These days favour an offensive far more than a defensive battle.

To economize on tea you should use only the genuine Salada. A pound of Salada yields so many more cups than does ordinary tea that it is a real saving compared to the ordinary tea.

FLORENCE, May 21.—"We have good reason to believe we have complete control of the submarine situation in the Mediterranean," Admiral Delcone of the Italian Navy, declared in an interview here to-day. CRIMINAL OFFENCE TO HOARD SILVER IN IRELAND

An Order-in-Council to This Effect—Resolution Denouncing Sinn Fein Deportations

SIGNED STATEMENT

Canadian Press:

DUBLIN, May 21.—An Order-in-Council makes it a criminal offence, under the Defence of the Realm Act, to hoard silver in Ireland or to exchange, or offer in exchange, current coins for an amount exceeding their face value.

A resolution denouncing Sinn Fein deportations as an attempt to discredit and disrupt Ireland's united resistance to conscription and to prejudice Ireland's case in the eyes of friendly countries was passed by the Anti-Conscription Conference which met at the Mansion House on Monday. An official statement, signed, among others, by John Dillon and Joseph Devlin, Irish Nationalist leaders, was issued after the meeting. It insists on the right of Irishmen to be arraigned in their own country, and declares that an attempt was being made to poison the minds of English people against the prisoners.

Canadian Press:

DUBLIN, May 21.—The country is perfectly calm, a representative of Sinn Fein at organization headquarters said to-day to the Associated Press. Up to the present time we have received particulars of 84 arrests. We expect there will be others.

Business as usual is the motto at our headquarters. Some of the English newspapers are suggesting that Sinn Fein has been stunned by the government's action. That is not correct. The arrests were expected and substitute leaders were appointed some time ago to carry on our affairs whenever the need should arise.

Committee Recommends Several Changes In The Pension Regulations

Board of Pension Commissioners Will Be Developed as a Civil Body—Colonel Labatt Totally Disabled.

MEDICAL BOARDS

OTTAWA, May 21.—Hon. N. W. Rowell, Chairman of the special committee of the House of Commons appointed to report upon the Pension Board, pension regulations, etc., tabled the findings of the committee early this morning. The report contains a large number of recommendations designed to improve the existing plan of pensions, as well as a special report dealing with the pension granted to Col. R. H. Labatt, a member of the board, which has been the subject of some discussion in the Commons and throughout the country.

The committee finds that Col. Labatt is suffering from valvular disease of the heart, and that he is totally disabled within the meaning of the pension regulation, and that he was not suffering from this disability at the date of enlistment. It also finds that Col. Labtat was not granted a pension by misrepresentation, or by any influence, direct or indirect, on the part of any member of the Government.

After paying tribute to the work done by Col. Labatt in the organization and development of the Pensions Branch, the opinion is expressed that the increasing work and responsibility demands the whole time and energy of men of full physical vigor, and that "the committee is of the opinion that Col. Labatt's resignation, contained in his letter to the Chairman of the committee, should be accepted by the Government."

Committee's Recommendations.

1.—That pensions should be awarded for disability in accordance with the rank or acting rank, of the member of the C. E. F., at the time the disability was incurred; that no variation in rank after such disability is incurred should affect any pension.

2.—That pensions should be discontinued upon the re-enlistment of a pensioner, as a member of the expeditionary or naval forces; and that his case upon re-discharge should be considered anew as if his services had been continuous from his first enlistment.

3.—That whenever a pensioner is required to be medically re-examined he shall be entitled to be paid a reasonable amount for traveling expenses and substituted, or loss of wages.

4.—That pensioners above the rank of lieutenant, who are totally helpless, may, in the discretion of the Commission, be awarded a total sum by way of pension and allowances not in excess of that which a totally disabled and helpless lieutenant might be awarded.

5.—That when a soldier has no wife, but is wholly or to a material extent maintaining one or more of his parents, an amount equivalent to an additional pension for married member may be paid to him.

6.—That the Commission may, in its discretion, award a pension not in excess of the rate for an orphan child, to any child of a soldier who is not being maintained by, and does not form part of the family cared for by the widow, divorced wife, unmarried wife, or parent of the member.

7.—That no pension should be paid to or in respect of a child who, if a boy, is over the age of 16 years, or, if a girl, is over the age of 17 years, except when such child and those responsible for its maintenance are without resources, and the child is unable owing to physical or mental infirmity, to provide for its maintenance, in which case the allowance may be continued until the child has attained the age of 21 years.

8.—That the pensions of any parents, or person in the place of a parent, should be subject to revision from time to time.

9.—That the Commission should be given discretion to apportion a pension between several applicants of the same relationship to the deceased soldier.

LEADERS OPPOSED THE NEWLY FORMED ENEMY ALLIANCE

Special to The Examiner:

THE HAGUE, May 21.— Count Czernin, former Austro-Hungarian Minister, and Count Von Hertling and Dr. Von Kuehlmann, German Chancellor and Foreign Minister respectively, opposed the recent Austro-German alliance effected by the Kaiser and Emperor Karl, according to reports received from Vienna and Berlin to-day.

Czernin, it was said, openly opposed the arrangement, while Hertling and Kuehlmann washed their hands of the affair, after objecting to the military convention, in which the militarists utterly ignored them.

Situation Is Getting Worse

Eight Thousand Men in Winnipeg Railway Shops Threaten to Walk Out—Street Car Men Give Notice

SENATORIAL AID

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WINNIPEG, May 21. — Situation to-day in regard to the strikes of various labour bodies in sympathy with the city firemen is growing still more serious. Eight thousand men in three railroad shops in Trancona are expected to walk out to-day, and it is stated by labour leaders that street car men will give 24 hours' notice to quit. The stationery engineers are expected to strike to-night, making 12,000 strikers in all. Senator Robertson is on his way here as a personal representative of Premier Borden to try to settle things.

Three o'clock despatch.

WINNIPEG, May 21.—Eight thousand railway workers in Winnipeg went on strike at eight o'clock to-day, closing down the shops of four railways here. The roads affected are: Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk Pacific, and the Government Railway. The street railway men strike to-night.

GERMANY IS HAVING TROUBLE IN HOMELAND

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, May 21. — Germany, slicing her bread, and meat rations, is having trouble at home, explaining why her war lords do not push victory seriously on in Italy and France.

Diplomatic cables to-day revealed this predicament. American officials predicted as a result Germany would make one or two more desperate smashes in the west and then set in motion her insidious peace factory.

Troubles in moving heavy artillery are assigned by Teuton shock absorbers as the reason for delay in resuming the west front offensive. "Unfavourable weather condition" including an exaggerated flood on the Piave, are assigned as the excuse for the Italian delay.

NEEDLESS CONFUSION.

There is a great deal of confusion over the calling for service of nineteen year old youths—confusion that could be eliminated by a few words of explanation from the military authorities. The uncertainty is due to a lack of knowledge as to what men are really called under the Act. The proclamation issued last week says that all men who have attained the age of 19 years, and were born on or since the 13th of October, 1897, must report in writing to the registrar of their respective military districts, but no date is set as a guide. Does the proclamation only include the men who had attained the age of 19 before the date of the issue of the proclamation, or does it also take in men who will reach that age before June 1st? And what about the youths who become 19 after June 1st? The amendment to the Military Service Act provided that every young man must register within ten days after attaining the nineteen mark, but the proclamation is silent on that point.

The young man born on May 15, 1900, would be nineteen the day after the issuing of the proclamation. He does not know whether he has to report or not, and so far as the public is concerned, no one seems to be able to advise him. The man who becomes nineteen before the 1st of June, is in a similar quandary, and as for those who will become nineteen after that date their position is even more involved.

The military authorities can clear up the confusion by issuing a simple explanation of what is required. The vagueness of the proclamation is responsible for the situation and it would seem advisable to enlighten the public. As the matter stands at present it is a hopeless mystery to those most concerned in obeying the law.

CAPT. BURNHAM'S LETTER.

"It is a strange thing that after all the religion that we have had, the education and the big talk about civilization, an Act such as this was to assume, and does largely yet assume, that members and the people of constituencies, are a hopeless lot of rascals, whom it is no longer proper to consult." So reads a characteristic extract from the characteristic letter of Capt. J. H. Burnham on the Civil Service Bill in the local press yesterday—characteristic because it took up a lot of space without getting anywhere in particular. Nobody has claimed that all the members are "a hopeless lot of rascals"; at the same time, nobody who has followed the trend of affairs in Canadian political life under the system that has been in vogue, will deny that the majority of appointments that have been made on the recommendation of private members, or of the defeated candidate, if his party happens to be returned to power, have been made rather as a reward for political efficiency at election times than from the viewpoint of public efficiency. The new Civil Service Bill was aimed to do away with this condition of affairs, and Capt. Burnham calls it "unconstitutional and absurd." The member for West Peterboro, along with Col. J. A. Currie, and the other Ontario Unionist members, who have caused more trouble and wasted more time than the rest of the House put together, evidently believes in the "To the victor belongs the spoils" system. As for his charges, that the bill is taking away the rights of the people, it is hard to see where Capt. Burnham finds justification for such a complaint. Under the system he is an adherent of the people have little to say about appointments. The member hands out the plums, and his constituents, especially if they failed to support him at the previous election, are not consulted.

Mr. Burnham chose an unfortunate illustration when he referred to the Kawartha Park wharf, if that is to be help up as a reason for opposing the new Bill, and as a proof of efficiency under the old system. The wharf in question might make a good lighthouse, if supplied with the necessary lamps, or might possibly be converted into a look-out station, but as a wharf it has been of little benefit. It is wrongly situated, and very seldom used; in fact, the Stoney Lake steamers usually give the structure a wide berth, and the money it cost was practically thrown away.

CANADIAN MUNITION OUTPUT.

The figures given in a recent publication of the British war cabinet, as to the extent of Canada's output of munitions, will be astonishing to the average Canadian. In the words of the report "Canada's contribution during the past year has been very striking." Just how striking, will be realized by the official statement that no less than fifty-five per cent. of the total output of shrapnel shells for 18-pounders during the past six months, came from Canada, and the effectiveness of the Dominion's war work is emphasized by the fact that the greater part of this ammunition was complete, and went direct to France. This country's output of 4.5 shells is nearly as large, comprising 42 per cent. of the total supply of the Empire; while 27 per cent. of the 6-inch, 20 per cent of the 8-inch, and 16 per cent. of the 9.2 shells, are also manufactured in Canada. To such an extent did the Dominion's war work grow last year, that 15 per cent. of the total expenditure of the British Minister of Munitions, during the last six months of last year, was incurred here.

In addition the report adds: "Canada has supplied shell forgings, ammunition components, propellants, acetone, T.N.T., aluminum, nickel, nickel matte, aeroplane parts, agricultural machinery and timber, besides quantities of railway material, including no less than 450 miles of rails torn up from Canadian railways, which were shipped direct to France."

During the present year the call has been largely for 6-inch H. E. shells, and the Canadian plants are responding with an output which represents over 40 per cent. of the British programme for this size shell.

GOVERNMENT ECONOMY

(London Advertiser.)

It is a pity, when the whole country is demanding thrift and economy on the part of the Government, that its first apparent effort in this direction must be criticized but the fact is that the Government has failed to distinguish between economy and niggardliness. It is announced that the whole cost of national registration is expected to be kept well below the million-dollar mark. Good; but how is this to be accomplished? The answer comes from Ottawa.

District superintendents are to be paid at the rate of $8 a day for the time they are actually engaged in the work. Registrars for each constituency, selected by the registration board, are entitled to $6 a day. Deputy registrars, appointed by the registrars, for the polling sections are entitled to $4 a day, but all registrars and deputies are invited to give their services free of charge. It is added that hundreds of women will act as deputies.

It will have been noticed that school teachers are to be invited to take the humbler positions. Many of these are working hard for an annual salary of $600, $700 or $800, and some for less. These, members of the most poorly-paid of all professions, and asked to give their time and energy to the Government on the only occasion that the said Government has given them an opportunity to work under it in spare time. Women are specially mentioned for the work of deputy registrars; does the Government not consider them as fully entitled to remuneration as the other helpers?

The inconsistency and unfairness of asking registrars and deputies to work for nothing are emphasized by the fact that district superintendents are not embarrassed by such an invitation; it is settledd that they are to receive their $8 a day. Why this distinction, which makes no demands on the higher-ups, but all on the lower grades of officials?

If the work done by these appointees is worth the remuneration mentioned, let them be paid and if they choose they can donate the money privately to patriotic objects. If the country can afford to pay $5,000 a year to men whose earning ability is certified to be nil and can lay it well open to purchasing railway stock, which has been declared worthless, for $10,000,000, it can stand the additional strain of paying its registration officials.

In the United States the new sedition bill provides penalties of twenty years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine for actions of disloyalty or obstruction to war efforts. (Toronto Star.)

Making bricks without straw was the old saying. The modern version will be making bricks without cream, or with a minimum allowance thereof.

Solid For Entente.

(Oregon Journal.)

If the question of a federal union with France, England and Italy were freely and frankly submitted to the American people tomorrow morning there is good ground for believing that it would carry by a tremendous vote.

The Worst Sufferer.

(New York Sun.)

It is the man of low wages who always suffers more from increased cost of living than the man of higher wage. The food of his family, their rent, their clothes, their fuel, absorb so great a part of his wage that, in any event, there is only a slight margin left. In times like this the margin is gone.

On With the War.

(New York Herald.)

"What is the alternative?" Mr. Asquith asked. "Get on with the war!" C. B. Stanton, a labour member, interjected. The interruption was greeted with loud cheers. In the United States, as in England, the overwhelming sentiment of the people, the thought in their minds that overshadows all other thoughts is—Get on with the war!

The War Chest.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

Where so many are clamouring for help the giver is often at a loss as to which need is the more pressing and in the hesitation of the moment he neglects to give at all. But by making the War Chest the one and only channel of his contributions he is relieved not only of importunities which deaden and repel, but is given the comforting assurance that his money as given will be intelligently and impartially applied where it will do the the most good.

A Sure Sign.

(Hamilton Herald.)

The fact that wireless warnings to German submarine commanders instruct them to avoid Zeebrugge and Ostend on their return to home waters and to return by way of Heligoland bight is, of course, evidence that the British raids upon Zeebrugge and Ostend were failures. As the kaiser announced.

A Good Guess.

(Rochester Post-Express.)

If the average American had known as much about Pan-Germanism as he does about the batting averages of the baseball players, the chances are the war would have been over by this time.

"A Man's a Man for a' That."

(New York Post).

One point in Lloyd George's speech might well be taken to heart by our own prophets of "failure." It relates to the question of combatants and non-combatants in an army. Lloyd George refused to recognize any distinction between combatants and non-combatants. It is childish amateurishness to think of an army as only so many rifles. At all times the sapper, the bridge-builder, the road-mender, the cook, and the baker have been vital elements in a fighting force. They are more than ever so to-day, when war has become so much a matter of digging, railroad building, and wire-laying. The American stevedore on the Brest docks is an American soldier. Even if we estimate him in terms of rifles, we can see how he releases a Frenchman for the trenches.

Behind Him.

(Rochester Post Express).

"We are conquering militarily and economically, and we have before us a strong future."—The Kaiser in a telegram from the Western front to Chancellor Von Hertling. But when the war is over his future will be like the Irishman's—behind him.

PTE. GEORGE MELTON IN ROUIN HOSPITAL WOUNDED IN THIGH

Mr. George Melton, of Patterson street, was officially notified this morning that his son Pte. George Melton, of the 21st Battalion, has been admitted to the hospital at Rouen, suffering from a gunshot wound in his left thigh. Sergt. Melton went overseas as a sergeant in the 93rd Battalion. A shor time ago he was ill in England with trench fever, and had only recently returned to France.

Johnson Paudash Arrives At Halifax After Long Service

Halifax, May 20—Among those who arrived by a steamer from England to-day, was Lance-Corporal Johnson Paudash, of the 21st Battalion, an Indian of the Mississagua, of Rice Lake, Ont. Paudash has the Military Medal and he has been recommended for the D.C.M. He won the Military Medal for saving lives during a heavy bombardment and also for giving information to the brigade that the enemy at Hill 70 was massing for a counter attack which just 25 minutes later took place. The D.C.M. recommendation was for saving an officer's life at the battle of the Somme.

Paudash enlisted in August, 1914, and he has been in every battle from Loos to Passchendaele, and as a sniper has 88 dead Germans as a tribute to his marksmanship. He leaves for Kingston probably to-morrow night. Paudash is home for discharge with an injury to his knee, but it is remarkable that with so much fighting he was never in hospital.

Two German Planes of New and Large Type Were Driven Down.

Canadian Press:

Automobilist Fined For Failing To Report Accident To Police

George Buck of Norwood Too Late in Reporting Injury to Marjory Lang.

WEST END CATS SHOT

The perseverance of James Gates was rewarded by a collection amounting to $5.95 which Magistrate Dumble took for him this morning from seven dog owners who had neglected to buy their tags for 1918. These citizens were apparently keeping their dogs tied up, and since their pets did not run at large they probably felt safe in postponing the purchase. But they were overlooking the industry of Mr. Gates. His business of dog catching has petered out, and the pickings are becoming few and far between. A short time ago however, it occurred to him that some citizens were not taking out tags because they were not letting out their dogs where the police could notice the absence of the tags. So Mr. Gates went over last year's list of licenses and compared it with this year's; and he found the fact he has suspected. There was a long list of absentees in the 1918 tag ranks, but the official catcher erased the names of those persons whose dogs he had destroyed. Then he turned the remaining names over to the police, and this morning these citizens were ordered to buy new tags, and to pay costs of 85c each, the costs going to Gates

RODE ON SIDEWALK.

Link Marki, Parnell street, responded to the impulse to prefer the smooth sidewalk to the rutty road, and his bicycling cost him $4.60.

NORWOOD MAN FINED $12.60.

George Buck of Norwood, called at the police station last night to report the accident in which his automobile had struck and injured little Marjory Lang last week. He came too late, however, and found an information all made out and ready to be delivered to him. He was fined $10 and $2.60 costs.

Automoble accidents must be reported immediately to the police, and owners of cars are warned that they must observe this regulation.

CHARGE DISMISSED.

Somebody in the Victoria avenue neighbourhood had been ridding the street of cats, and Mr. George Mellarry was suspected of having shot them. In the police court this morning a blanket charge that he had fired a gun within the city limits failed for lack of evidence, and was summarily dismissed.

In laying the complaint one woman stated that her tomcat was a useful and inoffensive pet. It used to go out about 9 o'clock and return next morning at five. Some person had cut short its night rovings, but the identy of the persop who had done the community this service remains unrevealed. And Victoria avenue is not the only street that would benefit of similar riddance of cats that vie with roosters in breaking the slumbers of light sleepers.

TAKE BITRO-PHOSPHATE TO INCREASE STRENGTH, VIGOR AND NERVE FORCE

Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who"

Women Need it to Bring Back Pink Glow of Health to Pale Cheeks and Forestall Tell-Tale Lines of Age. Men Need It to Make Strong, Vigorous Bodies and Steady Nerves.

People who are irritable restless, nervous; those who tire easily or lack vim and energy; men and women who have faulty memory, sleepless nights, fits of depression or the "blues" should take Bitro-Phosphate three times daily after meals.

Frederick Kolle, M. D., Editor-in-Chief of "Physicians' Who's Who," New York, says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Good, sound advice this; moreover the genuine, standard Bitro-Phosphate is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury and most all good druggists under a binding guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Test your strength by seeing how far you can walk without tiring before beginning to take it and then after two weeks or so see for yourself how your strength has increased. Note, too, if you do not feel more buoyant, have better colour, a better appetite, stronger nerves and increased vigour and energy.

GREAT MASSES OF GERMAN AND AUSTRIAN PEOPLE ARE MORE THAN SICK OF THE WAR

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 21.— "I feel confident that the time is at hand when famine, stark, mediaval famine, will join the Entente as political and military allies against Germany and Austria," the correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphs from Annenass, in France, near the Swiss border. The correspondent says he draws this conclusion from oral statements by an authentic witness, whose observations extended up to the end of April.

Sick of the War.

The great masses of German and Austrian people, this informant declares, are more than sick of the war. They think and talk of nothing but bread, and their morale is so low that the government is fearful of Bolsheviki movements.

An Incident.

Among the incidents given in support of the story of terrible want, is the case of two prisoners of war employed at the gas works in Vienna, who, he declared, were murdered by fellow workers, who ate a part of their body. The "Arbite Zeitung" of Vienna demanded an investigation, and an entire issue was confiscated in consequence. The affair was referred to in Parliament, but was hushed up in the Vienna press.

Enemy's Delay In Resuming Offensive Is Acting To The Disadvantage Of The Germans

During Period of Indecision Allies Have Been Given Time to Bring Up Reinforcements.

COASTAL OBJECTIVES

(By J. W. T. Mason.)
(United Press Service.)

NEW YORK, May 21.—Continual hesitation to resume the offensive in Picardy and Flanders by Von Hindenburg is acting to the increasing disadvantage of the Germans and suggests the existence of divided opinions at the Kaiser's headquarters.

There are indications that reorganization of Germany's shattered divisions along the west front, sufficient for a renewal of offensive tactics was completed some time ago. Nevertheless, Von Hindenburg has postponed from day to day his apparent desire to try once more to reach the Channel ports.

Period of Indecision.

During this period of indecision, the Allies have been given time to bring up reinforcements, and an opportunity has been presented for American troops in increasing numbers to enter the trenches and familiarize themselves with local conditions. Furthermore, General Foche has been able to direct limited offensives, at which he is amazingly adept, and thereby to improve considerably the Allies' defensive points.

Unusual Conditions.

The German military mind works so regularly along the line of persistence that the present long-drawn pause in the west front operations must be due to unusual conditions. It is two months to-day since Von Hindenburg's offensive began, the appalling losses suffered from further pursuit of their coastal objectives. The promise of victory was too greatly pronounced last March for an abandonment to be accepted by Von Hindenburg and Ludendorff after only two months' fighting.

But the slaughter of German manhood is very likely to have exercised a profound influence upon the statesmen of the Central Empires. They are in closer touch with public opinion in Germany and Austria-Hungary is increasingly restless, as time has provided for a dispassionate review of the results of the west front gains compared with the appalling casualties.

Teutonic Successes.

It is highly significant that, simultaneously with the halt in the west front operations, the German Government should begin to direct the attention of the German people to the Teutonic successes in Russia. Reports of four German kings for Russia's western provinces are being circulated, and the creation of vassal relations toward Germany by Ukraine and Finlang is suggested by tre Berlin overlords. Even Austria-Hungary's future subordination to the Hohenzollern is intimated by the Kaiser's statesmen.

These antics and others of a similar intent are undoubtedly being performed to divert attention of the German people from the west front failure. It is apparent that, though Von Hindenburg may be anxious to continue the policy of slaughter, there are others in Germany who desire to take no further risks in the west. These opponents of Von Hindenburg are apparently trying to placate the German people for the Kaiser's failur to reach Calais by promising the future exploitation of Russia and Austria-Hungary. If the Germans resound to the lure, it may be that Von Hindenburg will be compelled to abandon his bloody strategy in Flanders and Picardy.

REPORT INDICATES MARKED PROSPERITY

Statement of the Bank of Montreal Reveals Big Increases.

Canadian Press:

MONTREAL, May 21.— The Bank of Montreal, which is the banker for the Dominion government, in a semi-annual statement issued to-day, reflects the marked financial prosperity of the Dominion. Since the United States entered the European war, Canada has been obliged to look within herself largely for the immediate financing of the great amount of her tremendous burden. The Bank of Montreal has been called upon for much assistance for the British and Canadian government, but has apparently been able to meet the strain. The assets according to the statement, made a record of 426 millions against 386 millions a year ago. Interest bearing deposits now stand at 247 million, against 232 millions last year. The bank's profits also increased.

COLONIAL HARDWARE CO. IS IMPROVING PLANT

Purchased Business From H. A. Perry, Now Their Manager.

The Colonial Hardware Company, operating for many years in Eastern Canada, a while ago purchased the wool and hide business of Mr. H. A. Perry, Peterborough, making the company's fourteenth branch which are distributed all the way from Sydney, C.B., west to this city.

Mr. Perry, who is manager for the company here, does not look for higher wool and hide prices this summer.

The company is renovating the plant, building a new wall and otherwise putting it in up-to-date condition.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acids and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Aldermen Would Close Restaurants All Day Sunday

From the opinion expressed by Mayor Duncan, there is little doubt but that the amendments to the by-law respecting restaurants and their business hours on Sunday have the full approval of the Council. In fact, some of the aldermen would go further. They have suggested that the restaurants be closed from Saturday night until Monday morning, but the Mayor pointed out that persons rooming at the Y.M.C.A. and at other places, where they cannot get meals, must have some place to go on Sunday; besides the restaurants would provide meals for motor visitors. Beyond these reasons is the custom of recognizing the public nature of restaurants and of permitting them to remain open on the Lord's Day.

From the present mood of the Council, therefore, the passage of the amendment to the city's by-law is practically certain. Some of the restaurant men blame their competitor, whose player-piano working overtime on Sunday nights offended the sense of propriety of hundreds of persons returning home from church. The belated regret is voiced that the ice cream "parlours" might have been overlooked were it not for the suggestion of revelry in "dancing around" and other tuneful rolls that blasted the quiet of the Sabbath.

SWIMMING POOL AT THE Y.W.C.A. WILL OPEN NEXT WEEK.

Those who have watched with interest the building of the swimming pool at the Young Women's Christian Association, and who have looked forward to the tiem when it would be in uee, will be pleased to learn that it is now quite completed and will be formally opened on Thursday evening of next week, May 24th. The opening will take the form of a garden party on the lawn and a swimming exhibition in the pool. An interestig programme is being arranged of which further announcement will be made

Classes are now being formed, and those intending to use the pool are uregd to register immediately at the Y.W.C.A. office The instructor in charge will be Miss Caroline Littlefield, who has made such a success of the gymnasium work, and whose qualifications as a swimming teacher are equal to those as physical director in the gymnasium.

The pool is thoroughly equipped and up-to-date in every particular. It is quite an asset to the city of Peterboro, and will prove a boon to girls and young women who will enjoy its privileges during the summer months.

GOOD COFFEE

In order to give a higher degree of coffee service to their customers, the Porter S. White Co. have purchased the latest type of Hobart Electric Coffee Mill.

It has been said that Fresh Bulk Coffee of High Quality gives far more satisfactory results to the consumed than "Steel Cut" Coffee put up in cans. Ground coffee in cans is bound to lose its strength. Then too, the quality cannot be as good for the cans themselves cost from 6c. to 8c. apiece. With the Hobart Electric Mill the Coffee is specially ground for the particular kind of pot. A percolator requires that it be granulated fine. For a boiling pot it should be granulated medium. For a drip pot it must be ground fine—just right—to bring that rich quality to your cup of Coffee.

Tell Porter S. White the kind of pot you have. They'll be glad to grind your Coffee for best results. Tell them just how you make your Coffee. Perhaps they can make some helpful suggestions.

The Finance Committee appointed to investigate the financial status of the branch reported through Secretary Whatley and recommended that the fees should be increased from 25c to 50c a month and the initiation fee be also increased to 50c. The expenses of operating the branch including the rent, light, fuel, stationery, etc., were estimated at $850 a year, and with the increase in rates these could be met and sufficient additional additional money raised to secure a caretaker, who would also conduct the labour bureau and assist in the secretarial work.

FEES INCREASED.

The report was adopted, the increase in fees to commence on the 1st of June

In regard to securing a caretaker and assistant secretary, a committee composed of Comrades Mann, Ringer and Muir, was appointed to endeavor to secure a suitable man.

Comrades Cooper, Smith, Dainton, Stanley and Dalliday were added to the Entertainment Committee to replace members who have left the city. Comrade W. Hughes is the chairman of this committee of which Treasurer Coleman is also a member.

Comrade H. Mann was elected to serve with Secretary Whatley as representatives of the G.W.V.A. on the Patriotic Fund Committee

Comrades Cooper, Coppock, Mann, Haylock and Moscrop were appointed as a membership committee whose duties it shall be to secure new members for the association.

The Association passed a resolution asking the Minister of Militia to use his power of granting exemption to only remaining son in cases where two or more other members of the family are serving overseas

G. Grange Esq.,
Fire Chief, City.

Dear Chief,—It was our intention to give you and your staff a complimentary banquet as a mark of appreciation for the prompt and excellent manner in which you handled the fire at the Boston Cafe last January, but feel it would be inconsistent owing to the food regulations at the present time.

Kindly accept the enclosed cheque for $25 with our warmest thanks.

Yours sincerely,
N. Douros,

B. Coos,

A letter was also received from Mrs. L. Denne, 394 George street, containing a cheque for $25 to show their appreciation of the splendid way in which the fire brigade controlled the fire of January last.

A Child's Tongue Shows If Liver Or Bowels Are Active

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

WORLD SHORTAGE OF FOOD

Its Causes and Results—What Our Slothful Servants at Ottawa Could do to Help and Are Doing to Hinder

What are the great causes of shortage of food to Great Britain and her Allies?

1st. Before the war Russia exported about 12,000,000 tons of food stuffs per annum, of which 60 per cent. was exported to Great Britain, France, Italy, Greece and other Allied and neutral countries. The closing of the Dardanelles shut off these sources of food supply to Greece, Italy, France and Great Britain and other Allied and neutral countries which have to bring their supplies from elsewhere.

2nd. The destruction of Allied and neutral merchant ships has curtailed the receiving of food supplies by Great Britain and her Allies from Argentina, Australia, India and other remote countries.

3rd. The withdrawal of millions of men from food production to the Allied armies of Europe has reduced the production of food stuffs in France and Italy by over one-half.

Canada Must Supply Food.

Hence it is that Great Britain and her Allies have been forced to look to the United States and Canada to make good their food shortage of over 10,000,000 tons per annum, representing an expenditure, without freight charges, exceeding $1,250,000,000 a year.

These are the reasons why the British Food Controller, the Prime Minister of England and other public men have for months and months declared that "What we ask from the United States and Canada we cannot procure elsewhere. Unless the Allies in Europe are able to import the supplies necessary for feeding their armies and their civil population, victory may slip from our united grasp."

But what of the future?

According to the Canadian Food Bulletin, issued by the Dominion Government, the winter wheat crop in the United States will be 112,000,000 bushels short of their objective.

It is common knowledge that the Ontario winter wheat crop is nearly a total failure, but it is comforting to hope that there will be a larger increase in production of wheat in the North-West Provinces than last year, for which credit is due to the efforts that have been put forth by the North-West Provincial Governments.

What is the Dominion Government doing to increase food production?

There are millions of acres of land in the North-West, close to railways and wholly within their power under the War Measures Act to bring under cultivation; and yet notwithstanding the fervent prayers of the British people, the cries of hunger and want from the civil populations of our Allied countries in Europe and the knowledge that 2,000,000 Italian soldiers have been kept out of the battle line for the want of food, we find the Dominion Government making no organized effort whatever to produce on an extensive scale from our prairie lands, wheat and other grains instead of grass and weeds.

Harvest of 1919.

Now that seeding is over, is the time to prepare for the harvest of 1919, and yet we find the Dominion Government have announced no policy whatever to produce from our rich fertile fields in the North-West the surplus food supplies, to replace the ever diminishing harvests of our Allies in Europe.

The Slothful Servant.

The members of the Union Government are the personification of the slothful servant who buried his talent in the earth, well covered with weeds and grass, and shall merit from mankind the condemnation and punishment of the unprofitable servant.

Advice But Not Labour.

There is one thing the Union Government is doing. They are giving tons of advice to farmers to produce but they are not giving them the skilled labour necessary to produce. Only last week the farmers of Canada by the thousands went to Ottawa, at their own expense, to consult with the Union Government on the all-important question of farm labour. They were treated a little better than hewers of wood and drawers of water, and a great deal worse than grafters, parasites and profiteers.

From the way the Union Government are grappling with the food problem, it is quite apparent that many millions will go hungry, and the eager hopes their many supporters set their hearts upon last December will turn to ashes.

THE MEN GO GAMELY

The general public sees but little of the operations of the Military Service Act. Young men get their notice to report at Kingston, the headquarters for this military district, and in due time they disappear from their social and industrial haunts. Often they return home for a few days' leave, and their uniforms are the first intimation to their friends that they have been blown in with the draft. Others anticipate the call by volunteering, some going into the flying corps, many enlist in the artillery units now rapidly filling up, and a few find their way into other branches of the service.

But there is no display to mark their going. Night after night, for weeks past, these boys have made their farewells to their own groups of relatives and friends at either the C.P.R. or the G.T.R. stations where, doubtless to their surprise, they found large quotas from other towns and villages, and numerous contingents from the farms. The exodus of farmers has been particularly noticeable to those who attend the night trains. The 9 p.m. G.T.R. and the 1.30 a.m. C.P.R. have carried hundreds of young men Kingstonwards in the past two months. Those who travel on the C.P.R. transfer at Sharbot Lake. They gather in Peterborough from stations along the Port McNichol line, or come in from the country from alal sides of Peterborough. Not long ago, groups of these men who instinctively recognized each other as prospective brother in arms formed into a squad numbering about one hundred and fifty, and marched up George street about midnight as a farewell diversion of their own. Relatives and friends, many of them from the townships, accompany their young men to the station, and the little groups, night after night, are so similar, that one might fancy they were the same identical persons reappearing. There is little variation to the partings, which have become commonplace to those whose business requires their presence at the stations. The night police have witnessed these separations, most of them pathetic and touched with a sense of tragedy, but the novelty has worn off. The draftees carry themselves well, and their shouted farewells from the windays as the trains move off is almost the only demonstration that was common in the recruiting period.

At the G.T.R. station the draftees from Lindsay and other centres of the northern part of this district are joined by those from Peterborough and its neighbourhood. They usually take the night train, although some go east in the morning. A few nights ago there were between eighty and ninety men on the night train when it reached this city.

Thus the draft works smoothly, inexorably and efficiently, and if any men attempt to evade it, the Military or Dominion police are sent out to round them up. There are no accompanying celebrations by the public whose exuberance evidently sought no outlet under the spirit of compulsion. Hence, not a drum is heard in these leave-takings, but the men do not seem to miss it, and by the way the overseas instructors declare that the recruits the draft has brought them are making excellent soldiers.

A Smooth, Hairless Skin For Every Woman

With the aid of a plain delatone paste it is an easy matter to rid the skin of unsightly hairy growths. The paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs not wanted and after 2 or 3 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. When you go to your druggist for delatone, be sure you get the genuine article.

FUEL FOR LOCAL FAMILIES OF THE PATRIOTIC FUND

Coal Will Be Supplied to Any One Family Up To Four Tons

Arrangements have been completed, much the same as last season, whereby a supply of coal for the winter is assured to the families of men on service, and who are on the lists of the local branch of the Patriotic Fund. Also for the families of those who are in receipt of pensions, wives and mothers of men killed on service. It will now be in order to bring to the office of the fund sums of money either as a whole or from time to time, in proportion to the family needs for fuel. Of course an excessive amount will not be supplied to any one family but amounts up to four tons will be accepted, possibly in a few cases over that amount, where necessary. The above arrangement does not include families with whom a dependent has found a home, or boarding with relatives. It is hoped that payments will be made very promptly that the fuel may be placed in the homes at the earliest moment. While the price cannot be now fixed, it will certainly not exceed the local prices in Peterboro at the time of delivery, which will be in early September.

Dr. A. Marshall Will Visit Peterborough

Dr. Albourne Marshall Will Speak in Murray Street Baptist Church Next Sunday.

It has not been the custom of the Murray street Baptist church to celebrate its anniversary each year, but this congregation will do so next Sunday. It was only at a late hour on Saturday that the message came, stating that Dr. Marshall, who is now pastor of the First Baptist church of Ottawa, could come to preach the anniversary sermons on the 26th. The doctor, while a Nova Scotian by birth, spent nearly ten years as pastor of the First Baptist church of Adelaide, Australia. It must be said of the Murray street church, that while their "special" services are few, they have always "coveted" and secured the best, when introducing a special preacher to Peterborough. Dr. Marshall is a close friend of Dr. Clifford, of London, England, who laid the corner stone of the Murray street edifice.

CUT OFF THREE FINGERS

Farmer Called to Colors Fell Downstairs With Axe.

ORANGEVILLE, May 20. — The Sun says: — Joseph Thompson, a young farmer of Molo, met with a painful and peculiar accident by which he lost three fingers of his right hand. Thompson, who is left-handed, was about to make a whiffletree, and he was carrying the axe and the piece of wood in his left hand. While coming downstairs he tripped and fell in a sprawling attitude. Instinctively he threw his hands forward and the axe cut off the first three fingers of his right hand. Medical aid was quickly summoned and the unfortunate man's injuries were attended to. Thompson is a son of W. S. Thompson of Lot 23, 7th Line, East, Mono, and is twenty-one years of age. He was in the draft that was called to the colors several days ago, but the accident will render him unfit for military service.

FRENCH TROOPS CAPTURED OVER 500 PRISONERS

Petain's Forces Threw Themselves on the Germans on a Three Mile Front and the Result Was Never in Doubt—Positions Recaptured—French Casualties Light—British British Troops Advanced Line.

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 21.—2 o'clock despatch—An American aviator—a captain from the region of Philadelphia—fought the Germans over the lines east of Ypres, with his leg broken by a machine gun bullet, until his engine was disabled.

Descending in No Man's Land, he unstrapped himself from his seat and crawled into a shell hole.

A German battery, firing at his disabled machine, scored a direct hit and smashed it. The captain, surrounded by bursting shells, dragged himself from crater to crater until he reached the Allied front lines near the juncture of the Belgian and British armies.

The aviator was taken to a hospital, where he is reported doing fine.

POSITIONS RETAKEN.

French troops, attacking brilliantly near the Belgian border last night, retook the Locre Hospice, Brulogze, the entire wood south of Brulogze, the cross roads nearby and several farms, advancing their lines some distance to the east of Hill 44. They took 500 unwounded prisoners. The French casualties were light.

The attack greatly improved the French positions around Mount Rouge and Mont Cherpenberg. The French suddenly threw themselves on the Germans, on a front of between two and three miles and the result was never in doubt.

British troops advanced their lines on a front of 600 yards between Aveluy Wood and Hebuterne, diminishing a sharp, dangerous salient and occupying four enemy posts. A hot counter-attack was repulsed.

Big List Of Appeals Before His Honour Judge Huycke

Keene and Havelock Were Largely Represented in This Morning's List of Cases.

GREATER PRODUCTION

Keene and Havelock were principally represented this morning at the Review Tribunal of "A2" men. His Honour Judge Huycke grew tired of the constantly repeated cry of "I'm a farmer," and reminded the lads the farmers have as good a right as any one else to fight. Again His Honour told the young men that while approving of their being married, it is no excuse, and a married man is the proper one to fight for his wife.

Helped by Mr. Guise-Bagley.

John Cranley, Douro, was exempted at Keene, and had supplemented his own endeavours towards exemption with help from Mr. Guise-Bagley. He had changed from a farm labourer to a farm holder. The Judge did not want to take him from the farm as his crops are all in.

Judgment Reserved.

Archibald Davidson Lang has a brother at the front, and he works the farm of 150 acres with his father. The Government wants increased production. Judgment reserved.

Given Time.

David Tucker was represented by his employer, Wm. Reynolds. Tucker was exempted by Keene. Reynolds made a strong plea to keep him for the harvest, and he will probably be allowed till September 1.

Killed His Chance.

Alfred Kempt, Keene, a miller, runs three mills with one man's help. The Act doesn't cover millers. As he has no dependents, he will probably go. Mr. Shearer asked for the man's exemption on account of the inconvenience his going will be to the community. Kempt killed any chance of exemption by observing that if the community can do without him it could do without the mills.

Has Seven Brothers.

Robert Menzies, Havelock, owns a 400-acre farm in Belmont. Has seven brothers. His case will be considered.

An Only Child.

William Harris, Belmont, asked for exemption to continue his work on the farm. He supports his mother, and is the only child. He must increase his production or go.

Runs Three Farms.

John J. Leahy and Bartholomew Leahy, two brothers, were given a joint hearing. Two brothers have been drafted, a third scheduled to appear in Kingston; another enlisted in the West. They come from a 200-acre farm, and altogether work three farms. Of eight brothers, these two are left on the farms, and evidently have their hands full. They will be exempted for some time.

Wants to Go.

Henry Reid, Keene, the only son working on a 100-acre farm with his father, was asked by the Department to speed up his production, and will probably be given time to show what he can do. He wants to go, but his parents want him to stay.

A Strong Case.

John G. Killey, Bobcaygeon, wished to renew his exemption. He presented a strong case in the fact of being a farm labourer and the only support of his mother, and having an eye blinded lately. Judgment was reserved.

Unauthorized Decision.

Hector Stevenson, Lakehurst, suffers from neuritis, and would like to go but for his illness. The Medical Board made him "A," but the tribunal gave him "E," which, it was claimed, had no authority to do. Refused, subject to medical examination.

A Second Chance.

Alan McCracken, Warsaw, is the only able-bodied man on the 150-acre farm, and has a brother overseas. The authorities don't think the production justifies exemption. He will be given his second chance to speed up production.

Satisfactory Production.

Joseph Coughlin, age 33, sought exemption to continue farm work. He works a 225-acre farm with his 21-year-old brother and his 69-year-old father in Douro. The Government thought there was too much manpower on the farm. His production is satisfactory, and his testimony showed he merits exemption, which he will probably get for some time.

Ralph Plunkett was exempted by the Keene tribunal. He works a 300-acre farm with his 73-year-old father and two brothers, and raises a large amount of stock, also runs a thrashing machine.

A Foreman.

McKay, a foreman on the C.P.R., had been asked for by the company as another man has been taken. Granted.

Robert Kennedy, Marmora, works a 110-acre farm, which does not show extensive production, but intimated a stimulation in that direction. He may be allowed time to prove his efforts.

Two Definite Answers.

William McFaul, Havelock, is alone on a 150-acre Belmont farm, on which he appeared to be doing as well as possible. On condition he does his best for production, he will probably be allowed. McFaul was anxious for a definite answer, as he has a definite answer in the way of a companion in abeyance he blushingly confided to the Judge.

Leo Killen, default.

Managing the Business.

John Baskins, formerly allowed exemption until November 19, knew his being the only son was no reason to stay. He is in charge of some teams at Scarboro working for the C.P.R., and is manager of his father's business. He will probably go.

A Sheep Raiser.

James B. Thompson raises a large herd of sheep and cattle, and his going would leave a large farm to his mother and brother, who is in the same category and has the same former exemption. He will probably be given time to justify his exemption.

Alex. Sage, North Monaghan, has one brother overseas and one, George, enlisted at Kingston. If George is accepted Alexander will probably be kept. He will report if his brother is accepted.

"A" Men.

Decisions in the applications of "A" men for exemption from military service are given herewith.

Men exempted to July 1 are given this time to "see if production justifies exemption."

Harold C. Teall, Warsaw, September 1, 1918.

George Gordon, 120 York street, city till Class E is called.

James Trotter, Clydesdale, July 1, 1918.

Hilliard Matthews, Hall's Glen, July 1, 1918.

John D. Crapp, Hall's Bridge, July 1, 1918.

Robert Smith, Lakehurst, July 1, 1918.

Wm. Aldus Northey, Lakehurst, July 1, 1918.

Peter S. Moloney, Gen. Delivery, Peterborough, July 1, 1918.

Ernest Moore, 339 Smith street, refused, subject to medical examination.

Geo. Alexander Would, R. R. No. 2, Indian River, July 1, 1918.

Geo. Alexander Clements, R. R. No. 2, Indian River, July 1, 1918 to see as to production, and if younger brother, Maxwell, aged 19, goes to war in the meantime.

John J. Corkery, Gen. Delivery, Peterborough, July 1, 1918, to see as to production and if either of his younger brothers goes to war.

Wm. G. Scott, 575 Aylmer street, refused, subject to medical examination.

Jos. H. L. Moore, Hall's Glen, 15th June, 1918.

Wm. Henry Puffer, Clarina, June 15, 1918, to see as to production and to see if younger brother goes to war.

Dinnis Hendley, Burleigh, refused subject to medical examination.

Alfred W. Eales, 166 Stewart street, Sept. 15, 1918. He has repeatedly tried to enlist.

Committee Recommends

Civil Body; Whole Time.

10.—That the Board of Pension Commissioners be considered and developed as a civil, rather than a military organization; and that the Commissioners should devote the whole of their time to the performance of their duties.

It is further recommended that the system formerly in vogue be restored, whereby the examining medical boards reported to the Commission their estimate of the percentage of disability as based upon the disability table of the Commission; and in the event of the estimate of the medical officers of the Commission differing more than ten per cent. from the estimate of the examining boards, that the examining boards be advised of such difference and requested to furnish reasons to the Commission for their conclusion.

Further Consideration.

The committee recommends that as early as possible next session another special committee of the House should be named to give further consideration to such problems as may arise and to prepare and submit an act shrdolusuchaiaatpinr submit to the House for consideration an act dealing with pensions for members of the C. E. F.

Medical Board.

In that portion of the report dealing with medical examinations, it is recommended that as far as possible the examining medical boards should be composed of a civilian physician or surgeon of wide experience, an overseas member of the C. E. F. with actual experience of war conditions and cases, and an experienced representatative of the C. A. M. C.

It is also recommended that it should be impressed by these in authority upon the examining medical boards, before whom members appear for examination for the determination of disability, that the relationship between them is that of doctor and patient; that every facility should be granted a soldier to give an account of the facts of his condition from his point of view; and that the pension forms, now in use, should be altered to make provision for a record of such statement being taken and forwarded to the Commission for consideration; that such statement, after being read over to the soldier, as well as a statement as to the number of doctors who were present and made the examination, should be signed by him.

Music & Drama

"THE BOHEMIAN GIRL."

A large audience thoroughly enjoyed the production of "The Bohemian Girl" by the Boston English Opera Company at the Grand last night. Balfe's ever popular music was delightfully rendered by a splendid cast of principals ably assisted by a chorus which was not large, but possessed of good voices and the ability to use them. The different song numbers, especially "Then You'll Remember Me," "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls" and "The Heart Bowed Down" were presented with a full sense of their possibilities and were as pleasing as ever, while "The Gypsy Chorus" was effectively presented. Histrionically, too, the company left little to be desired, and the whole production was most delightful.

THE WORK HAS BEEN HELD UP

Reconstruction of Court House May Be Delayed For Another Decade.

Work on the exterior of the Court House has been held up on account of the non-arrival of stone from Hamilton. However, the contractors Finney and Gordon, have gone ahead clearing up so that everything is in ship-shape to raise the 12 tons of pillars for the porch. The furniture from the Canada Office and School Furniture Co., Preston, has not been shipped yet, as lack of help at the factory is holding back the work.

CAREFUL, MR. WILLARD.

MONTREAL, May 21—Boxing is not to be classed as a useful occupation, Recorder Geoffrion today ruled to this effect, and emphasized the judgment by a $50 fine or 2 days against one known as "Kid" Williams, whose occupation was given as that of a boxer.

"That is not a useful occupation," said the Recorder.

The judgment is in virtue of the recent federal order-in-council which makes idling an offence against the law.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Urban Shocker pitched St. Louis to a 4 to 2 victory over Washington here today in his farewell game before joining the national army. Dressing Quarters At Inverlea Park For Bathers This Summer

Storehouse Built by Nicholls Park Trust Will Serve a Double Purpose and Should Prove Satisfactory.

Bathers at Inverlea Park this summer will find quarters for dressing provided for them. Last autumn the Nicholls Parks Trust built a storehouse to house the park tools, benches and other equipment, and the Commissioners had an eye for doubling its utility by dividing it into two sections, with separate entrances. Hence, it is an improvised dressing "station." It is not the building they would have provided were they consulting only the needs of the swimmers. But a storehouse had become necessary, and the Commissioners remembered last summer's experience, when the bushes offered the only privacy for hundreds of bathers whom the heat had driven to the river.

Mr. John Crane stated recently that the Commission would appoint a caretaker for the dressing-rooms, who would continue on duty throughout the summer months. It is understood that a returned soldier has been offered the appointment. The new building will be greatly appreciated by the North-End bathers, and also by those who will be attracted to Inverlea from all parts of the city. This thoughtfulness on the part of the Commission is but another evidence of their effective supervision of the parks entrusted to them, and the fund from which the cost of the building was met is another reminder of the cumulative benefits the people derive from the endowment the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls left for the maintenance of the parks she bequeathed the city.

BRITISH AVIATORS CONTROL THE AIR

Nearly All Combats Take Place Over the Enemy Lines.

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, May 21. — British aviators control the air in their section of the western front, according to a cable from London made public to-day by the British Mission.

Practically all combats take place over the German lines, the statement said.

Documentary evidence, it was declared, shows that twenty-two German regimental commanders have been killed in action.

COURSES HAVE BEEN VERY SUCCESSFUL

Mr. J. T. Wilson, President of the Dominion Life Underwriters, who will address the Underwriters in Peterborough on Thursday of this week says: "It is interesting to note that in the east as well as in Manitoba, short courses have been given at the high school and collegiates and universities in life insurance salesmanship, the educational authorities recognizing the immense educational advantage to be secured from a complete understanding of life insurance by our people. These courses have been very successful and we confidently anticipate that the sympathetic attention of the educational authorities of Saskatchewan will turn in a similar direction."

Last year in Canada no less than $200,000,000 worth of life insurance was underwritten and the membership of the Dominion association has since 1907, when the organization was started, increased some four hundred per cent.

CAPTAIN MORRISON GAVE AN INTERESTING ADDRESS LAST NIGHT

Veteran Officer Describes the Experiences of the Trench Mortar Brigade—The Ypres Salient.

THE TRENCH "RAT"

A forceful and interesting address was given last night at St. James' Methodist Church by Captain Morrison, a veteran of the first gas attack who went overseas with the famous 21st Battalion of the Second Canadian Division.

"The trip across took nine or ten days with nothing out of the ordinary," said Captain Morrison.

"We landed at the port of Plymouth, where the First Canadian Division had landed and where the Third and Fourth Divisions afterwards landed.

Stayed in England.

"The division stayed in England four or five months and while there we were unfortunate enough to be in the first aerial raid by the Germans and I was unfortunate enough to stop a bullet from the blue. The second division crossed to France in line for the battle of Loos, which is known to the Canadians as the 'battle of smoke'. The Canadians were on the fringe of this battle, directly in front of Messines Ridge. It was our duty to burn large quantities of straw, creating a tremendous smoke which drifted toward the German trenches. But as you know this was a disastrous battle for the British. We not only lost all our gains, but part of our former trenches as well. Then the rains set in and the misery of the trobps began. There is almost a steady rain over there from about the first of November to April. However the Canadians were transferred to the Ypres Salient which is known as 'Canada's home" owing to the large number of cemeteries in the vicinity of the town filled by our own boys. The town of Ypres is absolutely a ruin. The most famous building, the silk hall is now but an empty shell. You know Ypres is a salient in the German lines. That is why the casualties are so very heavy in that portion of the line. Our friend Sam Hughes suggests that this salient be abandonded, but anyone knowing the contour of the country knows that it is impossible to retire here. It is absolutely necessary to hold Ypres salient at all costs.

A Great Fortress.

"Mount Kemmel was a great fortress which guarded Ypress. In this last offensive it fell into the hands of the Germans. It contained hundreds of guns of large and small calibre. We nicknamed it Gibraltar, because it was thought impossible to ever captnre it. I am almost sure that the Germans captured all these guns because they could not be taken away, so steep were the sides.

Then came the terrible winter. We had absolutely no protection against the weather. The water in the trenches was about three feet 6 inches deep which developed numerous cases of trench feet We used to oil uor bodies to keep out the damp and wet. Then the trenches were flooded with rats nearly as large as cats and they were very bold. I remember one morning sitting before an oil stove in my dugout, reading a letter from home, I looked up and in front of me was a large rat gaying contenedly into the fire, I can assure that rat did not last long after that.

Weather Improves.

"Towards spring the weather began to get better. On the fourth of fifth of March, the engagement of St. Eloi took place. This battle lasted for a full week. The casualties, if I can remember rightly were 40 per cent of the battalions. At the front I had command of the French Mortar Brigade of the Second Division. The brigade was known as the "Suicide Club" because it was so dangerous. I always tried to get the men singing to make them forget their misery. In this battle one brigade was annihilated. Those who were not killed were taken prisoners, guns and everything else. On the night of the 3rd of June the Germans made a great offensive. In this battle General Mercer was killed and General Williams was taken prisoner. The Germans had gathered artillery for weeks and weeks and when they attacked they broke through our lines. Our casualties were terrible. The General commanding our army wanted to replace our shattered battalions with British units, but our senior officers said the men would not leave until they had re-captured the trenches. Our men were very bitter towards the Germans.

"Over the Top."

"On the night of the 13th of June, we started bombardment and over the top we went, and not only took our own trenches, but also 800 or 900 yards of German trench. From then on the German slogan was 'Beware of the Canadians'.

"Towards the end of July word came that we were to be moved to the Somme. We stopped at the village of Albert, now nothing but ruins. We were soon afterwards ordered to the front line trenches. You know there was always a friendly rivalry between the Canadian Divisions and the First Division had already scored a great success against the Germans. So the Second Division decided to capture about 1200 yards of the German trenches directly in front of us. At a given time the troops met in the assembly trenches and a raid was sent to feel the strength of the Germans. But the Germans had also sent out a raid and the two parties met halfway in No Man's Land, where there was a free-for-all fight. We had decided to attack at six o'clock in the morning. But the Germans attacked at four. In the dusk you could hardly tell friend from foe, but at last we got them out of our trenches and drove them back to their own. Then we started our barrage fire and away we went over the top. The men were very hard to hold that morning. They were so determined to get at the Germans that personally, I had to threaten to shoot some of them.

Hard to Hold.

"They would run right into the barrage fire and that morning we lost fully quarter of our men from our own barrage fire. By 9 o'clock we were firmly established in the German trenches thus beating the record of the First Division. Some of our men even reached Courcelette. The general then ordered the 5th and 6th Brigade to go through the lines of the 4th Brigade and captain the whole of Courcelette, I tell you it was an inspiring sight that morning at 6 o'clock to see the lines of the 4th Brigade open up and the 5th and 6th slip through and right at the Germans. They captured the place which was a very important junction.

"The 21st Battalion which was commanded by Col. Hughes, now Brigadier-Gen. Hughes, came back without an officer. The Canadians then went back to rest camp, but the trench mortar brigade went in for the third time. There was a gap between two of the brigade and we were ordered to fill that gap. This place was known as the 'Chalk Fit' and our casualties were tremendous. We were ordered to take in all our supplies, because we could not take any in after.

Heavy Casualties.

I took in 9 officers and 340 men and I do not know how we hung on. The next day I sent back runners for reinforcements, but they could not get any in. My force had now dwindled down to 1 officer and 40 men. We were then ordered to retire, but this is easier said than done. We first burried our dead and started to crawl back with our wounded. When we got back I was the only officer left and I had only 20 men. I had the misfortune to be buried twice while retiring. We shook as if we had the palsy, but the rest camp room restored us and we were ready for the trenches again in a few days.

Conditions Better Now.

"But things are much better in France now. The gas masks at first were very very poor, but now they and perfect. The men are supplied with long rubber boots. Every officer is responsible for the cleanliness of his men and woe-betide that officer if one of his men suffers from a disease that he knows nothing about. The clothes are now changed at least twice a week and are steamed in large vats.

"At this ground is now in the hands of the Germans. It was not thought possible that they would ever capture it. I think the secret is that Russia has broken away and the Germans are able to mass on the Western front," said Captain Morrison in conclusion.

Captain B. Morrison, was one of the senior artillery officers of the 2nd. Canadian Division. Since his return to Canada he has taken up resident in Peterboro. Capt. Morrison resides on Wescott Street.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS MET YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Two Constables Pass From the Probationary Stage—High Price For Wood.

ACCOUNTS PASSED

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners held yesterday afternoon, to settle and dispose of a number of outstanding accounts, an application from T. W. Hubbell, for permission to open a second hand store at 319 Aylmer street, was received and recommended by the Chief.

The accounts, which included $24 for two cords of wood, carried.

Police Magistrate Dumble, who occupied the chair, was in a reminiscent mood, and said that when he first arrived in Peterboro, he had bought it at $1.75 a cord.

GOOD MEN.

Chief Thompson reported that P. C. McIntosh, a man of six years' experience, and P. C. Bromley, with 6 or 8 months' experience, were entirely satisfactory to the force, and recommended that on account of previous experience and the satisfaction they have given, P. C. McIntosh should be placed on the first class pay roll, P. C. Bromley on second.

Mr. Dumble and the Mayor agreed with the Chief, and will deal with the matter in collaboration with His Honour Judge Huycke, who was absent from the meeting.

WHEY BUTTER PLANT FOR BOBCAYGEON

Bobcaygeon is also to have a whey butter plant established. Mr. Ben. Stacey, sales agent of the De Laval Separator Co., of Peterborough, met the patrons of the Bobcaygeon Cheese Factory in the town hall, and in an address to the farmers, about 25 in number, convinced them that it would be to their advantage to have the butter fat extracted from the whey. He stated that there is an average of 2½ pounds of butter in every 1,000 lbs. of whey, which at present prices would net the patrons about 4½ cents extra per hundred for their milk.

Activity on the G.T.R. Will Suspend Until New Crop is Gathered.

Shipments of soft coal are arriving steadily in Peterborough, but anthracite is none too plentiful. It's a long way to winter, however.

AN INDUSTRY FOR BOBCAYGEON.

Port Hope Company Decides to Erect a Large Factory in Bobcaygeon.

Bobcaygeon is going to develop into a manufacturing town. During the week past the president, manager and sales agent of a soy manufacturing industry, located at Port Hope, have been in town looking over the ground, and believe the prospects are good for locating here, being right in the home of considerable of the raw material used. It is claimed the factory in Port Hope is too small and the company has not sufficient space in which to branch out as they should. The gentlemen met with a joint meeting of the council and electric light commission on Thursday evening. They asked everything up to 500 horse power of electrical energy and freedom from taxation for five years. They also require the sale of $15,000 of stock.

SINN FEINERS PLOTTED IN THE UNITED STATES

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Evidence of plotting between German and Irish agents in this country for an uprising in Ireland has been uncovered by United States agents, and is partly responsible for the recent arrest of Irish leaders by the British Government. This evidence, which may be made public soon, is understood to show definitely that Irish leaders, mainly Sinn Feiners, in the United States, have been in touch with German representatives, who agreed to furnish money to finance an uprising in Ireland, and possibly to send an army and ammunition to Ireland by submarine or blockade runner. There was even some discussion of the chances of sending German soldiers to take part in the warfare of the Irishmen. The uprising was set for about this time, when the Germans had planned to reach the Channel ports after their great drive in France, and it was believed England would be thrown into confusion by the German advance.

LADY V. HENDERSON SUMMONED TO COURT.

Charged With Breaking Traffic Rules Following Smash-up.

OTTAWA, May 21.—To answer to a charge of infringing on the traffic by-laws, by neglecting to give to the person on her right the right-of-way, Lady Violet Henderson, wife of the Secretary to the Governor-General, has been summoned to appear in the Ottawa Police Court on Wednesday morning.

The charge was laid by the Police Department on the information supplied by Constable Gordon Willis, of the motor cycle squad, who investigated the auto collision at the corner of Albert and O'Connor Streets on Friday night, when, according to the police, Lady Violet, through negligent driving, crashed into a roadster driven by Mr. J. A. Mackenzie.

The charge is laid under Section 4, Chapter 47, of the Highway Travels Act, which stipulates that when two vehicles meet at an intersection, the vehicle on the right has the right-of-way. Lady Violet Henderson, the police claim, should have waited when she arrived at the corner of O'Connor Street and allowed Mr. Mackenzie to have the right-of-way.

DEPUTY FIRE MARSHAL LEWIS INVESTIGATES FIRE NEAR COBOURG

Interesting Testimony Given During Course of Inquiry—Cheese Factory Located Midway Between Peterboro' and Lakeshore Town Destroyed by Fire.

INTERESTING EVIDENCE

Cobourg, May 21.—Mr. George F. Lewis, Provincial Deputy Fire Marshal, conducted an investigation in the courtroom into the burning of the Fenella cheese factory, about 20 miles north of here. Mr. W. F. Kerr, Crown Attorney, was present in the interests of the Crown. The Fenella factory was owned by a number of prominent farmers. There was some competition between it and the Spring Valley cheese factory, which is managed by Mr. H. R. Free of this town, who owns a syndicate of three factories, Coldsprings, Baltimore and Spring Valley. Thomas Blezard, a prominent farmer living in town, is said to have a blanket mortgage on two of these factories owned by Mr. Free.

The fire occurred early on Tuesday, April 30. The first witness, Mrs. Wm. George, who with her husband, resides with her father, Mr. R. H. Sherwin, in a house about 40 rods from the factory, was awakened and declared that she heard a noise like the rattling of milk cans. She saw the blaze at the factory, and aroused her husband and father. Mr. R. H. Shewin reached the burning building first. The roof was then ablaze. He went back for water, and when he returned the building was down. It had burned very quickly.

INTERESTING EVIDENCE.

Witnesses testified as to the rapidity of the fire. One of them thought he detected the smell of coal oil. A large quantity of wood stacked at the factory for use, also took fire. A rail on the fence was ignited, and in putting out this latter blaze it was discovered that a horse and vehicle had been tied there. Examination showed that the side of one of the horse's hind shoes was about a half inch longer than the other side. A lantern was secured and the hoof print was carefully examined and measured. Five well known interested farmers, Messrs. Walter Sherwin, Milfred Sherwin, Koyle rown, Wm. Brown, Wm. George and Albert Marsh, the cheesemaker, in their evidence said they had tracked what they believed to be the horse's hoof prints and the tracks of the buggy into a stable at Cobourg, owned by Mrs. Reuben May, and rented to Mr. Thomas Blezard, where the latter kept his driving mare.

All of the foregoing gave evidence, and also others from the locality. After discovering the route of the vehicle they went for Chief of Police John C. Ruse, who conducted an investigation at the stable.

All witnesses declared that they found the horse wet with sweat, and so tired out that it was yawning. The manger was filled with hay, but she was not eating. The buggy was wet and splashed with mud. It had rained the evening before, clearing about 10 o'clock, which made it easier, they declared, to trace the route of the horse and the vehicle.

There was exhibited at the inquiry a box of sand with imprints of the shoe, which was taken from Mr. Blezard's horse on instructions from Mr. Lewis. The print in the sand was similar, witnesses asserted, to what they saw at the factory and on the road.

Chief John C. Ruse, in exploring the stable loft, discovered a coat, hat and pair of gloves. These were also exhibited in court. It was stated by some witnesses that Mr. Free was in the habit of wearing an old coat and hat when making repairs when he visited his factories. Mr. Marsh, the cheesemaker, identified the coat and hat as having belonged to Mr. Free. Mr. Marsh formerly had been in the employ of Mr. Free at the Spring Valley factory.

MR. FREE'S TESTIMONY.

Mr. Free in giving his evidence denied that these articles of clothing were his. He stated that he had intended going to Toronto the night before the fire, but missed the evening train, came back down town, visited several places, finally returning to the depot so as not to miss the early morning train. After being out nearly all night he left for the city about 7 a.m. on Tuesday, the 30th.

Mr. Thomas Blezard said he had his horse out on Monday evening, the 29th, to go to Hull's Corners, about a mile and a half from here. He returned home about 10 o'clock and went to bed. Mrs. Blezard corroborated her husband's testimony.

Mrs. Free was questioned as to her husband's whereabouts the night of the fire. She thought he left for Toronto the evening of the 29th, and did not see him until he returned the next evening.

All the witesses were subjected to a most rigid examination by Mr. Lewis. No witness was allowed in the courtroom before giving evidence. The loss of the factory is estimated at about $1560, $600 for the building and $960 for contents. There is insurance of $600.

It is understood that the evidence taken at the investigation, which lasted from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m., will be submitted to the County Crown Attorney.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

FATAL EXPLOSION NEAR HALIBURTON

A shocking accident occurred at Bear Lake, 12 miles from Haliburton Village, on Thursday last, when Allan Hunt, a resident of Lochlin, Ont., met death as a result of a dynamite explosion.

The unfortunate man was engaged in mining operations and had placed a charge of dynamite, when it exploded before he had got outside the danger zone. He received the full force of the explosion in the stomach and was badly mangled, only living a short time.

The deceased was a married man and leaves behind him a wife and three children.

An inquest will be held at Haliburton.

"Donald Hunt" Occupies Attention Of The House

Some Commoners Curious as to Hon. Mr. Rowell's Private Secretary—Minister Denies Responsibility For His Writing Out of the Office.

HIS WORK AFTER HOURS

OTTAWA, May 22.— Consideration of the Privy Council estimates in the Commons created a lively discussion among the members. The main point arose over a vote for Mr. Rowell's private secretary. Mr. Bureau complained that the private secretary was brought into the department and given the standing of a first division clerk, when no new clerk was needed.

To this Mr. Rowell replied that his secretary took the place of the Prime Minister's secretary, who had been transferred to the Department of External Affairs. Then came some questioning as to whether the private secretary was the author of an article signed "Donald Hunt," in The Toronto Globe.

"Perhaps," said Ernest Lapointe, "the President of the Privy Council could say whether his secretary and 'Donald Hunt' were the same. I may add," Mr. Lapointe went on, "that this article was very eulogistic of the Minister, and he would blush to read it."

"Is 'Donald Hunt' the private secretary of the Minister?" asked Mr. Bureau.

Not Responsible for After Hours.

Mr. Rowell replied that he was not responsible for any work done outside office hours by his secretary, and made no inquiry as to what the secretary did outside office hours.

"I think the Minister is shifting the question," declared Mr. Bureau. "Whether 'Donald Hunt' is the secretary of the President of the Privy Council is a plain question."

Mr. Rowell replied that he did not think the question was pertinent to the vote under consideration.

The "Lining" of a Minister.

Mr. Bureau— We ought to know whether that gentleman is paid $3,400 a year to eulogize the Minister in The Globe or any other paper. I did nto ask the hon. gentleman if he was concerned. I asked if it was the same man. If it is the same man I think we shall have something to say whether he writes outside office hours or during office hours.

Mr. Bureau continued that a private secretary was practically the "lining" of a Minister and was considered as inspired by the Minister.

Mr. Rowell—"I have never, directly or indirectly, inspired any article that appeared under the name of "Donald Hunt." So far as my secretary is concerned he has never, to my knowledge, written articles during office hours, and I know that he is often working in the department until midnight.

Mr. Bureau persisted that any member had the right to ask a question of a Minister when the estimates were under consideration. "Whether the Minister has inspired articles or not," continued Mr. Bureau, "whether he knows about the articles being or not being written during office hours, I do not care. That is not the question now. We have asked the Minister if the man who wrote in The Toronto Globe under the name of 'Donald Hunt' was his private secretary or not. The answer is very plain, because the question is very direct. It may be 'Yes' or 'No,' or 'I do not know.' If the Minister does not see fit to give it, we shall try to find some way to get it."

Deputy Speaker's Ruling.

At this point the Deputy Speaker remarked that in voting the salary of a secretary or other Government official, any member of the House certainly had the right to ascertain what were the duties performed by the Government official. "On the other hand," continued the Deputy Speaker, "I do think it is the duty of a member of the Opposition, or any other member of the House, to accept the answer given by the Minister. I understood the Minister to say that he did not know what the secretary did outside of office hours, and that he had not written the articles during office hours."

"Do you hold," insisted Mr. Bureau, "that when a member puts a question he is entitled to an answer?"

The Deputy Speaker — He is entitled to such answer as any member of the Government thinks it possible for him to give.

Mr. Bureau — Do you think the Opposition is going to be at the whim of caprice of any gentleman who sits opposite? I will ask him what is the real name of the private secretary.

Mr. Rowell—Mr. Main Johnson.

Mr. Bureau—Does Mr. Main Johnson write in The Globe, to the knowledge of the honorable gentleman?

"Order! Order!" broke in a number of Government members.

"Why order?" heatedly demanded Mr. Bureau. "The Chairman has ruled that I am entitled to an answer to my question."

On this Mr. Rowell referred to the ruling already given by the Deputy Speaker.

Mr. McMaster thought the question asked by Mr. Bureau was a proper one.

Mr. Nicholson submitted that the House was not concerned with what the private secretary of a Minister did out of office hours any more than it was in work done by the private secretary of Mr. McMaster.

D. D. MacKenzie, however, took a different viewpoint. The private secretary of a Minister, he said, was a public servant and in the pay of the public.

Dr. Sheard, South Toronto, said the house should get on with business and not waste time.

Only if Prejudicial or Partisan.

The Deputy Speaker then ruled that the articles written by the person known as "Donald Hunt" could not be made the subject of inquiry unless they were prejudicial to the public interest or partisan in their motive.

Mr. McMaster endeavoured to show by citing the case of a member in the British Parliament that such articles were prejudicial to the public interest.

Mr. Bureau expressed the opinion that the House was entitled to know what special duties Mr. Rowell's private secretary performed. He said that for the first time in the history of the House the members had been almost refused information. Mr. Carvell, he said, had been questioned in detail as to matters connected with his department, and he had concluded the ordeal smiling. The same applied, he declared, to Hon. Mr. Crerar and other Ministers of the Government.

"Why have we to-day a shroud around the President of the Privy Council?" queried Mr. Bureau. "Is he ashamed of what he tolerates in his department? Has the Minister of the House got to hide behind the rules of the House when he is asked a plain question?"

Salary Not Largest Paid.

S. W. Jacobs (Montreal) asked the Minister how the salary of his secretary compared with that of the salaries of other secretaries.

Mr. Rowell replied that he did not know exactly, but the thought the salary was not the largest paid, to which Mr. Jacobs rejoined by asking what secretary was receiving a larger amount.

"I do not know," said Mr. Rowell. "I was under the impression that the Prime Minister's secretary received more and some of the other Ministers' secretaries the same amount."

Mr. Lapointe declared that if Mr. Johnson's services were necessary for the winning of the war, he should have been paid under the War Appropriations Act. He should not have been placed ahead of long and faithful servants of the Privy Council.

Mr. Jacobs wanted to know if the Minister retained two private secretaries, to which Mr. Rowell replied that he had an assistant private secretary, who was required in order to carry on the work.

My son was afflicted with eczema on face and body for three and a half years, during which time I had him constantly under treatment, having had him to specialists in United States and Canada, also to noted mineral springs, none of which effected a cure. The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

MY FIRST SITTING

CHAPTER LXXIII.

I was as excited as if I were a child, instead of a married woman. I was to go to Merton Gray's studio with Celeste for my first sitting. I fussed over my hair, worried for fear my eyes looked duller han usual, and was so hard to suit that finally Celeste said:

"Madame must not be so anxious. Monsieur Gray will most likely do nothing but sketch in an outline today."

It was silly, I conceded, and tried to be natural. But I was in anything but my usual mood, when we reached the studio.

Merton was very pleasant, very affable. But never before had I seen him when business was uppermost with him. Business and ART. He was the artist that day—the artist with a commission to execute.

His manner was a bit abrupt, at times, and occasionally he became a trifle impatient. I could not hold a pose. Finally, I said:

"It is all so strange, Mr. Gray. I am excited and nervous. I shall do better the next time."

"Of course you will! A first sitting is never very satisfactory," he returned pleasantly. He kept me only an hour, but remarked as we left: "I shall expect you to be less nervous next time, and I shall have to keep you longer, if I am to do anything before you leave town."

AN AFTERNOON CALL.

That afternoon Clark Huntington dropped in at teatime. We chatted gaily, I telling him of my unsatisfactory sitting of that morning.

I liked talking to Clark Huntington. His easy carelessness was restful. The level of his mental processes made talking to him a pleasure.

He was rather witty, a good story teller, without demanding an incessant flow of humor from me. He enjoyed appreciation though, and that I gave freely and honestly. If he was a bit egotistical, a bit inclined to emphasize the I in talking, I was so accustomed to that quality in George that I never dreamed of resenting it in any one.

So this afternoon he entertained me by recounting his experiences when he sat for his portrait. The artist was a woman, and he never was so nervous in all his life until she threw down her brushes and palette in disgust, and asked him to have some tea. Then after they had become better acquainted, had chatted for half an hour, she tried again.

"It went better that second time," he assured me, encouraging me so I might expect my second sitting to go much more smoothly than the first one. "Just forget that you are sitting for your portrait; pretend that you have only dropped into Gray's studio for a call."

I told George of his call at dinner, also of what he had said about my next sitting.

GEORGE IS ANNOYED.

"So you did not accomplish anything to-day," he observed, frowning.

"Not much."

"I might have known that you would be upset over anything new or different," he went on caustically: "I should have asked Mrs. Sexton to accompany you."

"Oh, please don't!" I exclaimed. "I shall be all right the next time. It was mere nervousness for fear I would not look my best, than anything else."

The very idea of having Mrs. Sexton torturing me before Merton Gray, was unbearable. I had hidden her obnoxious interference—as I still called it—from every one but Evelyn Reeve and it would be dreadful to have others know that George thought me incapable of properly sitting for my portrait. I had Celeste as chaperon; surely nothing further was necessary.

But George recurred to the subject once again before we had finished dinner.

"If you do not get along well the next sitting, I shall see if I can get Mrs. Sexton to go with you. I want a good likeness."

Just why he was so keen upon having a portrait of me I could not understand. But he was like that in everything, when he had once made up his mind. If a thing was to be done it must be done at once, and done to suit him—that is, perfectly.

I quickly assured him that the next sitting would be productive of good results. Foolishly adding:

"Drop in yourself, and see how we are getting along."

"A good idea. I will do so."

I regretted immediately that I had suggested such a thing. Would I never learn not to act and speak on impulse? Now, if he were not pleased with the progress of the portrait, he would insist on Mrs. Sexton.

To-morrow, A Long Wait.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Issued by the Canada Food Board in collaboration with experts on the staff of the Dominion Experimental Farm.

Where gardening is done on a community scale, as in the case of vacant lots, a potato planter would be a profitable investment. It would mean a tremendous saving of time and energy for the tired business man who is giving his evenings to vacant lot gardening. It could do the work for all the members of an organization whose lots are located near each other. A potato planter can be made at home, and directions how to go about it are to be found in Bulletin No. 90, issued by the Division of Horticulture, the Department of Agriculture. It will probably be found more satisfactory, however, to buy one, or borrow one, from a public spirited market gardener.

The potato planter makes the rows, opens the furrows, plants or drops the sets, covers them and applies commercial fertilizers at the same time if desired. To do as much in the old way would require a span of horses, and a man to open the furrows with a plough, three men or boys to plant, and one man to scatter the fertilizer, and a span of horses and a man with a double mould plough to cover the sets. This of course applies to community gardening on a more or less exteneive scale.

One's "John Hancock."

The first man to sign the Declaration of Independence was John Hancock and he wrote his name so large that, as he said, King George III of England could read it without eyeglasses. Hence the slang expression.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Don't Diet Yourself TO CURE DYSPEPSIA IT ISN'T NECESSARY

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food, is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little he does eat causes such torture, and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good.

What dyspeptics need is not dieting, or artificial digestants, but something that will put their stomach right so it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and curing severe cases of dyspepsia and indigestion that other remedies were powerless to reach.

It restores the stomach to a normal healthy condition so that the food no longer causes distress, but thoroughly digested and assimilated, and goes on its way making rich, red blood.

Mrs. Henry Shaw, Campbellton, N.B., writes: "I was for five years troubled with a weak stomach, and could not eat any food that would agree with me. I tried different medicines, but could not get cured. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles, and now I am in perfect health."

The Best Insurance

You Can Put on Your Buildings

is the protection that good paint guarantees. Fire Insurance does not prevent fire—it only partly reimburses you for loss sustained, should fire destroy your property.

Fire may never happen.

On the other hand, the use of good paint actually prevents a loss from decay which is not just a possibility, but an absolute certainty. The destructive effects of weather, upon buildings that lack proper paint protection, go on every second of the day and night.

MARTIN-SENOUR

is the greatest known protector of all building material against time and weather, because it is made only of pure White Lead, Pure Zinc Oxide, and Pure Linseed Oil.

You would not think of letting your Fire Insurance Policies lapse in order to save the yearly premiums. It would be even poorer economy to let your Paint Protection Policy lapse by neglecting to repaint your increasingly valuable buildings this season.

When you do paint use Martin Senour "100% Pure" Paint. It spreads easier, covers more surface, and protects longer than most other makes.

Ask for copies of "Farmer's Color Set" and "Town and Country Homes". Many good painting hints in each. 121

EXPECT BIG INCREASE IN POTATO OUTPUT

Thirty-seven carloads of "standard" potatoes, Irish Cobbler and Green Mountain, have been imported from New Brunswick for seed purposes by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. From estimates prepared by the Department it is figured that the use of high grade seed instead of the inferior mixed-seed potatoes will mean an increase of about 40,000 bushels in Ontario's potato crop this year. The bulk of this extra crop is being grown in the north and will be available for distribution as seed next spring in Older Ontario. It was sold to the settlers at $1.75 a bushel, though the cost to the Government was slightly higher.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

LILAC BLOOMS

By Keith Gordon

Copyright, 1917, by T. C. McClure

Danbury, fresh from the wilds of the west, where for a year or more he had been busy taming rebellious nature—after the manner of civil engineers—came down the steps that led from his club to the street, with his broad shoulders well back and the zest of living alive in his heart.

Something of the wholesomeness of nature's solitudes clung to him, showing in the clearness of his eyes and the breadth of his chest. Here was a man, one saw at a glance, accustomed to wide horizons and great drafts of untainted air.

May, that tender mixture of spring and summer, was casting its glamour over the city, and Danbury's blood whirled through his veins with an intoxicating, boyish eagerness. It was a good thing to be alive, to have come from that vast, still land beyond the Rockies, where man seems so small, to the more intimate if less lofty attractions of New York. He felt it keenly, through every inch of his healthy, vigorous body. Then, too, he was on a holiday, the more sweet that it had been long delayed and hardly earned.

The crisp patter of hoofs upon the asphalt, the whizzing of the automobiles, even the distant onrush of the elevated trains—all of it was delightful to him. He was in love with the urban idea. Then at the corner a faint, sweet, vaguely familiar scent drifted across his consciousness, and as at a magic touch Fifth avenue and its sights and sounds faded into the background and an old fashioned garden rose as suddenly before his mind's eye.

There was a rambling white house which looked as comfortable as an old shoe and a wide driveway guarded on both sides by poplars as straight and tall as grenadiers. At the back of the lawn was a shadowy mass of shrubbery where the spikes of lilac bloom stood out richly against the green.

"What could have made me think of the old place just now?" was the silent interrogation that he put to himself. But before he had time to analyze his train of thought his eye fell upon a pushcart at the edge of the sidewalk, upon which stood a tub crammed full of lilac blossoms. It was the scent of the lilacs that had transported him in spirit to the old scenes and the lilacs that as a boy he remembered he scorned because they were flowers and therefore only worthy the attention of women and girls.

The alert Italian, with his parchment skin and bilious looking eyes, who saw in lilacs only another way of getting money, held out a bunch insinuatingly. Danbury tossed him a dime and, selecting one of the soft, purplish spikes of bloom, held it to his face and sniffed at it reminiscently.

Though he walked mechanically onward, in thought he was far back in the years. He felt the soft, springy sod under his bare feet once more, heard the big black and yellow bumblebees buzzing heavily over the sweetness of the flowers, tasted the wild strawberries that grew on the south slope of a certain hill that he knew well. These and many other things that had made life wonderful he thought of, remembering a bit sadly that the world could never seem just like that again. Being a boy—that was the greatest thing!

Guided by that sixth sense that comes to those who dwell much in cities, he paused at a crossing to allow a vehicle to pass. It was a victoria, and leaning lazily against the cushions was a girl of nineteen or twenty years, the sight of whom brought his thoughts quickly back to the present.

Even in that irresponsible moment he realized that she could lay no especial claim to beauty. But the fresh, girlish face was very young and clear, and by a strange coincidence it looked out at him from a mass of lilac as pale and soft in color as the flower he held in his hand. Her light cloth gown, her large hat, the parasol at her side, were all of that color. Danbury had a bewildered feeling that she was a sort of human flower, and he stared like a man in a trance, noting the delicate pallor of her skin and the clear darkness of her hair.

Their eyes met and passed. Hers were a blue so deep that they verged upon purple, and Danbury, who was but the more a poet that he never attempted to write verses, drew a sigh of delight. In some inexplicable way she epitomized all the charm of life to him—the scent of flowers—the tenderness of womanhood. She seemed the lilacs transmuted into femininity, and his glance involuntarily traveled from her to the blossom in his hand, while hers followed with a little, quick, unconscious flicker of appreciation.

The carriage rolled on, and he went his way, with thoughts that were but a blissful blur of lilac maidens and lilac bloom. Under the thick foliage of the trees in Madison square he sat down to pull himself together.

"Ridiculous!" he argued sagely. "A man of thirty-eight to lose his head over the glimpse of an ordinary girl in a pale tinted gown!" Then the wonderful purplish eyes looked into his again, and he recalled the slender form in hazy lilac and the dear young freshness of her brow and forgot to argue at all. He simply dreamed strange, beautiful dreams, in which the scent of flowers and a slender maiden in amethyst robes floated in soft, wordless confusion.

At last he rose and straightened himself with the quick, sharp decision of manner which those who knew him had learned to recognize as a sign of determination.

She was the woman! Absurd as it was, he felt exultantly positive of that. And for the rest—well, he had a calm confidence in himself. He would surely find her and win her.

As all observant persons must have noticed, fate dearly loves to be trusted. In this instance she rewarded Danbury's confidence by bringing him face to face with the victoria once more as he emerged from the square. By her quick avoidance of his glance he saw that the girl recognized him, and at the knowledge a sudden glow suffused him. He felt as if their lives were already upon the loom of destiny. Without a moment's hesitation he stopped a passing cab and, with a few hurried words to the driver, jumped in.

"Do you happen to know the Granvilles of East Twentieth street?" he inquired of Bartram, with whom he dined that night, for he had learned so much in the intervening hours. Bartram nodded, stopping to blow a few rings of smoke into the air before replying, as if it were a matter of no special importance.

"Nice people," he observed at last, "but rather quiet and old timey. Why?"

"I should like to meet them," answered Danbury, with a straight look that conveyed perfectly that no further explanation was forthcoming.

And so, before many days elapsed, he was presented to the lady of his dreams in a room where the odor of lilacs was as heavy as it had been in the garden of his boyhood. As their eyes met he fancied that Miss Granville flushed ever so slightly and that her glance was puzzled and inquiring.

There were several other guests present, but at the end of a quarter of an hour Danbury and she were separated from them by enough space to make confidences possible. It was then that Faith Granville turned her clear eyes upon him and said naively:

"Of course it is you who have been sending the lilacs? But how did you know who I was, and why have you done it?"

There was a vague disapproval in her voice, but not enough to make him despair of forgiveness. Besides, her question proved that she was more child than woman and that in the midst of a society bound by precedent she dared to be herself.

So he threw prudence to the winds and after it diplomacy and convention and stood before her the man that he was, telling her how it had happened, how he had come back to New York and how, even before he had seen them, the scent of the lilacs had taken him back to his boyish days, how she had appeared suddenly, clothed in the very colors of his dream. All this he told her rapidly and earnestly and as only a clean souled, natural man could have done. Then he waited breathlessly for her to speak. By her answer he would know whether he had read her aright.

"O-oh!" she said, with a little gasp, "it is too beautiful!" There was a suspicious humidity in her eyes, but she lifted them bravely to his and continued: "I am not worthy anything so poetical and beautiful as this, and when you come to know me you will find it out. I should hate that—having you discover what a commonplace girl I am!" She stopped and tried to steady her somewhat tremulous lips.

"But that is my risk," was the answer, "and I am not afraid. May we call this the beginning of the beginning?" And he smiled down at her with a look in his eyes that quickened the beating of her heart deliciously.

The end of the beginning came about a year later. The lilacs had made their appearance in the city once more, heaped upon the pushcarts at the curb, where their haughty sisters: the roses and violets, would sometimes stare disdainfully out at them from behind the plate glass windows of the flower shops. Had you been passing through East Twentieth street early in the afternoon of a certain day you might have seen a big, athletic man and a slender, deep eyed girl descending the steps of one of the somber brownstone residences. The man was in the regulation tweeds, with his gloves grasped firmly in one hand, and the girl was gowned in lilac of a shade as elusive and beautiful as a memory.

At the sight of the gorgeously decorated carriage that awaited them they half hesitated. Then as a shower of something fine, white and hard as hailstones began to patter about their heads they dashed down precipitously and gladly availed themselves of its protection.

IN THE SPRING

will be the great test of a life and death struggle on the Western front. In the everyday walks of life, it is the spring time that brings ill health. One of the chief reasons why the run-down man finds himself in a bad state of health in March or April, is because he has spent nearly all his hours for the past four or five months penned up within the walls of house, factory or office. It is the reason for our diminished resistance—that is, lack of out-door life, coupled with perhaps over-eating, lack of good exercise, insufficient sleep, and constipation. In other words, we keep feeding the furnace with food but do not take out the "clinkers," and our fire does not burn brightly. Always keep the liver active.

There is nothing better for health than taking an occasional mild laxative, perhaps once a week; such a one as you can get at any drug store, made up of May-apple, jalap, aloes, (sugar-coated, tiny, easily taken), which has stood the test of fifty years of approval—namely, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. But for the "Spring Fever," the general run-down condition, the lack of ambition, the "blues," one should take a course of treatment every spring; such a standard tonic as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, now to be had in tablet form in fifty-cent vials. Watch the people go plodding along the street. There's no spring, no vitality. A vitalizing tonic such as this vegetable extract of Dr. Pierce's gives you the power to force yourself into action. The brain responds to the new blood in circulation, and thus you're ready to make a fight against stagnation which holds you in bondage. Try it now! Don't wait! To-day is the day to begin. Gain a little "pep," and laugh and live. Vim and vitality are the natural out-pouring of a healthy body. It does not spring up in a night. Try this spring tonic, and you gain the courage that comes with good health.

Better Than None.

When a now famous actor was a young man he was one day, while driving, asked by a pedestrian how to get to a certain village.

"You go," said the young actor, "down this road, and then you turn to the left, and afterward—but I am going in that direction myself. Will you get in and let me drive you?"

"Oh, I suppose so," said the stranger. "Poor company is better than none."

He climbed up and took his seat. He was tall and thin, with a very gruff, rude manner.

The actor tried to entertain him and to get him to talk, but he would say little. Once he drew out a well filled case, selected a cigar and returned the case to his pocket again. He was insufferable.

The young man whipped up his horse and mile after mile was covered in silence. It was beginning to grow dark.

"How about that road to the left that I was to take?" exclaimed the stranger suddenly. "Ain't we come to it yet?"

"Oh, we passed it six miles back," said the other.

"Why didn't you tell me?" said the stranger.

"Because I didn't want to lose your society. Poor company, you know, is better than none," said the young man.

Kaiser's Investments.

The closing of the kaiser's majolica works through the lack of coal will annoy him much, for he made them his special hobby, and, incidentally, made money out of them, for they were conducted on strictly business lines. Even his close friends had to pay for the "privilege" of possessing some of his wares, says the Westminster Gazette.

He has lost heavily in other ways during the war. He was a large shareholder in the Hamburg-American line. In 1912 he had some $3,000,000 in the concern, and his holdings has probably doubled since then. On this he has received little interest lately; but as a setoff there are the heavy dividends which he must have received from his large investments in Krupp's.

Are you familiar with the literature of the world? Do you know anything about life itself?

Dizzy Spells, Indigestion

Napanee Man Could Scarcely Walk at Times, He Was So Dizzy—Indigestion and Kidney Trouble Overcome By This Treatment.

NAPANEE, Ont., March 19. — The experience of Mr. Nolan of this town will interest all who suffer from indigestion and accompanying derangements of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Indigestion is such a common trouble that many suffer for years without knowing how readily they could obtain relief by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to arouse the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and thereby remove the cause of much discomfort and suffering.

Mr. John P. Nolan, Dundas street west, Napanee, Ont., writes: "For some time I was troubled with weak kidneys, and used to have a scalding, burning sensation in my stomach. This was accompanied by dizziness, and occasionally it would be so severe that I would stagger while walking. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and in a very short time my kidneys were in normal condition. Then I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the dizzy spells and I am glad to say that under this treatment they gradually disappeared. At present I am enjoying good health, and am pleased to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food."

"Seeing" Sound Waves.

Interesting data regarding the visibility of sound waves have recently been published in L'Astronomie, in letters from men at the front. One writer tells of seeing curved lines of light, alternating with dark bands, moving swiftly across the sky while heavy cannonading was in progress. A second writer speaks of witnessing a series of arcs of light traveling across a cloud-flecked sky. Scientists attribute these phenomena to sound waves, which originate with the explosions and spread in all directions like enlarging spheres, resulting in successive and alternate belts of rarefied and compressed air, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Under certain atmospheric conditions, with the sun in the proper position, portions of these spreading waves become visible in the form of moving arcs of light.

Georgian Doctor Human Benefactor.

Perhaps the greatest triumph of American medical science was the discovery of anaesthesia, which made modern surgery possible. A number of physicians claimed the priority in this great development, but in latter years the credit has usually been given to Dr. Crawford W. Long, a Georgia country doctor, who received his medical education at the University of Pennsylvania.

Men Secured by the M. S. A.

A REPORT on the operations of the Military Service Act up to the end of March, prepared by the Military Service Council and presented to Parliament, contains this outstanding statement: "There can be no doubt that the men available in Class 1, except in the Province of Quebec, are at the point of exhaustion, and that if the stream of reinforcements for the troops overseas is to be maintained there is no alternative but to call out the other classes."

The report covers at considerable length the story of the organization and operation of the machinery of the act since the Council was appointed on September 3rd last. The net result up to March 30th had been that 31,295 men had been actually placed on duty, or 7.86 per cent. of the total registrations in Class 1. This 31,295 includes 11,059 men in Category A, who reported for service before the men of their class were actually called out, and of these 2,347 afterwards claimed exemptions. The net total of the men actually drafted, therefore, is apparently under 20,000 up to the end of March. And, notwithstanding this comparatively small number, the Military Service Council now declares that the only alternative to stopping the stream of reinforcements is to call out men of the other classes. It may be noted, however, that since this report was written other action has been taken by the Government.

Figures given as to the exemptions granted are of significance, in view of the Government's decision to abolish all exemptions for Class A men between the ages of 20 and 23, inclusive. Of 372,769 cases disposed of by the Exemption Tribunals, 30,263 were granted temporary exemption, of whom 14,991 were given exemption later; 98,043 were exempted on the ground of farming and dairying; 1,936 on the ground of being mariners or fishermen; 4,171 as being railway employes; 1,633 as being civil servants, and 3,136 as being manufacturers. The total number exempted on the ground of employment was 137,419. The total number placed in medical Categories B, C, D, and E was 118,763, of whom 22,943 are B men. On the ground of religious belief there were 636 exemptions, and 3,493 were exempted under the provisions of the War-time Elections Act.

The report notes that in every province, except Quebec, the appeals lodged from the decisions of the local tribunals by applicants for exemption considerably exceeded the number entered by the military representatives. The small number of appeals by the military authorities, outside of Quebec, is asserted to be an indication that the tribunals did not err on the side of leniency, a view which is emphatically confirmed by the fact that in every district the appeal tribunals allowed a majority, and in some cases a very large majority, of appeals by claimants for exemption, while everywhere but in Saskatchewan and British Columbia the majority of the appeals by the military representatives were rejected.

Dealing with the unsatisfactory results in the Province of Quebec, the report says that some of the judges did their utmost to assist in the disposition of appeals, and to give a fair and reasonable effect to the provisions of the act in regard to exemptions, "but in some other cases the smooth operation of the act has been much impaired by decisions for which there does not seem to be any adequate ground."

Statistics given as to appeals before the Central Appeal Tribunals up to March 30th show that up to that date the total number of appeals lodged was 7,735, of which 3,524 still awaited decision. Appeals by applicants for exemption dealt with by Mr. Justice Duff totalled 4,495. Of these 3,109 were dismissed, 105 were allowed exemption, and 881 allowed conditional exemption. Of 114 appeals by military representatives, Mr. Justice Duff has allowed 113 and disallowed only 1.

Comparative figures by districts as to the percentage of men who have been actually placed on duty compared with the total registration of Class 1, are illuminative. For London district the number of men secured up to March 30 was 2,583, or 9.59 per cent. of the registration; for Toronto district 7,351, or 11.91 per cent.; for Kingston district, 3,442, or 8.22 per cent.; for Montreal district, 2,698, or 3.92 per cent.; for Quebec district, 660, or 1.64 per cent.; for Halifax district, 1,732, or 5.90 per cent.; for St. John district, 1,507, or 8.94 per cent.; for Winnipeg district, 4,175, or 16.88 per cent.; for Vancouver district, 2,302, or 11.70 per cent.; for Regina district, 2,611, or 5.99 per cent.; for Calgary district, 1,634, or 5.73 per cent.

Palpitation of the Heart and Nerve Troubles

WERE CURED BY

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

When the heart begins to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beat fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm and the least excitement or exertion seems to affect it.

Many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable through this unnatural action of the heart.

To all sufferers from heart troubles we would advise the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which by their action in strengthening the heart and regulating the beat remove all the distressing conditions, and impart vigor and vitality to the system.

Mrs. Thomas Davidson, Mount Brydges, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer in the past with nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart. I tried several remedies, but without any good results. My son came in one day and advised me to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. After using one and a half boxes, I am fully recovered, and am in a perfect state of health, thanks to your valuable medicine."

"THEY SHALL NOT WANT"

In a moment of inspiration an advertising man recently hit upon the above four words as epitomizing the desire and determination of the people of Canada that the Armies of the Allies and the suffering peoples of the Allied nations of Europe shall be supplied with all that Canada can possibly furnish of the food stuffs necessary for their support in the energetic and successful prosecution of their struggle for the defeat of tyrannical Prussian aspirations.

Compressed in this little sentence is more real throbbing meaning than most full pages of printed matter contain. In sixteen letters it expresses the determination of a people that a great cause must be sustained at no matter what personal sacrifice.

"They shall not want."

How aptly these words also express the attitude of the NORMAL, HEALTHY-MINDED MAN towards, those who under our social system, naturally look to him for support and protection. As he thinks of the wife who has entrusted her future to his care and of the children whom he has brought into the world, his thought and determination is "THEY SHALL NOT WANT."

This is always the attitude of the normal, healthy-minded man who is willing to sacrifice, if need be, to attain this noble end.

A policy in the Sun Life of Canada provides the safest and most economical means of fulfilling this noble desire and determination and incidentally, if fortunately in time this mode of protection is no longer necessary he may himself reap the benefits of his savings and thrift.

Thus virtue has its own reward.

GRAIN MARKET

The cash oats situation continues very strong, as seen in the steady advance in the May option, which is now practically on a cash basis. The May option in both the Chicago and Winnipeg markets yesterday advanced another 7-8c., although many of the traders had thought that the present advance had about run its course. As the high price has failed to materially increase spot offerings, it is fairly concluded that the farmers have little on hand to offer. The corn market was easier, but there is scarcely any enquiry in the local market. Rye and barley continue very weak, the former quoting 10c. lower.

Union Stock Yards— Receipts yesterday, 41 cars, with 619 cattle, 593 calves, 593 hogs, and 8 sheep and lambs.

Trade was quiet yesterday, most of the fresh receipts being held over for to-day's market. Among the day's transactions was another new record breaker. A fancy yearling steer, 830 lbs., fed by James Leask & Son of Seagrave, was sold by Rice & Whitley at $18.50. Outside of this "special extra," the market was steady and firm at yesterday's prices.

Hogs were 50c. lower at $20.50, fed and watered.

FIREWORKS IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS LAST EVENING

Member For West Peterboro' Was Rebuked by Premier Borden —Government Wins

THE TITLE QUESTION

The following was received this morning by the Examiner from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. The message, which is self-explanatory, reads as follows:

"Please state that I left the House and did not vote last night, I would not vote for titles, and I would not vote for what might prove the defeat of a win-the-war Government. I spoke to Sir Wilfrid merely to ask if he intended to insist on making this a trial of strength, and therefore the possible defeat of the Government. He said no, and there was no disrespect in my making that simple inquiry. The Government had invited and conducted a debate on the question, and we had no idea that it would move an amendment without intimating that the motion would be considered a vote of want of confidence unless it intended it to be a free for all. This is not a party Parliament, but it is plain that on no pretence can men cease to follow some system of principles, usually called party, unless they have no principle. The Government has had its way, but we have not been humiliated."

J. H. Burnham.

THREATENED TO RESIGN.

OTTAWA, May 22.—Sir Robert Borden caused a sensation in Parliament last night when he threatened to resign the position of Prime Minister if the Government't action respecting hereditary and other titles conferred on Canadians was not endorsed by the House. Incidentally, the Leader of the Government severely rebuked one of his supporters, Mr. J. H. Burnham, of West Peterborough, because the latter had consulted Sir Wilfrid Laurier for the purpose of ascertaining whether the question would be regarded as a party question. There was something of a crisis for a short time. Mem-

OFFICIAL SUMMARY

Between Four and Five Million Americans Will Be Under Arms Before July 1st

TROOP MOVEMENTS

(Special to Examiner.)

Washington, May 22. — Predicting that the United States will have between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 men under arms before July 1, 1918, Representative Charles Caldwell of New York, member of Military Committee, to-day gave the House an official summary of America's fighting strength.

1,000,000 MEN.

"Within one year after the first Americans left for France, this nation will have 1,000,000 men on the western front," Caldwell, who is close to the War Department, asserted.

"During the first ten days of May, the troop movements totalled 90,000."

Caldwell quoted official figures showing that the army by June 1st, will have 1,880,894 men and 148,388 officers in the service.

Boys Stole Wire From Fair Grounds Sold To Junk Man

For stealing several hundred pounds of copper wire from the Exhibition grounds, five boys, the oldest of whom is only twelve years, have been apprehended by the police, and are due for a session before Magistrate Dumble. The wire belonged to the Utilities Commission and had been strung in the park for the Fair. The boys carried it away in sections and sold it to a south end junk dealer on Lansdowne street who, it was stated, may be charged with receiving stolen goods.

Convention of Chief Constables.

The annual convention of the Chief Constables of Canada will be held in Hamilton on July 16, 17 and 18. One of the subjects to be discussed is a proposed amendment to regulate the sale of drugs in Canada as effected by the Harrison act in the United States. This would appoint one doctor in each community who would have to countersign every order or prescription for noxious drugs before it could be filled.

Chief Thompson is preparing, during his spare moments, a paper on "Evidence and Court Procedure."

Two Boys Making Good.

Two boys who had got into trouble as incorrigible, were sent by Chief Thompson to farms near Omemee. To the satisfaction of the Chief and the surprise of some of the officials, the boys are making good. They are industrious and seemingly contented. As yet they have not left the farms and are responding to the kindly treatment of their employers. Chief Thompson receives and saves for them the money they earn, and a lump sum will be waiting them when their term of probation is ended.

Crop Competition Has Few Entrants

The Field Crop Competition in spring wheat and oats has only a few entrants, and there is a danger that the farmers of this district will overlook a chance to pick up a little prize money. For the wheat contest $100 will be divided into seven prizes, with $25 for the first. In the white oats competition there are also seven prizes ranging from $20 down to $5, with the total $75. Farmers are reminded of these competitions and are urged to enter. Entrants must report to Mr. F. J. A. Hall at the Court House, either by telephone or in person.

ANOTHER HOUSECLEANING FOR CANADIAN MILITARY ORGANIZATION

Dual Ministry of Militia May Be Abolished and Sir Edward Kemp Recalled—Thorough Re-organization at Argyle House and a Weeding Out of Various Branches—Non-combatant Units Affected.

OFFICERS MUST REVERT OR RETURN

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, May 22.—That important and far-reaching changes in the Canadian military organization overseas are pending, is forecasted in unofficial but reliable reports circulated at Ottawa. For a considerable time past the advisability of maintaining a dual Ministry of Militia in Canada and overseas has been a matter of controversy, both on the part of the military and civilian authorities, and there has been a strong body of opinion in favour of the abolition of the latter. At the present time, Sir Edward Kemp is the overseas Minister, and Major-General Mewburn the Minister in Canada. Events have shown that there is a marked lack of co-operation, or rather of co-ordination, between the two Ministers, and considerable dissatisfaction has resulted.

Complete Reorganization.

It is now stated that a complete reorganization is in contemplation, if not in immediate prospect. Sir Edward Kemp, it is stated, will be recalled, and his position as overseas Minister abolished. In his stead there will be appointed a civilian deputy Minister, who will be directly responsible to the Minister of Militia in Canada. There will be a thorough reorganization at Argyle House and a weeding out of the various branches connected therewith on a basis of efficiency and economy and without regard for pull and influence. In fact it is stated that many officers who have not yet gone to the front will be given the opportunity of doing so in a reverted capacity or of coming back to Canada and returning to civil life.

Sir Arthur Currie.

It is understood that General Sir Arthur Currie will be placed in command, not only of the Canadian forces in France, but also of those in England, with the title of Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian forces. General Turner, who is, first and last, a soldier, will probably return to France. General Currie will control his own reinforcements. Radical changes in the medical services are also, it is stated, in contemplation, while a shaking up in the forestry and other non-combatant units is anticipated.

British Advance In Mesopotamia

The Turks Offer Little Resistance —Large Quantity of Stores Captured

OFFICIAL REPORT

Canadian Press.

LONDON, May 22.—Turkish troops in Mesopotamia, north of Bagdad display little activity while British cavalry has advanced north of Tekrit on the Tigris to Fatha. An official statement on operations in Mesopotamia reads:—

"The Turks have shown no activity since they were driven across Lesser Zab, on May 11. The removal of large quantities of military stores captured in Kirkuk proceeds without mounted troops have advanced as far as Fatha. The Turks holding of the village offered little resistance and retreated hastily up the river."

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Son and Brother, Sig. Earl Jos. Downey, who died of wounds in France, May 22nd, 1917.

He bravely answered duty's call,
His life he gave for one and all,
The unknown grave is the bitterest blow—
None but an aching heart can know.
None knew how hard the parting was.
Or what the farewell cost.
On earth's there's strife,
In Heaven's there's rest,
They miss you most who love you best.
The cup was bitter, the loss severe,
To part with one we loved so dear;
The trial is hard we'll not complain,
But trust in Jesus to meet again.

From his Parents, Sister and Brothers, in sad remembrance.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Earl Joseph Downey, 4th Battery, 1st Canadian Contingent, who died in No. 6 Casualty Clearing Station, May 22nd, 1917, of wounds received on May 14th. May his soul rest in peace.

For greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friend. By his wife.

Gains For The Italian Troops

Several Enemy Attacks Broken Up In the Mountains—Austrian Position Destroyed

PRISONERS CAPTURED

Canadian Press.

ROME, May 22.—Italian troops in the mountains west of Brenta, have broken up enemy attacks, especially on the southern slopes of Sasso Rosso and on Monte Spinoncia west of the Piave, says an official statement from the war office. Today an Austrian position was destroyed and fifty three prisoners captured.

The Opening Gun At Globe Tailoring Co.

Watch Their Windows and Keep Posted—Notice the Summer Suitings

It is an open secret that the Globe Tailoring Co., corner of George and Brock streets, have been mobilizing all spring in preparation for this summer's trade.

To-day, the Globe Tailoring Co. is ready and eager for the spirit of service. Their tailored clothes have the fashion features right up-to-the-minute.

There is a marked tendency to lightness of appearance; soft draping, more attention to linings and pockets, and a strong effort to bring out the natural lines of the figure.

The Globe is now offering an unusually large collection of guaranteed indigo black and blue serges, and grey and brown summer suitings. The week of the 24th of May should bring out many bookings for made-to-measure suits from these cloths, which are very scarce with most tailors.

The Globe, however, has an unusually full stock, especially of the genuine serges, which they offer to make up in real merchant tailor style for $20.00 the suit, which is below anything offered elsewhere.

The display of staple ideas in suitings for older men are among the best in the city. Some of the best suit values at the Globe are now on view, where measures may be left any day as well as in the evening.

Favourable Reply is Expected By the United States

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, May 22.—State Department officials were confident today that Germany will answer favourably the American request for an open American-German conference at Berne on the prisoner question.

AID FOR RUSSIANS

United States Has a Definite Plan Under Consideration—Will Buy Up Supplies

THE GRASPING HUN

(By Carl D. Groat—United Press Service).

WASHINGTON, May 22. — The State Department has under consideration a definite plan of aid for Russia.

It became known to-day that this contemplation, a form of financial assistance which, while helping Russia to struggle back to a place in the sun, would also foil Germany's grasping machinations. The Department plan is to furnish a vast quantity of money, wherewith to buy up supplies in Russia, including cotton, oil and other commodities much desired by Germany.

Will Seize Them.

Germany will seize them without pay if America does not step into the breach, according to proponements of the measure.

With the money which America would pay for these supplies, Russia would have an opportunity to do much toward re-habilitation, it is agreed.

The plan has been given every consideration, but has not yet been approved by Secretary Lansing. However, there is a possibility that with some modifications, it will be put into effect.

Peterboro' Prizewinners!

THE PRESENTATION TOOK PLACE LAST EVENING IN THE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HALL.

The presentation of prizes for essays written by the pupils of the Separate schools in the city on "Confederation," was made last night at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The prizes were given as a result of, when at the convention in May, 1917, in Hamilton, it was decided each Knight of Columbus Council be voted $5 to be given as a prize for Separate schools in their vicinity, for the essay mentioned. The object of this awarding of prizes was trifold, to encourage education, to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Confederation, and to inspire patriotism. As so many members belong to Cobourg and Oshawa, it was decided to include the Separate schools there, and an appropriation of $20 was made, making $5 for the winner at each of the five schools.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

The prizes were awarded by Mr. J. C. Sullivan; the judges were Messrs. F. D. Kerr, J. Corkery and V. J. McElderry

At the Sacred Heart School Miss Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cook, was the prize winner; Miss Marcelle McNulty, daughter of Dr. McNulty, at St. Mary's Convent; and Master Joseph Daily, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Daly, 146 Aylmer St., at St. Peter's Boys' School.

A PROGRAMME.

After the presentation of prizes the parents and friends who attended enjoyed a good musical programme.

Instrumental duet, the Misses Hill.
Vocal solo, Miss Fitzpatrick.
Violin solo, Miss Florence Scott.

Strike Situation Getting Worse

Fifteen Thousand More Men Called Out in Winnipeg To-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WINNIPEG, May 22.—Fifteen thousand more men were called out in the sympathetic strike to-day, by labour leaders, and the situation becomes still more serious. No street cars are running to-day. Labour leaders say that all moving picture shows will be closed to-morrow with the operators on strike. The City Council has made concessions to the strikers and a settlement is hoped for soon. In the meantime the situation is very serious here.

It is false economy to use cheap, inferior tea, for it yields so poorly in the teapot. Use only the genuine Salada to secure the maximum number of cups to the pound, and, in addition, you will enjoy the unique flavour.

THE IRISH SITUATION

John Dillon is Skeptical of Government's Intention to Offer Home Rule For Ireland

BREACH IS WIDENING

(By Webb Miller—United Press Service).

DUBLIN, May 22.—John Dillon, chairman of the United Irish League, issued a statement to-day declaring that the Nationalist members who have absented themselves from the British Parliament for some time will return.

"It has never been our intention to absent ourselves permanently," Dillon said.

Thrown Into Confusion.

"I can't say, however, just when we will return. Ireland has been thrown into confusion by futile and mischievous proceedings of the Government. To desert Parliament would be an adoption of the Sinn Fein's tactics.

"I am extremely skeptical that the Government will offer Home Rule. I can't understand what game the Government is playing. I am not here in the councils of the Government nor the Sinn Feiners."

The manifesto issued by the anti-conscriptionists, which met at the Mansion House, denouncing the Sinn Fein arrests as an attempt to discredit and disrupt Ireland's united resistance to conscription and prejudice Ireland's cause in the eyes of friendly countries, is regarded as significant, in that it clearly shows the unbending hostility and angry suspicion against almost any Governmental actions.

Chasm Widening.

This agitation is widening and deepening the chasm between England and Ireland, and has shattered any hope that Dillon and the other Nationalists will await proofs and then repudiate any alliance with the Sinn Fein. They seem resolved to stick with the Sinn Fein through thick and thin, in the main objective of resistance to conscription.

The conference re convened, following the Government's promise of the immediate publication of part of the evidence against the Sinn Feiners.

RELATIONS STRAINED.

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, May 22.—A Dublin despatch to the Daily News to-day said that the Irish Nationalists will return to Parliament next week.

The Times Dublin correspondent declares that the relations between the Sinn Feiners and the Nationalists are strained to the breaking point.

Farmers Held A Meeting In Dummer Township

A largely attended meeting of farmers was held in Dummer last evening to consider ways and means of impressing upon the Government the necessity of amending the present Military Service Act as a means of alleviating the farm labour problem. A strongly worded resolution was drawn up, and will be presented to Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, Federal member for East Peterborough, with instructions to have the matter brought to the attention of the proper authorities in Ottawa. Some of the farmers present were prepared to demand the resignation of Mr. Sexsmith unless some definite action was forthcoming.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, MAY 22ND, 1918.

MR. ROWELL'S SECRETARY.

Is Mr. Main Johnston, private secretary of Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the Privy Council, the "Donald Hunt" who wrote an article in the Toronto Globe, praising Mr. Rowell? A number of members of Parliament endeavoured to get an answer to this question on Monday, but the rules of the House failed their curiosity. The article was described by one member as "very eulogistic of the minister and he would blush to read it." Mr. Rowell showed himself to be an adroit side-stepper. He was not responsible for any work done outside of office hours by his secretary, and made no inquiries as to what that official did outside of those hours. There are, however, many people, who will be inclined to agree with Mr. Jacques Bureau, M. P., that the House and the people in general should know whether or not a public servant paid $3400 a year is given to writing eulogistic articles about the minister who employs him.

COL. LABATT'S CASE.

The case of Col. Labatt seems to be settled. The special committee on pensions has found that that officer has been totally disabled, and is entitled to one hundred per cent. disability, and that he was not suffering from this disability when he enlisted. The committee also recommends that his resignation from the position of Pension Commissioner be accepted, which does away with the paradox of a fully disabled man holding a $5,000 a year position.

Col. Labatt's trouble is valvular disease of the heart. Many of the rank and file who have been invalided home from overseas, suffering from the same complaint, are only receiving a few dollars a month pension. In their cases the medical boards have taken the position that these men must have been suffering from heart trouble before enlistment, and their condition has only been aggravated, if not entirely caused by service. In Col. Labatt's case the assumption is that he had no ailment of the kind he is now suffering with when he enlisted. The manner in which the special committee arrived at that conclusion would be interesting information for the hundreds of returned soldiers who are also suffering from heart trouble.

PENSION RECOMMENDATIONS.

The recommendations of the special committee of the House of Commons, appointed to report upon the pension regulations, will probably be considered by returned soldiers as satisfactory as far as they go.

The committee's plan, that the existing medical board shall include an overseas member of the C. E. F., with experience in actual war conditions, will be welcomed by the returned soldiers. The complaint has been made that the members of the medical boards have been unfamiliar with gas and shell shock cases, and, therefore, were unable to correctly judge as to the disability sustained by men who were invalided because of one or the other. The recommendation that medical boards shall see that every facility is granted a soldier to give an account of his condition as it appears to him, and that his statement shall be recorded, and forwarded to the pension board for consideration, is also a step in the right direction, as the soldier will know that his own views on his condition of health will be before the pension board when his pension is being considered.

The suggestion that a pensioner, who is called upon to go to district headquarters for a medical re-examination, is entitled to a reasonable amount for travelling expenses and subsistence, and also for loss of wages, is in line with the resolutions passed by the Peterboro branch of the Great War Veterans' Association and which is to be brought by them before the Provincial Convention at Hamilton.

A GOOD TEST.

The filling of the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. W. B. Rogers, postmaster of Toronto, will furnish an interesting test of the new Civil Service Bill. Under this measure it has been stated that such offices would be filled by promotion. If this principle is followed in the Toronto case, Mr. Lemon, the senior member of the Toronto post office staff, who has thirty-five years' service, and who, starting at the bottom of the ladder, has held positions in every department, will become postmaster. Already, however, the name of Sir George E. Foster has been mentioned for the position, and another who is said to be a keen contender is A. H. Birmingham, Dominion organizer of the Conservative party. If either of these or any similar active politician is selected to succeed the late Mr. Rogers, public faith in the Civil Service Bill will be shattered. For this reason the eyes of all Canada will be on the Toronto situation until the appointment is made.

THE CALL MADE CLEAR.

Yesterday a reference was made in these columns to the confusion caused among the young men of nineteen years of age through the vagueness of the proclamation calling them to the colours. It was not clear as to just what men were effected, and the status of those who became nineteen after the issue of the proclamation was especially in doubt. However, an official notice has been issued by the Military Service Branch of the Department of Justice and is published in to-day's issue of the Examiner, clearing up the tangle and making the call to the colous intelligible, which it certainly was not before. A perusal of this notice will show that every male British subject resident in Canada, born on or since the 13th of October, 1917, who has attained or shall attain the age of 19 years and who is unmarried or a widower without children, must, unless he is within the classes mentioned in the schedule of exceptions to the Military Service Act, report on or before the 1st of June, or within ten days of his after his 19th birthday, whichever date shall be the later. That means that those who became nineteen before the 21st of May have to report on or before the first of June, while those who become nineteen after the 21st of May, must report within ten days following their birthday. Men will automatically become liable for service as they attain the age of nineteen, and are given ten days in which to report. It is provided that these reports must be in writing, must give the name in full, the date of birth and address in full and be sent by registered post in the case of Peterborough men, to the Deputy Registrar under the Military Service Act, Kingston.

THE INDECENT MAURICE.

(From the New York Globe.)

Not satisfied with prior revelations of what sort he is, General Maurice, formerly director of the British bureau of military information, makes a further indecent exposure of himself as a writer for the press. He has hired himself out as military critic of the London Chronicle, and his first article speakingly repeats the statement whose character Lloyd George sufficiently exposed last week in the British House of Commons.

With Pecksniffian pretence Maurice whines that what he did was because of the depth and purity of his patriotism. This man, who did what he could to break the bonds of the alliance between Great Britain and France, salutes himself as a martyr. Having been employed in a confidential business, possessing information that beyond doubt Germany would pay millions to learn, he is becoming an interpreter and explainer of military events. One can conceive with what avidity Berlin will study his words to get at their implication — to puzzle out from what he says what must be the facts that control his conclusions.

WHAT AMERICANS FIGHT.

(New York Herald).

In a short review of his experiences abroad Mr. Henry P. Davison, chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross, has presented a complete and convincing answer to the question, "Why does America fight?" The outstanding feature of German methods at the present time, Mr. Davison says, is the effort to terrorize the women and the children and the old men of France and Great Britain and Italy by air raids upon undefended cities and towns and hamlets. "The most dastardly, unrighteous, cruel and devilish plan which could be conceived," he pronounced it. "It is based on the theory that the killing of four children out of five will induce the mother to implore her government to have the war stopped that her fifth child may live."

Mr. Davison was explaining the large part the American Red Cross is playing in helping sustain the morale of the peoples of Italy and France and Great Britain which the Germans by their dastardly attacks upon the civilian populations are trying to break down. That this great voluntary organization is doing a mighty work toward bringing about victory for the nations now defending civilization is known; how great that work may not be fully realized until victory comes. That the American people will continue to support the great work of the Red Cross, that they will contribute all the money that the work requires is certain.

It is in relation to the broader aspects of the war, however, that Mr. Davison's comment is of most importance. There are times when, owing to frequent repetition, the atrocities committed by the Germans and their accomplices pass without the notice they deserve. Mr. Davison fires anew our just resentment of German methods and our determination that, cost what it may, their crimes shall be avenged. Americans are in this war because decency and self-respect dictate that they be in it. They are fighting primarily because of the dastardly nature of German warfare — a warfare, not against armies but against peoples, and particularly against non-combatants and women and children. It is a reversion to barbarism that is revolting to every tent of civilization, every sense of decency. Americans are fighting because of frightfulness, and they are fighting the Beast of which frightfulness is born. And until that Beast is destroyed Americans will continue to fight.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sir Sam Hughes says there is a "puffery bureau" at work. After reading the following from the Toronto Telegram, the public will agree with Sir Sam:

"Ontario recognizes John A. Currie as the biggest parliamentary figure in the proceedings of this session, and the most truly representative member who has yet spoken on behalf of Ontario."

There is an appropriation before the House of $550,000, which is to be largely used in advertising Canada in Europe. The 450,000 soldiers we have sent overseas are, however, the biggest and best advertisement Canada has had across the Atlantic.

EXCITING RUNAWAY ON GEORGE STREET

A piece of horsemanship which would have done credit to many a circus was displayed yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock by Rez. Toone, driver for Toone's grocery 639 George street.

The horse, which was hitched to Toone's grocery cart, started its mad career at Smith street, and dashed straight down George street. Toone, who had the reins, steered the frightened animal in a masterly manner through the crowds at Charlotte street crossing, dodged three cars without a scratch and continued his race straight to the Exhibition grounds, where the horse, exhausted, stopped. A small boy named Maudsley, from Edinburgh street, kept his seat beside Toones in some marvellous manner.

Slight Accident.

The only accident on the way was the knocking over of a man named A. McFarlane, 18 Lisburn street. He however escaped with a bruised knee, and was sent home in a taxi by Mr. Toone. P. C. Lawrence commandeered an automobile at the corner of George and Charlotte streets and followed the runaway to the Exhibition grounds.
